ROTO-GRAPHIC JOINS TRIBUNE SUNDAY GROUP

First Issue Today of New Section.

In a riot of multi-color, of deeptone illustrations and brilliant type, the allied Rotogravure and Graphic sections of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE are presented for the first time today as a new twin interest in THE TRIBUNE's constantly growing family of color and picture sections.

If you, who have been reading THE TRIBUNE these ninety years, are as agreeably astonished by this new form in newspaper making as are the editors and artists and engravers and printers and pressmen who created it, you will know what pleasure there is in good work.

The new Rotogravure-Graphic combines the Rotogravure section with its dazzling reproductions of every hue and tint in the rainbow with rotogravure printed Graphic magazine. Taken by themselves, these sections are given to TRIBUNE readers as the highest expression of printing in their fields. When combined you will see that they are sisters, blond and brunette, if you please, and that the beauty and lure and intelligence of each is moulded to that of the other.

Presses Specially Equipped.

The Rotogravure section keeps its rich super-calendared paper and its profusion of color tones. The Graphic adopts the Rotogravure size. And it takes its impressions from a battery of rotogravure presses specially equipped to project a shimmer of typographical and pictorial excellence which has never before been seen in a newspaper.

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE will continue to be the most profusely illustrated newspaper in America, both in colors and in black and white.

The new magazine combination is a forward thrust in the presentation of news and news pictures at the moment when they are new. All TRIBUNE pictures are published from first hand sources.

Same Artists Still Needed.

The new Graphic is astonishing in more ways than in appearance. It is astonishing in that it grew out of a special process that reduced the number of workmen. You will say this is unfortunate, since the number of workmen was cut down. But it is not. It is very fortunate.

It is fortunate that special process in rotogravure plate making made it unnecessary to keep so many skilled employés. And it is fortunate that this same special process makes it possible to produce this new Graphic section. But notice this: The skilled artists who found themselves about to lose their places because they had developed a swifter and better process were instantly required to produce the new section made possible by the process.

You now have a fair idea of what has happened. THE TRIBUNE's Rotogravure has always been the high mark in fine newspaper printing. Newspapers, including THE TRIBUNE, have struggled for years with the problem of a magazine section. It has always seemed that something printed on the comic color presses was the best we could do. The comic presses are unquestionably good for comics, but they were not good enough for the kind of magazine section THE TRIBUNE has demanded.

Four Styles of Color Printing.

The skill of the rotogravure men has brought out the process. The process makes it possible to stop trying to print fine pictures and type on a press intended for line drawings.

THE TRIBUNE now gives you four styles of color printing. All have been advanced through study and equipment in the Tribune plant. The Rotogravure is first in the field of multiple tones, reproducing, as it does, the faintest nuances in the brush strokes of an old master. THE TRIBUNE experts think the Graphic-in-roto on newsprint is a sturdy first in the special intaglio process.

Then the comic cartoons are the unique product of the comic presses, which, as has been said, are so imperfectly adapted to the uses of fine graphic printing. And then there is the startling three and four color processes developed in THE TRIBUNE laboratories for use on its news section pages and which run at a speed of 50,000 an hour.

Thus color printing has been put in the forefront of news interest as each new process has demonstrated.

THE TRIBUNE hopes you will like Roto-Graphic.

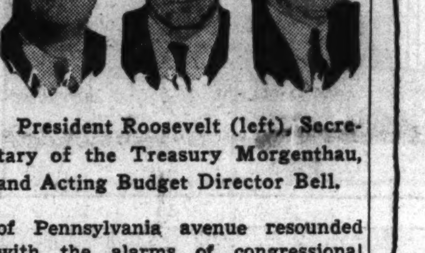
BUDGET WORRY AT FEVER PITCH IN WHITE HOUSE

Allies Cry Economy to Balk Tax Rise.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Around a mahogany table piled deep with a confusion of official papers, scrawled notations, imposing reports and estimates, three highly worried men sat in the White House today. They fumed and perspired as they sought to revise the budget which shall determine how much the United States government will spend in the twelve months beginning next July 1.

The three worriers were President Roosevelt, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, and Acting Budget Director Bell. As they labored at their task which was begun months ago and which was to have been concluded a week ago, the halls of congress on Capitol hill at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue resounded with the alarms of congressional leaders at what message may come out of the conference.



President Roosevelt (left), Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, and Acting Budget Director Bell.

Allies in Congress Urge Cuts.

For President Roosevelt's own leaders today in both senate and house lashed out at the prospect of enacting a new tax bill and called for a drastic cut in governmental spending to meet revenue.

Representative Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.], chairman of the house ways and means committee where all revenue bills must originate, was especially emphatic in his protest.

"I am for retrenchment in governmental expenditures," he declared. "I do not want any tax bill at this session. We cannot say positively if a tax bill will be necessary next year but I hope we can avoid one."

Increase for This Year Cited.

At the same time Representative Clarence Cannon [D., Mo.] of the house appropriations committee, pointed out that the government has spent approximately five and one-half billion dollars in the nine months ending April 1 as compared with five billions for the same period last year.

"During January," he said, "disbursements reported by the treasury approximated $635,000,000 as contrasted with about $372,500,000 the preceding January."

Early in the year tax receipts were reported to be 150 millions under the published estimates. A little later they were said to be falling short by about 300 millions. In March they were falling 400 millions below. And now we are told that they are close to 600 millions short with every prospect of increasing discrepancies.

See Deficit of 3 Billions.

Cannon said there was little doubt that the year's deficit, estimated by

Need 2 Cakes for 'Scientific' Twins' Party

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Jimmy and Johnny Woods, New York's more or less famous "scientific" twins, are going to have a birthday tomorrow.

There will be a party, of course, with a cake. Indeed, there may be two cakes, since Jimmy, the "unconditioned" half of the pair, was reported to have gotten more than his share of the candle ornamented confection while his scientifically trained brother was doing his stuff for the benefit of reporters and other interested observers at last year's anniversary affair.

"Jimmy's a mug," anyhow, or so his father, Dennis Woods, 46 years old and Irish to the core, insists after close range study of the results of the scientific experiments these five years. And Johnny, by the same parental authority, is a "gentleman."

Behavior Miles Apart.

"Johnny sits at table like a Park avenue feller," the wiry little father will assure you with a merry twinkle in his eye. But Jimmy—"He's 10th avenue the way he takes his food."

Neighbors of the Woods, however, look upon both youngsters as "university trained," since they passed the first two years of their lives undergoing special training in the normal child development clinic of the Columbia-Presbyterian medical center, Johnny being carefully "conditioned" under the best scientific knowledge as to child behavior, while Jimmy was being permitted to go, also under scientific scrutiny, his own willful way.

Still Being Studied.

For the last three years they have been back with their parents on Amsterdam avenue, but they still are being watched by the clinic and their behavior is a frequent subject of study for psychologists.

Every year they give a preview of their birthday for the benefit of the press and science, answering test questions, singing snatches of songs, and otherwise displaying the results of their past year's cultural accretions. And every year the scriveners find themselves wondering anew whether Jimmy, who was left to go his own way, is smarter than Johnny, who had all the advantages under the sky, so to speak—or vice versa.

One thing noted at this year's "prelim" was that Johnny was a shade better at pronounciation, but Jimmy evened up the score to the satisfaction of observers by explaining that he was the "untwained one." It was

LIFE TOUGH ON LINER; NOT A THING TO DRINK BUT WINE AND BEER

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, April 17.—(AP)—The sixty-three passengers and the crew of the French liner Bretagne had to drink wine or beer or go thirsty while the San Francisco bound ship was aground sixty hours on the Colombian coast, officers related when the vessel reached here today. Ocean water leaked into the fresh water tanks when the ship struck bottom.

The craft was freed after 200 tons of crystal sand, part of the cargo, had been dumped overboard. The vessel was scheduled to make the canal transit tomorrow and enter drydock at Balboa.

MISTAKING SON FOR OTHER MAN, HE SHOOTS WIFE

Santa Cruz, Cal., April 17.—[U.P.]—Allan D. Boggs, 52, retired United States army major today shot his wife twice, because he mistook the sleeping form of his son, 12, for "another man."

After he came home early this morning and found a note from his wife saying she was going to spend the night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Harris, Boggs said he was convinced she was keeping an illicit rendezvous. He borrowed a revolver, forced his way past a frightened Negro butler at the Harris home and searched the house until he found his wife.

There were twin beds in the room. In one of them he saw his wife. In the other he saw what appeared to be a man's form, he said. He fired twice. One bullet punctured a lung. A second struck her in the abdomen.

The boy, awakened by the firing, ran screaming from the room.

AREA UNCHANGED IN 500,000,000 YRS. IS MADE A PARK

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.] — Approximately 330,690 acres comprising a desert country so waterless and formidable that it rarely has been visited by white men has been made a perpetual government preserve by proclamation of the President, the department of the interior announced today. Conditions prevail there, the department says, virtually as they did 500,000,000 years ago. The area, known as Organ Pipe Cactus National monument, is situated in a part of Arizona described by the interior department as the border land between the habitable world and the uninhabitable.

Stork Loses Out; Twin Boys Born by Phone

Most mothers don't really mean it when they say the stork brought their babies. But when Mrs. Elma Nelson's twin boys grow up she can tell them quite honestly that she got them by telephone.

She phoned to the Chicago Maternity center at 1336 South Newberry avenue when she discovered that she hadn't time to get to a hospital for the birth of her expected baby.

The obstetrician in charge said he'd send a physician, an intern, and a nurse at once to her home at 1146 Newport avenue, five miles distant, but Mrs. Nelson said that wouldn't be soon enough.

One Baby Is Born.

And so the obstetrician told her he'd give her full directions by telephone. He did, and eight minutes later Mrs. Nelson reported the birth of a boy.

Before she hung up the receiver a neighbor woman who had come over to help her took the telephone to tell the man at the hospital another baby was being born.

The obstetrician said to put Mrs. Nelson back on the phone again and told her again just what to do.

Two Babies Are Born.

Exactly thirteen minutes after Mrs. Nelson first telephoned two fine, healthy boys had been born, one weighing six and the other five and a half pounds. Just one minute after that Dr. D. L. Cross, Intern J. E. Forsyth, and Nurse Marion Cadwallader arrived to find that if the stork does deliver babies he's going to get competition from now on from the telephone.

Mrs. Nelson is 40 years old. She is the mother of two other boys, 6 and 7 years old. Her husband, Leonard Nelson, was working at his job as a painter at the time.

It all happened Friday, but every one was so excited that nobody thought about reporting it until yesterday.

The physician who sat at the telephone and delivered the twins asked that his name not be mentioned.

Five Persons Are Drowned as Auto Plunges Into River

Terre Haute, Ind., April 17.—(AP)—Five persons were drowned at the Merom ferry on the Wabash river today when an automobile in which they were riding got out of control and plunged into the river. The dead are: Peter Milam, his wife, Mrs. Blanche Milam, and their 4 year old son; Jack Warren and Mrs. Warren. All were residents of Riverton in Sullivan county, Ind.

What Should Shins Wear? Envoys Ponder

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Not since President Wilson appeared at the peace conference with one trouser cuff turned down and the other turned up has the capital been visited by such a sartorial storm as is raging over the announcement that American diplomats will wear knee breeches at the coronation of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth.

Robert Bingham.

Capital Beau Brummels are back in the spirit of the days when criticism of a cravat was sufficient provocation for a duel in clashes over what the well dressed shin should wear. Almost any day seconds may be pondering pistols for two and breeches for one at the historic dueling ground of nearby Bladensburg where Stephen Decatur fell under the pistol of Commodore James Barron in the morning sun of March 22, 1820.

Several Schools of Thought.

There are several schools of thought on the satin plus fours of Ambassador Robert Worth Bingham and James W. Gerard, wartime ambassador to Germany and special representative of President Roosevelt at the coronation. The state department has confirmed reports that the two will appear in such dress at the coronation and ruled that they will not be violating a presidential order against diplomatic uniforms or costumes not authorized by congress.

The principal source of contention is the draping of the calf to bring out the best in a well or ill turned male leg. One group, which gets its support from antiquity, advocates long pink underwear beneath silk hose, both to mask hairy shins and to give them the rosy glow of health.

Another group is as stanch in support of two pair of hose—a cheaper grade next to the skin and a sheerer pair out to the gaze of the world.

Silk Holds First Place.

Just what the stockings should be made of has brought a number of suggestions, but silk seems to have the edge, with wool a rather poor second. In case it should be warm, and the wool should scratch—well, bending over to rub an itching ankle is rather hard on one's dignity.

Flounces at the knee have their advocates, despite a tendency in some quarters to disparage them by calling them fly traps. Lace flounces were held in high esteem by the court dandies of the seventeenth century, and it was with profound regret from the owners of wabbly knees that the flounces finally gave

MOTOR PARLEY IS WRECKED BY ALIEN CONTROL

Double-Crossed, Is Premier's Charge.

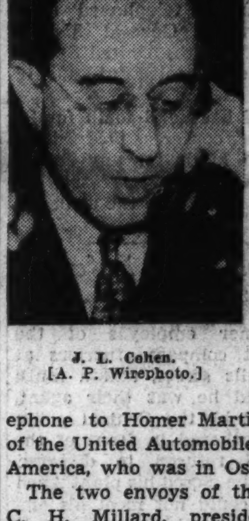
BY WILLIAM O'NEIL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., April 17.—[Special.]—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario refused this afternoon to receive a strikers' negotiating delegation on the ground that they were being directed "by remote control from representatives of John L. Lewis and the Committee for Industrial Organization."

The premier's decision was made as representatives of General Motors of Canada sat in his office and a delegation sent by 3,700 strikers in Oshawa waited outside. The premier said he "was sorry to say the conference was a failure."

Phone Call Brings Explosion.

The breakup in the negotiation preliminaries occurred when the two representatives of the strikers entered the prime minister's private vault with Hugh Thompson of Detroit [C. I. O. organizer and British citizen, whom Hepburn barred from the conference as a paid foreign agitator] to telephone to Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, who was in Oshawa.



J. L. Cohen.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

The two envoys of the union are C. H. Millard, president of the Oshawa local of the U. W. A., and J. L. Cohen of Toronto, attorney for the local. Both are Canadians.

"This thing isn't going to be settled by remote control," the prime minister shouted, upon finding the three telephoning from his vault.

Impugns Good Faith of Two.

"My invitation to the strikers to send negotiators here today was made, and I assumed, accepted in good faith. Instead, Cohen runs in and out of my office to telephone Martin and to confer with Thompson, who even had the temerity to come into this building.

"The delegation sent here today was nothing but a complete double-cross. Martin and Thompson were running it by remote control, the audacity of going into my private vault—that applies to Thompson in particular—is almost beyond belief."

Cohen asserted that he had been wandering around looking for a telephone to call Martin and that several reporters directed him to the telephone in the premier's private vault.

Mr. Hepburn said that the cabinet is absolutely a unit in backing him in his fight against the C. I. O.

Out to Stop C. I. O. Efforts.

"The next move is up to the Oshawa strikers," the premier declared. "I shall immediately urge them to send a delegation here which is free from the foreign domination of John L. Lewis.

"I will not resume negotiations with any of Lewis' paid hirelings. I shall make a genuine and sincere appeal to the citizens of Oshawa to support this government in its efforts to hold back the paid C. I. O. agitators who are attempting to control Canadian labor.

"I have in my desk the complete concessions of General Motors, which should be acceptable to the employés, but they must send a new committee. The C. I. O. is not going to dominate Canadian industry. Those who believe differently can register their opinions at the appropriate time.

"General Motors management was ready to reopen the Oshawa plant on Monday. The strikers could have gone back to work and enjoyed all the benefits of increased wages and concessions on working conditions while their grievances were settled."

Views G-M as Reasonable.

Hepburn declared General Motors was reasonable and willing to meet those employés who are represented by a proper committee and who hope to return to work within a few days.

"On that basis," he remarked, "I think this strike can be easily settled."

The workers realize their premier's impartiality, Hepburn said, and he hoped they would set the date for reconciliation as early as possible. He assured them that the government would lend all its resources, including those of Louis B. Fine [mediator of the Ontario labor department] to bring matters to a conclusion.

Persons present to participate in the conference included Harry J. Carmichael, general manager of the Canadian branch of General Motors, James B. Highfield, manager of the Oshawa plant, and Mr. Fine.

Thompson was asked what the union thought of Hepburn's appeal to the strikers, but Cohen stopped his answer with a warning gesture and switched the topic to the telephone in the vault.

Tells How Dismissal Came.

"I had just finished my conversation with Mr. Martin when the premier walked in," Cohen said. "He asked me if I had been talking to Martin and I told him that I had.

"His next remark was, 'Good afternoon, everybody,' and I was left to assume that the negotiations were ended. I waited to find out the cost of the telephone call [to Oshawa] and then left. I shall communicate all of my information to my clients and wait for instructions.

"The hospitality which had been extended to me up to that point terminated. As a host Mr. Hepburn is an estimable gentleman, I must say, but as a mediator the premier, under the stress of these events, has apparently overlooked the first qualities which are required: Calm objective judgment and self-control."

Late tonight leaders of the Auto Workers' union declared that unless General Motors officials in the United States did something to settle the Oshawa strike, they would order a walkout of 110,000 employés of the corporation in the United States by Tuesday. It was emphasized that it would not be a sitdown strike.

The union informed the corporation that it holds that two agreements made by the company with the union had been violated. These agreements are the original contract which settled the strike in the General Motors plant in the United States and an agreement made with union officials in Detroit last Thursday. The union claims that under the original contract General Motors agreed to recognize the union as representing its members in General Motors employ in both the United States and Canada.

Martin Phones His Leaders.

The union also claims the corporation broke an agreement made with President Martin of the C. I. O. affiliate, and other officers in Detroit, when, according to the union, the company agreed to settle the strike in Canada on the basis of a formula of recognition of the local union.

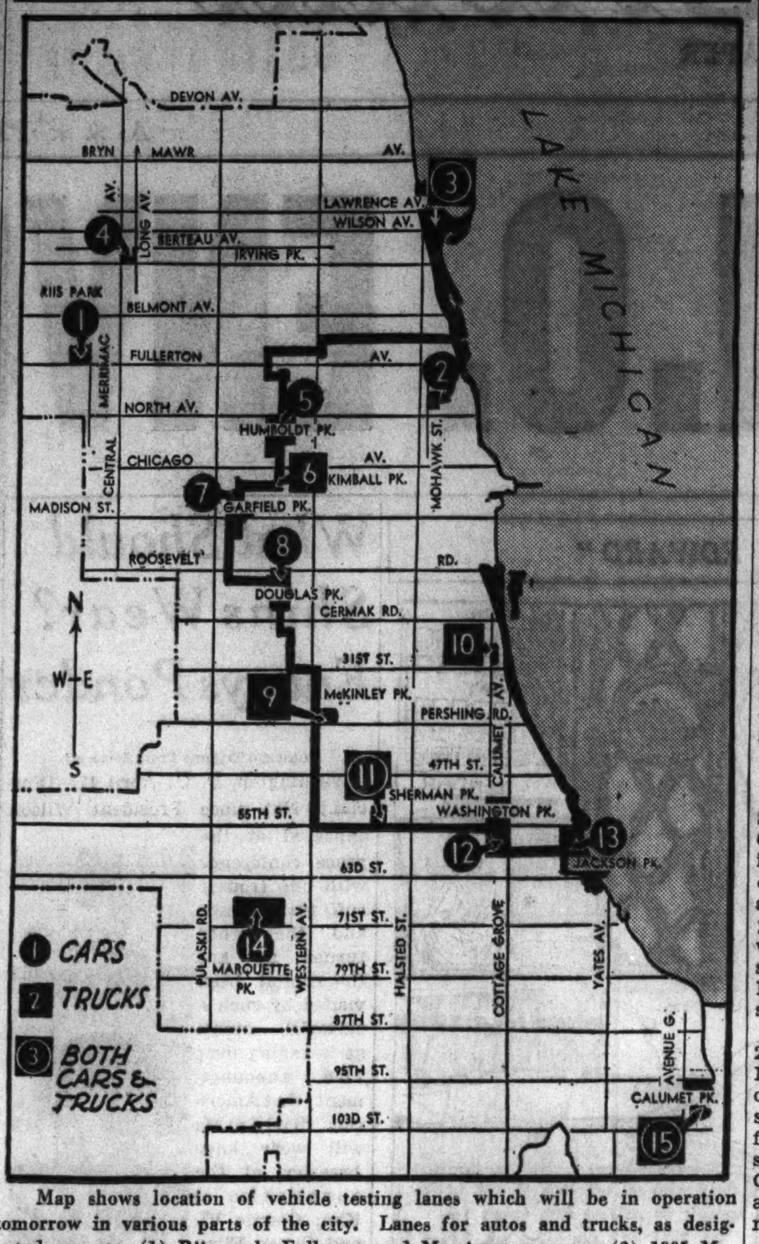
Martin, who came to Toronto tonight, telephoned C. E. Wilson, vice president of General Motors in Detroit. While he was in Oshawa this afternoon, Martin telephoned local union leaders in General Motors plants throughout the United States, mostly in the Detroit-Flint-Lansing area.

They talked back and forth for 22 minutes and his conferees pledged the backing of 45 locals for any action he might order to bring pressure on General Motors to settle the strike in Canada.

Nine Arrested for Refusing to Disperse in Labor Row

Eight former employés of the Paul Reichelt company, furriers at 19 South Wells street, and a ninth man who said he was their agent, were arrested by the Central police when they gathered in front of the building and refused to disperse. Reichert said he closed his plant April 6, saying he could not meet his employés' demands for higher wages and shorter hours.

More Auto Testing Lanes to Open



Map shows location of vehicle testing lanes which will be in operation tomorrow in various parts of the city. Lanes for autos and trucks, as designated, are at: (1) Riis park, Fullerton and Merrimac avenues; (2) 1805 Mohawk street; (3) Wilson and Lawrence avenues parking area east of the outer drive; (4) Portage park at Long and Berteau avenues; (5) Humboldt park at Sacramento and Augusta boulevards; (6) Kimball park at Sacramento boulevard and Ohio street; (7) Garfield park at the east end of the music court; (8) Douglas park at California avenue and 16th street; (9) McKinley park at Hamilton avenue and 37th street; (10) 2840 Calumet avenue; (11) Sherman park at Loomis and 53d streets; (12) Washington park at 51st street and St. Lawrence avenue; (13) Jackson park just south of the Museum of Science and Industry; (14) Marquette park at California avenue and 69th street; (15) Calumet park at 98th street and Avenue G. The heavy lines represent some of the city's boulevards.

SETTLE STRIKE IN CINCINNATI'S LARGEST HOTEL

Cincinnati, O., April 17.—[Special.]—Service in the Netherland Plaza hotel, largest in Cincinnati, was interrupted for a few hours this afternoon by a strike of service employés who demanded a union contract, wage increases of 35 per cent and adjustment of hours. Terms of the settlement were not made public by Ben Lash, secretary of the Building Service Employés' union.

Stone Themselves Out of Jobs.

Clinton, Mass., April 17.—[Special.]—Striking employés of the Colonial Press, Inc., one of the largest book binderies in the country, have stoned themselves out of the possibility of ever getting their jobs back.

Lewis M. Adams, president of the company, closed the plant at noon today and said he would begin moving it to New York next Monday.

For days strikers have been stoning the automobiles of employés.

Speed Inspection

Twelve more vehicle testing lanes will be placed in operation in various parts of the city tomorrow, Edward Gorman, deputy vehicle inspection commissioner announced yesterday. Six other lanes have been operating since April 1 and have tested 43,000 cars.

"That is a very poor showing considering the fact that there are about a half million cars in the city," Gorman said. "All eighteen lanes will be completely manned so there will be no waiting. They are easily accessible to motorists and will be open from 7 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock at night, except Sunday."

Gorman warned motorists that if the lanes are not all kept busy, within a week, he will ask police to issue summonses for drivers whose cars do not bear the 1937 vehicle inspection stickers.

2 BOYS INJURED WHEN BORROWED BICYCLE HITS CAR

One Catapulted Over Top of Automobile.

Two boys were injured, one critically, when their borrowed bicycle crashed into an automobile driven by Harold Sesterhenn, 40 years old, 218 North Latrobe avenue, at Morgan street and Jackson boulevard, yesterday.

Isaiah Baupisipa, 14 years old, 1111 Harrison street, who was operating the bicycle, was catapulted over the top of the automobile, incurring a fracture of the skull as he fell. Anthony Miranda, 16 years old, 602 South May street, who was riding on the frame of the bicycle, was cut and bruised about the face. Both boys were taken to the County hospital.

Boy, 12, Dies of Injuries.

Walter Gizenia, 12 years old, 4834 South Racine avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries incurred in a trafic accident on Friday. The boy was a passenger in a car driven by Stanley Gizywacz, 20 years old, 4858 South May street, which collided at 40th and Elizabeth streets with a car operated by Frank Budz, 32 years old, 4335 Honore street.

Mrs. Ellen Wraith, 69 years old, 2435 Altgeld street, died in the Frances Willard hospital last night of injuries suffered on April 14 when she was run down by a surface lines feeder bus in Central avenue at Madison street. James Loftus, 1548 North Cicero avenue, the operator, said the accident was unavoidable. He was not held.

George Brown Jr., 47 years old, 3221 Seminary avenue, a printer, was critically injured last night by a hit and run car in front of 1053 Belmont avenue. The auto sped away east in Belmont. Brown was taken to the Illinois Masonic hospital suffering from a spine and rib fracture.

The inquest into the deaths of William Riskowski, 65 years old, 2215 South Bell avenue, and Miss Esther Goodman, 39 years old, 3541 West 63d place, was continued yesterday until April 28 to enable police to find more witnesses.

Riskowski, a blind man, was being helped by Miss Goodman across Western avenue at Cermak road on Friday when they were run down by a truck driven by Thor Forsberg, 21 years old, 1726 North Kilpatrick avenue. Police investigators testified yesterday that Forsberg's truck continued on for 75 feet after striking the two pedestrians.

Booked for Manslaughter.

Forsberg was booked by the Marquette police yesterday on a charge of manslaughter, and is to be arraigned in the Felony court tomorrow.

A coroner's jury yesterday ruled that the death of Herman Rosehane, 67 years old, 157 West Superior street, who was killed by a motorcycle at La Salle and Superior streets Friday night, was accidental. Hugh La Rue, 14 years old, 1840 Lincoln avenue, the driver of the motorcycle, and Ray Hastings, 16, of 1835 Lincoln avenue, a passenger, were released after it was testified that Rosehane had tried to cross the street against a trafic signal.

Cook county's motor toll for the year stood at 308 at 4 p. m. yesterday, the coroner's office reported. Chicago was charged with 244 of those deaths and with 5,714 injuries.

AUTO STRIKERS LOSE $65,000,000 IN PAY IN 5 MONTHS

Detroit, Mich., April 17.—(AP)—Statisticians estimated today that strikes which beset the automotive industry for five months cost workers between $65,000,000 and $70,000,000 in wages.

Of losses to companies affected Ward's Reports, Inc., said the net volume of business "delayed" by the strikes would approximate $200,000,000, but what proportion of that actually was lost defied calculation.

Automotive Daily News and Ward's Reports estimated that 10,000,000 man-days were lost because of troubles which started with the Bendix corporation strike in South Bend in November and ended with the settlement of the Reo Motor Car company strike last week.

NO KNEE PANTS FOR LABORITES AT CORONATION

Dark Suits Approved for Parliament Members.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 17.—Labor members of parliament were relieved today to learn officially that they will be permitted to attend the coronation of King George VI. of England on May 12 without wearing the court uniform, which includes knee breeches.

The regulations allow that an exception be made in the case of a "gentleman of the house of commons" and trade union representatives. The ruling was handed on to the Labor members by Maj. C. R. Attlee, Labor leader, who advised that a dark suit be worn by those who do not possess morning coats.

The wife of a member of parliament or a woman member may wear a morning dress "with a scarf on her head." Hats or bonnets are forbidden.

Some Still Are Puzzled.

Some Labor members still are puzzled, however. Those who are members of the privy council do not know whether they should wear plain dark suits or must have the elaborately gold braided uniforms of the privy councilors. A new ruling is expected to be sought.

Many other Londoners who do not worry about their wear for coronation day and do not expect much chance really to see even the actual coronation procession, plan to rise before dawn tomorrow to see a partial rehersal of the procession.

The sovereign's escort, the state coach, army bands, and details of troops will march over about three miles of the route. Their progress will be recorded carefully by timers to fix the exact timetable for coronation day.

The concessions in the matter of dress are not the only signs of change. Decorations and furniture in Westminster abbey for the coronation will give evidence of how tastes have changed since the crowning of King George V. in 1911.

Throne Chairs Simplified.

Throne chairs for King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth are to be upholstered in red velvet. They will be a simplification of the historic Knole chair of Lord Sackville at Knole Park. The faldstools are finished with red satin and gold braid and tassels.

Lining the frontals up the nave and in the transepts there will be an impressive brocatelle fabric. It is founded on an Italian design, and is carried out in blue and gold. In place of the artistic symbols of the original design, oak leaves, the Tudor rose and the English crown have been introduced. The result is both dignified and bold.

Chairs Also in Red Satin.

Recognition chairs in the sanctuary, of a design based on the Knole chair, are upholstered in red satin, as are the chairs for the duke of Gloucester, the duke of Kent, and Prince Arthur of Connaught.

Chairs of the peers and bishops are very simple. Plain blue with gold braid, and in the right hand corner the royal cypher in gold.

The royal box and that of Queen Mary will have frontals of gold, very simple in design, with coats of arms in the center overhead.

There are 5,700 stools, blue-velvet saddle seated and decorated with gold braid, which are for use in the annex, where the wait before the procession is exhausting.

The decorations in the annex will be different from those of the last coronation. In place of banners there is to be a fawn background of Glamis fabric, made in Dundee, and some of the duke of Buccleuch's famous tapestries in gold mounts as mural decorations.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN SLASH DEATH.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide yesterday in the death of Samuel Cuzich, 45 years old, 9402 Anthony avenue. He was found with his throat slashed near the Oak Forest infirmary, where he was once an inmate.

What Should the Well Dressed Ambassador Wear?

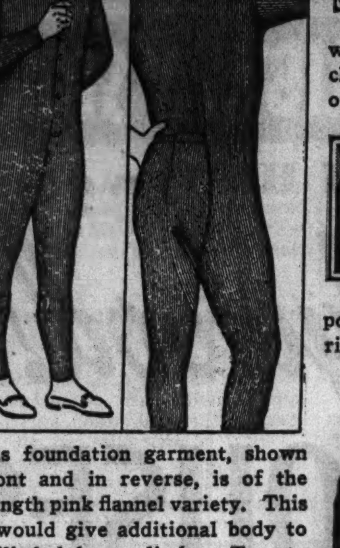
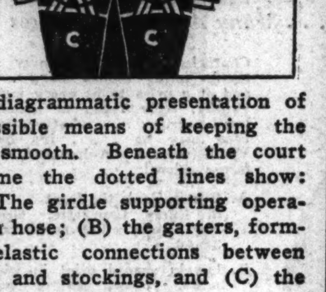
Permission for American representatives at the coronation of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain on May 12 to wear knee breeches has raised numerous sartorial questions among Beau Brummels in Washington. The problems are complicated by the fact that regulation full dress from the waist upward will be correct. Here are presented graphically some of the questions.

THE UNDERWEAR.



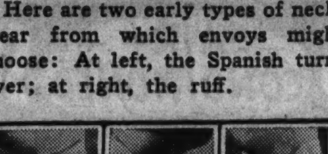
This foundation garment, shown in front and in reverse, is of the full length pink flannel variety. This type would give additional body to the silkclad lower limbs. Twenty years ago it sold for $3.49, and the present price probably would not be prohibitive.

THE SUPPORT



A diagrammatic presentation of a possible means of keeping the hose smooth. Beneath the court costume the dotted lines show: (A) The girdle supporting opera-length hose; (B) the garters, forming elastic connections between girdle and stockings, and (C) the tops of the stockings.

THE COLLAR.



Here are two early types of neckwear from which envoys might choose: At left, the Spanish turnover; at right, the ruff.

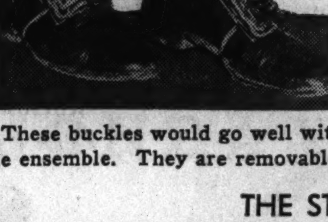
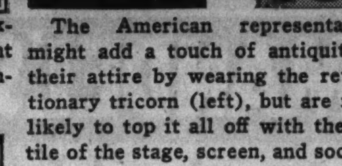
THE SHOES



These buckles would go well with the ensemble. They are removable.

THE HAT.



The American representatives might add a touch of antiquity to their attire by wearing the revolutionary tricorn (left), but are more likely to top it all off with the silk tile of the stage, screen, and society.

THE SHIRT

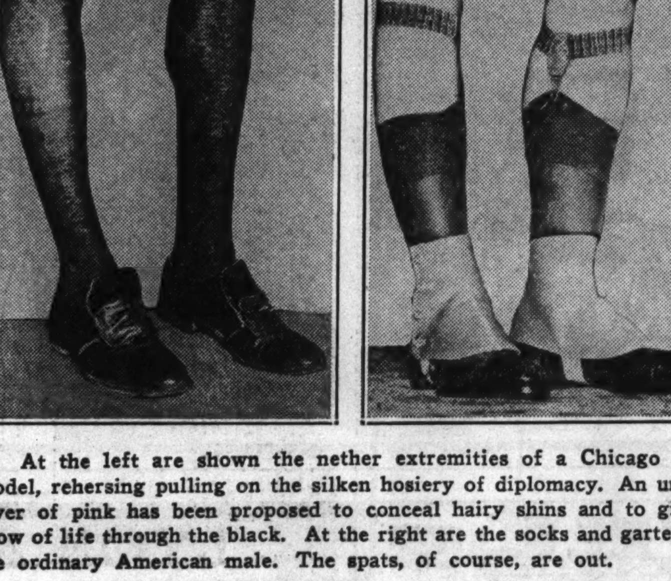
THE STOCKINGS



At the left are shown the nether extremities of a Chicago male model, rehersing pulling on the silken hosiery of diplomacy. An underlayer of pink has been proposed to conceal hairy shins and to give a glow of life through the black. At the right are the socks and garters of the ordinary American male. The spats, of course, are out.

PUSH TEACHING OF ENGLISH TO PORTO RICANS

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today laid down a policy that English should be taught with vigor, purposefulness, and devotion in the schools of Porto Rico. In a letter to Dr. Jose M. Gallardo, just appointed commissioner of education for the island, the President remarked that the island had been under the American flag for thirty-six years and its people have been citizens for twenty, and commented:

"It is regrettable that today hundreds of thousands of Porto Ricans have little and often virtually no knowledge of the English language."

Spanish is the universally spoken language of the island, so much so that it is necessary for an English speaking person to find an interpreter before he can buy a hat in a department store in San Juan and no English newspaper has ever been able to survive. Nevertheless, the President's letter to Dr. Gallardo stressed the advisability of continuing to teach Spanish so the Porto Ricans might become bilingual and thus be able to leave the overpopulated island.

MISSING PASSENGER DEAD.

Brunswick, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—Miss Emma Mae Hough, 18, missing passenger of a Pan-American bus wrecked in White Oak creek early Tuesday, was found dead in the stream today a mile from the scene of the accident.

NINE STUDENTS IN AUTO CRASH; NO ONE IS HURT

Seven north shore boys and girls and two Northwestern students, one a co-ed, were shaken up in an automobile collision in Evanston early today. Nobody was hurt, although one of the cars rolled over twice and skidded 67 feet. The accident occurred in Sheridan road at a jog leading to University place.

In one car were John H. Gaskins, 21 years old, Harrisburg, Ill., a premedical student, residing at Nu Sigma Nu fraternity house on McKinlock campus in Chicago, and Miss Betty Kysela, 20, of Bartlesville, Okla., a senior in the Northwestern college of liberal arts, living at Zeta Tau Alpha sorority house, 625 University place, Evanston. Their car was the one overturned.

The machine that struck theirs contained Edward Lee Adams, 17 years old, 926 Cherry street, Winnetka, son of a retired druggist; Miss Frances Walliser, 735 10th street, Wilmette, daughter of Carl Walliser, a manufacturer; Miss Sally Strayer, 620 Gregory avenue, Wilmette; Daniel Magnuson, son of Eric Magnuson, chauffeur for Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who occupies the Ickes home at 900 South Private road, Hubbard Woods; Sidney Anderson, 555 Arbor Vitae road, Winnetka; Frederick Hurlbutt Jr., 644 Oak avenue, Winnetka, and Robert Dewey, 555 Sheridan road, Winnetka. All attend New Trier High school. Adams was charged with reckless driving and driving with vision obscured—the latter because four riders occupied the front seat.

way to close fitting lace edging at the knee.

The question of underwear is almost as controversial. This question, according to the ancient chronicler Jean Froissart, was raised late in the fourteenth century when one of his friends brought four Irish kings to London. The kings not only had no crowns, but had no drawers. History is silent as to whether they had breeches.

The friend, Henry Christall, supplied the deficiency with several yards of linen cloth. Present day experts believe the finest linen is still suitable, but are divided over the question of length and unanimous in declaring old fashioned flannels, particularly red flannels, distinctly declasse.

Some advocate silk. Others hold that taffeta drawers with their accompanying rustle, would be the height of invention if not fashion.

Breeches Cause Other Puzzles.

The wearing of breeches brings up such fine points as whether the hose should be brought over the ends of the breeches—late 18th century—or under the breeches—early 18th century. This runs into the accompanying question of garters, whether they should be concealed elastic or decorative creations with rosettes.

Breeches must be kept up, too. Among the more conservative dressers, the rather rough and ready American belt, which can be let out a notch after a heavy dinner, is frowned upon as being informal. Galluses or suspenders, if dignified with the English name of braces, generally are regarded as correct.

But it is recalled that smart dressers of the court in earlier days had gay little tags hanging from their tunics. These were drawn through eyelets in the tops of the breeches and carefully knotted, and gentlemen who wore them always had the pleasant assurance that their breeches were no end secure—and trig looking, too.

Would Add Lace Ruffles.

One school of thought would go completely 17th century in the wearing of satin breeches. They would add embroidered waist coats, lace ruffles and cuffs, silver buckles, white wigs, tri-cornered felts and beavers with cockades, gold or silver topped walking sticks. Others are for the simpler dress coat and white tie, which Bingham and Gerard will wear.

Ruffled shirts seem to be exceptionally popular among those who are talking coronation clothes in the happy knowledge that they won't have to wear them. Even sticklers for style, however, don't feel that doublets should be inflicted on the American representatives at court.

A Standoff on Shoe Styles.

Sentiment is about evenly divided on the question of high heels or low ones for the slippers.

Any discussion of accessories is bound to bring up the fact that, whether warm or chilly, the gallants of the seventeenth century liked to carry muffs. Samuel Pepys, indeed, took such a liking to his wife's that he took it away from her and carried it himself.

Accessories could include snuff boxes, perfume, and smelling salts. The smelling salts would go to revive the folks back home, the rugged individualists, "who wouldn't go to a dog fight in such a getup."

Blockading the Spanish Loyalists

4 GERMAN PLANES BROUGHT DOWN IN SPANISH AIR DUEL

Two Ships Collide in Sky and Fall Together.

VALENCIA, Spain, April 17.—(AP)—The air ministry announced tonight that four Fascist rebel Heinkel [German] airplanes were downed by government airmen on the Teruel front.

In a fierce combat one of the government pursuit planes crashed into an insurgent Heinkel and fell to the ground with it, the pilots of both meeting death.

[A rebel communique issued in Talavera de la Reina said three government planes were shot down in the Teruel sector.]

Bomb Rebel Positions.

The air fight started when government pursuit ships, which were protecting bombers en route to rebel points, encountered a group of enemy planes.

Government bombers were active throughout the day. Two objectives were the town of Teruel, seventy-two miles northwest of Valencia, and rebel batteries near Chude. Insurgents in Teruel were hemmed in on three sides by government troops.

The downing of four insurgent planes coincided with allegations printed in the press here that the Lufthansa airline between Germany and Burgos, Spain, was serving as a blind for the delivery of German aircraft to the Spanish rebels.

Fly High Over France at Night.

Newspapers reported that thirty-six planes already had left Hanover for the rebels, being flown over France at night at high altitudes. They said German pilots were receiving 1,000 marks [$400] for each airplane delivered.

Government planes on the southern front bombed enemy positions at Porcuna and fortifications near Villaharta, northwest of the city of Cordoba.

A report from Almeria said insurgent planes bombed that Mediterranean port, killing a woman and two children, destroying several houses.

Seize 55 as Spies.

MADRID, April 17.—(AP)—Several men whom the Madrid defense junta asserted were monks financed by religious organizations in Italy were arrested here today and accused of taking part in a rebel plot to turn the city over to Gen. Francisco Franco, insurgent commander.

Agents of the junta's public security section made two raids. They seized a reputed "fifth column" outpost within signal distance of the rebel lines on the city's outskirts and uncovered what they called the largest spy ring found in the capital since the war started. Among those arrested was Felix Ciriza, who, officials charged, was the leader of the organization.

In addition to the alleged "monks in disguise," about 12 women were reported among the 55 persons arrested. The ring, police said, was organizing secret troops within the city to attack the defense barricades from the rear.

Maria Herraiz and a Mexican woman, whose name was given as Carmen Gabuccio Sanchezmamot, were among the women seized. The latter was described as a well known figure in Madrid's literary and art circles.

Rebel Shells Pound Madrid.

Shells fell all along the Gran Via as insurgent artillery pounded the center of Madrid in one of the most severe bombardments in months. Explosives tore gaping new holes in buildings on the city's principal business streets. Semi-official sources placed casualties at 18 killed and 60 wounded. One shell which fell on a queue of shoppers killed seven women.

One shell struck a theater building on the Gran Via and shrapnel sprayed across the thoroughfare, piercing the plate glass windows of a downtown hotel. The duchess of Atholl, conservative member of the British house of commons, and Miss Ellen C. Wilkinson, Laborite member, were sitting with friends in the hotel dining room when the shell burst.

Another projectile landed in the patio of the Madrid jail. It killed one prisoner, wounded five and caused a panic among the inmates.

On the siege front there were no important changes. Government troops, communiques said, maintained their positions dominating the Manzanares river "corridor" between the main Franco forces in Casa de Campo park and 3,000 isolated insurgents in University City.

Stop Rebels on Basque Front.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, April 17.—(AP)—Hard pressed loyalist defenders of the Spanish Basque country tonight mowed down rebels who tried to push through Eibar, vital point in Gen. Emilio Mola's line of march against Durango and Bilbao.

Heavy casualties resulted when the Basques stopped the attack with artillery and machine gun fire. Eibar is just northeast of Durango. Durango is 16 miles southeast of Bilbao, Basque capital.

A spectacular air battle was fought over Bilbao — the "Pittsburgh of Spain." Rebel and government planes dived and roared at each other over the city's war industry factories, which were closed today by a shortage of fuel. The insurgent squadron consisted of seven bombers and was driven off before it could unload its cargo of bombs.

The Basques said another rebel attack at Lequeito, on the coast east of Bilbao, had been beaten back. A rebel attack against the mountain peak of Saibi, five miles from Durango, broke under stiff Basque resistance. The Basques contended German officers were leading the insurgents.

CHICAGO JUDGES HONOR JUSTICES OF HIGH COURT

Judges of the Circuit, Superior, and Municipal courts gave a banquet in the Palmer house last night to the justices of the state Supreme court. It was unusual in that no after dinner speeches were permitted and the toastmaster, Judge John J. Sullivan of the Appellate court, declared that no publicity was desired.

It is the custom of the Chicago Bar association to give an annual dinner to the Supreme court judges, six of whom are from downstate. But a number of the judges resigned from the bar association last year after it criticised political activities of members of the bench. It was reported that the judges decided to give a dinner for the justices so they could be present under auspices other than those of the bar association.

Former Judge Charles M. Thomson, president of the bar association said last night's dinner would not prevent the lawyers from banqueting the high court judges again this fall.

DEMANDS JOB AS POSTMASTER BY COURT ORDER

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—A mandamus suit to compel Postmaster General James A. Farley to turn over to him the postmastership of Milford, Mass., was filed today in the District of Columbia District court by John F. Curran, who contends that he is the duly appointed postmaster.

The situation is somewhat complicated because the President, according to Mr. Curran, several months after his name had been confirmed by the senate, sent the name of John F. Higgiston to be confirmed for the same post. The senate obliged, with the result that, in addition to the acting postmaster, Allan J. Cooke, Milford now appears to have two duly appointed official postmasters.

The court was told that Mr. Curran took a competitive civil service examination for the post in May, 1934, the senate confirmed the appointment on June 8, 1936. Then, Mr. Curran alleged, came the refusal of the postmaster general to send him his commission. Justice Joseph W. Coxe today ordered the postmaster general to appear on May 17 to show cause why the mandamus writ should not be granted.

JEWEL SERVE YOURSELF AND SAVE

Clean, attractive, self-service food stores make shopping enjoyable for everyone.

FOR MEN ONLY

THE popular conception has been that food shopping is a housewife's business and that men should have nothing to do with it. A man was supposed to be interested only in his day's work, while his wife was to have full responsibility for the management of the home and the family's meals.

Before the advent of Jewel Food Stores, men were glad enough to let this situation exist. There was no fun in food shopping. They disliked standing in line to be waited on; they were embarrassed by clerks' questions about price and quantity—lightly applied pressure to buy—and upon returning home from the store, they usually found that in the confusion a mistake or two had been made.

But men really enjoy shopping at Jewel. They like to stroll through these clean modern stores and pick out the foods that they particularly favor—"different" things that might not be thought of in the advance preparation of the shopping list. There is no embarrassment at Jewel because customers can examine and compare items at leisure and learn the contents and price of each package. There is no waiting, nor any of the distasteful milling around in a crowd that is struggling and irritated in its wait for service.

Jewel Food Stores find that more and more men are taking part in food shopping—and we mention this for the benefit of those who have not yet experienced the fun of shopping at Jewel. They are taking an interest in their food budgets and offering helpful suggestions in the preparation of menus. They get a good idea of part of the wife's job and they also get more of the things they hanker for at breakfast and dinner.

Join the Parade to Jewel, men—and know more about the foods you eat; the prices you pay. Help your wife plan the meals and you will appreciate and enjoy them more.

Men who like coffee that is rich, full-flavored, and invigorating prefer Royal Jewel.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

BRITISH LABOR TO BUY SHIP; RUN BILBAO BLOCKADE

Seeks to Balk Rebels from Starving Out City.

LONDON, April 17.—(AP)—Independent British Labor party leaders disclosed today that they were attempting to finance a food ship to defy the Spanish rebels' blockade of Bilbao.

James Maxton, militant Labor spokesman, and Archibald Fenner Brockway, secretary of the Independent party, said they hoped to dispatch a vessel to the blockaded and starving Basque capital to test the British government's contention that the Bilbao harbor is dangerously mined.

They said they were attempting to raise £40,000 [about $200,000] for a ship, on which, they disclosed, they already have an option. The government has refused to let its warships protect British merchantmen entering Bilbao.

Fear "Incident" off Bilbao.

The possibility of contraband runners evading an international patrol of Spain through air shipments and dangers of an "incident" on the Basque coast appeared tonight to be the gravest of several problems confronting enforcement of Europe's neutrality.

Concern was felt that planes might transport munitions and men, which are embargoed among the 27 nations of the "hands off Spain committee," when the Valencia government charged that 36 Junkers [German made] planes had been flown to the insurgents.

Starting at midnight Monday warships of Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy will form an international neutrality fleet on the Spanish coasts. They will be supplemented by land agents to observe trafic into Spain across the French and Portuguese borders. The plans, neutrality officials pointed out, make no provision for control of aerial shipments.

Prizes for Blockade Runners.

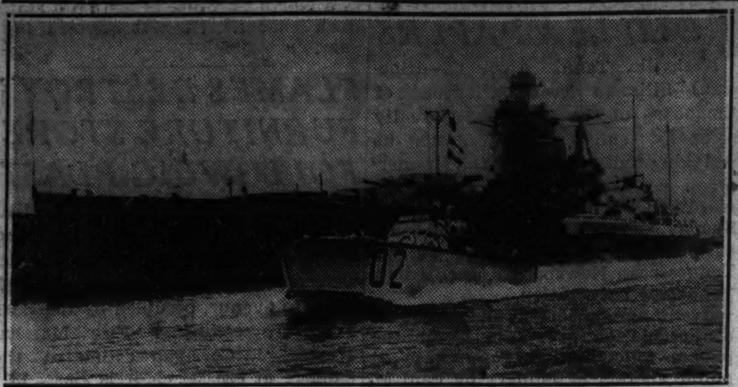
Food ships also were riding at anchor in the Bay of Biscay off St. Jean de Luz and Bayonne, French ports close to Spanish waters, awaiting an opportune moment to dash with provisions to Bilboa.

Cash prizes offered by the Basque government to induce freighters to run the gauntlet of the rebel naval blockade, some quarters feared, might cause an "incident" before the international patrol ships take their stations.

The British board of trade, a government office, instructed shipping today to keep at least ten miles outside the Spanish coast after Monday midnight until they are ready to enter any port. Inspection by neutral marine observers will be made within the ten mile zone.

All other British shipping, not bound for Spanish ports, was asked to stay at least ten miles out at all times.

NEWEST WEAPON OF THE SEA



Great claims of destructive ability are made for this new motor torpedo boat, pictured during trials in Portsmouth harbor, England. In the background are H. M. S. Nelson and the admiralty yacht Enchantress.

Torpedo Carrier

PORTSMOUTH, Hampshire, England, April 17.—[Special.]—Officials who watched its performance recently in trials in the harbor here are enthusiastic about a new type of motor torpedo boat developed for the British navy. Small in size, it is one of many to be added to the forces afloat. It carries a torpedo tube and two torpedoes, and it is claimed the little craft can sink a $40,000,000 warship.

FLEET 'FIGHTING' WAY TO HAWAII IN GAME OF WAR

Battle Conditions Prevail in U. S. Maneuvers.

ABOARD BATTLESHIP PENNSYLVANIA IN PACIFIC MANEUVERS, April 17.—(AP)—The United States fleet is "fighting" its way to the Hawaiian Islands tonight.

Every hour is an hour of action. All units are engaged—the battle force, scouting force, aircraft squadrons, destroyer divisions, cruiser divisions, submarine divisions, minecraft, and the base force of supply and repair ships.

The units form and reform in various types of opposing forces to stage every conceivable kind of naval maneuver.

Battle Conditions Prevail.

Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, commander-in-chief, took his fleet to sea Friday morning.

From the bases at San Pedro and San Diego the warships moved out under actual battle conditions. The minesweepers and patrol boats cleared the channels. They mopped up just as they would in time of war, when an enemy might seek to block a harbor entrance with contact mines.

Rendezvous at sea followed and exercises began. They will continue day and night as the fleet twists its way westward.

To Return in Six Weeks.

The six weeks interval before return to California will be marked by operations in the vast area bounded by the Alaska, Hawaii, California regions.

It is problem XVIII., the eighteenth in a series of annual war problems mapped by the navy general board for fleet training. In the major action the fleet will be divided into a Black fleet and a White fleet.

Admiral Claude C. Bloch, battle force commander, commands the Black fleet. Vice admiral William T. Tarrant, scouting force commander, commands the White fleet.

BREEZES FROM GULF WAFT TEMPERATURE UP TO HIGH FOR YEAR

Warm breezes from the Gulf of Mexico sent the temperature soaring yesterday to 73 degrees—the warmest it has been since last Oct. 20, when the thermometer read 81. Yesterday's high mark was 18 degrees above the normal maximum of 55, but well below the April 17 record of 83, set in 1896. Nature fanciers reported that buds were swelling and a few leaves were coming out. But Forecaster C. A. Donnel said today would be cooler, though fair, with winds from the north keeping the temperature below 50. Between 1:20 p. m. yesterday and 1 a. m. today the temperature fell 31 degrees to 42.

RIDDER CHARGES REDS CONTROL RELIEF IN N. Y.

New York, April 17.—(AP)—The New York Times quoted Victor F. Ridder, chairman of the state board of social welfare, tonight as charging that the communist party indirectly controls the distribution of relief totaling $9,000,000 per month in New York City.

Ridder, former Works Progress administrator for the city, said the communist domination of the emergency relief bureau work gave that party a larger "campaign fund" than any other party, according to the Times.

"The situation as I see it," Ridder said, "is simple. You have an organization of 3,400 investigators. Not all of them are communists, but they are communist led. You have the Workers alliance, which is not all communistic, but which is 100 per cent communist led."

Ridder, the article said, blamed magistrates' leniency for the alleged communist grip on relief administration. The alliance, he charged, is a group perfectly willing to start trouble in any precinct, and if the police arrest them, the magistrates let them off.

A COP'S FRIGHT: SEARCHES COAT AND FINDS A FISH

Charles Perkins' fish didn't exactly snap at Policeman Harry Deas. It's stretching a point, indeed, to say that the fish bit the policeman at all. Perkins was nevertheless fined $25 yesterday when the policeman told Judge Eugene J. Holland in the Wabash avenue police court about his fright at finding his hand in the fish's mouth.

Policeman Deas testified that Perkins, a colored man of 42, looked even plumper than a man of 220 pounds should look when he stepped out of a fish store at 212 East 51st street. Policeman Deas thrust his hand beneath Mr. Perkins' coat to find out why this was and his fist landed right in the mouth of a big fish which Perkins had taken without paying the fish man. He was planning, he said, a fish fry in the Perkins home at 5231 Calumet avenue.

SIX LAKE FOREST LEADERS ON JURY IN FATAL CRASH

Blame Waukegan Man for Death of Broker's Wife.

Six prominent residents of Lake Forest, serving as members of a coroner's jury, yesterday fixed responsibility for the automobile accident last Jan. 29 which caused the death of Mrs. Dorothy L. Keith, wife of Stanley Keith of Lake Forest.

The jury held Mrs. Keith's death was caused by the reckless driving of Phillip Robarge, 29 years old, 1229 Grand avenue, Waukegan, whose car collided head on with Mr. and Mrs. Keith's machine in Sheridan road, a mile south of the Great Lakes Naval Training station. The jury recommended that Robarge be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter.

Members of the jury were Philip D. and Laurance H. Armour, Robert A. Gardner, Howard Linn, T. A. Connors, and Frank J. Hoffman. Each received the regular fee, $2, for three hours' service at the inquest, which was held in the Lake Forest city hall by Coroner John L. Taylor.

Driving Slowly, Says Broker.

Keith, a broker, who lives at 600 East Westminster road in the suburb, testified he was driving north in Sheridan road at the time of the accident. He estimated his speed at 35 to 40 miles an hour, and added:

"My family always laughed at me because I never drove any faster."

He said he does not remember any of the circumstances of the crash, explaining that he was knocked unconscious and suffered a brain concussion.

Two Others Testify.

Two other witnesses were Cliff M. Evans, Waukegan merchant and member of the Lake county board of supervisors, and B. F. West, Waukegan insurance dealer, who were riding in another automobile, southbound, behind Robarge's car. They said Robarge had passed them at the naval training station, and estimated his speed at from 55 to 70 miles an hour.

Edward Easter, 23 years old, of North avenue, Lake Bluff, was a passenger in Robarge's car. They both told the jury Robarge's car was moving about 45 miles an hour, and did not leave its proper lane before the crash.

Robarge posted $5,000 bond when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt in Waukegan, and his case was set for April 27. His attorney is Earl Cook.

In Evanston yesterday another dramatic automobile death case came to trial. Judge Harry Porter of the Municipal court sentenced Russell R. Johnson, 27 years old, 120 5th avenue, Wilmette, to pay a $300 fine for leaving the scene of an accident, and revoked his automobile license for a year. A sentence of one year in the Bridewell was suspended.

Johnson was the driver of the hit and run car which caused the death of Henry Behrendt, 73 years old, 1118 South boulevard, Evanston. He was struck at Ridge avenue and South boulevard, in the suburb, last June 23. Johnson was arrested after nearly eight months of work by the Evanston police.

WEALTHY JURORS DRAW $2 EACH

Howard Linn. Laurance Armour. Philip D. Armour. Robert A. Gardner.

These four Lake Forest leaders were members of a coroner's jury which held a motorist on a charge of manslaughter for the death of Mrs. Stanley Keith.

Springfield, Mass., April 17.—(AP)—Two sets of twins in one family figured in a church wedding here today. Miss Mary E. Lester became the bride of Francis E. Church. The bride's twin brother, Francis Lester, was best man, and her sisters, Gertrude and Grace Lester, twins, attended her as maid of honor and bridesmaid.

He Gets Death Sentence for Killing of Girl, 15

Pueblo, Colo., April 17.—[U.P.]—Joe Arridy, 21, was sentenced tonight to die in the Colorado lethal chamber by a jury which found him guilty of the hatchet slaying of Dorothy Drain, 15. She and her sister, Barbara, 12, were beaten by two men. Barbara recovered and testified against Arridy and Frank Aguilar, 33, who previously had been convicted and sentenced to death.

SILLIMAN EVANS TAKES CHARGE OF OLD LEA PAPERS

Nashville, Tenn., April 17.—[Special.]—Silliman Evans, chairman of the board of the Maryland Casualty company, tonight announced that he is taking full control of the Tennesseean newspapers, consisting of the Nashville Tennesseean, morning and Sunday, and the Evening Tennesseean, as publisher and president of the Tennesseean Newspapers, Inc., a new Tennessee corporation.

Evans' announcement ended months of speculation over plans for the papers following their purchase at public auction in January by Paul M. Davis, president of the American National bank and brother of Norman H. Davis, ambassador at large. Davis was listed as one of the incorporators of the new corporation.

Evans takes control of the two papers from which Col. Luke Lea built the financial empire which carried him to dizzy heigts and then, after the collapse, led him to a cell in a North Carolina prison on a state bank charge. He was paroled last year.

FLAMES DESTROY FURNITURE STORE FOLLOWING BLAST

Trafic on Chicago avenue was tied up for several hours last night and a throng gathered to watch fire destroy the two story building at 1442 Chicago avenue, occupied by the Bass Furniture company. Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan estimated the damage at $25,000. Morris Bass, 1817 South Harding avenue, owner of the store, eight employés, and a customer fled as smoke filled the building soon after a basement explosion. Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan began an investigation at the scene. Among the spectators was Mayor Kelly.

BARS NEW YORK STUDENTS TAKING ANTI-WAR OATH

New York, April 17.—(AP)—The board of school superintendents of New York City instructed all principals today that anti-war oaths—particularly the so-called "Oxford oath" against bearing arms—must not be administered to public school children on "Peace day," April 22. The board felt, it's announcement said, that such pronouncements were "far too sweeping" for school children. The announcement said student participation in peace demonstrations outside school buildings might result in withholding of diplomas.

BODY TAKEN FROM RIVER.

The body of a man believed to be Adolph Carleton, 38 years old, 1110 South 24th avenue, Bellwood, a barber, was recovered yesterday from the Des Plaines river at the Roosevelt road bridge in Forest Park. Carleton disappeared on Feb. 9.

BEALS CLASHES WITH TROTZKY; BOLTS INQUIRY

Member of 'Jury' Charges Trial Is 'Not Serious.'

MEXICO CITY, April 17.—(AP)—Carleton Beals, American magazine writer, quit the unofficial commission of liberals "trying" Leon Trotzky today, declaring he did not think the hearing represented a "true and serious" inquiry into charges against the famous exile.

Shortly afterward Trotzky closed his defense against accusations in recent treason trials at Moscow that he plotted widespread sabotage of Russia's industries and railroads.

Beals' resignation came after a sharp exchange between himself and Trotzky.

Calls Beals' Informant "Liar."

In a letter to Dr. John Dewey, New York educator and chairman of the commission, Beals said:

"I do not consider the proceedings a true and serious investigation of the charges against Trotzky. For this and other reasons my further services would not be fruitful."

During yesterday's session Beals asked if Trotzky had sent Michael Borodin, communist leader in China and former soviet news agency official, to Mexico in 1919 as a party organizer.

Trotzky denied that he had instructed Borodin to go to Mexico. He added that Beals' informant was a "liar," saying Beals "sought to compromise my position."

Beals Clashes with Finerty.

It was learned authoritatively that Beals subsequently engaged in a vigorous argument with John Finerty of Washington, D. C., counsel for the commission, who contended that Beals' questions about Borodin "had no place in any court of law."

That discussion was said to have culminated in Beal's declaration that either he or Finerty would have to quit. Other members backed Finerty, it was said, and Beals' "irrevocable resignation" followed.

The commission met in executive session today. Dewey later announced receipt of Beals' letter and said the "jury" had "formally expressed its awareness of the complete impropriety of Beals' questions."

Trotzky Sees Ulterior Motive.

"This commission gladly leaves to the public whether the investigation is fair, serious, and complete," Dewey added.

Trotzky, in summing up his defense, referred to Beals' question about Borodin and said "the falsehood which he has utilized has a definite purpose, to compromise my situation in Mexico."

Trotzky said he never had any personal relations with Borodin, that he knew him only by his activity in China, and had openly attacked him as "the most harmful man in the Chinese revolution."

Trotzky added that he had never concerned himself with Mexican political questions and had never sent anybody to Mexico.

Trotzky said he had given "great importance to the question and its obvious purpose—to throw upon me through other means new suspicions in the eyes of the Mexican people"—and demanded that the commission throw light on the source of Beals' information.

Disavows Lenin "Testament."

Questioned by Benjamin Stolberg, a commission member, Trotzky said he had once disavowed "for diplomatic reasons" the famed "testament" in which Nicolai Lenin is said to have recommended the ousting of Joseph Stalin, secretary general of the communist party.

Trotzky said Max Eastman, New York editor, had published the document without consulting him while he was a member of the Russian government, and that "sharpened an inner struggle" which it was feared might result in civil war. Trotzky's disavowal, which was "not a lie, not the full truth," was "imposed upon me by the situation."

Finerty asked Trotzky if the commission would not be justified in considering his present political situation in weighing the truth or falsity of his testimony. Chuckling, Trotzky replied, "You must not consider me an angel." He recommended a check and recheck of all his testimony.

Nazis Deprive 38 More Germans of Citizenship

BERLIN, April 17.—(AP)—Thirty-eight anti-Nazi Germans, including eight children from four to eight years of age, were deprived of citizenship in an official decree today. They are relatives of a group who lost their citizenship two days ago for "acting detrimentally to the reich's interests." Action has been taken against 135 persons since Thursday.

NAZIS HIT Y.M.C.A. IN NEW ATTACK ON U. S. CHURCH FILM

BERLIN, April 17.—(AP)—The National Socialist [Nazi] Correspondence, a daily press service, took a slap at the wartime Y. M. C. A. today in connection with German press attacks on the showing of an anti-Nazi film at the Riverside Memorial church in New York.

After saying the producers of the film, which constitutes an appeal for $400,000 for the relief of German Christian refugees, took refuge in a church because they knew the American public "wouldn't stand" for it in movie houses, the report added:

"This dangerous incitation to international hatred resembles the film and press campaign of 1917. Then, too, anti-German films were shown less in [American] public theaters than in camps of the Y. M. C. A. That great Christian organization at that time could take credit for having chased hundreds of thousands of American soldiers into the war under false pretenses."

POLITICAL WAR WITH REDS MUST GO ON! GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 18 [Sunday].—Despite the recent indication by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht that Germany is willing to coöperate economically with Russia, German newspapers today emphasized that Russian-German political coöperation is impossible.

Schacht, who is president of the German reichsbank and minister of economics, expressed in an interview during his recent visit to Brussels, Belgium, Germany's willingness for economic coöperation with Russia.

All Berlin papers today, however, in similar, officially inspired articles refuted reports which have appeared recently in newspapers abroad which indicated that Russia and Germany are coming closer together. The Voelkischer Beobachter said such reports are "a deliberate attempt to poison the political atmosphere.

RAZORBACK HOG CITED AS KEY TO RELIEF PLANNING

Philosophy of Professor Interests Engineers.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Memphis, Tenn., April 17.—[Special.]—Tidbits of a philosophy rare in the great burocratic planning wilderness of the Tennessee valley formed part of the fare of the midsouth section of the American Society of Civil Engineers which closed a two days' meeting here today.

Dr. Gus Dyer.

While the recent Mississippi river flood stage was conquered by engineers who took advantage of nature's law that water runs down hill, the human element in relief planning has not proved so amenable to discipline.

"The trouble is," said Dr. Gus Dyer, professor of sociology and economics at Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., "not that folks can't, but they won't. All you can do is to inspire people. It is next to impossible to lift people by helping them.

Got to Be Persuaded.

"I have learned a good deal about voters from razorback hogs. The razorback can't be driven. He's got to be persuaded. That's what hog-calling is. The razorback only wants to know one thing—what do I get out of it? That's a good deal like people.

"You'd better find out how God meant men to go. You can't make a cow climb a tree. People aren't going to do what is better for them. If you give them a fine chain of restaurants, all polished up and with good food, they'll holler for a dog wagon.

"You just try to make the Tennessee mountaineers come down to the valley on good land. Just try and bring 'em down. The state tried to drive them into the confederate army once and they turned and joined the union. Find out what they want—then don't give them their way. This planning business is all myth. It was all tried out 200 years ago.

80,000 Negroes Own Farms.

"This tenant business now. Look at it. They wouldn't be tenants if they didn't want to be. Any man in the south with grit and who wants to work can own his own place. There are over 80,000 Negroes in the south who have bought their own farms and paid for them without any government help.

"The road to progress is the road that this country has followed until recently, the road of freedom and cooperation with nature's laws. We would still be running model T's if the government had taken over the automobile business. Under freedom men will contribute more to the general welfare than any government can make them do."

Schools to Get $671,919 as Added Share of Gas Tax

The Chicago public schools will receive a check for $671,919 this week from the state treasury under the provisions of a bill adopted by the general assembly last week increasing payments to cities for school purposes out of the gas tax fund from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000. Legislation permitting the city to divert a portion of its share of the gas tax to the schools was adopted two years ago.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

THE STRANGER SLANDERED

By CALEB

CHARLES MAILLARD, Marquis de Polignac, Andre Kaminker, and Bernard Musnik of France were guests of our management at a luncheon in this store some weeks ago. Present also were most of the city's distinguished newspaper publishers, the French consul general and vice consul, and a few others.

The Frenchmen were here in the interests of the Paris Exposition, which opens next month. Some formal remarks were made and several good-humored and informal talks.

After the luncheon I said to Monsieur Kaminker, "You seem to stress your desire for Chicagoans in particular to come to Paris. Why?"

"Now we get somewhere," he answered. "We are very anxious for Chicagoans to come because we want them to see that the streets of Paris are not like they were represented at your World's Fair."

It has been ever thus. People of one faith or sect or race or nation or neighborhood are likely to be somewhat careless in representations of those outside their own pale. Other cities are eternally ready to point to Chicago's shortcomings and Chicago likewise points to the shortcomings of other cities.

Foreign journals give their readers very bad impressions of the United States. Isolated riots here are made to appear as incipient revolutions. However, our domestic publications often print, at the same time, colored news concerning foreigners.

Individuals listen credulously to gossip about acquaintances or prominent people they do not know well.

This natural tendency on the part of individuals to slander strangers gives way slowly as enlightenment replaces ignorance. A department store which shows much of the world's production of fine things, helps dispel such ignorance.

A man said to us recently, "I was fully nineteen years of age before I started to realize that there were cultured and capable people in countries other than the United States Do you know what wakened me? I went to work in your store. For the first time I became conscious that foreign countries were creating fine things, building up modern and important businesses, performing engineering feats, and paralleling much we do in America. Before then, all foreigners were to me like the unenlightened workmen with whom I was familiar as a kid—on road gangs or in vineyards."

Sometimes it seems to us that there is almost no phase of life to which the department store does not make at least a modest contribution.

Spring Marches Forward on the Farms

Gayly illustrated seed catalogs—high April winds—house cleaning—shorn ewes—hen chasing rabbits—the visiting pheasant—these signs of advancing spring on the Tribune experimental farms are reviewed by Bob Becker, in his article about farms in the want ad section of today's Sunday Tribune.

YOUTH SLAIN, PAL SHOT BY POLICE WHEN THEY FLEE

Tragedy Ends Wild Chase Through Streets.

An unidentified youth, suspected as an automobile thief, was shot and killed, and another youth, one of his companions, was wounded during a chase by police at Chicago avenue and Noble street early today. The slain boy was about 18 years old.

He was seen with three other youths in a car at Lincoln and Iowa streets by Policemen Hugh Dixon and Charles Kabelas, of the North Racine avenue station. The car was later found to have three different license plates. The policemen pursued, but lost the suspects at Cortez [Emma] and Noble streets.

Some time later Dixon and Kabelas sighted the men again and chased them to Noble street and Chicago avenue where they crashed their car and fled on foot. Dixon and Kabelas emptied their guns at them, killing one with bullets in the head. A few minutes later Henry Drewek, 17 years old, 1452 Cleveland street, was seen limping near the scene. He was arrested. He had been shot twice in the right leg. Drewek said he did not know the slain boy's name but would lead the police to his home.

QUIZ 2 TRAPPED AFTER SHOOTING FEDERAL AGENT

Kansas City, Mo., April 17.—[Special.]—Awaiting the outcome of wounds received yesterday by Wayne W. Baker, federal bureau of investigation agent, in a gun battle at Topeka, Kas., federal agents today questioned two bank robbery suspects caught last night by a Nebraska sherif. The prisoners confessed a few minutes after they were trapped.

The charge on which the robbers, Robert Suhay and Alfred Powers, paroled convicts, will be tried depends on whether Baker recovers. At Topeka this morning he received two blood transfusions. Physicians described his condition as very serious.

The bank robbery for which the two were wanted, along with two others, was committed at Katonah, N. Y., on March 12. They took $18,000. Trace of them was lost when they scattered a short time after the robbery. When caught last night Suhay and Powers had $11,000.

The bank they robbed had been held up two weeks earlier by Merle Vandenbush, notorious robber, and two companions, who were caught within an hour by a small town New York police chief and two assistants.

QUAKE DAMAGES TOWN IN ANDES; SCORES INJURED

LIMA, Peru, April 17.—[U. P.]—Scores of persons were injured today in a series of earthquakes which partly destroyed the Andean city of Cajabamba, 350 miles north of here in Libertad province, it was reported from Cajamarca. Seven severe shocks were felt within a few hours.

The report added that the terror-stricken inhabitants of the region were abandoning their homes. They were aided by authorities, who feared new tremors might wipe out the city.

Cajabamba, 9,500 feet up in the Andes, has a population of 3,000. It was jarred twice previously within the last fortnight.

THOUSANDS NOW GETTING OUT OF THE "ALL THREE" CLASS!

THIS GREAT BIG NASH
NOW JUST A FEW DOLLARS MORE*

Actual photograph of Nash LaFayette-"400" 4-Door Sedan with trunk

HERE'S THE LOWDOWN ON BRAKES! Almost all cars have hydraulic brakes today! But did you know this—Nash gives you hydraulics with greater braking area. You stop quicker. They stand up longer. You save on brake relining jobs.

GET THE X-RAY STORY ON STEEL BODIES! Almost all cars have all steel bodies . . . but Nash gives you the strongest type of one piece, seamless all steel body construction in the industry. Stronger. Safer. Specially reinforced. Built to last for years.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE "SLEEPING CAR"! Only Nash gives you this exclusive feature. You can turn the rear compartment of any Nash Sedan into a big six-foot double size bed. You can lock the door. Ideal for vacationists, fishermen, trailer-owners.

Surprise YOUR family with this much bigger car—it costs a lot less than you think!

● See that man smiling at you from behind that stylish radiator? He almost bought one of the "all three" cars. But he saw Nash . . . got to making comparisons . . . here's what he found out.

He found that the new 117-inch wheelbase Nash LaFayette-"400" is much bigger than any of the "All Three" cars. He found it has a 90 horsepower six cylinder engine, larger hydraulic brakes, a stronger all steel body, extra wide seats, a lot more headroom and legroom. He learned it rode like a "$1500 automobile."

He bought a Nash. And here's the biggest thrill in the story. His much bigger Nash LaFayette-"400" cost him just a few dollars more than he'd have paid for one of "All Three" cars. Actually—just a FEW!

See Nash for value. The new Nash Ambassador Six is now a big 121-inch wheelbase car—even bigger than cars costing $200 more. The Nash Ambassador Eight is one of the world's real "luxury cars." 125-inch wheelbase. 105 horsepower "Twin-Ignition" engine. Come in. Let us tell you the whole amazing story. Come in—TODAY!

*FOR AS LITTLE AS $1 OR $2 A MONTH EXTRA YOU CAN GET OUT OF THE "ALL THREE" CLASS. A check-up recently made in ten representative cities shows that the Nash LaFayette-"400" 4-Door Sedan with trunk DELIVERS for just a FEW dollars more than the similarly equipped 4-door sedans of the "All Three" small cars. In many places, the SLIGHT difference in price amounts to just $1 or $2 a month extra on your time payments.

$25 A MONTH! Ask your nearest Nash dealer about the convenient terms and low rates available through the new Nash C. I. T. Easy Budget Plan. In most places, you can actually pay as little as $25 a month on your time payments. Automatic Cruising Gear now available on all Nash models at slight extra cost.

BUDGET WORRY AT FEVER PITCH IN WHITE HOUSE

Spokesmen Cry Economy to Balk Tax Rise.

President Roosevelt at 2 billion 600 million last January, would equal or exceed 3 billions.

Another side of the picture was presented by Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.] of the appropriations committee, who presented a tabulation revealing that pending bills in congress would call for the spending of the almost incredible figure of 190 billions of dollars.

While congress does not contemplate passing more than a few of these bills, their introduction, Taber said, was illustrative of the spending frenzy which has been stimulated by the huge so-called emergency expenditures under the New Deal.

Senator Walsh Joins Objectors.

Another Democratic leader to add his voice to the revolt against spending was Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, who predicted that drastic tax increases would be necessary either in this session of congress or the next.

"We cannot continue to spend money," Walsh asserted, "without great increase in taxation all along the line."

These critics pointed out that the only big sources of revenue left are the small salaried man and wage earner. But even the broadening of the income tax base on an extensive scale would hardly obtain enough new revenue to meet a big deficit, according to Doughton.

Dispute Land Bank Interest.

The opposition of Gov. W. I. Myers of the Farm Credit administration to continuing again the 3½ per cent interest rate on federal land bank loans brought roars of protest today from Senators Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] and William E. Borah [R., Idaho].

Myers' opposition was based upon the administration's growing fear of inflation and the need for new taxes to meet expenditures. But Senator Wheeler defended the present interest rate and described as sheer nonsense the statement that continuation of the rate might result in a land boom.

"It should be borne in mind," Wheeler said, "that everything the farmer has to buy went up in price as a result of the price fixing methods adopted under the NRA; and those prices did not come down even after the NRA was abolished, but have continued to increase."

He remarked that administration leaders have charged that the Supreme court was preventing the New Deal from assisting farmers.

"Now the administration wants to raise the interest rate on farm loans," he declared. "That demonstrates the insincerity of the department of agriculture and the head of the federal land banks in carrying on their reprehensible propaganda against the court in order to cover up their own mistakes."

Aids Spread of Tenancy.

Senator Borah charged that raising of the present rate on FCA loans would lead to a spread of farm tenancy.

That President Roosevelt's plea to his department heads to cut expenditures will have little effect was seen in the announcement today that the federal Works Progress administration has abandoned hope of reducing its rolls by 550,000 workers before July 1.

Administrator Hopkins once planned to reduce the WPA army to 1,600,000 by that date, but he will be lucky to have slashed the figure to 1,800,000, it was reported. There was no hope that the seasonal reduction would approach that of last spring when 750,000 were dropped from the rolls.

SLIM SCARBOROUGH, FUGITIVE SIX TIMES, 'TIRED OF DODGING'

Atlanta, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—S. J. [Slim] Scarborough, elusive life term killer, who has escaped six times from Georgia chain gangs, surrendered today in his attorney's office here.

Slim Scarborough.

"I'm tired of dodging the law," he said.

Scarborough, who has spent 12 of his 29 years in and out of prison, made his latest break April 3 from the Cherokee county convict camp in north Georgia.

Only a few days before he had been returned from Hobart, Ind., where he was recaptured after a previous escape.

Scarborough was convicted of the slaying in 1925 of W. C. Wright, Putnam county school superintendent, who had given him a ride in an automobile.

17 Saved from Drowning at Los Angeles Beaches

Los Angeles, Cal., April 17.—[Special.]—Seventeen persons were saved from drowning when 84 degree weather led thousands of persons from Los Angeles to neighboring beaches today. Thirteen rescues took place at Long Beach.

PROBE MYSTERY OF MAN HANGED ABOARD A LINER

HAVANA, April 17.—(AP)—The death of José Cancela, one of the partners in a well known Havana resort [Sloppy Joe's], aboard the Hamburg-American liner Orinoco, tonight confronted police with a mystery. Cancela's body was found hanging in his stateroom yesterday morning when the Orinoco arrived from Lisbon, Portugal. A piece of his pajamas was used as a noose.

An autopsy was performed after Cancela's partners told police they believed he had been killed. A report, signed by Dr. Esteban Valdes Castillo, chief medical examiner, and two assistant examiners, said:

"Lesions on parts of the body indicate the dead man was assaulted while alive for the purpose of torturing him or reducing his resistance. Lesions on his body are characteristic of those suffered in defense and show that a fight preceded his hanging, which seems to have been carried out with homicidal intent."

HOLD 3 MURDER SUSPECTS.

CHICAGO TO EUROPE BY AIR.

Now that Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, and the United States have reached an agreement as to the conditions under which trans-Atlantic air mail and passenger service will be established, it does not require a Jules Verne to chart the course of development. There will be a series of trial flights during the coming summer, after which the airliners will carry mail and express matter only for a few trips. Then, with the experience thus accumulated, the Pan-American will advertise passenger reservations for weekly flights. As the annihilation of distance has always increased travel volume, bi-weekly and even daily flights from Botwood, Newfoundland, will soon be necessary.

Public confidence will have been established. Just as the railways now operate "steamer trains" to connect with ocean sailings, "steamer planes" will be flown to Botwood airport for the convenience of overseas passengers. Other than the condition imposed by the Canadian arbitrators that one leg of the service will connect with the Trans-Canada Airways at Montreal and the provision for an intermediate landing field at Shediac, N. B., inland services have not been definitly planned. It is the purpose of this editorial to show that an extension of the Montreal hop to Chicago is inevitable.

As the map at the lower right will show, the network of western lines that converge at the Chicago municipal airport serve approximately fifty-four million people residing within the shaded area. If a direct flight via Montreal were available, this number of prospective patrons would save the three hour detour via New York. In addition to this, the route through the rift in the continent that marks the course of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterways system would offer almost ideal flying conditions, because it avoids crossing the Allegheny range and the sea fogs that are likely to occur on the coastal route from New York to Shediac. It is one of those airways planned by nature as a laboratory for the perfection of long distance flying. It is the water level route of the air.

Only custom would support a single route via New York, but blind adherence to tradition is not a trait of the airlines. True, the eastern metropolis is usually regarded as the gateway to America, but aviation ignores the beaten path to seek the line of greatest safety and most favorable terrain. Because of their appreciation of long distances the people of the midwest have been the outstanding supporters of aviation and the companies in this enterprise will jeopardize the success of their undertaking if they ignore the direct route to the heart of the west.

A CAMPAIGN AGAINST RAGWEED.

A resolution has been introduced in the house at Springfield calling for the eradication of a number of noxious weeds, with special emphasis on ragweed. The resolution was drafted by the state department of agriculture and was introduced by Representative Frank B. Wilson of Polo. It establishes the period from Aug. 8 to Aug. 22 as weed destruction days, and seeks to enlist the help of all citizens of the state in the work.

The pollen of the ragweed is a principal cause of hay fever, and hay fever for something like two months a year, while the pollen is floating in the air, makes life miserable for tens of thousands of men, women, and children in Illinois. Most of the victims are found in the cities, though most of the ragweed is found in the country. Why this is so is not entirely clear, but the explanation probably lies in the fact that the pollen is carried long distances on the wind and the further fact that farmers, exposed to the pollen in relatively high concentration, acquire a measure of immunity.

The thousands of victims of hay fever in the cities have reason to be grateful to the downstate members of the legislature who are supporting the bill. It is not easy for one who has not himself suffered from the disease or lived among its victims to realize what a heavy toll it takes. The acute discomfort which it causes is accompanied by a marked lowering of vitality and efficiency. There is no way to measure the aggregate of suffering; the financial loss which must be charged to the disease can be reckoned in hundreds of thousands of dollars each year.

The resolution is one of the items on the legislative program this year which should command the support of both parties in the general assembly and of all factions within the parties. The governor's support is assured; his administrative assistants have drafted the resolution. The backing of Chicago members can be taken for granted. The passage of the resolution promises some reduction in the pollen count next summer and will authorize an educational campaign against ragweed which will yield even more substantial results in the years to come. Once the farmers are informed of the menace of ragweed they can be counted upon to do their part in minimizing it.

BRITISH IMPERIAL DEFENSE.

The problem of imperial defense is one of the most complicated and difficult British statesmen have to deal with in these anxious days. For heavy expenditures and expeditious preparation for home defense the government is in the fortunate position of having little serious opposition. The Labor party criticizes and reiterates its protests against war and militarism and imperialism, but it accepts the basic assumptions upon which the government's armament program is founded, namely: that British armament must be rapidly strengthened not only for the sake of protection from invasion but for the sake of British influence in international relations.

Of course these assumptions are expressed in different formulas by the Conservative, the Liberal, the Labor party man, but the net result is that the government is having its way. Thus Mr. Lawson, though representing "distressed areas" which can hardly enjoy seeing money allocated to armament that might go to their own relief, gave the following statement in debate on the army estimates. "We would not vote sums of money for the old ideal of imperialism; but we are prepared to support rearmament for the building up of our forces so that we might play a part in a league which stands for permanent peace and for the ideal for which men live and millions die." That sentiment will not cost the army a cartridge.

But Labor and Liberal party support does not make the assumption of the heavy debt being piled up by armament expenditure any lighter on the British public of all classes and it is not surprising that the government is beginning to feel that the delicate subject of imperial contribution is not to be postponed indefinitly. The defense of the empire involves responsibilities and burdens which the government and people of Great Britain may very reasonably call upon the dominions to share more liberally and definitly than they have seemed inclined to do, at least in time of peace and preparation.

But this opens some uncomfortable problems. In the first place, the experience of the colonials in the great war was not such as to create enthusiasm for more service under British command and British war office direction. The defects of British military administration and the blunders of men who held their places only because of military red tape or the peculiarities of English social and political intrigue were not lost on the colonial. There was, in fact, very little in the service under English professional leadership and administration to induce the splendid fighting men of the colonies to yern for more in another war.

In the second place, the defense problems of the various dominions differ widely. Canada has virtually no problem at all, in the military sense, since she is in a permanent peace with her neighbor, the United States, and more than that, is able to rely securely on the fact that we should never allow any foreign invasion of her shores. For practical purposes in all imaginable eventualities American armament on sea and land is hers.

South Africa cannot be attacked until Australia-New Zealand or the British power has been overthrown.

Australia and New Zealand, on the other hand, find in recent world developments serious cause for concern. If Italian power and aggressive policy intensify, Italy may be able under favorable combinations to block the Mediterranean and the path of British assistance and there would be danger that the British navy could not come to the rescue against a sudden and powerful attack from Japan. This eventuality is beginning to loom on the horizon of Netherlands' policy, which is now demanding a stronger armament in the Dutch East Indies. The United States is leaving the Philippines. Singapore is now rather in the situation of the Roman wall, the outpost of the British imperial defense. In short, Australia and New Zealand will have to face the fact that in present and future developments they will have to provide a very large measure of their own defense.

To frame a system of defense for these widely scattered and variously situated parts of the empire is one of the most difficult problems that has ever confronted British statesmanship.

THE JEFFERSON MEMORIAL AND SOME OTHERS.

The architect's design for the Jefferson memorial in Washington has stirred a considerable protest. It is said that the monumental Roman pile with its elaborate reflecting pools is not a fit symbol of the man who believed in simplicity in personal life and economy in government. His was not a Taj Mahal temperament. There is much justice in the criticism, though it is to be said for the Jefferson project that it cannot be as offensive to the spirit of the man it memorializes as is the Lincoln building in Washington. The Lincoln memorial as an exercise in Doric architecture is a first rank achievement. The building is beautiful in its proportions. It has dignity and simplicity. Perhaps it suggests Lincoln's character as well as any architecture could, though there is a coldness and remoteness about it which cannot easily be compromised with the known facts about the prairie politician and the back room story teller.

The objection to the Lincoln memorial is not so much to its outward appearances as to the uses to which it has been put. As it is approached the building proves to be not a memorial to a man but the temple of a major deity. The temple has been erected to house a huge idol. Lincoln was often jovial; this statue is always Jovian. The Lincoln figured in this memorial could never have done the things the Illinois lawyer did nor said the things he said in the matchless way he said them. The Lincoln of the ten ton idol could have spoken only in edicts and judgments.

It is well that a republic honor its great men, but it is not well that it worship its political leaders, even in death. That is why the Washington shaft is just in its spirit and the Lincoln memorial is false, discordant and irritating. The republican ideal is burning low in the hearts and minds of a people which deifies its Cæsars.

FAIR PLAY.

He stood regarding the badly damaged motor car. "O, well," he said, "turn about is fair play."

"What do you mean by that?" asked the other man who had stopped to look on.

"Why," exclaimed the motor car's owner, "it broke me first."—Gloucester, England, Journal.

INHUMAN ISOLATIONISM.

[Baltimore Sun.]

The proponents of the new neutrality, who would keep the country out of war at any cost, even at the cost of complete economic isolation, are beginning to go to extreme lengths in defending their thesis. An example of the absurd position into which some of them have maneuvered themselves may be found in the hearings held by the house foreign affairs committee on the pending neutrality legislation.

An official of the Veterans of Foreign Wars had testified that his organization favored the McReynolds bill which would "prohibit the solicitation of funds to aid one side or another in a foreign war" and which would make it an offense to solicit or receive such funds from American citizens. Chairman McReynolds pointed out that there should be a provision of the bill excepting contributions for the Red Cross. But to this Representative Izac, a member of the committee, objected.

"I don't think so, Mr. Chairman," said Congressman Izac, "because somebody would come along and drop a bomb on the tent of the Red Cross and immediately we would all be up in arms." Does this congressman actually realize how inhuman his position is? How absurd—and how cruel—it is to argue that we must forego the acts of charity and common decency in order to save ourselves from so remote a chance of being drawn into somebody else's war! This is carrying isolationism beyond all human standards.

Fortunately, the state department, after taking a somewhat similar view, has reversed itself on this question and now permits contributions of medicine and food to be sent to Spain. In congress, too, a majority seems to feel that medical contributions and the like should not be prohibited. But so long as there are members like Representative Izac at hand there is no telling when this sentiment might be changed and the United States forced into the position of denying charity to others because it fears that charity might involve it in war.

CAREFUL, THERE.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

DANGER LURKS IN OPIUM.

ANY ONE who employs morphine or opium for an appreciable length of time—regularly and persistently—is sure to become an addict. He will depend upon the drug for very existence. If unable to obtain it he will go to almost any lengths to satisfy his craving as, deprived of the narcotic, agonizing physical and mental symptoms appear.

Opium has been known for thousands of years, but it was not until the eighteenth century that warnings were sounded as to the menace which attended its continuous use. Slavish adherence to laudanum was even then recognized, but its deadly rôle was not fully understood. To visualize the heights and depths of the emotions occasioned by its use, one has but to read De Quincey's "Confessions of an Opium Eater."

We know now that there is no opium derivative that is harmless. Morphine—the active alkaloid prepared from the dried juice of the poppy—has been utilized as a medicine for more than a century. Some forty years ago heroin [a salt of morphine] was introduced as a nonhabit forming chemical, one that possessed all the virtues and none of the dangers of opium. This proved a delusion and a snare, as either heroin or dilaudid [a more recent combination] can lure and crush human worshipers as readily as a flame can singe the wing of a moth.

Once acquired, the craving for the drug may last for years and be accompanied by gradual physical deterioration. But even after the habit has become fixed cure is possible under complete control and supervision. Isolation seems to be the only sure method.

After withdrawal has been accomplished—and there are several plans, including depriving the patient of the drug gradually or abruptly—everything depends upon the moral fiber of the victim. In most instances, if he wants to get along without it, he can, but regardless of the type of treatment—even though the individual is free from one to several months—he may recall the flamboyant dreams under its influence and return to its embrace.

One thing is well nigh certain: that for a successful outcome the patient must be hospitalized and remain under strict regulatory management. Oversight from the physician's office is out of the question and narcotic clinics in medical centers cannot but fail.

But, many will say, why not abolish all habit forming drugs from the face of the earth? Thus the lives, careers, and characters of tens of thousands will be saved. The objection is, of course, that opium and its compounds are among the greatest blessings to which humanity is heir, that is, when they are properly handled and guarded. But when placed at the beck and call of the unscrupulous they constitute a scourge world-wide in its influence.

When an addict is deprived of the drug he is actually ill—even seriously so. There is usually nausea, vomiting, intense abdominal pain, and a feeling that the muscles and tissues are being torn and burned. Occasionally maniacal symptoms develop and the patient may exhibit signs of intense mental and physical agony. Every drug user has been through this "hell" as at some time or other he may have been unable to obtain his accustomed supply. Knowing the torture of the oncoming period of abstinence, he will exert every means at his command to secure the needed opiate.

It is to fight these symptoms that plans have been devised—to dull the consciousness, relieve pain, and quiet the gastrointestinal tract. Thus we have the so-called belladonna, hyoscine, rossium, and various other "cures." But none will serve efficiently unless the patient is under absolute control.

Drug addiction is a deadly menace and we can well afford to expend ten times our present budget allotment in combating the clandestine barter of these nerve destroying compounds. We must provide also adequate opportunities for institutional care.

NERVE DEAFNESS.

J. W. E. writes: Is there any type of treatment that will help nerve deafness? Some of the fibers are supposed to be dead. I am 31 years old.

REPLY.

So far, nerve deafness defies all treatment. The best substitutes are lip reading and the use of a mechanical hearing aid.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence if more than one letter is written each should be complete in itself. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

DEATH CERTIFICATES.

Chicago, April 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend's father passed away leaving no will and no estate [so far as we know] except for an apartment building which was in joint tenancy with his wife. He was found dead in bed and had not been under a doctor's care.

1. Doesn't Cook county require a coroner's inquest under such circumstances? Two years ago he married a second time [his first wife being dead], and since the property was heavily mortgaged made it in joint tenancy with his wife and agreed to sign his insurance policies, one to each of his three children [all of them adults], over to his children.

Through some reason the widow had gotten him to change them over to her and now there [2] is nothing to be done about that, is there?

3. In case there should be a small estate is there some way the children can put in a claim? The father had been on a pension for a year and it stopped immediately on his death. L. B.

1. "In case of any death occurring without medical attendance it shall be the duty of the undertaker or person acting as such to notify the coroner of such death, and the coroner shall thereupon repair to the place where the dead body is and take charge of the same and forthwith make an examination and preliminary investigation as to the cause of death. If the coroner shall determine from such examination and preliminary investigation that no suspicion of death from violence, casualty or undue means exists, he shall then make the certificate of death and return from the statement of relatives or other persons having adequate knowledge of the facts on the form prescribed by the state department of public health. If he shall determine from such examination and preliminary investigation that suspicion of death from violence, casualty or undue means does exist, he shall thereupon proceed to hold an inquest as hereinbefore provided." [Ill. Rev. Stat., Chap. 31, Sec. 10.]

2 and 3. Not unless undue influence or lack of mental capacity can be proved, which does not seem likely.

20 Years Ago Today

APRIL 18, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The war finance bill, providing for issuance of 7 billion dollars in securities—the largest single war budget in any nation's history—was passed unanimously by the senate. The administration measure, which was passed by the house last Saturday, provides for a loan to the allies of 3 billion dollars.

CHICAGO.—Definite plans for the training of the middle west's share of the first 10,000 officers who will command the first 500,000 soldiers in Uncle Sam's new army were announced by Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commander of the central army department.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson and the Democratic majority of the house committee on naval affairs are engaged in a desperate struggle over the adoption of selective conscription as the basic means of raising the new national army of 2,000,000 men for the war with Germany.

PARIS.—Smashing against the Soissons-Reims sector—the corner stone segment in the entire German western front—the French have crushed the entire enemy defenses along the whole twenty-five mile front, reaching the second and even the third lines in several places. In one place—the north front at Brimont—they broke clear through.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Amsterdam says sensational rumors are current on the Amsterdam bourse to the effect that the Anglo-French victories on the western front, coupled with the Berlin strike of munition workers, are about to cause a most dramatic move in German public opinion.

PETROGRAD.—The closing sitting of the congress of the council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates passed resolutions favoring the suppression of classes and titles and the confiscation of all lands belonging to the crown, the church, and also monasteries. Provision is made for transferring the lands to the use of peasants.

CHICAGO.—A Chicago woman, Mrs. Wallace C. Winter of 1447 Astor street, who has three sons old enough and eager to defend their country, sent pleas to Illinois representatives in Washington to vote for selective conscription without further delay. She scored the volunteer system as permitting the nation's "selfish and less useful citizens to remain at home in comfort and security."

CHICAGO.—The co-eds of Northwestern university in Fish hall in Evanston advocated that women wear cotton stockings instead of silk during the war.

REPLY TO LUNCHEON ECONOMISTS.

Chicago, April 14.—Luncheon prophets are fond of averring nowadays that "there must be a long period of good times ahead, because the country needs vast quantities of homes, machinery, and other goods to replace all that has gone to ruin during the depression." Yet the main business question is not "How badly does the country need these things?" but "Will the country buy them?"

Depressions are made, not by lack of purchasing power but by lack of willingness to exercise it. One need not have money to have purchasing power; obviously a man has it if his pockets are full of diamonds, or good stock certificates, or clear titles to valuable real estate. The persistence of unemployment simply indicates an existing deadlock in which those who own valuable things [including unsold "surpluses"] or liens upon them, are unwilling [usually for good reasons] to part with the things or the liens in exchange for the labor of others—who therefore remain unemployed.

Remembering this, we can see more clearly that a need for new machinery in a factory whose management cannot see ahead any demand for its product continuous enough to justify the installation is of no more use toward recovery than the need [which has long been with us] for new homes on the part of jobless men without means to buy them. What is needed for recovery is not more bureaus and new NRA's, but willingness to buy on the part of those able to buy. That reduces, ultimately, to willingness of those who own goods to exchange them for labor.

Any propertied business man is pretty sure to develop such willingness whenever he feels confident that there is going to be similar willingness to spend on the part of others. That implies, first of all, confidence in a governmental régime which will permit business to earn profits and will not treat the earning of them as "anti-social."

Without this assurance no mere worn-out condition of homes and machinery is any guarantee that "business has got to get better." HARRIS K. RANDALL.

LETTERS FROM MINORS.

Chicago, April 12.—We, the undersigned students of Senn High school, wish to protest against a letter published in the Voice of the People column of THE TRIBUNE April 9, 1937. This letter, much to our regret, was written by a Senn student and signed "Disgusted Student." The economics teacher against whom this letter was written is of an unimpeachable character and never expressed her views openly even when pressed to do so before the last national election. Our school is honored to have such a person on the list of its faculty members. The statement that she will not listen to any conservative argument is entirely untrue, as are all the other accusations. In the sense of sportsmanship THE TRIBUNE should publish this statement. We earnestly hope that this paper will stop regarding letters written by minors as of such great importance that they merit the jeopardizing of a highly reputable person's character.

ADVICE FROM A THEATER MANAGER.

Chicago, April 12.—About a month ago a reader wrote about "The Glove Racket." The lady explained how she left her hat and gloves on an empty seat in a theater and stepped out to the lobby during intermission. When she returned the gloves were gone.

I was glad to see this article of warning appear in your column. As a theater manager I would like to add a further word of warning to all women who sometimes take advantage of an empty seat to park their clothing and their purses, especially at the matinée, when there are many empty seats available.

Unfortunately, there are unscrupulous men and women who visit theaters and prey upon the woman who sets her purse on an empty seat. The thieves usually wait for a highly dramatic moment in the picture to quietly pick up the purse and escape with it. They may be sitting behind the victim and tilt the seat up with their feet, thus permitting the purse to slide gently to the floor. Sometimes a child is trained to do this so as to divert suspicion. If the child is caught in the act the mother chastises it and apologizes for its unheard of conduct.

No theater in the country is exempt from these racketeers. Theater managers have hired private detectives to try to catch these sneak thieves. Ushers are continually on the lookout for suspicious characters, yet in spite of many precautions they seem to get away with it, not so much at the present time but enough to make it miserable for the theater manager who is blamed by the victim.

Please, ladies, use the empty seats for your coats or hats, but hold your purse in your lap, and these racketeers are licked. And if you are wearing one of those new skyscraper bonnets won't you consider the patron behind you and remove it? STANLEY LAMBERT.

SHE WANTS ANOTHER NRA.

Chicago, April 13.—Maybe you think I wouldn't welcome another NRA! Well, let me tell you right here and now that the NRA today would be the answer to the prayers of millions of workers.

May I give my case as an example? I'm one of those so-called office girls, in other words, it means that I work from 7:30 a. m. until 5 p. m. Saturday is no holiday—all day for me every other Saturday—and I earn the exaggerated amount of $16 per week. I mustn't complain, because there's too many other young women looking for a job.

I do hope the day will come when my working hours will be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and my salary $20 a week or better. That, I imagine, will be in some Utopia. AN OFFICE GIRL.

SENATE HEARING ON COURT BILL TO END APRIL 28

Deny Baseball Season Was Motive for Haste.

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Although practically unanimous in the opinion that the hearings on President Roosevelt's Supreme court bill already have drawn out to the point of dreariness, the senate judiciary committee today decided against haste in concluding testimony.

The open hearings will be continued until April 28. Next week will be devoted to witnesses against the proposal to enlarge the court.

There was much mystery over the unanimous vote to suspend the hearings Monday afternoon, the senators scornfully repudiating the suggestion that the opening of the baseball season had the slightest connection with the temporary adjournment.

Proponents of the measure, if administration forces can produce any more, will be heard from April 26 to 28, it was announced.

After the latter date the committee will go into executive session and there will be considerable debate at these closed meetings before the bill finally is put to a vote, Chairman Henry F. Ashurst [D., Ariz.], declared. The report of the committee still is in doubt, both sides claiming a majority.

Senator Ashurst said today's meeting was characterized by "considerable cordiality" and "flashes of wit and merriment."

The decision not to end the hearings may have been affected by a telegram sent to Senator Ashurst by "the Women's National Committee for Hands Off the Supreme Court." Mrs. Catherine Curtis, its chairman, complained that on Feb. 12 and again on March 12, her committee appealed for an opportunity to present testimony, but never had been answered.

SENIOR JUSTICE REACHES 78

Justice Willis Van Devanter, oldest member of the United States Supreme court in point of service, receives flowers from Sarah Kimball, 11, as he leaves his home in Washington, D. C., on his 78th birthday.

Studies Problems

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—Justice Willis Van Devanter, who has sat on the Supreme court longer than any of his colleagues, observed his 78th birthday today by studying some of the legal problems awaiting solution by that tribunal. "It is just the same as any other day," said an associate. There was no special observance.

DENHARDT TRIAL FOR MURDER TO OPEN TOMORROW

New Castle, Ky., April 17.—[U. P.]—Henry H. Denhardt, state brigadier general and veteran of two wars, will plead at his murder trial, starting Monday, that he did not kill Mrs. Verna G. Taylor but that she committed suicide, his attorney said today.

Denhardt will be tried on the charge of slaying his fiancé, a widow reputed to be the "prettiest woman in Oldham and Henry counties."

Mrs. Taylor died of a bullet fired from Denhardt's .45 caliber automatic Nov. 6. Her body was found on a highway near Denhardt's stalled auto. The gun lay beside her. Denhardt said he was looking for somebody to help him to start the car when the shot was fired. Her brother swore out a warant for Denhardt's arrest when he refused to testify at the inquest. The general has been free under $25,000 bonds.

Ancillary Administration of Adams' Illinois Estate Asked

A petition for ancillary administration of the Illinois assets of the estate of William P. Adams, 74 years old, a native Chicagoan, who died in Miami, Fla., March 24, was filed in the Probate court before Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday. Mr. Adams was the owner of loop properties valued at $400,000.

His will, filed in Miami where he had made his home for the last 20 years, leaves the income of the estate to his widow, Nettie, for five years. Then it is to be divided between two sons, John Q. Adams, 22 Indian Hill road, Winnetka, and Robert B. of Miami, after payment of $75,000 bequests to five grandchildren.

ACCUSE HODES OF CONTEMPT IN SLAP AT JUDGES

Lawyers in Damage Case to Ask Citation.

Attorneys in a personal injury suit announced yesterday they would file a petition in Circuit court next Tuesday asking that Barnet Hodes, city corporation counsel, be held in contempt for remarks he made is his controversy with country judges sitting in the Circuit and Superior courts here.

Robert Strappelli.

The attorneys represent Robert Strappelli, 15 years old, 6120 School street, who won a jury verdict of $5,000 from the city in the court of Judge John T. Cummings of Kewanee, sitting in the Circuit court.

Call Judges Unsuited.

Following this award, Hodes attacked the country judges as being unfamiliar with metropolitan conditions and therefore unsuited to hear damage suits involving the city.

The contempt complaint was drafted yesterday by the law firm of Barasa, Rinella & Barasa, representing the boy. Pointing out that the case is still pending inasmuch as the judge continued to April 21 the city's motion to overrule the verdict, the attorneys declared that Hodes' remarks are contemptuous, contumacious and were made with a deliberate intent to intimidate and influence the decision of the court.

The corporation counsel would make no comment when notified of the intention of the judges to bring him into court on a contempt citation.

Await Judge's Return.

As the case was heard before Judge Cummings, the contempt petition will be filed before him if he returns to Chicago, according to Attorney Bernard P. Barasa. Otherwise, the petition will be filed before Chief Justice Walter LaBuy of the Circuit court for assignment.

In his attack on the country judges, Hodes also contended that extra compensation for the visiting judges is illegal. Following that assertion, seven of the country judges who have been sitting in the Superior court returned to their country seats Saturday and said they would refuse to hear any more cases here until the controversy is settled.

Callendar Is Reassigned.

Consequently, Judge John P. McGoorty, head of the law division of the Superior court, yesterday reassigned the calendars of the seven judges to Cook county judges. Two judges of the court who have been ill—Joseph B. David and John C. Lewe—are expected to return this week to aid in taking over this extra work.

Five out of town judges who are helping out in the Circuit court are expected to return here tomorrow. James Sullivan, secretary to the Circuit court, said he had not been notified that they would not appear.

Act to Get Six New Judges.

Chicago is entitled to more judges on the basis of population, according to officials, and Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago] is drafting a bill providing for the election of six more Superior court judges.

Speaking of this bill, Mayor Kelly said that if there is a referendum on a transit ordinance in the fall one might be had at the same time on the question of increasing the size of the Superior court. He pointed out that the only cost involved would be in the county, outside Chicago.

Censors a Senator

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Miss Mae Clausen, chairman of the Kansas board of motion picture review, which deleted comments by Senator Burton K. Wheeler opposing President Roosevelt's Supreme court proposal.

New York, April 17.—(AP)—The Constitutional Democracy association in a telegram to Gov. Walter A. Huxman of Kansas tonight protested the elimination by censors of Senator Burton K. Wheeler's remarks on the Supreme court issue in the current issue of the "March of Time" film. The censors are headed by Miss Mae Clausen.

"This action is a serious encroachment upon freedom of speech and the press," the telegram signed by President J. G. Phelps Stokes said. The Kansas board of censors ordered Wheeler's remarks cut from the film on the ground that they were unfair and partisan.

FISHER UPHOLDS DRASTIC CHANGES IN CRIMINAL LAW

Pleads for Abolition of Grand Jury System.

Drastic changes in the Illinois criminal code which would abolish the grand jury system and provide for prosecution solely by informations and by complaints of state's attorneys, were defended yesterday at a public hearing in the county building before a subcommittee of the judiciary committee of the Illinois house of representatives.

The proposed new code also would provide for the detention of essential witnesses under bond, and would permit husband or wives to testify for or against each other.

Fisher Leads Fight.

Judge Harry M. Fisher led the proponents of the change. He is chairman of the judicial advisory committee which prepared the new code, now pending in the legislature at Springfield. Representatives Charles J. Jenkins, a Republican, is chairman of the subcommittee which held the hearing. With him were Representatives William G. Thon, a Republican, and Richard Daley, a Democrat. All represent Chicago districts.

The judiciary committee is to consider the new code next Tuesday and the hearing in Chicago was to allow Chicago judges and lawyers to express opinions concerning its merits or demerits.

Attorney William Scott Stewart was the only one who spoke against the bill at yesterday's hearing. Stewart, well known defender in many criminal cases, told the subcommittee that in his opinion the proposed code takes away essential rights of defendants.

Others Approve Changes.

Others who gave approval to the changes were Judge Donald S. McKinlay, Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court, Municipal Judge John V. McCormick, former Judge Albert B. George, Attorney Homer Dodge, and William K. Hooks, president of the Cook County Bar association.

"The proposed code represents the social progress made in the last 100 years," Judge Fisher asserted, "and all the progress made in this state is fully retained.

Protection Is Only Purpose.

"The philosophy of the law under the present state constitution that the punishment must fit the crime is outmoded. Since 1872 we have been getting away from that philosophy, through the indeterminate sentence act, probation, and parole laws.

"The new philosophy is that the only purpose of punishment of criminals is that of social protection. Therefore a person likely to endanger society must be segregated so long as he is likely to be dangerous."

Judge Sonsteby, as one of the committee that drafted the new code, declared it would simplify criminal procedure and would do away with many appeals. He said that many of the offenses now classed as crimes are to be treated as misdemeanors under the new code.

Judge McKinlay said he favored the abolition of the grand jury system and the other changes in general, but voiced objections to some of the procedural changes.

QUIN O'BRIEN READY TO INSTITUTE NEW KIDNAPING CHARGES

Quin O'Brien, 66 years old, assistant corporation counsel, whose forced marriage to Marguerite Eustice, was annulled by Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the Superior court Friday, declared yesterday that the case is not a closed incident. He said that he would file complaints against the principals in the case in one of the counties he traveled with his bride on his forced honeymoon. Charges of kidnaping against Miss Eustice, several relatives and four others were dropped by the Cook county grand jury on March 24.

CARDINAL HAYES FLAYS 'TWISTED' SCIENCE CLAIMS

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Cardinal Hayes today envisioned as ideal a world fashioned "by the test tube and the gospel alike"—but he denounced bitterly practitioners of the "pseudo sciences," accusing them of putting forth "half truths and twisted truths" which served as attacks on religion.

Among the scientific tenets he attacked were principles included in the Einstein theory of relativity, the quantum theory of Max Planck, and the psychological teachings of Sigmund Freud, although the cardinal mentioned none of the men by name.

In an address at a luncheon in his honor launching the one-week drive of the Catholic charities for $1,372,000, Cardinal Hayes told 1,500 members of his committee of the laity and their guests that "not even charity is safe from attack" in a world "where paganism and worse again has become a creed; where hate is a gospel, and where ignorance is law."

OUSTED PRINCE DENIES PART IN RUMANIAN CRISIS

Disowns Any Connection with Fascist Group.

BUCHAREST, April 18.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Former Prince Nicholas early today repudiated efforts to create a political disturbance because of his ouster from the royal family.

The demoted prince, in a letter to Premier George Tataresçu, said he was not associated with the militant Iron Guard, secret Rumanian Fascist society, and he expressed concern that reports he was coöperating with some opposition group might injure the state.

His statement, issued early today by the government press bureau, was expected by officials to take the fire out of the opposition movement which for several days has worried the cabinet.

The letter said:

"Reports have reached me that it is rumored throughout the country I am associated with a political movement which, were I indeed involved, might damage the state.

Demands Rumors Be Halted.

"I am not associated with any such movement and I protest against such reports. I beg of you to take measures to stamp out such rumors."

Officials said an effort to give the impression that Nicholas was associated with encouraging the revolutionary guard was started by a student organization.

Premier Tatarescu's firm precautions against a possible Nazi coup seemingly had cowed the Iron Guard last night.

The Iron Guardists, who have been banned as such, would like to have Rumania run by a dictatorship similar to Germany's. Their leader is Gen. Zizi Cantacuzino, who after the ban was ordered, formed a new party, which he says is legal, with himself as the president. It is called "All for the Fatherland."

All Meetings Watched.

This group, some thought, sought to take advantage—for its own purposes—of King Carol's order banishing his brother, Nicholas. Nicholas was banished from royal rank because he would not give up his commoner wife. The Guardists said their new party was not given a part in the crown council which decreed Nicholas' banishment, although Rumanian law provides all recognized parties shall have a voice in the council.

When it became apparent that the Iron Guard was trying to stir up anti-government sentiment [it particularly dislikes Mme. Magda Lupescu, Carol's friend], the cabinet authorized emergenecy measures to suppress any possible disturbances. Police guarded all political meetings.

Government Wins Elections.

Cabinet members kept in touch with each other and police were on the alert, but everything on the surface was quiet and returns from a Friday council election for cities showed strong government victories, 32 seats to 4.

Nicholas, stripped of his princely rank, moved about his Bucharest castle, making plans to leave the capital. He is going to Italy for at least a year of exile. Government officials say the Iron Guard really cares nothing about what happens to Nicholas, but took up his cause to further its own political aims.

SCIENCE'S TWINS

FLAILS TAMMANY FOR 'HUEY LONG' POLITICAL TRICKS

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—The Democratic machine in New York City was attacked today by City Chamberlain A. A. Berle Jr. in an address at the keynote luncheon meeting of the newly organized progressive city committee, which is urging the reëlection of Mayor La Guardia.

Mr. Berle described the city's affairs under the La Guardia administration as better than they have been in twenty years. He pictured Tammany Hall as playing a desperate game, reduced to the tactics of Huey Long, through the Berg bills recently enacted by the legislature.

"Those laws," Mr. Berle said, "are designed to fix matters so that nobody but the old guard political machines can nominate. If the bosses can nominate, what do they care who votes. So you have the spectacle of Tammany Hall, knowing that its finish has come in the electorate, really trying to disfranchise the city of New York."

He urged that the alliance of independent and progressive Democrats be continued.

CRERAR LIBRARY REPORTS ASSETS OF 6½ MILLIONS

The John Crerar library, a free public reference library of scientific and technical literature, had assets totaling $6,471,186 as of Dec. 31, 1936, the annual report for that year showed yesterday. This included stock and bonds valued at $2,979,113.

The recorded number of calls for books from the stacks was 320,000 for the year, but the total use of books and periodicals during the same period was estimated at 1,400,000. An inventory showed about 584,000 volumes. The library subscribes regularly to 3,766 periodicals and about 10,000 other serial publications.

PLAN TWO CAKES FOR "SCIENTIFIC" TWINS' BIRTHDAY

about an even break on the musical end of the program.

Last year one observer wrote that the only net result of their different training that he could detect was that "while Johnny can jump off an ice box, as Jimmy just sits there and cries, Jimmy gets what he wants even if he has to snatch it."

Jimmy, however, scored with another observer when in answer to the question, "What are you going to be when you grow up?" he beat his "conditionel" brother to it with the retort, "A big boy, of course."

Mrs. Woods, mother of the pair, thinks Jimmy may be just a little quicker on the mental trigger for all his brother's scientific advantages.

Both Obey "Fairly Well."

Both boys are "better off" for the experiment, Mrs. Woods is convinced. Both are "good" boys, of course, and both mind "fairly well."

O, yes, and Mrs. Woods wanted it written into the record for the benefit of the future that her famous sons have middle names which they'll probably like to include in grownup monickers—since the fame of both is bound to increase with their stature.

Johnny's full nomenclature, then be it known, is John Anthony Woods and that of his "untrained" brother James Bernard Woods.

3 YOUTHS CAPTURED BY POLICE IN CHASE ADMIT 9 ROBBERIES

Three youths captured in a stolen automobile after a police chase on Friday night confessed yesterday to Sergt. Raymond Benn of the Albany Park station that they had committed nine robberies recently. The prisoners are Leroy Peterson, 17 years old, 4147 School street; Richard Stilson, 16, of 2425 North Kedzie avenue, both high school pupils, and Stanley Wozny, 19, of 2712 Drake avenue. Wozny has a police record. The three were identified by the owner of the car which they smashed against a post near Grace street and Elston avenue before their arrest, and by the owner of another car which they admitted stealing on April 3.

EDWARD HINES LUMBER COMPANY

SEE ROOSEVELT THIRST FOR NEW FEDERAL POWER

Fear Virtual Wiping Out of State Lines.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Events of the last few days indicate conclusively that President Roosevelt, in insisting upon passage of his bill empowering him to pack the Supreme court, is aiming at a vast enlargement of federal power.

The result would be a centralization of government that would virtually wipe out state lines in important fields of activity.

In deciding the Wagner act cases last Monday the Supreme court greatly broadened federal authority over industry. But the victory won in this broad definition of the commerce clause of the constitution did not satisfy the President. He refused to drop his fight to pack the court because he wants more than the court gave him Monday and he wants a court he can be sure will give it to him.

Dislikes 5 to 4 Division.

With the court as now constituted divided 5 to 4, the President professes to believe he cannot be assured of validation of legislation empowering the federal government to fix minimum wages for men, maximum hours of labor, prohibit child labor, define standards of fair trade practice, and otherwise exercise supervision over industry.

With six dependable New Dealers added to the court such legislation would be validated beyond a doubt, as Mr. Roosevelt views it.

If the President should be empowered to appoint six new justices, it would take the retirement of only two of the present members of the court to give the President a majority of his own choice. He would appoint justices whose minds "go along" with his, as Mr. Roosevelt expressed it in removing William E. Humphrey from the quasi-judicial federal trade commission because his mind did "not go along with mine." For that arbitrary act in violation of the constitution the Supreme court unanimously rebuked Mr. Roosevelt.

Viewed as Political Court.

Opponents of Mr. Roosevelt's judiciary bill are now contending that the refusal of the President to rest content with the present liberal majority of the court demonstrates that he is seeking a power he ought not to have. The court with a majority of Mr. Roosevelt's selection will be a political court, they assert, and will do Mr. Roosevelt's bidding.

There was a good deal of cloakroom discussion of this aspect of the proposition during the consideration of the anti-lynching bill in the house. Democratic members stated openly that the bill is a political measure brought forward by the Democratic leaders for the purpose of holding the Negro vote that has been won away from the Republicans.

Having succeeded in getting the bill through the house the Democratic leaders are preparing to force it through the senate in face of a threatened filibuster by southern senators. If it should be passed by the senate there is no doubt that the President will sign it.

Although the bill represents the greatest invasion of state sovereignty by the federal power since the reconstruction era its proponents pronounce it constitutional and many of its opponents think it probably would be validated by the Supreme court, particularly if the President succeeds in packing the tribunal with justices who see eye to eye with him.

This vision of what a political court could do to deprive them of state rights in order to satisfy the political purpose of holding the Negro vote in the north has cooled the ardor of what little support there remains in the south for the court packing bill.

The southerners contend that lynching is diminishing, that the only effective cure of the evil is to be sought in education and that the bill passed by the house would only foster the crime. Sherifs liable to federal prosecution for failure to protect a Negro from a mob, they contend, would avoid trouble by not taking the Negro into custody.

South Resents Intervention.

The southern congressmen intensely resented the northern move for federal intervention in connection with lynchings and throughout the debate taunted Representative Joseph A. Gavagan, the Democratic author of the bill, who represents the Harlem black belt of New York City, and other New Yorkers, with the gangland murders in the metropolis that claim more victims annually, said the southerners, than all the southern lynchings put together.

The southerners reminded the New Yorkers that validation of federal intervention to police the south will mean eventually federal intervention to police New York.

"We do not want lynching any more than I take it the gentlemen from New York want gang murders," said Representative William M. Colmer [D., Miss.], "but they are all on a parity, and if it is constitutional for the American congress to legislate in this one field then it ought to be just as constitutional for it to legislate in the other."

Sees States as Puppets.

Representative Luther A. Johnson [D., Tex.] said that "if this bill becomes a law, then we will no longer have sovereign states, but they will be mere puppets subservient to the federal government."

Referring to the power under the terms of the bill that the federal government would have to arrest the governor of a state, Representative Hatton W. Sumners [D., Tex. turned upon the northerners and exclaimed that "as the God of justice reigns in the heavens, there will come a day when the law of retribution will send somebody to do a like thing to you."

Representative Fred Biermann [D., Ia.] cited statistics showing that out of 2,582 homicides in New York City from 1930 to 1934 inclusive there were only 482 convictions.

"When," said Representative John L. McClellan [D., Ark.], "you have mopped from the sidewalks" of New York the blood of innocent children who, while at play, were shot down like rats by gangsters, when you show us that you can keep crime from thriving and operating practically at will in your own bailiwick, when you have squelched the stench of the corruption in which you wallow in the largest and, as you would proclaim, the 'most civilized' city in the world, then, but not until then, are we in the south ready or willing to concede that your standard of morals, of virtue, of citizenship, of society, and respect and obedience to law are superior to ours. He who in moments of weakness may yield to impulses and temptation cannot safely follow an habitual drunkard who preaches without practicing reform.

"You will do well to apply your energies and devote your talents to silencing the ring of machine-gun fire from organized gangs thriving on corrupt political protection in the city of New York, and if you will learn how to protect your innocent citizenship on your own avenues you can honorably wear the crown of glory you strive to place on your brow."

SAYS HIGHER-UPS AVOID PRISON IN VOTE FRAUD

Kansas City, Mo., April 17.—(AP)—Judge Merrill E. Otis, sentencing five men to prison and jail for vote fraud conspiracy, said today "somewhere beyond the polling place that day there were others more guilty."

"Those who are really guilty are those whose names do not appear on the indictment," Judge Otis added, "yet, I do not know who they are and the defendants have not said."

Sentencing of the five convicted Monday in the sixth vote fraud trial closed the series, until late next month.

Woman, 51, Accuses WPA Worker of Attempted Rape

Mrs. Ethel Smith, 51 years old, 365 West Chicago avenue, was severely beaten yesterday in her home by a man she charged tried to rape her. She was taken to the county hospital. On her complaint, police arrested Edward Seerey, 45 years old, a Works Progress administration worker, who rooms in the same building. He denied assaulting Mrs. Smith.

3 Women Officials Fined for Vote Irregularities

Three women election officials of the 36th precinct of the 20th ward were yesterday fined $25 each by County Judge Jarecki for irregularities at the primary of April 14, 1936. They are Mrs. Selma Ellis, 28 years old, of 1347 Union avenue; Mrs. Sarah Lakowitz of 1330 Jefferson street, and Miss Mary Wittenberg of 1326 Jefferson street.

Sometimes I feel there's a heart beating
INSIDE MY BALDWIN

It has a heart—your heart. For a Baldwin becomes a part of you, as you play it, as you listen. Through its ivory fingers—and your own—flows an intimate understanding, a warm and mutual responsiveness. Yes, it's your heart in the Baldwin. Yours and the hearts of the craftsmen, with generations of music behind them, who spend two patient years fashioning each Baldwin by hand. Your heart—and the hearts of such masters as Bauer, Iturbi, Lhevinne and Rosenthal, who inspire and find inspiration in this almost human instrument. Just to possess a Baldwin, to have a Baldwin as a distinguished and beloved member of your family, makes you hold your head a little higher. Yet a Baldwin is easy to own. As we will be glad to explain.

ASK ONE-THIRD CUT IN VALUE OF SURFACE LINES

City Officials Stand Pat on Franchise Demand.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

A reduction of at least one-third in the 170 million dollar property valuation of the Chicago Surface Lines as a first step in obtaining a new transit franchise from the city council is being advocated by city officials. The new valuation proposed is about 110 million dollars.

The present 170 million dollar account is the purchase price at which the city, under the 1907 ordinances, has the option to buy the system. Surface lines officials maintain that this is the figure at which the properties should be valued in drawing up a new ordinance.

May Effect Compromise.

Transit experts express the belief that a compromise somewhere between the two figures may be worked out in negotiations now under way between Mayor Kelly and surface lines representatives.

City officials, notably Mayor Kelly, insist that while the purchase price figure has been kept in proper manner as provided in the 1907 ordinances, it is far in excess of the actual value of the system today. Although the mayor has not announced the amount of reduction he is seeking, it was learned that other city officials believe a cut of at least one-third should be made.

The proponents of a big reduction declare that at least a third of the properties, while still used in the business, have reached an age and condition where they should be scrapped and new equipment substituted.

If a third of the 1907 purchase price agreed upon is deducted, it will leave a figure of approximately 113 million dollars. Some of the advocates of reduction assert this is not low enough as there is not a sufficient amount of depreciation allowed on the remaining properties.

Figures on Writedown.

There is no agreement as to the amount of depreciation which should be allowed, estimates ranging from 20 to 40 per cent.

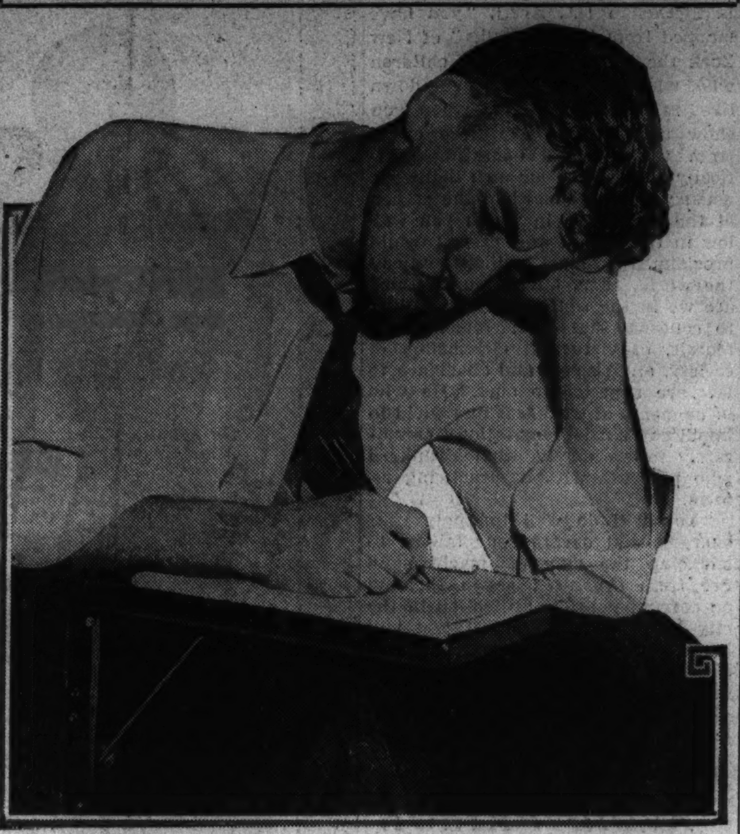
A 20 per cent allowance would bring a depreciated figure of about 91 million dollars. To this would be added the amount of cash in the system's renewal funds, almost 19 million dollars, leaving a final valuation of less than 110 million dollars.

Based on the purchase price as of last Feb. 1, a one-third writedown and a 20 per cent depreciation allowance would work out as follows:

Purchase price	$169,987,396
Scrapping one-third	56,662,465
Balance	113,324,931
20 per cent depreciation	22,664,986
Depreciated value	90,659,145
Add renewal fund cash	18,607,881
Reduced value	$109,267,026

In addition to the purchase price shown on its books, the system has more than 11 million dollars of other properties. The lines have expended $11,605,419 since 1920 from a special renewal fund for additions and improvements.

STRAINING FOR THE ANSWER



Daniel Barnes, a student in Hyde Park High school, encounters a difficult question in examination for competitors for University of Chicago scholarships.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

U. of C. Scholarships

The University of Chicago last night awarded scholarships to dozens of high school pupils who took competitive tests during the day. The scholarships were designated as full and half scholarships, worth $300 and $150, respectively. A year's tuition on the Midway is $300.

Six hundred and sixteen last year pupils from seventy-nine Chicago and suburban high schools competed. In addition, 486 students in 121 outside high schools took examinations. The results will be announced later.

Among the schools in the Chicago area, Hyde Park High led, winning four full scholarships, six half scholarships, and six honorable mentions. The top man was Thomas Brill, 17 years old, 10941 Hermosa avenue, of Morgan Park High, who made 1,218 points out of a possible 1,407. George Platzman, 7545 Yates avenue, of Hyde Park High, scored next high with 1,118 points.

PLAN RADIO PLEA IN HELEN KELLER NOTEBOOK THEFT

TOKIO, April 17.—(AP)—Police decided today to make a radio appeal to the conscience of a pickpocket who stole an address book and $57 from Helen Keller, the blind educator, at Yokohama before she came here Thursday.

Miss Keller asked authorities to redouble their efforts to find the book because it contains the names of many of her American and foreign friends. The thief will be asked to return the address book at least.

The newspaper Asahi, commenting on the theft, said: "In Japan we have a phrase, 'chivalrous robber,' but the offense against the holy American woman who brought light and hope to the world's millions of deaf, dumb, and blind is the crime of an unchivalrous robber amounting to a national shame."

Marblehead to Get Highest Spite Fence in Northeast

Marblehead, Mass., April 17.—[Special.] — Marblehead will boast the highest spite fence in New England when a barrier now being constructed for Mrs. A. Lawrence Rotch of Boston and Marblehead on her summer estate here is completed. The fence will be 45 feet high and 200 feet long. Work was begun several days ago when the Glover Inn building was moved from its old site to one adjoining the Rotch estate. Tonight the fence sheathing of tongued and grooved boards has risen to a height of 20 feet.

Brooder Lamp Starts Fire Fatal to Farmer's Wife

Mrs. Viola Wright, 52 years old, who was burned in her farmhouse near Tinley Park early yesterday, died last night in the St. Francis hospital, Blue Island. She was awakened at 5 a. m. by a fire in the kitchen, started from a lamp in the chicken brooder. Her husband, James, tried to carry the brooder out, but it fell and the burning oil from its lamp splashed and ignited Mrs. Wright's dress.

His Romance Shattered, Drinks Corrosive Poison

Despondent because the girl he loved had married another man, Edward Anderson, 28 years old, 623 Milwaukee avenue, swallowed a corrosive liquid last night. He was found unconscious in a lot at 7500 Oleander parkway and taken to the Chicago State hospital, where he was revived. He was removed to the County hospital later. Anderson told police of his shattered love affair.

IDENTIFY SHOTGUN BANDITS IN TWO OTHER ROBBERIES

Victims View Parolees and Companion.

Three shotgun bandits, two of them parolees, who were captured while robbing six persons in a fruit store at 2507 North avenue late Friday, were identified in two other holdups yesterday at the West North avenue police station.

The prisoners are William Batz, alias Paul Bautz, 24 years old, 4851 Merrimac avenue, and Arthur Murphy, alias Arthur Klein, 27 years old, who are parolees, and Raymond Martin, 20 years old, who has no previous record.

Passerby Sees Holdup.

The three men were holding up five men and a woman in the store when John Borecki, 1326 North Bell avenue, looked in and ran four blocks to the police station to give the alarm. Policemen Walter Thomas and John Minehan went to the store and overpowered the robbers.

Yesterday witnesses to a robbery earlier Friday in a fruit store at 3602 North Pulaski road [Crawford avenue] identified the three men as the shotgun bandits who took $60. The men were also identified in the robbery of a fruit store at 3751 Fullerton avenue on April 1.

Burglar and Robber.

Batz, under his alias of Bautz, was arrested on Oct. 15, 1932, for burglary. The charge was later changed to grand larceny and he was sentenced to the Pontiac reformatory for one to ten years. He was paroled last July 28.

In January, 1932, Murphy was found not guilty in the Cook county Criminal court on a charge of larceny of an automobile. A month later, under the name of Klein, he was arrested in Los Angeles. He was sent to the penitentiary at San Quentin, Cal., to serve sentences of five years to life on a robbery charge and one to ten years for grand larceny, the sentences to run consecutively. He was paroled last Nov. 4.

WOUNDS WIFE; KILLS SELF.

James Thomas, 27 years old, colored, 6641 Langley avenue, committed suicide yesterday by shooting after he had slightly wounded his wife, Sadie, 28 years old.

CLAYTON MARK ESTATE IS HELD TO BE INSOLVENT

The estate of Clayton Mark, veteran steel executive was declared to be insolvent yesterday in an inheritance tax return filed in the Lake county court by his son, Clayton Mark Jr. The estate was estimated at $550,000 when Mr. Mark's will was admitted to probate last Aug. 3.

Assets totaling $1,369,870 against debts of $1,575,790 are listed in the inheritance tax return. Eighty creditors include banks, the Reconstruction Finance corporation, several clubs, oil and milk companies, and a newspaper dealer.

Mr. Mark died on July 7 at the age of 78 in his home at 999 Lake road, Lake Forest.

MOVES TO SAVE EX-WIFE'S KILLER FROM EXECUTION

Attorney Emmett Byrne notified the state's attorney's office yesterday that he will ask the Illinois Supreme court early this week for a writ of supersedeas to stay the execution of Corydon A. Black, one of two county jail prisoners awaiting death in the electric chair.

Black was found guilty by a jury of slaying his divorced wife, Cordelia Elizabeth Black, in her apartment at 1550 West 95th street last Oct. 8. He is under sentence to die early next Friday.

The only other man now under death sentence in Cook county is Peter Krisouslas, slayer of Irving Fehlberg, assistant theater manager. His execution has been delayed several times, and he is now under an indefinite stay while his appeals are pending in the Illinois Supreme court and the United States Supreme court.

Only Norge has the Rollator Compressor—and no matter which model you buy you are sure of getting a genuine Rollator-powered refrigerator when you buy a Norge. This year's Rollator is even further improved, even more dependable, even more economical.

New Sensational Norge Low-Temp
Keeps Foods Prime Fresh 2 to 5 Times Longer

For the first time all three requirements for perfect home refrigeration are combined in one refrigerator: 1–Temperatures below 40° instead of below 50°. 2–Higher humidity to minimize loss of food moisture. 3–Current cost no greater than for ordinary electric refrigeration. Low-Temp Rollator Refrigeration also gives you much faster freezing of all ice-cube trays and practically eliminates defrosting. Get full details from your Norge dealer.

GERMAN ENVOY ASSAILS CRITICS OF NAZI IN U. S.

Luther Declares Nation Is Backing Hitler.

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—Dr. Hans Luther, retiring German ambassador to the United States, assailed American critics of Nazi Germany tonight in an unexpected speech to members of congress and newspapermen attending his annual bock beer party.

"You must accept Germany as she is," he said. "You may not like some of the things about her, but you must recognize her as a strong and unified country under the leadership of a man who has the courage and the wisdom to lift it out of a grave emergency."

Three hundred guests seated at tables in a room of the embassy decorated as a Bavarian beer garden heard the ambassador. He had risen to acknowledge a toast with the request that he be accorded "freedom of speech."

Gestures Are Emphatic.

With flushed face and emphatic gestures Luther critized writers and speakers in this country, who, he said, have sought to convey the impression that some sections of the German people are unsympathetic to the régime of Adolf Hitler.

"My chief aim during the four years I have spent in the United States has been to give your people a better understanding of mine, their homes, and their ambitions," he said. "But recently I have been made melancholy by suggestions I have read and heard of political disunion in my fatherland.

"Nothing can be farther from the truth. Germany today is a nation actuated by a single purpose, which is to recover from the fetters placed upon her by the treaty of Versailles. Germany wants to live in friendliness and amity with other nations of the world. But such a peace must be constructive peace if we are to achieve the friendly coöperation among nations which you seem so much to desire here."

Does Not Mention La Guardia.

Ambassador Luther's remarks were interpreted by some listeners as a reference to Mayor La Guardia of New York, who recently precipitated a series of diplomatic incidents between Germany and the United States by anti-Hitler statements. Luther, however, did not mention the New York mayor by name.

Shortly after the La Guardia incident, the Berlin foreign office announced that Luther would be replaced by Dr. Hans Dieckhoff, acting under secretary of foreign affairs. Dr. Dieckhoff is expected to assume his new duties shortly. No new post has been announced for Dr. Luther.

Before the ambassador's surprise speech the gathering had stood and drunk a toast to him proposed by Senator Ashurst [D., Ariz.]. Ashurst referred to him as a man who met all the definitions of the word "gentleman."

After the envoy's remarks, Ashurst rose again and said:

"Gentlemen, you have just listened to an historic speech."

Maysie Greig, Novelist, Divorces Briton in Reno

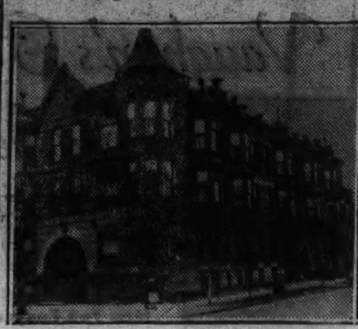
Landlord Retaliates

(Story in adjoining column.)



Building containing 15 apartments at northwest corner of Potomac and Oakley avenues where landlord turned off water after tenants refused to pay increased rent.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Children of families living in the building carry in water.

RENT STRIKERS CARRY WATER AND GO WITHOUT HEAT

Rent-strikers in a fifteen apartment building at 2302 Potomac avenue carried their own drinking and bath water yesterday, and went without steam heat, as the result of a dispute over an increase in rent.

A. A. Samson, 2628 Milwaukee avenue, the building manager, said he cut off the water and heat in all the apartments except the janitor's when six families, protesting increases that were to become effective May 1, withheld their April rent. He said, however, that the janitor had instructions to carry water to those who had paid their rent, and that he had promised to pay for the gas used by the paying tenants in heating their apartments.

Rents in the building now range from $20 for four rooms to $32 for six rooms.

Aerialist Works Without Net Despite Bad Fall

Among the aerialists of the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus appearing at the Chicago stadium, is Frank Sheppard, who despite a serious fall less than a year ago performs his hazardous stunts high in the air without a protective net. Sheppard, who catches a trapeze bar with his heels after a double somersault 35 feet in the air, missed during a performance in Des Moines, Ia., last year, broke both arms and both legs in the fall, and spent eight months in a hospital.

LACK OF OXYGEN IN ROOM DELAYS WEDDING AN HOUR

Clyde Binkley, 26 years old, of Nashville, Tenn., had a date with a minister last night, but almost kept one with an undertaker. Binkley, a long distance truck driver, and Miss Ethel Wahlstrom, 19 years old, 6021 Carpenter street, were to be married by the minister at 8 p. m., but at 7:30 Binkley was overcome in a room in her home when a gas heater consumed the oxygen in the room. Lieut. Tom Brown and rescue squad 9 were called, and worked quickly on the unconscious bridegroom-to-be, while the bride-to-be tearfully spurred them on. They revived Binkley. He shook his head to clear the fog, and hastened with Miss Wahlstrom to the minister, an hour late.

LITTLE WAGNER ACT BRINGS PLEA FOR GOOD FAITH

Gov. La Follette Writes to Labor and Employers.

Madison, Wis., April 17.—[Special.]—Gov. Phil La Follette sent letters today to industrialists and labor leaders throughout the state urging them to coöperate in a spirit of give and take with the labor relations board, soon to be created under the recently enacted labor disputes bill.

The letters, reminiscent of President Roosevelt's breathing spell message to industry two years ago, bore such expressions as good faith, sound progress, coöperation, and common betterment.

Explains Purpose of Law.

"Wisconsin," the governor wrote, "has a real opportunity to lead the nation toward an era of industrial peace and harmony. To this high purpose I appeal both to employers and employés to coöperate to the fullest degree in the establishment and maintenance of sound and lasting industrial harmony. It is important to have respect for the other fellow's rights as well as insistence on our own."

Purpose of the new law, La Follette said, is to provide a legal means for adjustment of industrial disagreements in a fair, orderly, and just way, and its objective is to insure the greatest possible benefits for all.

Suggestions for Curbing Power.

The little Wagner act, which creates the three member labor board, emerged from a stormy legislative course a fortnight ago and was signed by the governor last week. Pending in the legislature are two proposals to restrict or change the powers of the board, labeled by those who bitterly opposed the labor disputes bill as an expensive toy.

One proposal is to take original jurisdiction in labor disagreements from the new board and vest it in a mediation board, to be appointed by the Circuit court judge.

The other attempts once more to write into the statutes a section forbidding sitdown strikes in industries engaged in the production of agricultural or other perishable commodities.

GETTING ready for motherhood is one of the most important steps in a woman's life, and in many cases it should begin years before the event takes place. Childbirth, however lovely to contemplate, places an extra burden upon the vital organs of the body that requires the most careful preparation and care to withstand. However, despite its many inescapable hazards, most of the dangers of childbirth can be prevented. Whether they will be prevented depends largely upon the kind of advice and care the prospective mother will receive—not only at the time of delivery but all through the entire term of pregnancy.

Proper medical care should be available to every mother and the earlier it is instituted the greater the chances are of avoiding many of the dangers of childbirth.

Outstanding evidence of this fact is found in recent figures which show that for the country at large one mother out of every 175 is lost during childbirth, while in special localities, where early medical supervision prevailed, there was only one mother lost out of more than 4,000 cases. Medical science was never more fully equipped and prepared to render protective service than it is today.

But because of its high cost only the well-to-do are financially able to take full advantage of its many services.

For this reason many expectant mothers have been prevented from seeking early medical care while others delay through ignorance of the dangers involved.

Every prospective mother needs, and should have, proper medical care throughout the full term of pregnancy, as well as the services of a trained and experienced physician aided by every modern hospital and medical facility at the time of delivery. These services are now available to every prospective mother at fees which will not cause burdensome costs beyond their ability to pay.

Through organization and group practice, which has permitted a control over all medical, surgical, and hospital costs, there has been made possible a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE which provides all of the values that lie in medicine at costs well within reach of the most modest incomes. This outstanding medical effort is now in its fifth year of successful service, during which time over 100,000 patients have been examined and treated. Specially trained physicians, supported by the most modern scientific equipment, render a friendly and responsible service.

MENTAL OUTLOOK OF PERSONS ON RELIEF STUDIED

Launch Quiz to Find How Many Won't Work.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

What is the mental outlook of persons on relief?

Are they content to stay on the dole, disdaining opportunities for employment in private industry? Are they unwilling to take temporary outside jobs because they fear they cannot return later to the relief rolls? Or are they incompetent, because of lack of education and training, to hold private employment?

These questions were discussed yesterday by officials of the Illinois Emergency Relief administration and the Chicago Relief administration as they analyzed Cook county's relief load for March. There were 87,621 families on relief in the county last month.

Number on Relief Grows.

Despite some gain in private employment the number of persons on relief has increased steadily since the first of the year. There were 81,299 on the rolls in January, so the March figures represent an increase of 7.8 per cent. The figures for March, 1936, are not comparable, because the Works Progress administration had not reached its peak at that time and many relief clients had not yet been transferred to the work projects.

Of the families on relief last month 7,232 received supplemental funds from the federal WPA, 35,689 other families have one or more employable members, and the remaining 44,700 families have no employables. Leo M. Lyons, head of the Chicago relief administration, said an investigation is now under way to determine what proportion of those classed as unemployables are merely persons who refuse to work.

41 Per Cent Have Employables.

"The relief rolls for March show about 51 per cent of the families on relief have no member who could be employed," Lyons said, "and 41 per cent have employables.

"This situation must be investigated further, because we have had complaints from employers that relief clients sometimes refuse part time employment. These clients say, we are told, that they can't get back on the rolls if they take a temporary job.

"That's not true and there is no excuse for such an alibi. If a person leaves the relief rolls and has to come back within three months he can do so, being kept on relief for a month while his case is again investigated to determine if he should be completely restored to the rolls. If he has been off the rolls for more than three months he must make a new application and will be restored if it is found necessary."

Workers' Alliance Blamed.

The Illinois Workers' Alliance has been blamed by some observers for the view of many relief clients that relief is preferable to working. The alliance is composed of relief clients and WPA workers and has led radical demonstrations. The alliance, it was alleged, has contended that by forcing persons off the relief rolls, basic pay rates are cut down in private industry.

Several times in the last few years the Illinois state employment service has reported shortages in a number of occupations. Some relief clients formerly were unaware that there was such a job seeking service available to them without fees, but now all of them are required to register with the service.

"I don't think it is a valid generality that people refuse jobs because they prefer to stay on relief," Mr. Lyons said, "because the statewide standards of relief are not unduly generous.

Reasons for Nonemployment.

"There may be physical, mental, or moral reasons why many of our relief clients can't be employed. The WPA turns back some cases to us because these people can't adjust themselves to working with others on a job. We are investigating these failures of our clients to adjust themselves. It is possible some of these people may be mentally deranged because of long unemployment.

"When an employer is looking for a man to put him to work he may often choose one who is not on relief in preference to one who is. The employer figures that a man who is unemployed, but not on relief, has been out of work less time and therefore may be more efficient."

In general, Mr. Lyons said, most people on relief have not had educational advantages and would be in the unskilled trades if they were employed. Many of them are in unfavorable age brackets for employment.

COAL OFFICE ROBBED.

Thomas Franzen was robbed of $60 by two armed men yesterday in the office of the Franzen Coal company, 1921 Bryn Mawr avenue.

SCHOOL LIKE THIS ISN'T SO BAD!

Real life situations are included in advanced educational methods now used at the Benjamin Franklin grade school in Glen Ellyn. Pupils are encouraged to bring to school articles to demonstrate practical lessons. One of them brought Brownie, the dog pictured here, and now he's a regular member of the class.

MINIATURE STEAM ENGINE GOES TO REAL LIFE SCHOOL

A miniature steam engine, nicknamed Puffer Billy, stood out during the week as exhibit A in educational methods at the Benjamin Franklin grade school in Glen Ellyn. These methods embody what Mrs. Florence Kroeger, principal, calls real life situations.

Children are encouraged to bring to school useful articles that may be employed to demonstrate practical lessons. John Becker, a second grader, brought his Puffer Billy. The engine was used to play train, but it was serious play, and the children were taught all about purchasing tickets, arranging for destinations, and other situations involved in traveling.

Apples, toys and even a dog have been brought to classrooms. "We try to give our pupils real life situations to deal with," said Principal Kroeger yesterday. "They play store, make cardboard money, fix and arrange the price of goods, and buy and sell."

David Beaton Jr. Divorced by Wife in Arizona Court

Mrs. Vera L. Beaton was granted a divorce yesterday in Tucson, Ariz., from David Beaton Jr., insurance broker, of 628 Colfax avenue, Evanston, according to a dispatch. Judge William Hall approved a settlement under which Beaton agreed to pay his wife $10,000 cash and $100 a month, and to guarantee that she will continue to get $125 a month additional for twelve years. Beaton agreed to post $30,000 in securities in a Chicago bank as a guarantee.

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE LABYRINTH RADIO!
THE TONE IS SO MUCH BETTER!

No other radio development brings to the listener such lifelike beauty of tone as the Acoustical Labyrinth.

Labyrinth radio gives you the fundamental bass notes that are so important if you wish to hear the music as the composer intended you should. In ordinary radio these tones are muffled or absent—but in Labyrinth radio they are recreated in all their beauty.

Booming, blurred and rattling tones vanish. You hear only the clear, natural tones of voice and music exactly as they entered the microphone.

Listen once to Labyrinth radio and you'll agree, "There is Nothing Finer Than a Stromberg-Carlson."

PWA APPROVES $4,000,000 NEW WORK ON SEWERS

Fund Raised Through Engineering Efficiency.

The sanitary district, having saved by engineering efficiency $2,600,000 of the $58,630,000 it had received from the Public Works administration for Chicago's sewage treatment program, was given permission yesterday by the PWA to use the surplus funds in constructing $4,000,000 worth of new projects.

With the completion of this work, and other projects now under contract, 98 per cent of the big job of complying with the Supreme court's decision reducing the flow from Lake Michigan through sewage treatment plants will have been accomplished. All essential parts of the vast system will be complete by the end of next year, the deadline set by the court for the reduction of lake water diversion to 1,500 cubic feet per second.

Projects Listed.

The new work approved by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes is as follows:

1. Construction of the southwest side intercepting sewer and pumping station at Racine avenue and 39th street at a cost of $1,200,000. This project was not included in the original PWA program. Among its functions will be the pumping of storm water into the sewer system in that section of the city.

2. Construction of an intercepting sewer from the Calumet treatment plant to Blue Island, at a cost of $1,800,000, which will end the pumping of raw sewage into the Little Calumet river at Calumet-Sag channels. Officials said that completion of this interceptor would eliminate the last unintercepted section of Chicago's sewer plant. The purport of the Supreme court's decision was that no more sewage could be dumped into the Chicago river.

3. Construction of the Argo sewer at a cost of about $1,000,000. This sewer will extend from Natchez street about three miles to Argo and Summit and with its connections will include that section into the comprehensive sewer system.

4. Construction of sewer lines for about one and one-half miles from the village of Des Plaines to include the sewer system in that area. This project will end pollution of the Des Plaines river in that section.

Where Money Comes From.

The Chicagoans who obtained authority for the new construction were Lawrence J. Fenlon, principal assistant attorney for the sanitary district; Joshua D'Esposito, PWA project engineer, and Horace P. Ramey, assistant chief engineer for the district.

The sanitary district's program was made possible through a PWA allotment totaling $58,630,000, of which 30 per cent of the labor and materials was a federal grant and the remainder was a loan secured by the purchase of district bonds.

In the last three years work has been finished or placed under contract at a cost of approximately $2,600,000 less than the original estimates. In asking permission to perform the new work, this fact was brought to the attention of Administrator Ickes, and district and local WPA officials said that in addition, cash in other funds totaling $850,000 and interest and profit on government securities held by the district totaling $340,000 was available.

The boy climbed the pole Friday night and tried to open the lamp. He touched a live wire and fell, landing on the roof of a parked automobile. At the hospital his injuries were described as slight, his fall having been broken by the car roof.

START RUNWAY FOR MILE SQUARE CHICAGO AIRPORT

WPA Work Called Sign Tracks Will Soon Go.

Three hundred Works Progress administration workers have started construction of a 6,000 foot runway that will stretch diagonally across the proposed mile square Chicago airport. This was accepted yesterday in flying circles as proof of the city's confidence that the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad tracks now bisecting the area will soon be removed, permitting the needed expansion of the port.

The WPA crew worked Friday on the new landing strip that will run from a point near the Hale elemenary school at Central avenue and 63d street to Cicero avenue and 55th street.

$2,000,000 in U. S. Funds.

Walter Wright, city superintendent of parks, recreation, and aviation, said the northwest-southeast strip is part of the new WPA project which includes the transformation of the entire mile square area for airport purposes. There is $2,000,000 in federal funds available for the improvement of the tract.

"City and WPA officials are sure we will soon have access to the north half of the area," Mr. Wright said. "That is the reason we are starting the work now."

The present small field has been pronounced inadequate because the runways are too short for safe operation of large modern ships. Each of the major landing strips will be in duplicate on the new field to permit one plane to land while another is taking off in the same direction.

Agreement By Railroad.

The C. & W. I. railroad has agreed to remove its tracks if the city supplies a new right of way.

Hopes for a lake front airport were revived yesterday by United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis who is in Chicago. He said he talked to President Roosevelt about the project recently, following an explanation of the city's needs by Mayor Kelly at Washington.

"The President feels that because of the growing importance of aviation, Chicago as a great trafic center should have aid in developing its facilities," Senator Lewis said.

The proposed lake front airport would have many advantages over any field inland, according to experts. However, Secretary of the Interior Ickes has shown disapproval of the plan, and it was held up by Public Works administration engineers as involving too great an outlay for material.

Ignatius Shoen, Retired Clothier, Dies Suddenly

Ignatius Shoen, retired clothier, died suddenly last night in his home in the St. Clair hotel. He had been in the clothing business in Chicago for 30 years before retiring ten years ago. On April 8 he and his wife, Abbie, who survives, celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary. A son, Louis Shoen, also survives. Funeral services will be held in the chapel at 5206 Broadway at 11 a. m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Rosemont Park cemetery.

PROUD FATHER

BERTRAND RUSSELL.

LONDON, April 17.—(AP)—White-haired Bertrand Russell, whom sophisticates know for his unique views on sex, marital relations, how to bring up children and international affairs, was pretty proud tonight after becoming a father at the age of 64.

"I'm very pleased—very," the philosopher said at his country home after announcing the birth of a son. "The mother—[his 27 year old third wife and former secretary]—and the baby are doing extremely well."

Russell's wife was named co-respondent when the companionate marriage advocate's second wife sued him for divorce in 1934.

C. S. BLACKETT, ALASKA VETERAN, DIES AT AGE OF 75

Charles S. Blackett, 75 years old, 6676 Northwest highway, who was a United States attorney in Alaska during the gold rush days nearly four decades ago, died late Friday night in the Presbyterian hospital.

Mr. Blackett's long Alaskan career ended tragically twenty years ago, when, after surviving a boat wreck in the Yukon river, he became permanently blind as a result of paralyzed optic nerves due to cold and exposure. Despite his handicap he continued to practice law.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Mary Gretzer, Wichita, Kan., and Mrs. Margaret Stevens of Davenport, Ia., a brother, William Blackett, Atlanta, Ga., and two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Tuthill, Minneapolis, and Miss Martha Blackett, Glover, Vt. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 6754 Northwest highway. Burial will be in Acacia Park.

POLICEMAN HAS LUCKY ESCAPE IN FATAL GUN FIGHT

Teeth Stop Bullet; Slays Opponent in Dark.

Policeman Thorsten W. Doll, who shot and killed a liquor crazed opponent during a gun battle in a pitch dark basement early yesterday, was recovering last night from a bullet wound in the mouth. At first reported dangerously wounded, the policeman was found to be suffering chiefly from shock. The bullet struck him in the teeth and he apparently spat it out in the excitement of the gun fight.

Thorsten W. Doll.

The man killed was Henry Merritt, 45 years old, described by police as operator of a beer flat at 17 North Kedzie avenue. He was shot ten times during the battle, which took place in a flat building at 13 South Albany avenue after Merritt appeared there brandishing a gun. This was the home of Merritt's former sweetheart, Miss Dorothy Pickup, 20 years old. His successful rival for her affections, John Kulik, a chef, also lived there.

EXECUTE COUPLE IN GERMANY; SIX DOOMED TO DIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 17.—Christian Reichmann and Anna Bissport were executed today for murdering the latter's husband. Reichmann was 47 years old and Mrs. Bissport's age was 31.

Meanwhile six persons were sentenced to death. The People's court sentenced three to die for high treason. Neither the names of those convicted nor the details of the charges were revealed.

The others sentenced to die were Walter Garbang, Erich Kreuger, and Paul Groch. The verdicts against them climaxed a trial of fourteen communists charged with murdering a Storm Trooper in 1932. The killing occurred when communists fired through a door and window of a beer hall in a Berlin suburb. Nine defendants were sentenced to prison and two were freed.

SWALLOWS POISON; IN HOSPITAL.

John T. Malone, 37 years old, 5825 South California avenue, a mail carrier, was taken to the County hospital in serious condition yesterday after swallowing poison in his home. Relatives said he apparently took the poison in the belief that it was medicine.

Contractors Say High Wages and Increased Material Costs Hold Up Building in Chicago

REALTY MARKET IS IMPROVING, OLCOTT REPORTS

But Land Values Climb Slowly, He Says.

Marked improvement has been made during the last twelve months in the apartment house division of Chicago real estate, but land values generally are 50 per cent under the 1929 peaks and ground values in the downtown districts have not shown the resiliency during the last depression that they did in former periods of decline, George C. Olcott, publisher of the Land Values Blue book, said yesterday in his annual review of Chicago real estate.

Olcott said that a 95 per cent occupancy exists in desirable residential structures and that rents have gone up 10 to 20 per cent in the last year, although they are still under the levels of the late twenties. Increased taxes and mounting costs of decorating and repair have been among factors forcing rents upward, he said.

Operations Depend on Cost.

"Building operations depend entirely upon possiblity of deriving a profit," Olcott explained. "The cost of land is one of the principal costs of a building enterprise. It is true that residential land values are still off about 50 per cent from the 1929 peak, which should be a favorable factor for building. Should there be too rapid an advance now, however, dealers say that it would do more harm than good because it would tend to discourage building operations by adding to the cost.

"These dealers contend that to restore the building industry to its normal position it should be nursed back to health slowly and not be handicapped by having to carry additional burdens."

Increases in Some Areas.

In the more active regions of suburban towns, Olcott said, values have increased 10 to 20 per cent in the last year, although in the older and fully improved suburban sections land prices have not gone up. He said that after improvements are on the land in a suburb there is a tendency toward stabilized prices.

Discussing the downtown area, Olcott said that the difficulty in renting upper floors of old buildings has resulted in a continuance of their demolition, as evidenced by the growing number of parking lots. Tall buildings even on high priced streets continue to be in disfavor, he added, although as time passes much of the vacant space in the tall loop buildings may be expected to be absorbed.

Seek Speculative Gains.

"During previous periods of depression land values in the downtown district advanced despite declines in all other sections of the city," he said. "Downtown property was sold on a basis of a yield of 3 to 4 per cent. Thus, it is apparent that hopes of speculative increases and not immediate returns made investment in downtown property desirable. The speculative feature is absent from the present market.

"The change with respect to downtown property may be accounted for largely by the growth of the outlying centers, but the tendency is noticeable even in State street. Except for certain buildings, such as the department stores, many floors above the second in State street are untenanted. Notwithstanding the throngs of shoppers, State street land values have declined from the 1929 peak. Possibly they were too high then. Individual enterprise, foresight, and ability, such as brought profits to certain companies in State street, may not be capitalized and be called land values."

Shows Signs of Life.

Olcott pointed out that the old wholesale district west of the elevated has been showing signs of life, with land values increasing 5 to 10 per cent. He said the district was drained by merchants moving to the Merchandise mart, but lately jobbers have been taking up the vacancies.

Large purchases by the Marshall Field estate in outlying business districts have had a stimulating effect on land values, he said. The building of new stores and the rehabilitation of old ones has resulted in a revival in some areas hitherto regarded dead. Improved buying power of residents also was a factor.

Wrecking of dangerous and unsightly old buildings will be continued on the west side despite the closing for lack of funds of the demolition program sponsored by the city and the WPA, Charles A. Snyder, executive vice president of the West Central association, announced yesterday.

The first structure demolished under the West Central district's program was located at the northwest corner of Congress street and Racine avenue. A three story structure with a store on the ground floor and two flats above, it was the remaining building in a row of old residences owned by the Vienna Model Bakery company. Other buildings in the group were wrecked by the WPA.

"We have made arrangements whereby demolition work can be continued on the west side without cost to the owners in most instances," Snyder said. "Occasionally, as in the case of the building wrecked at Congress and Racine, the owner may have to pay a small fee to make up for the removal by vandals of plumbing, glass, and other valuable parts of a structure."

NORTHWESTERN LIFE TO EXPAND REALTY LOANS

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, Milwaukee, announces that its experience in the residence loan field in the Chicago district has been so successful that it is extending its loan plan and facilities to more than 60 of the larger cities in the middle west.

Limited by statute to loans not to exceed 50 per cent of value, the company has made available a mortgage pattern and interest rate commensurate with loans of that type. Quinlan & Tyson, Inc., is the Chicago representative of the insurance concern.

Celotex Corporation Leases St. Clair Building Space

Edwin J. Bowes Jr. & Co., agents for the St. Clair building, 154 East Erie street, reported yesterday that Edna R. Hanchett of their office has closed a number of leases in the St. Clair building, including the following: Celotex corporation, 3,000 square feet; Callaghan Law Book Publishing company, 2,000 square feet; Clark Milner company, 1,800 square feet, and Sacco-Raike, Inc., commercial photographers, 1,200 square feet.

Two Model Homes Built in Loop Store

Two well designed homes, one in the modern manner and one in a Tasmanian adaptation of Georgian colonial, are open for public inspection on the eighth floor of Marshall Field & Co.

Both homes have been built, decorated, and furnished by Marshall Field & Co. Officials say they expect about 300,000 persons to visit the two houses.

John Root, architect for the modern home, has carried it out in sweeping horizontal form, with the living quarters, including the bedrooms, facing the quietness of the garden area. Front and side entrances give easy access to the kitchen.

Living Room Design.

The living room has been designed with thought to flexible furniture arrangement. It is estimated that the house can be built at costs ranging from $13,000 to $14,000.

Alfred Shaw, architect for the home in the Tasmanian tradition, has employed an old world custom and kept the front of the house modest, so that the garden side may be developed and enjoyed by the family.

The Tasmanian design was derived in this manner. British colonists in Tasmania favored the Georgian design, but had no plans available from which to build residences of this type. Local architects, therefore, drew up Georgian plans from memory and the result was given the name Tasmanian Georgian.

Walls of Brick.

Its exterior walls are of salmon colored brick and the Doric wood colums in the front rest on a brick floor.

In both homes are found all the advantages of air conditioning, insulation, double glazing of windows, and a type of layout and house plan suited to any locality or any climatic extreme.

REPORTS LARGE GAIN IN HOME BUILDING LOANS

Dovenmuehle, Inc., announced yesterday that it purchased $408,800 of FHA loans, secured by fifty-five individual mortgages, during the thirty days ended April 15. Harry C. Eigelberner, secretary, said this is the second largest volume of FHA business ever transacted by any firm in this area during a like period of time.

"The most significant thing regarding this business," Eigelberner said, "was that for the first time our volume of construction loans stepped out ahead of the amount of mortgages made for refinancing purposes. We bought thirty-one construction loans totaling $232,600, against twenty-four refinancing mortgages involving a consideration of $176,200.

"If the cost of materials and labor can only be kept within reasonable bounds, we believe that the amount of new building in 1937 will exceed the highest expectations of those interested in real estate."

CUNARD LEASES NEW QUARTERS ON MICHIGAN AVE.

Cunard-White Star, Ltd., has leased the store at 32 North Michigan avenue and space on the third floor of the Michigan Boulevard building, for an undisclosed term of years.

The steamship company will move from its present quarters at 346 North Michigan early in May, according to Monro MacCloskey of Clark & Trainer, who represented all parties.

A. H. Andrews Co. Rents Champlain Building Floor

The A. H. Andrews company, manufacturers of office furniture, theater seating, and schoolroom furniture, has leased the second floor of the Champlain building at the northeast corner of Monroe street and Wabash avenue. The company, which was started in 1857 and incorporated in 1865, has had only three presidents during its corporate life. W. F. Merle, who is now the president, is the son of William F. Merle Sr., who bought the business from A. H. Andrews in 1893. Victor Bredberg of Aldis & Co., agents of the building, was broker.

Kesner Realty Trust Closes Several Business Leases

The Kesner Realty trust announces that it has closed a number of leases recently, including the following: Philart Shoes, Inc., has taken the store at 64 East Madison; Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator company has rented the seventh floor of the building at 43 East Ohio street; John G. Hardy company, New York, wholesale linens, has leased the entire second floor of the building at 404 South Wells street. T. F. Peterson was broker.

Viking Freight Company Rents West Side Building

The Viking Freight company, St. Louis, leased the former Lasham Cartage building at 1211 West Harrison street, containing 17,000 square feet, from James A. Hannah. The company operates a fleet of 156 trucks. J. J. Harrington & Co. were brokers.

PROFIT IN DOUBT, SO BUILDING IN CITY IS SLOW

Tax Burden Also Cited as Important Factor.

Wage increases which Chicago building trades unions are seeking are only one factor, and perhaps not the major one, barring a return of normal building activities in the city, several authorities on building costs declared yesterday.

Chicago now stands fifth among the cities of the country in building. Permits last year totaled approximately $19,000,000, against $366,000,000 in 1926, the peak building year in the city, and an average of a little less than $300,000,000 a year for the decade ending in 1929.

Because some of the men interviewed are now engaged in the wage scale negotiations, they asked that their names be withheld. They agreed, however, that Chicago will see no extensive revival of building, particularly of properties to be rented, until building costs drop and rents rise. At present cost and rent levels there is no prospect of profit from new structures, they said.

Cause of High Prices.

The factors producing the present high building costs are three, they said. They are:

1. High wage rates. Building trades wages in the nation are today at 87 per cent of the 1929 level, and Chicago, with New York, has always had union scales appreciably higher than those in other cities.

2. High material costs, particularly of manufactured materials such as steel. Some materials, such as sand and gravel, are still at the lowest price levels in recent years. Since materials contribute 60 per cent of the cost of the average large building, and labor is 40 per cent, a cut in material prices would do more to stimulate this type of building than a corresponding reduction in wage scales.

3. Lack of credit. Depression experience with defaulted bond issues had made it impossible for builders to borrow more than 40 or 50 per cent of the cost of a building, and at present rent scales there is no prospect of profit for any one to put up the remaining 50 or 60 per cent for the equity.

Taxes Are Discouraging.

Not only are rents too low to offer the prospect of profit on new buildings, but high taxes, reducing the net return on the property, are a factor that is discouraging building from the income standpoint. One contractor said that at present rent and tax levels, there is a doubtful prospect of meeting charges on a mortgage, let alone hope of realizing any profit to attract investment in equities.

The factors cited apply most strongly to income properties, although they have a lesser influence on home building. Because the man who builds a residence desires a home as well as to make an investment, the bulk of building today is of homes, where an income return on the investment is not sought. For this same reason, building has picked up more in suburban districts, the preferred sites for single residences, than within the city limits of Chicago.

Mrs. Alfred C. Croftan Sells Dearborn Ave. Residence

FOUR RECORDS ARE BROKEN IN KANSAS RELAYS

San Romani Beats Cunningham.

Archie San Romani.

Lawrence, Kas., April 17.—[Special.]—One intercollegiate and three meet records were broken today during the fifteenth annual Kansas relays, in which approximately 1,000 athletes competed.

In the feature event of the program Archie San Romani, Emporia Teachers' miler, defeated Glenn Cunningham in a 4:14.1 mile. San Romani swept into the lead in the second quarter of the race and successfully fought off Cunningham's efforts.

Standing out in the day of track and field events was the work of Alton Terry, Hardin-Simmons college, who set a new intercollegiate record in the javelin throw with a pitch of 229 feet 2¼ inches. The established record, also held by Terry, was 226 feet 2¾ inches.

Oldest Record Falls.

In performing his feat Terry smashed the oldest record on the Kansas relay books. The old record was established by John Kuck, Emporia Teachers' track star, in 1926 with a distance of 206 feet 6¼ inches. Hague, another Emporia Teachers' track man, bettered the 10 year old record to take second place in the event. His distance was 208 feet 10½ inches.

New meet records also were established in the high jump, shot put, and steeplechase.

In the high jump Vickory, Texas university, and Stevens of Pittsburg [Kas.] Teachers' tied for first place. Both skimmed over the bar, set at 6 feet 6⅝ inches, to better by a fraction of an inch the record set by Shaw of the University of Wisconsin. In 1930 he cleared the bar at 6 feet 6 3-16 inches.

Francis Wins Shot Put.

Sam Francis of Nebraska set the new mark in the shot put with a heave of 51 feet 6 inches. The old mark, set by Elwyn Dees of Kansas, was made in the 1935 relays. The old distance was 51 feet 3⅜ inches. Francis also won the discus toss, throwing the platter 144 feet 3¾ inches.

Tom Deckard of Indiana university set a new mark in the 3,000 meter steeplechase and also won the mile team race.

By doing the steeplechase in 9:27 Deckard broke his own record of 9:30.4, established here last year. Harold Manning, Olympic champion, ran second in the event today.

Deckard Beats Lash.

Besides his accomplishment in the steeplechase Deckard beat out Don Lash, Indiana's stellar two miler, in the mile team race. The event went to Indiana, with the two finishing in one-two order.

Indiana's mile relay team, made up of Hicks, Miller, Elliott, and Collier, took that event in 3:19.8. Kansas State was second and Northwestern third.

Dick Kearns, University of Colorado athlete, won the decathlon with a total of 6,484 points.

After taking first place in the shot-put and third place in the broad jump yesterday, Kearns finished on top in the first five events, with a score of 3,575.

Today he came back to take another first place position in the discus throw, ties for first place in the 100-meter high hurdles and the pole vault, and third place in the javelin.

Final decathlon standing:

Miami Swim Team Wins National Title

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Doris Brennan ostensibly had been just one more entrant in the women's senior swimming championships of the National Amateur Athletic union, which were concluded last night at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

She could make herself no more disturbing factor than second in the various heats of the moment up until last night's 500 yard free style championship.

Then the Yankee brunette went to work by the simple process of beating out no less than Katy Rawls, the Florida prodigy who already had been presumed to be the head gal of the meet.

The Miami Swimming club won the team title wtih 25 points with Lake Shore second with 23 and the Washington A. C. third with 22.

Shawnee Scores 11 Points.

Other teams finished as follows:

Shawnee Country club, Chicago, 11; Columbus A. C., 10; Women's Swimming association, New York, 9; Olneyville Boys' club, Providence, R. I., 8; Detroit A. C., 6; Broadwood A. C., Philadelphia, and Peoria, Ill., Country club, 5 each; Indianapolis A. C., 2, and Milwaukee A. C., 1. The remaining five points went to Miss Gestring who had no club affiliation.

The 1937 champions crowned during the four day meet are as follows:

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Claudia Eckert, Chicago.
220 YARD FREE STYLE—Virginia Hopkins, Miami Beach, Fla.
500 YARD FREE STYLE—Doris Brennan, Providence, R. I.
100 YARD BREAST STROKE—Katherine Rawls, Miami Beach, Fla.
100 YARD BACK STROKE — Dorothy Forbes, Philadelphia.
300 YARD INDIVIDUAL MEDLEY—Katherine Rawls.
HIGH BOARD DIVING—Marjorie Gestring, Los Angeles.
LOW BOARD DIVING—Arlite Smith, Chicago.
400 YARD RELAY—Washington A. C., Seattle.
300 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Washington A. C., Seattle.

Miss Brennan's victory in the 500 yard event was as surprising as the triumph of Dorothy Forbes of Philadelphia in the 100 yard back stroke. Miss Brennan, who was operating in a very rugged league, took the lead in the 500 yard event at the 12th lap and never yielded it.

Dorothy Forbes of the Broadwood A. C., Philadelphia, swam a brilliant race to gain possession of the 100 yard back stroke title relinquished by Eleanor Holm Jarrett. Miss Forbes took the lead at the 25 yard mark and just lasted to win a hairline decision from Elizabeth Kompa of New York's Women's Swimming association. The time was 1 minute 12.1 seconds. Third place went to Margie Smith of the Lake Shore A. C., Chicago.

Margie Gestring Wins.

Jean Kolinski of the Washington A. C., Seattle, Wash., was fourth, and was followed by the other two qualifiers, Helen Perry of the Ohio Swimming club, Cleveland, and Kathryn Gibbons of Pittsburgh.

The high board diving crown was awarded once more to Margie Gestring of Los Angeles, but she was pressed to the limit by Claudia Eckert of Chicago. Summaries:

500 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Doris Elizabeth Brennan, Olneyville Boy's club, Providence, R. I.; Katherine Rawls, Miami Beach, Fla., Swimming club, second; Virginia Hopkins, Miami Beach Swimming club, third; Claudia Eckert, Shawnee Country club, fourth; Harriet Vance, Peoria Country club, fifth; Halina Tomska, Detroit Athletic club, sixth. Time, 6:24.7

100 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Dorothy Forbes, Broadwood Athletic club, Philadelphia; Elizabeth Kompa, Women's Swimming association, New York, second; Margie Smith, Lake Shore A. C., Chicago, third; Jean Kolinski, Washington A. C., Seattle, fourth; Helen Perry, Ohio Swimming club, Cleveland, fifth; Kathryn Gibbons, bureau of recreation, Pittsburgh, sixth. Time, 1:12.1.

HIGH BOARD DIVING—Won by Margie Gestring, Los Angeles; Claudia Eckert, Chicago, second; Marion Mansfield, Chicago, third; Arlite Smith, Chicago, fourth. Best point total—143.56.

A two-handed card game that clicks!

Ely Culbertson introduces a new card game today in his article in the Graphic section. He calls it "Jo-Jotte." An adaptation of a game more than 200 years old, it has been designed to appeal to the American demand for a fast, exciting game suitable for two players. ALL SQUARE, AND NOW FOR DECIDING GAME THIS AFTERNOON

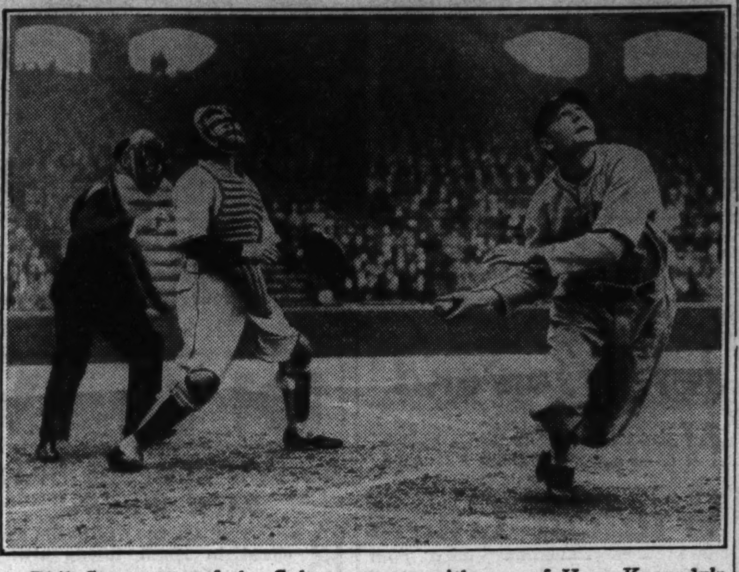
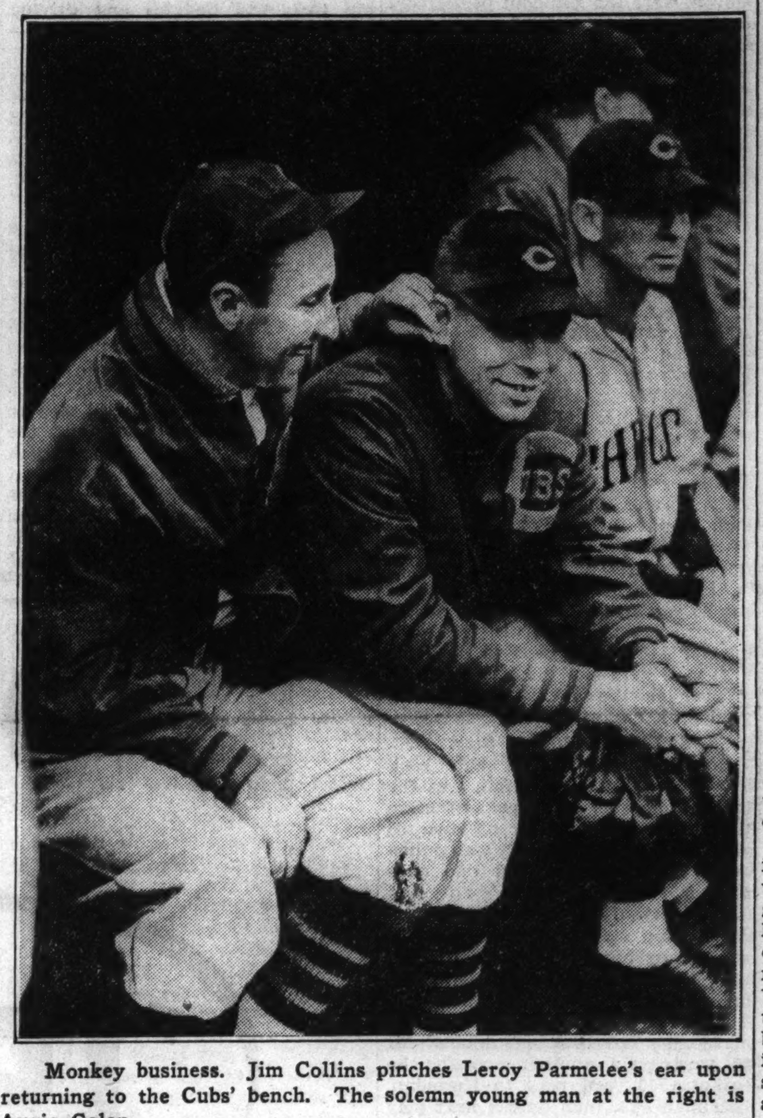
Rip Radcliff of the White Sox loses a decision at first base in the first inning of yesterday's game with the Cubs in Comiskey park. Bill Lee, the Cubs' pitcher, is tagging the base after taking a throw from Jim Collins. The Sox won, 3 to 2, and evened the city series.



Phil Cavarretta of the Cubs connects with one of Vern Kennedy's pitches and sends a harmless fly to the outfield. The Sox catcher is Merv Shea.

Joe Louis, who is to fight Jim Braddock in Comiskey park in June, chats with Gabby Hartnett. Gabby had plenty of time for conversation because Ken O'Dea did all the Cubs' catching yesterday.

Day dreaming? Here's Billy Herman, Cubs second baseman, during the north side team's turn at bat in the second inning.



Monkey business. Jim Collins pinches Leroy Parmelee's ear upon returning to the Cubs' bench. The solemn young man at the right is Augie Galan.

Red Ruffing, New York Yankee pitcher, who still is a holdout, takes in the Cubs-Sox game.

Ireland Picks Boxing Team for All-European Tourney

BY WILFRID SMITH.

DUBLIN, Ireland, April 17.—There was fighting last night in Dublin, Terry, me bye. The lord mayor with his gold chain a-dangling and Gen. Murphy, too, were there. But it was amateurs battling to see who should get to lick the English and the Europeans, not his honor nor the general fighting.

Sure, the drubbing of gloves and the hammering on benches by Galway men whin they got their backs up at the referee could be heard to the River Liffey at O'Connell's bridge. But for that divil of a whistling wind around Portobelle barracks you could have heard them fighting to Wicklow mountains.

And when the jarvies and clean shirts had done their shouting Ireland had some fine big boys for her champions. Fourteen will go to London for the bouts with the English on April 29 and the blooming English are as good as licked right now. The finest of the lot, with one country lad amongst them, will fight in the European tournament at Milan, Italy, on May 5. And a guinea will get you double that the lads will go to Chicago to give the Golden Glovers a good hiding.

An Excellent Flyweight.

James Healy from Clonmel in County Tipperary is the flyweight champion. 'Twas him, by licking Paddy Ward, that started the Galway men booing. Ward, a wild, rushing swinger, had Healy in distress in the early rounds, but Healy punched hard to finish fast. Healy, a splendid boxer, countered beautifully. He holds a decision over Willi Kaiser, Germany's Olympic flyweight champion, won in a bout at Cork in January of this year.

Paddy Connolly, who also beat Kaiser at Belfast, was named to go to London for the English bouts. Paddy fought in Chicago in 1933 with the Irish team that met the Chicago Golden Gloves team in Soldiers' field. He was called Chief Little Thunder there by a group of Indians who were appearing at A Century of Progress and upon his return Dublin boys brought a white horse to the station for him to ride down to the college green.

Kerr Much Improved.

Ernie Smith, Irish lightweight champion, is the finest of the lot. Ernie's cut eye cost him the decision in his bout with Eddie Ward in Chicago in 1933. He is much improved now, as are all the Irish boxers, who hold team victories over all international foes save Hungary. Smith, who will be 24 years old May 10, is a member of the police force attached to the depot in Phoenix park in Dublin. His ambition is to return to America for this year's international Golden Gloves bouts.

Frank Kerr, bantamweight champion, who hails from Arbour Hill, Dublin, and who also was a member of the 1933 Irish team, is another named to represent Ireland at Milan. Kerr whipped Bud Ginter in Chicago and also beat Hans Ziglarski, European champion, who was the star of the 1932 German invasion of Chicago. Last night Kerr beat Dan McAllister of Beresford for the trip to Milan. McAllister will fight in London. Kerr has improved marvelously since his appearance in Chicago. He is one of the fastest counter punchers we ever have seen and in our opinion outclasses Frank Kainrath, Chicago Golden Gloves champion.

Charles Evenden, a corporal in the fifth battalion at Collins barracks, Dublin, is the welterweight who is going to Milan. He whipped his teammate William Moore in the final. Moore, in the semi-finals, beat Tim Byrne of St. Andrews, conqueror of the English champion. Then there's Dominick Lydon of the police guard, a 196 pounder, who has a chance to go to America as the European heavyweight. He whipped Ray Kelly of Boston and Kroeger of Detroit in last year's Irish invasion.

Capacity Crowd Attends.

Lydon, fast lightweight and hard smasher, whipped Ferene Nagy at Cork last summer. Nagy was runner-up in the Olympic heavyweight division last year.

A capacity crowd of 2,000 saw the Portobello bouts.

Chicago's old friend Dick Hearns, still light heavyweight Irish champion, who did not compete in this tournament, will go to Chicago as trainer of the County Mayo football team. Hearns expects to see the international bouts in Chicago next month.

Batter Up!

Get your eye on the pitch, smack it and start running—to your nearest mail box.

But first of all, make out a check or money order payable to The Tribune Charities, Inc., for your tickets to the International bouts between the amateur boxing champions of Europe and Chicago's Golden Gloves team.

Prices are: $3.30, $2.20, $1.65 and $1.10. Mail your orders to the Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

The date of the fights in Chicago Stadium—May 28—is only a little more than a month away.

Kentucky's Racing Dream Comes True; Keeneland Opens

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., April 17.—Kentuckians and an overwhelming number of guests went to the races at new Keeneland Park, on historic Keeneland farm, here this afternoon much in the same spirit that their forefathers did a century and a quarter ago.

The original idea of horse racing, you will remember, was for one enthusiastic owner to argue with his neighbor over the comparative merits of their respective steeds. Out of that argument would always come a horse race and perhaps a bet.

Kentucky Sunshine Helps.

Instead of the mere handful of spectators who watched those earlier races, today there were 10,000 who did a pretty good job of carrying on that carefree competitive colonial spirit. A warm Kentucky sun beat down all afternoon upon the race course whose chief charm lies in its natural surroundings of undisturbed beauty.

The personal interest was there in every horse that paraded to the post. It grew to exuberant proportions when there came out upon the track numerous candidates for the Kentucky Derby. No horse track crowd was ever more critical.

The Derby candidates made no mistakes. They performed nobly. It was their first test of the year in Kentucky. The two that demonstrated great possibilities were Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Black Look and the Manhasset Stable's White Tie.

Black Look Wins.

Black Look, a brown son of Whichone-Beaming, won the Elmhurst at six furlongs. White Tie ran away from his rivals in the Faraway, which was at the same distance. Black Look's time was 1:11 3-5. White Tie skipped over the course in 1:11 2-5.

Still, to the critical Kentucky horse folk, Black Look's performance was much the more impressive. He is a smoothly made colt of considerable length and height and he is much more robust than the usual run of Whichone's get. He gave freely of his speed and showed a disposition to go on when he came from behind to win by a margin of three-quarters of a length. Not once did Jocky Sonny Workman touch him with his whip. When it was time to go to the front Workman simply clucked to the long-legged colt.

Kentuckians marvel at the improvement Black Look has made since he was a 2 year old. Last year he jumped up and down in his races and made little progress very rapidly. This year he glides along in huge ground-eating sweeping strides. Off this race he's a dangerous Derby threat.

Kentuckians didn't pay so much attention to White Tie, one of whose owners is Mrs. Charles S. Payson, a daughter of Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney. They don't believe sons of High Time can stretch themselves out far enough to win at a Derby route.

Renew Phoenix Handicap.

The 106 year old Phoenix handicap for sprinters of all ages was the big moment for everybody present. Kentucky and Indiana fought it out for high honors. Hal Price Headly, president of the Keeneland association, was represented by Preëminent and Pelerine. Tom Taggart of French Lick Springs watched his silks carried to the post by his mare Marica.

The Taggart colorbearer became the favorite with the crowd. She was forced wide when entering the stretch while Preëminent held the lead hugging the rail. Marica was steadily wearing down Preëminent in the late stages and missed getting up by three-quarters of a length.

So went the opening at Keeneland's first spring race meeting. During the heat of the battle some of the neighbors quit speaking to one another, but they were friends again tonight as the social end of the race festival got under way.

HEADLEY'S BIG MOMENTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., April 17.—[Special.]—There were two dramatic moments for Hal Price Headley, president of the Keeneland Racing association, during the running of this afternoon's program.

The first came a minute before the field was off in the Phoenix handicap. Mr. Headley, who had bought $200 worth of tickets on his horse Preeminent, to win, was standing at the rail awaiting the start of the race. He decided to have another look at

BONURA DRIVES IN WALKER WITH DECIDING TALLY

Hack Hits a Homer with One On.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Dixie Walker of Birmingham, Ala., and Zeke Bonura of New Orleans, La., yesterday afternoon ganged on Bill Lee of Plaquemine, La., with two out in the eighth inning to accomplish the run which enabled the White Sox to beat the Cubs, 3 to 2, before 11,205 in Comiskey park. The victory evened the spring city series at five games each, with the rubber game scheduled for Wrigley field at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Cubs had taken a 2 to 1 lead with two out in the fourth inning on Stan Hack's homer into the right field grand stand, a powerful sock that was good for the day's Cub production of two runs because Ken O'Dea was on first when Stan did his stuff. The Sox, whom Lee had held to three hits—doubles by Luke Appling and Tony Piet and a single by Rip Radcliff—tied the score in the seventh on a single by Appling, Piet's sacrifice, and a single by Steve Mesner.

Bonura Smashes One.

The Cubs got Demaree to third with one out in the eighth, but were snuffed out by the third Sox double play. It appeared that there might be extra inning entertainment when Radcliff opened the Sox eighth with a tap to Herman and Rosenthal was called out on strikes. Then Walker, hitless in earlier appearances, clicked a double along the right foul line. Bonura, hitless Friday and still hitless to this juncture yesterday, went up and missed two strikes, grunting vociferously. Then Zeke got hold of the pitch designed to end the inning. It went to right center as pure and unreachable a double as man ever socked. Walker pranced home with what soon proved to be the payoff run.

The Cubs' finishing power, so cheering to their adherents these last two weeks, was missing to a startling degree yesterday, excepting Hack's homer, of course. In six of the first eight innings the first Cub batsman reached base. Call it the artistry of Vern Kennedy and Monty Stratton, the Sox pitchers, or call it swooning by the Cub followup boys; the net is the same. The Cubs had no punch such as Mesner showed in the seventh and Bonura showed in the eighth, and on that basis deserved to lose.

Two Cub Errors.

The Cubs hit in every inning except the first and last. They made five hits in the second, third, and fourth innings off Kennedy, yet had to rely upon a ball hit out of the arena for all their scoring. The Sox made only seven hits off Lee, but four of these were doubles, three of which figured in run production, as did two of the three singles.

The Sox played errorless ball, and two of their three crushing double plays were rather snappy. The Cubs made two misplays, scored as errors, and Cavarretta had a throwing brainstorm not chargeable in the error column.

The first of the errors, by Lee, let in the first run of the game. The other one was a dropped foul by O'Dea, a most disconcerting foozle, though for some reason it did not blow the temperamental Mr. Lee out of the ball park.

Galan Draws a Pass.

Galan walked to start the game and got to second on Herman's tap to Kennedy. Cavarretta popped to Bonura and Collins squinted at a

ILLINOIS LOSES TO NOTRE DAME IN THIRTEENTH

Errors Prove Costly in 7 to 6 Defeat.

Champaign, Ill., April 17.—[Special.]—Notre Dame defeated Illinois, 7 to 6, in a 13 inning baseball game which lasted for three hours and 30 minutes on Illinois field this afternoon. Illinois came from behind to score two runs in the ninth to tie the score at 4 to 4.

Errors were costly for the Illini in the thirteenth inning, Braddock reaching first on Callahan's error and going to second on the play. Gaglione also reached first on Callahan's error and went to second when Braddock scored. Browski was safe on Boudreau's error and then stole second. Puplis went out, but Johnny Moir singled and scored Gaglione and Browski. The following two Notre Dame batsmen were out easily.

Illinois threatened again to tie the score in their half of the thirteenth and succeeded in shoving over two runs, but Conley, who batted for McConnell, struck out to end the game.

MAROONS, 7; IOWA, 6.

Bill Gillerlain's long drive, after two outs and two strikes in the last of the ninth inning, gave the University of Chicago a 7 to 6 victory over Iowa at Greenwood field yesterday. Gillerlain's hit drove home Catcher Bob Shipway, Maroon captain, who had walked and stolen second.

Three times during the game the Maroons went ahead, only to have Iowa rally. The outcome evened the two game series, the Hawkeyes having beaten Chicago, 8 to 1, Friday.

Iowa tied the score for the third time in the ninth at 6 to 6. Boompa doubled, Manush singled and went to second on Bernard's error, and Haltom walked. Amundsen replaced Lawson on the mound for Chicago. Bisenus singled, Manush scored, and Haltom was out at the plate, Shipway to Gillerlain. Gillerlain's winning hit for Chicago was scored off Gosser, Iowa captain. It hit the fence in left center. Score:

RUSHING THE FOOTBALL SEASON FOR A GAIN

Don Heap, captain elect of the Northwestern football team, gets away for a long gain in yesterday's intra squad game in Dyche stadium. More than 50 players who were divided into four teams participated in the game, the first of three to be played during the spring practice session. Bernie Jefferson and Heap were outstanding. They scored three touchdowns and set the stage for two others.

Jefferson and Heap Star in Wildcat Game

Capt. Elect Don Heap and Bernie Jefferson, regular half backs on Northwestern's 1936 championship eleven, were the standout performers in yesterday's intrasquad spring practice game at Dyche stadium.

Over 50 players, divided into four teams, saw action in the game, which was the first of three intrasquad contests to be played this spring. Each of the four teams had an equal number of letter men. Nearly two-thirds of the Wildcat squad this spring is composed of freshmen.

Score Three Touchdowns.

Playing on the White team, Heap and Jefferson scored three touchdowns between them and set the stage for two others. Two freshmen—George McGurn, full back, of Evanston and Nick Conteas, quarter back of Waukegan—completed the White back field. McGurn scored two touchdowns on short plunges.

Shortly after the start of the game Heap tossed a 30 yard pass to Bob Daly, former Evanston High school end, to put the ball on the 25 yard line. Jefferson broke through center on the next play for a touchdown.

After the next kickoff, Jefferson ran 40 yards to the 5 yard line where McGurn plunged over. In the third quarter Jefferson passed to Heap for a 20 yard gain and the latter carried it over on the next play on a 15 yard dash off tackle.

Swisher Is Purple Star.

Bob Swisher, veteran half back who was ineligible last fall, was the Purple eleven's principal offensive threat. Swisher reeled off two 35 yard touchdown runs and was pulled down on the three yard line once after a 40 yard sprint.

Jack Ryan, a freshman, son of Jack Ryan, former Wisconsin coach, showed by his running and passing that he will be a strong candidate for a regular back field job next fall. Playing left half on the Gold jersied eleven, he ran back one kickoff for 80 yards. On another occasion he threw a 30 yard pass to Hermann, freshman end, then on the next play caught a lateral which was good for a 25 yard gain. Iggy Mesec, reserve back last year, put the ball over on a 20 yard run through center.

RADIX AWARD IS DISCONTINUED AT P. G. A.'S REQUEST

Association Substitutes Vardon Trophy.

Harry E. Radix, donor of the Radix cup awarded the professional golfer with the lowest scoring average of the year, announced last night he had been notified of the abandonment of the trophy by the Professional Golfers' association.

Radix, former president of the Chicago District Golf association, said he received a letter from the P. G. A. president, George R. Jacobus, informing him the association will continue to compile yearly scoring records and will itself purchase and award to the low average player what will be known as the "Harry Vardon Memorial trophy."

Guldahl Holds Trophy.

Jacobus said the P. G. A. tournament committee "has gone on record as appreciating your interest in and coöperation given the playing professionals and wishes you to know it is making the change because it feels it is proper and for the best interests of the organization."

Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis, is the present holder of the Radix cup, having succeeded Paul Runyan, the 1935 winner. The award was made to Guldahl after a controversy which grew from the fact he was not a member of the P. G. A. at the time. A final ruling was based on the fact the cup had been donated as an award to the "professional golfer," without other qualification.

Radix Is Willing.

Frank Walsh, Chicago member of the P. G. A. tournament committee, said the announcement came as a surprise to him. Radix had no comment other than the action relieved him "of a growing embarrassment due to the award being drawn into association politics."

WISCONSIN WILL STOCK HEAVILY WITH MUSKIES

Plan to Plant 20 Million This Season.

BY BOB BECKER.

Here's good news for the muskalunge fishermen. Wisconsin expects to plant 20,000,000 young muskies, both fry and fingerlings during 1937. Last year Wisconsin planted nearly 7,000,000 muskies making a total of approximately 20,000,000 of these fish placed in Wisconsin waters in the last five years.

The greatly expanded program of muskie propagation in Wisconsin is interesting not only because of the immensity of the operation, but also because it provides facilities for planting a constantly increasing number of fingerlings 6 to 10 inches in length.

Solve Feeding Problem.

One of the big problems in raising fingerlings has been teaching how to feed them so they won't eat each other. This apparently has been solved. According to B. C. Webster, superintendent of the fisheries division of the Wisconsin conservation department, "there is nothing a young muskie likes to eat so well as a young muskie."

Having solved the problem of feeding little muskies until they are large enough to put in lakes, Wisconsin is now building the largest rearing pond ever constructed in this country. It is located on Little Tamarack river, northwest of Eagle River, Wis. The pond will be 100 yards wide and three quarters of a mile long. This pool will be ready this summer to receive several million fry-sized muskies.

Plan Additional Hatchery.

While the hatching of muskalunge in the past has been concentrated in the two state hatcheries at Woodruff and in Island Lake, in Rusk county, it is planned to establish at least one additional hatchery this spring at Clam lake in Iron county.

It has been found that under normal conditions muskies will reach a legal length of 30 inches in about 5 years. Naturally the millions of muskies planted in the last few years will not be big enough to catch for several seasons.

BROWNS UNLEASH POWER TO CRUSH CARDINALS, 17-5

P. Dean, Weiland Victims in City Series Opener.

St. Louis, Mo., April 17.—(AP)—Pounding Paul Dean and Bob Weiland unmercifully, the St. Louis Browns turned the first of a two game city series with the Cardinals into a rout today, winning 17 to 5.

The Browns probably shattered Dean's hopes for a comeback, their unrelenting attack collecting 7 runs during the one and two-thirds innings he was in the box. Weiland was so ineffective the Browns scored 9 more runs. Mike Ryba and Lon Warneke also saw service.

Harland Clift, Brown's third baseman, took slugging honors for the day, getting two homers and a double. Johnny Mize, Cards' first sacker, also collected a home run.

GIANTS, 6; INDIANS, 1.

New York, April 17.—(AP)—Dick Bartell banged out two homers and Rookie Johnny McCarthy hit one today as the Giants opened their season at the Polo grounds with a 6 to 1 exhibition victory over the Cleveland Indians.

While Hal Schumacher and Freddy Fitzsimmons divided the Giants' hurling assignment, limiting the Indians to six hits, their team mates belted Earl Whitehill freely until he was taken out with the bases loaded in the eighth. Willis Hudlin pulled out of the hole and finished up.

Julius Solters of Cleveland slides safely into second base and Shortstop Dick Bartell of the New York Giants can do little about it.

The Giants' big inning came in the fourth, when they shoved four runs over, two of them on Bartell's first home run with a mate on base.

Hall and Sabin teamed late in the day to take over the men's doubles title with an extra set victory over Martin Buxby of Miami and Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore. Scores were 2-6, 9-7, 8-6, 6-2.

WHY IS A MANAGER WORTH $25,000?

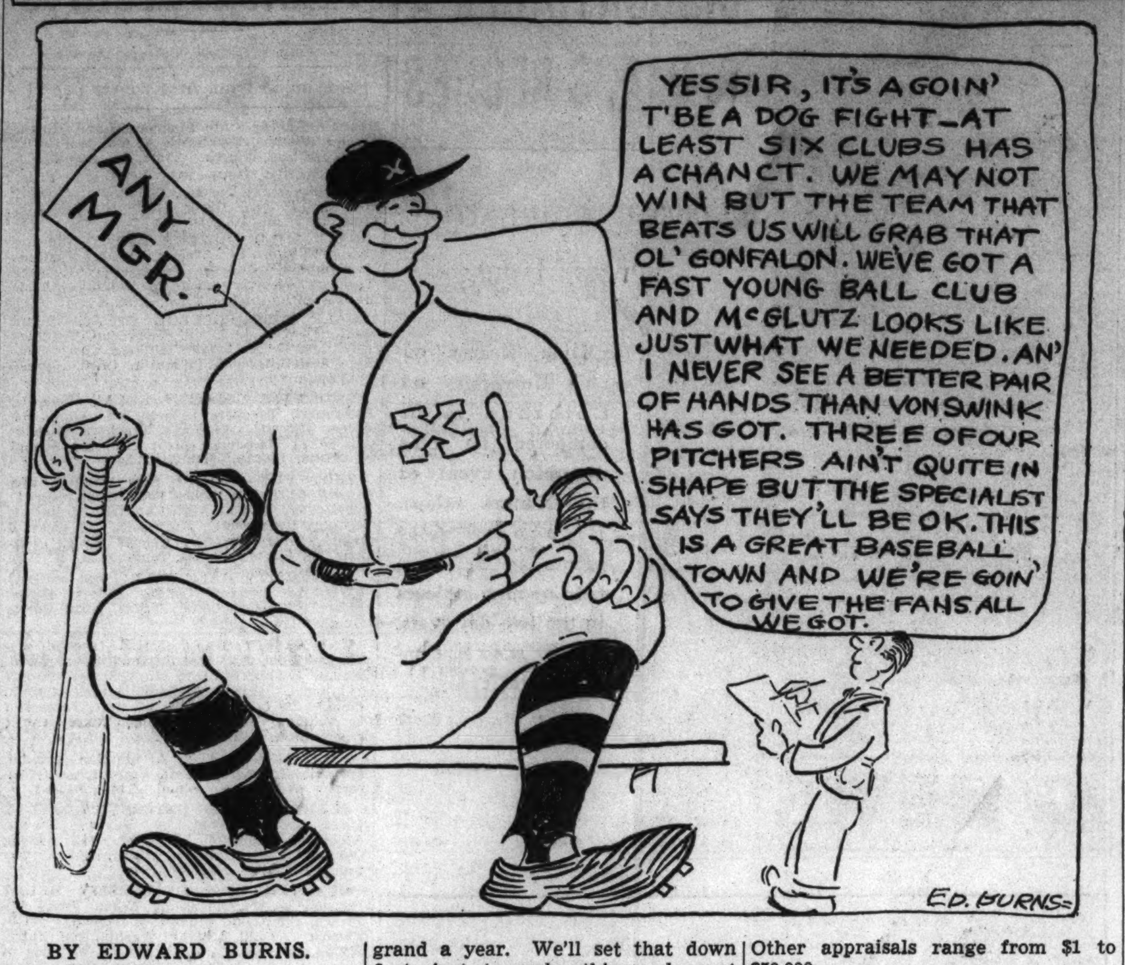
HIS WORK ISN'T ALL ON THE FIELD!



ANY MGR.
YES SIR, IT'S A GOIN' T'BE A DOG FIGHT—AT LEAST SIX CLUBS HAS A CHANCT. WE MAY NOT WIN BUT THE TEAM THAT BEATS US WILL GRAB THAT OL' GONFALON. WE'VE GOT A FAST YOUNG BALL CLUB AND McGLUTZ LOOKS LIKE JUST WHAT WE NEEDED. AN' I NEVER SEE A BETTER PAIR OF HANDS THAN VON SWINK HAS GOT. THREE OF OUR PITCHERS AIN'T QUITE IN SHAPE BUT THE SPECIALIST SAYS THEY'LL BE OK. THIS IS A GREAT BASEBALL TOWN AND WE'RE GOIN' TO GIVE THE FANS ALL WE GOT.
ED. BURNS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

A BASEBALL man's salary, whether he be vice president, manager, player, or bat boy, is his own affair. That is, his affair, along with the little woman's and the several tax collectors!

Right now, however, with eight teams in each major league possessed of an equal mathematical chance to win the pennant and with hotel brawling in bad odor, it seems a good time to delve into salary matters without engendering an undue amount of ruckus.

We purpose to state a major league manager's hypothetical salary and break it up into items showing roughly, but not too roughly, just for what and why a manager is paid the aggregate sum he gets each annum.

Let's Take $25,000; Some Get More—or Less.

We will say that Manager Exhibit A gets $25,000 a year. We know positively that some managers get considerably more than that amount and we are pretty sure that some get less, like Casey Stengel, for instance. Casey has no place in this diagnosis, anyhow. As has been printed frequently Casey in 1937 will get $15,000 for not managing the Brooklyn Dodgers. It, therefore, should be apparent that breaking down Casey's salary into items would be folly in that it would serve no purpose whatsoever.

Well, we had our typical, though hardly average manager, getting 25 grand a year. We'll set that down first, just to make things clear at the outset, then follow with the breakdown:

Total salary	$25,000
*For knowledge of baseball other than physical mechanics of same	2,500
†For compeling personality and radiant leadership	2,500
‡For making wrong guesses on pitchers look like right guesses by blaming umpire	4,000
§For coddling fans, luncheon clubs, autograph seekers, radio announcers, sports writers, club officials, and owner's relatives	8,000
¶For miscellaneous worrying, clubhouse bellowing, willynilly fuming at rival managers, also private hissing of radio broadcasters, and photographers, and announcing how manager is building for next year	5,000
‖For making assorted announcements, such as predicting until May 15 that his team will finish one-two and picking his league to win world series after his own team sprawls on its face	2,975
£For handling indigent experts and broken down ball players with consummate kindliness and benevolence	25

*This is based upon club owner's estimate at time of contract signing. Other appraisals range from $1 to $50,000.

†Coaches who are dependent upon the managers for their jobs and are not covetous of the managership themselves place much higher estimates on this item, especially when chatting with the boss at the supper table.

‡This may be done verbally if the manager has a strong voice which will reach to the owner's box. If the fans are to be impressed wild gesticulations are more effective.

§A guy ought to get $25,000 for this item alone.

¶The average manager can toss off this one without half trying.

‖The big wire news services make this soft touch for any manager. All he has to do is fill in questionnaires.

£We never should have put this down, for it can be deducted from a manager's income tax.

Same Speeches in Spring—and Reversed in Fall.

We know some of the major managers real well and are on chatting terms with all the rest of them. And mostly they are all alike, only Frankie Frisch, for instance, can scream louder with the naked voice than Connie Mack could over a public address layout.

But they all make about the same speeches in the spring and they all make the same kind of revised speeches in the fall. And in between they worry and worry and worry and cry and cry. And, gad, how they love it!

MILLS LOOK AT ROOKIES TODAY IN TWO GAMES

An intra-club double-header this afternoon and possibly games with the University of Chicago, Northwestern, and Wheaton college during the week will conclude the Chicago Mills semi-pro club's preparations for the official opening of the season against the American Giants at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, on May 2.

Manager William G. Harley of the semi-pros will have another look at aspiring youngsters during the two games at the west side park this afternoon and subsequently will name lineups which may face the collegiate squads. Harley has conferred with Baseball Coaches Fred Walker of Wheaton, Kyle Anderson of the Maroons, and Burt Ingwersen of the Wildcats.

Olson Is Field Captain.

Harley also announced that Elmer Olson, veteran semi-pro catcher, will serve as field captain for the second successive year. Olson and Jim [Hippo] Vaughn, 46 year old southpaw pitcher, will assist Harley in selecting outstanding youngsters for regular positions during the summer.

Among the pitchers who will see action this afternoon is John [Lefty] Sullivan, former member of the Mills who pitched for a Racine, Wis., team last year. Three youngsters, Ray Kimball, Lefty Irwin, and Pete Beam, also will pitch.

Games with Coals Called Off.

The Mills were scheduled to meet the Spencer Coals in a double-header at Mills stadium next Sunday, but the games have been called off. If Harley is unsuccessful in obtaining another semi-pro outfit, there probably will be another intra-club contest.

HUSKIES SWEEP 3 CREW RACES WITH CALIFORNIA

Oakland, Cal., April 17.—(AP)—The University of Washington made a clean sweep today in its 34th annual regatta with the University of California, winning all three crew races by wide margins. The Husky varsity, rowing smoothly, wore down the California varsity and finished three and a half lengths in front in 14:55 1-5. California was timed in 15:14.

The Washington juniors, showing better time than their seniors, flashed the three mile course in 14:49 to defeat the Bear juniors by ten lengths.

The Husky freshmen established a new record for their two mile race, defeating the Bear freshmen by two lengths in 9:41½.

Cain, Dietrich, Shoun Pitch Today---Then It's Farewell

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

After a battle at Wrigley field this afternoon the Sox and Cubs will part company until next fall unless one of them should sneak into the world series. The Sox pitchers for the finale of the eleven game spring series will be Merritt [Sugar] Cain and Bill Dietrich. Clyde Shoun will start for the Cubs and go the limit unless the Sox head him in a different direction.

* * *

The Cubs yesterday purchased Catcher John Charles Bottarini from their cousin team, the Los Angeles Angels, and also called in Pitcher Newall Kimball from the same team. The purchase of Bottarini is the tip-off on the physical state of old Gabby Hartnett. Gabby has been complaining about his throwing arm. Kimball, who belonged to the Cubs at the time, won 16 and lost 7 for the Tulsa team.

* * *

J. Louis Comiskey, the Sox owner, had all sorts of surprises for the baseball writers. The press room which Comiskey reserves for the scribes was dolled up with new chrome plated indirect lights and a "fourth estate" neon sign.

* * *

Jack Hayes, the Sox second baseman, couldn't perform. He jammed his right thumb against a Cub base runner in Friday's affair. He may be able to go back to work today and certainly will be in trim for the season's opener at St. Louis on Tuesday.

* * *

Bill Dietrich originally was slated to finish for Kennedy yesterday but developed stomach trouble during the morning. Italo Chelini, the southpaw, also joined the cripples. He was ordered to bed under suspicion that he was coming down with flu.

* * *

After Mesner had driven home the tying run for the Sox and gone to second on the throw to the plate in the seventh, the Cubs tried to nip him off second, but the kid sneaked back to the bag and while so doing, gave Shortstop Jurges a tap on the nose. Jurges withdrew for examination, Frey taking his place. The damage was only a cut.

* * *

Jimmy Dykes, the Sox boss, will be back on third base today if his cold improves. He also intends to be at his old station on opening day.

* * *

The Sox will leave over the Wabash tomorrow noon for St. Louis. All of them will attend the St. Louis club's banquet that evening. Dykes will have to talk at the party and also go on the air in the nation-wide hookup of baseball notables.

* * *

When Galan slid into second on his hit to short left in the fifth Umpire Beans Reardon was so interested in the play that he fell between the runner and Piet, who was looking for somebody to tag. His only choice was to tag the stumbling umpire and that didn't count.

* * *

Charles [Red] Ruffing was among the spectators. The big fellow belongs to the Yankees, but isn't with them because they refuse to get serious about his salary demands.

* * *

Curt Davis, who has a catch in his pitching arm, worked out with his Cub mates before the game. When he'll be ready to pitch is a question for which Manager Grimm hasn't the answer.

* * *

Coach Bill Webb of the Sox had a neck misery for a week, but refuses to abandon his duties, which call for keeping count on such of his own runners as flit past third base.

* * *

Vernon Kennedy, the Sox ace, and his missus are keeping house in their trailer truck at 75th street and the lake. He's taken a lease for the summer on an electric light plug and a city water connection.

FARR GETS OFFER FROM JOHNSTON TO FIGHT PASTOR

New York, April 17.—(AP)—James J. Johnston, Madison Square Garden promoter, today cabled an offer to Ted Broadribb, manager of Tommy Farr, for a New York bout late in June or July between Farr, conqueror of Max Baer, and Bob Pastor of New York.

Johnston originally had offered Farr, who holds the British empire heavyweight title, bouts with Pastor or John Henry Lewis, the light heavyweight champion. Broadribb replied that he was not interested in a match with Lewis.

DETROIT RALLIES TWICE TO DEFEAT CINCINNATI, 9 TO 8

Greenberg Helps Cause with Home Run.

Dayton, O., April 17.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers staged two big rallies in as many innings today and came from behind to defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 9 to 8, in the third game of an exhibition series.

Making his first start since he was injured in an auto accident in Florida, March 27, Al Hollingsworth held Mickey Cochrane's men to six hits in four innings, while the Reds were lacing young Jakey Wade for four runs.

Mooty replaced Hollingsworth in the fifth and yielded but one blow, Greenberg smashing a home run to score Gehringer. Earlier, two walks and a pair of doubles accounted for three tallies.

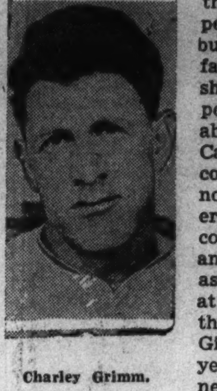
Cubs Picked in Close Race; Yankees' Path Is Wide Open

Pirates and Cardinals Will Make Chicago Fight Throughout.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Pittsburgh should win the 1937 National league pennant. But like Cleveland in the American league, something always happens to Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh failing, St. Louis, should win the pennant but probably because the Cardinals are too cocky and have not enough pitchers, even if you count Dizzy Dean and Lon Warneke as being in there at their very best, they'll slip. The Giants won last year on a sort of negative basis. The rest of the league was that bad. They hardly can expect such coöperation from the other teams this year.



Charley Grimm.

So that leaves the pennant to the Cubs. The Cubs last year were favorites to repeat their 1935 triumph. A few more professional guessers picked the Cards than the number who picked the Cubs. But the Cubs themselves unanimously were agreed that the Cubs were going to win the pennant. Moreover they got smug about the proposition. And that was the main reason they lost.

Cub Outfield Problem Solved.

Going to spring training on March 7, we would have hesitated to pick the Cubs for the first division. They seemed in a fair way to start the season with the most unskilled outfield in the league, with one or two exceptions. With the surprising development of Phil Cavarretta and the revival of Augie Galan upon being moved back to left field, and the continued effectiveness of Frank Demaree in right, the outfield was the first problem solved by Manager Grimm.

It has been generally conceded that there is no better pair around second base than Bill Jurges and Bill Herman. Rip Collins is a fine fielder and a power hitter, so there is no speculating on Rip. He's sure to improve the first base position, which has been weak ever since Grimm started to slip four years ago. Stan Hack never dogs it but he's always played much better when he had somebody challenging him for his third base job. For a time it seemed that Linus Frey had taken the job. But Frey couldn't stand the competition and Stan now has his job back.

Cubs Count on Great Gabby.

Gabby Hartnett's presence, of course, is essential to any Cub pennant dreams. Even so the Cubs won in 1929 without Gabby. Ken O'Dea seems to have learned to throw a little bit and if he gets so he can be counted upon to halt base thieves, he will become an able understudy if something does happen to the great Gabby.

Two weeks ago we asked Manager Grimm to privately rate the teams as to their finish. He now has changed his mind so we are privileged to print his former confidential rating. He placed the Pirates first, the Cardinals second, Cubs third, Giants fourth, the Reds fifth.

Grimm now places his own team the first and the Pirates third. Otherwise he rates the first five teams as he did two weeks ago.

We do not always agree with the Cub skipper, and rated his team first before we had heard of his change of mind. We place the Cards as high as second for four reasons—J. Dean, L. Warneke, J. Medwick, and J. Martin. Power potentialties—P. Waner and Arky Vaughan between them have held the league batting championship for the last three years, and there are numerous other sockers—win the Pirates a high mark despite an uncertain pitching staf. You've got to guess the Giants in the first division as long as Carl Hubbell is on the team, though he can't win all the 93 to 100 victories they'll have to achieve to win the pennant.

Reds Rated for Fifth Place.

We string with Grimm's selection of the Reds for fifth place and the dark horse of the entire league. But we are inclined to think the Reds are getting a little too chesty and we've seen what happens to their particular brand of chestiness. They may not be as much of a factor in the race as they now imagine.

Brooklyn has as good a chance as the Reds in kicking up trouble to our way of thinking. If the Dodgers go along with Manager Burleigh Grimes' gruff temperament without getting pouty, the Brooklyns may have a good year.

Reports from the spring camps indicate that the Boston Bees have an excellent chance to supplant the Phillies in the cellar. So we pick the Phils seventh and the Bees last.

Six teams may be out and in and in and out of the first division this year. But when it's all over—Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, New York, Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, and Boston.

American League's Setup Much Like That of 1936.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Who is going to catch the Yankees? Will the Yankees, present world champions, by the way, catch themselves by unforeseen happenings? These are the paramount questions in the minds of seven American league managers on the eve of the 1937 pennant frolic. The eighth manager involved has no reason to worry except for professional purposes. He is Joe McCarthy, who leads the Yankees.

Joe McCarthy.

The Yankees ran off with the American league's offering to the public last season. They were nineteen and one-half games ahead at the finish. They followed this performance with a one-sided triumph over the best the National league could dig up for the world series. The Yankees will do it again, at least in the pennant race, unless slowed down by injuries, and even mishaps, because the Yankees have excellent replacements, will have to be numerous to keep them from leading the field to the finish line.

Competition About the Same.

A more convincing way in which to argue the possibilities of the Yankees is to consider the competition with which they will contend. It will be about the same as it was a year ago. If there is any improvement it will be limited. The Tigers, if Hank Greenberg and Mickey Cochrane play, should be a bit better. If Bob Feller produces what is expected of him merely because he fanned a lot of guys in a few games last season, the Cleveland Indians will be slightly more formidable. But neither, at the best, has the class of the Yankees either on the field or on paper.

Here and there will be found a peep that Chicago's own White Sox and the Washington Senators are going to be contenders. Such thoughts are founded only on the positions held by the two teams at the end of last season. The Sox were third only a half game behind the Tigers. The Senators were fourth by a slim margin. But while their respective perches at the finish were lofty they were not even within rifle shot of the Yankees. The Senators will not be any better because their pitching remains weak. If the Sox show greater strength it will be only because of what Fred [Dixie] Walker, the ex-Yankee, can add to the outfield.

Indians Will Fight for Second.

The Indians, if Feller comes through, should be able to make a fight for second place. Earl Whitehill, the veteran southpaw obtained in trade from Washington, also should help by the same proportion Washington will miss his services.

The Boston Red Sox, a nondescript assortment collected as the result of Owner Tom Yawkey's misguided expenditures, don't figure to do anything. The team doesn't have more than a couple of pitchers, both at the stage where they are hanging on by their wits. A couple of other positions are weak. Unless a lot of bad luck is spread around in about four other teams the Red Sox will have to make the top of the second division their goal and they will have to apply themselves to get there.

Sox Entitled to High Rating.

If paper strength means anything the White Sox are entitled to just as high a rating as any of the teams outside the Yankees. Manager Dykes has a quantity of pitchers even without counting his problem boy, Johnny Whitehead, who has much ability, but more of an appetite. The team can hit. It has a fine combination around second base as long as Jack Hayes, a frail fellow, can stay in there to assist Luke Appling. It has good catching as long as Luke Sewell can dodge injury. Its outfield with Radcliff, Rosenthal, and Walker, or Kreevich for Rosenthal when the enemy pitching is left handed, is well balanced as to hitting and defensive work.

Where the Chicago entry may develop a weakness is at third. Rookie Steve Mesner, unless a miracle takes place, is out of consideration, so Dykes must go back to the job that he had hoped to entrust to younger hands. When Dykes is at third the Sox undoubtedly are better than when he isn't there.

The St. Louis Browns and Philadelphia Athletics will be in the race, but not at the front end of it. Connie Mack has little on which he can rely except the cellar floor. The Browns are slightly better. The dynamic Rogers Hornsby has a few pitchers who might produce for him occasionally. He'll have a little hitting strength and some speed.

WHITE SOX BEAT CUBS, 3-2; HACK HITS HOME RUN

third strike. Radcliff, Rosenthal and Walker made the latter half of the inning as mild as the opening half.

The Cubs' second inning produced the first hit of the contest. After Kennedy had tossed out Demaree, O'Dea beat out a single to Bonura, but Hack lined to Bonura, who stepped on first to double O'Dea.

The Sox went ahead on an unearned run in the second inning. After Bonura had flied to Galan, Appling drove a double to right center. Piet tapped one along the first base line and Lee picked up the ball in ample time for the out, but he threw the ball four feet to Collins' right, Appling scoring and Piet pulling up at first. Mesner then hit into a double play, Herman to Collins.

Sox Make Double Play.

Jurges and Lee got the third inning under way with singles, but Galan and Lee went down in a double play. Herman walked but Cavarretta bounced to Bonura. Shea, Kennedy, and Radcliff went out in order in the Sox third.

Collins got the productive Cub fourth started with a single to center, but was promptly forced by Demaree and Demaree was forced by O'Dea. Hack then socked his homer over the right field scoreboard, scoring behind O'Dea. Appling threw out Jurges. Rosenthal, Walker, and Bonura supplied easy outs in the Sox fourth.

Collins opened the sixth with a single and advanced on Demaree's sacrifice. O'Dea walked, but Hack flied to Radcliff and Jurges flied to Walker.

With one out in the fifth Galan doubled to left off Stratton and reached third on Herman's fly to Walker. Then Cavarretta bounced to Piet. After Appling had grounded out at the start of the Sox fifth Piet doubled through Hack for the second Sox hit. Mesner walked, but Resna flied to Demaree and Stratton flied to Cavarretta.

Radcliff opened the Sox sixth with a single to left and Rosenthal walked. Walker, attempting to sacrifice, forced Radcliff at third, Lee to Hack. Bonura hit into a double play, Jurges to Herman to Collins.

Galan singled with one down in the Cub seventh, but Herman and Cavarretta couldn't get the ball out of the infield.

Sox Tie Score.

The Sox tied the score in the last of the seventh in this manner: Appling singled to right and advanced on Piet's sacrifice. Mesner then singled to center, scoring Appling, and when Cavarretta had a brainstorm and threw to the plate Mesner sneaked to second. Mesner knocked out Jurges with a butt on the nose when Lee tried to trap Steve off base. Jurges retired and Frey went in. Resna and Stratton grounded out.

Collins got on base as a leadoff batsman the third straight time when he walked at the start of the eighth. He was forced at second on Demaree's attempted sacrifice. O'Dea singled, Demaree reaching third. Hack then batted into the third Sox double play, Piet to Appling to Bonura. Then came the Walker-Bonura victory act after two were out in the eighth. Frey, Stainback, and Galan were soft touches in the ninth.

JOE DI MAGGIO IMPROVES AFTER TONSILECTOMY

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Joe Di Maggio, young Yankee outfielder who was operated on yesterday at Lennox Hill hospital for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids, today showed steady improvement. He was able to take some food.

Di Maggio is expected to leave the hospital Monday or Tuesday. He is expected to be out of action for at least three weeks.

The operation, performed in an attempt to correct a shoulder pain, must be followed by the extraction of an infected tooth.

Last season Di Maggio missed the opening of the season in his first year as a Yankee. A badly burned right ankle kept him idle for seventeen days on that occasion.

ST. HILARY CARD ADDS TO WEEK'S FIGHT INTEREST

Golden Gloves Stars Will Fight on Program.

Louis Angelucci.

This week's boxing and wrestling schedule will be augmented by the fourth annual amateur boxing show sponsored by St. Hilary parish at the church hall, 5735 North Fairfield avenue, Wednesday night.

Eight contests will be held between some of the best boxers to compete in this year's Golden Gloves tournaments.

Verne Patterson and Louis Angelucci, rivals in the welterweight finals at the Stadium last month, will appear in the two featured bouts. Verne, who became the 1937 title holder by virtue of his victory over the representative of the 124th Field Artillery armory, will be opposed by Clifton Foy, aggressive Savoy athletic club fighter. Angelucci's antagonist will be John Lewandowski, strong Catholic Youth organization boxer.

Other shows on the calendar include those at Marigold Gardens and White City tomorrow, Rainbo Fronton, Lyceum hall and Corpus Christi auditorium Wednesday, and Majestic arena and Rainbo Fronton Friday.

Tommy Howell, former Danville, Ill., sectional Golden Gloves king, is paired with Frankie Sagilio, hard hitting Cicero battler, in an eight round scrap at Marigold. An eight round co-feature matches Art Oliver, 1936 American Olympic Golden Gloves heavyweight monarch, and Bernie Bowman, tubby west sider. Alex Kettles, heavyweight prospect, who whipped Harold Ullmer in impressive fashion in a previous encounter out north recently, clashes with James Clanton in a four round supporting bout.

Billiard Title Meet Ends in Four Way Tie

New York, April 17.—(AP)—Jimmy Caras, defending champion, from Wilmington, Del., threw the world pocket billiard title tournament into a four-way tie tonight, forcing it into extra playoffs, by defeating Ralph Greenleaf, former titleholder, 125 to 107, in the final scheduled match.

The victory, achieved in 22 innings, left him, Greenleaf, Andy Ponzi of New York, and Irving Crane, Rochester youngster, tied for the lead, each with seven victories and four defeats in 11 tournament games. These four will start playoffs for the title tomorrow night.

Crane is the only newcomer to title play. All the others have held the championship in the past, Greenleaf winning it 13 times in previous years. Ponzi was the 1935 crown holder, but went into retirement last year.

Braddock said he cut his stay in the north woods because of inclement weather and a desire to get into the boxing phase of his training schedule. He is to work out at Trafton's gymnasium tomorrow afternoon.

Classic League Bowlers Roll at Madison - Kedzie Tonight

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

The Classic league, that group of all-star bowlers which wanders about the city for its matches, will drop in at the Madison-Kedzie Arcade at 8 o'clock tonight for a series of games. Even with baseball crowding in, these tenpin topplers are showing little sign of weakening, for the Sunday night division of the league has matches listed far into May—the 23d, to be exact.

Tonight's feature pairing involves the Pabst Blue Ribbons, occupants of second place, and the Baby Ruths, who hold the No. 3 position in the standings. Both of these teams figure they have a good chance to overtake the leading Prager Beers before the long season that started on Aug. 30 is concluded.

The Pragers will oppose the Oak Leaf Motors tonight. In other matches the Monarch Beers will meet the Charles H. Webers, and the Winkler Motors will have it out with Kraft O-ke Doke.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Ave.		W.	L.	Ave.
Prager	58	35	994	Kraft	41	52	975
Pabst	57	36	1,000	Winkler	40	53	972
B. Ruth	54	39	977	Oak Leaf	35	57	950
Monarch	53	40	971	Weber	33	60	948

INDIVIDUAL AVERAGES.

Windy City League.

Members of the Windy City Major league will gather at the Windy City alleys tomorrow night to receive their prize money. Final standings show that the Mineralites won the championship by four games. The Budweisers were second and the O'Keefe Coals third. The standings:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Mineralites	63	27	Burlington	44	46
Budweiser	59	31	Strachan	43	47
O'Keefe	52	38	Soper	42	48

North End League.

Honors went to the Schamberger Schlitz five in the North End league when they hung up a 3,088 total while winning three games from Fox De Luxe at Kaadland. Hank Wester of the Waggoners topped the individuals with 696. George Miller of the Budweisers was next with 695 and Bill Zelasko of the Richter's Sausage turned in 672. This afternoon at 2 o'clock the Richters and Milfords will roll off a postponed series at the Milford alleys. Tomorrow night's schedule:

Milfords vs. Birks at the Willow at 7 o'clock; Michelobs vs. Richters at the Lincoln Square, 7; Budweisers vs. Waggoners at the Bryn Mawr, 7; Samuelsons vs. Schambergers at Harry Kaad's, 7; Stack & Ryan vs. Fox De Luxe at Kaadland, 9.

Here and There.

Prizes will be distributed to winners of the recent tournament of the Craftsmen National Bowling association at the annual meeting of the organization this afternoon in the Sherman hotel. Other business to be conducted is the election of officers and the selection of the site for next year's tournament. . . . The Johnny O'Hara Boosters set a record for the Western Recreation Junior league when they registered their fourteenth straight victory.

About the Women.

High scores marked the rolling in the West Ridge league. Outstanding in the assault upon the pins were the 620 series by Betty Kliene and Tess Morris' 615. Other good scores: Katherine Weinert, 584; Mae Ebert, 575; Hanna Murphy, 572; Lillian Jung, 560; Helen Hopper, 557; Lucille Muno, 550; Ann Weiller, 545; Emma Freitag, 535; Elsa Heding, 532; Mary Wendt, 532; Rose Boyle, 529; Laura Stellmacher, 528; Clara Geweke, 528; Marie Conrad, 521; Charlotte Erickson, 504, and Sue Hettinger, 503.

Randolph League.

While the Randolph league was disposing of a patched up schedule that included double-headers for some of the teams, the Budweisers continued their hot pace. They shot 1,096, 1,030, and 1,013, and bowled over the Wagner and Hansons in all three games. The Wagner and Hanson five also took three drubbings from the Mary Ann Breads. As a result of the second place Mineralites being idle, the Budweisers now have a five game lead. Charley Wass topped the week's scoring with 664. He was followed by George Theel, 663, who also is a member of the Budweisers.

On South Side Alleys.

Two more 700 series were shot in the Bruck Major league when Bill Harper collected 730 and Gordon Homes totaled 716. Other lofty scores: Herman Anderson, 657; Ronny Long, 643; Hank Kluge, 639; Eddie Riskowski, 637; Fred Bergaus, 636; Milo Weisner, 634; Tom Fitzgerald, 621; Nate Bell, 614; Howard Darling, 611; Bill Buckley, 608; George Maurer, 608; Frank Spencer, 607; Ray Austgen, 602.

On North Side Alleys.

Aided by a game of 1,145, the Joseph L. Gills totaled 3,010 and took two out of three games from the Budweisers in the Gold Coast Major league. Joe Sinke led the Gills with 632 and was followed by Math Kass, 624; Eddie Zajac, 606, and Oscar Knebelsberger, 602. Peter Petersen was high for the league with 658. Joe Puccinelli continues to top the individual averages with 212, three more than Zajac boasts.

WHOPPER HOLDS ON TO WIN AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Staves Off New Deal in Nose Finish.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 17.—(AP)—Whopper, Hal Price Headley's big bay, after shouldering top weight of 122 pounds, had just enough left today to stave off Araho stable's New Deal at the finish and win the mile and a sixteenth Philadelphia handicap.

After Whopper had set the pace all the way, Jocky Eddie Smith rushed New Deal up and in the stretch went with the leader near the finish. Whopper, under the strong urging of Harry Richards, put every ounce he had into the contest and nosed ahead at the wire.

White Cockade Is Third.

Townsend B. Martin's White Cockade, second to Whopper in the weights with 115 pounds, came in third, a length behind New Deal. J. W. Y. Martin's Dark Hope, an aged gelding, was the best of the other three.

W. J. Hirsch's filly Columbiana, winner of the $50,000 Widener challenge cup in Florida, disappointed betters who backed her into favoritism and wound up fifth.

Whopper's time of 1:45 3-5 was only ordinary for the fast track. He was not rushed especially until the field turned into the stretch.

Whopper Pays $10.10.

His prize money amounted to $6,400 and his mutuel payoff was $10.10 on $2 tickets to win, $6 to place, and $4.40 to show.

Attendance and betting both set records for the 1937 Maryland season to date. A turnout of upwards of 25,000 was on hand for the seven races and the mutuel handle was estimated to be in the neighborhood of $600,000.

None of the 20 or more Kentucky Derby or Preakness candidates quartered here got into action today. Several may get tests in minor purse races next week, and on next Saturday will come the $10,000 added Chesapeake stakes, one of the chief pre-Derby contests. It will be a mile and a sixteenth and among the eligibles are Glen Riddle farm's War Admiral, Foxcatcher farm's Fairy Hill, and Walter M. Jeffords' Matey.

INHALE WINS AT JAMAICA

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—John Hay Whitney uncovered a fast juvenile before 20,000 at Jamaica today, when his Inhale led from end to end of The Youthful to click off the best time made in years. Inhale ran within two-fifths of a second of Outline's five furlong track record, one of the best marks in the record books. Inhale's time was :59 flat. It equaled Ariel's record for The Youthful.

The bay filly swept through the stretch to score by eight lengths after leading almost from the break.

Gilbert Steadies Inhale.

Johnny Gilbert was steadying Inhale all through the last quarter or he might have won by a bigger margin and perhaps cracked the track record. As it was, Family Friend, the favorite, drove hard to be second by a length over Gayset. Silvador was fourth, while Yes Siree, Ed Sullivan, Maesak, and Great Union finished as named.

If the betting is any indication, the performance was unexpected. Opening at 5 to 1, the Whitney filly went up in the betting to 6 to 1 and ruled steady at that figure. She had 116 pounds to carry.

The Youthful grossed $5,400, of which $4,225 went to the owner of the winner.

The break was a good one when it came, Inhale and Family Friend striding away together with the others in a close bunch behind them. Soon Inhale shook off Family Friend. Then she left them all.

Inhale Coasts Home.

Rounding the bend toward the top of the stretch Gayset made his move. He forged up strongly, but was unable to overtake Family Friend. By this time Inhale was around the last corner and heading down the final straightaway. She never slackened pace and coasted home just about as she pleased.

The day was full of surprises. Jocky Eddie Litzenberger scored a double with Maemute and Fight Talk. The former took the first race at 9 to 2, with the favorite Harriet R., eleventh in a field of eleven. Fight Talk was an 8 to 1 shot when he won the fifth.

PITTS' TRACK TEAM DEFEATS TEMPLE, 72-63

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 17.—(AP)—Johnny Woodruff, middle distance runner, and Ken Ryden, hurdler star, set the pace for the University of Pittsburgh track team to win a 72 to 63 victory over Temple today in Pitt stadium.

Five meet records were broken and another was tied. Pitt accounted for three of the new marks and the tied record. Woodruff, Ryden, and Harold [Red] Tost were the Panthers' record makers.

Al Threadgill, high jumper, and Karl Scott, discus thrower, turned in two records for Temple.

Individual scoring honors went to Temple's Eulace Peacock, but he failed to flash the form that had carried him to national fame as a sprinter. He won the 100 yard dash in 9.9 seconds over Spitz of Pitt.

Woodruff's time of 49.5 seconds bettered the quarter mile meet record by 4/10 of a second.

Tost won the two mile run in 9 minutes 49.6 seconds. The old record was 9 minutes 58.2 seconds.

Ryden made the high hurdles in 15 seconds flat, bettering the dual meet record of 15.1 seconds. He tied the meet record for the low hurdles in 14.6 seconds.

JUSTA PLAY, rushed to the front on the outside going to the first turn, saved ground thereafter to be taken in hand in the final 70 yards. PRETTYLASS came around horses entering the stretch to close with good courage. LETTER BOX, squeezed back at the break, worked her way to contention on the outside and closed gamely under hard riding. FREDALVA was made much use of pressing the pace of JUSTA PLAY and tired in the stretch. TIEMPO went well for a half. CAPT. JERRY was forwardly placed to the far turn, but faltered. The others were always outrun.

SIR ROSE, striking distance from the beginning, responded gamely to a drive to take a brief lead, but could not resist the winner. MERRILY ON closed willingly after being a forward factor. BRISTLE closed with a belated rush. SKYRIDE and BARN STORMER were used up contesting for the pace to the stretch turn. BLAKEEN stopped.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Claiming. Three year olds and up, nonwinners of two races since March 1. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Owner, G. H. Marlman. Trainer, K. G. Marlman. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:46. At post 1½ minutes.

BILL DONOGHUE, close to the pace of GRAND DUKE from the start, went to the inside of pacemaker to take command entering the stretch and hung on gamely under a drive. SAGE GIRL, forwardly placed throughout, rallied when called upon and was wearing down the winner at end. GRAND DUKE appeared sore going to the post, was rushed to the top at once, but faltered in the closing quarter. MASKED GAL gained steadily after the opening eighth. LADFIELD appeared sore going to the post and showed a dull effort. AROUSED stopped in the stretch.

Latter was in tight quarters at the break, was blocked while making his move in the stretch and closed with a rush when clear. DEFLATE was hard ridden throughout and tired. WESTON saved ground all the way. BABY TALK closed well. JOYRIDE and MARSON faltered.

WHOPPER, first away, saved ground going to the first turn while taking command, was rated along the backstretch and held on gamely under vigorous handling in the closing stages. NEW DEAL, steadied along while within striking distance of the leaders, rallied sharply when placed to a drive and closed with a rush to barely miss. WHITE COCKADE was away in the first flight, was forced to race on the outside and tired slightly in the closing sixteenth. DARK HOPE was closest to the pace of WHOPPER to midstretch, faltered at end. COLUMBIANA, off poorly, could not better her position at any stage. CHANCE RAY went forwardly for a half. TWO BOB and KIEVEX were not factors.

COUNT TETRARCH, under steadying restraint to the back stretch, went to the front nearing the far turn, opened a good lead, and easily held sway to the end. his mutuel betting ticket. What was his surprise to find some one else's hand in his pocket.

Mr. Headley was equal to the occasion, however, and grasped the hand tightly, holding it firmly until the police arrived.

His second big moment came when his colt Preëminent won, making Mr. Headley doubly glad he had decided to explore his pocket at the instant that he did.

Keeneland's clubhouse, although a simple stone structure on the outside, is surprisingly luxuriant within. One large room resembling nothing so much as a baronial hunting lodge stretches across the lower floor of the building. Solid oak beams and 6 foot fireplaces abound about the rambling structure. Numerous private dining rooms, a spacious cocktail lounge, and a stag bar adjoin the veranda and terrace gardens on the second floor.

Arthur B. Hancock's party was a center of great interest. It included John Hertz, chairman of the executive committee and moving spirit of Chicago's Arlington Park Jocky club; Steve Hannigan, the noted press agent; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright of Chicago, and many other notables.

King Lear, boss of the Detroit Racing association, enjoyed his usual Kentucky luck. He bet $200 on Dickerville in the first race and collected $1,380, then came along with another $200 bet on Preëminent in the Phoenix handicap and took down another $1,200.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney arrived just too late to see his Kentucky Derby candidate, Black Look, win the Elmhurst purse so impressively. He started out by plane from New York this morning. The plane was forced down at Dayton. He will remain over to see his other Derby threat, Flying Cross, run on Monday.

Col. Matt J. Winn, boss of the Kentucky Derby, and of other famous turf fixtures in Chicago and Kentucky, was one of the early arrivals and one of the last to leave. In his party were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Head.

Even though his Count Morse had failed to land in the money in the Phoenix handicap and his Derby eligible, Gosum, had made no showing in the Elmhurst purse, Warren Wright wore a very satisfied look all afternoon. He had been a member of the small group at his Calumet farm at 6 o'clock this morning which watched his Derby colt Galsum step three-quarters of a mile in 1:14 1-5. Galsum was full of run and fighting for his head all the way.

At 5 o'clock this morning Mosie Cossman of Chicago entertained a Chicago group at Idle Hour farm. His guests were permitted to see Col. Bradley's two Derby candidates, Brooklyn and Billionaire, go through their training paces. An early morning shower had left the Bradley training track in anything but good condition, so no attempt was made to demand speed from the colts.

Band Will Play New Cardinal March Friday

St. Louis, Mo., April 17.—(AP)—An official club march tune, "The March of the Cardinals," will set off the St. Louis Cardinals' celebration next Friday when they inaugurate the National league baseball season here in a game with the Chicago Cubs.

Cardinal offices announced tonight George M. Cohan, noted figure of the American stage, has composed the official march and dedicated it to the team. It will be played for the first time by the championship Musicians' post American Legion band of St. Louis.

THE METALLIC NOSE KNOWS

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

Smokers' test shows that White Owls are at least 25% easier on your breath

THE FIGHT'S OVER—but be sure it doesn't start again at home. Women have a right to complain about stale tobacco breath. Smoke the cigar that is easier on your breath. Then you can expect a real welcome home.

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Switch to Vintage White Owls and double your pleasure. Enjoy their mild fragrance and "breath-taking moments," too.

Review of the Week: Chicago: The Nation: The World:

Foreign

Spanish War.

Bilbao, loyalist Spanish seaport of the north, was virtually cut off from the rest of loyalist Spain last week by the rebel [Fascist] forces of Gen. Francisco Franco. Early in the week an effective naval blockade of the port was established by rebel warships. Neutral food ships were prevented from landing cargoes and the food situation in Bilbao was reported to be critical. Late in the week the rebels started a land drive toward Bilbao, with the key city of Durango an immediate objective. On Friday a furious battle was raging in this sector.

Government troops defending Madrid, loyalist stronghold, continued last week a determined drive to blast rebel forces from positions in the suburbs of the city. The plight of 3,000 rebels in University City, who a week ago were cut off from supplies by the loyalist advance, was reported to be grave at the end of the week.

An attempt by Gen. Franco to send reënforcements to his army on the Guadalajara front, northeast of Madrid, was halted by loyalist aircraft. Government planes bombed troop trains and roads. The planes then bombed the city of Jadaraque, rebel stronghold.

Opposing forces north of Madrid called a truce Friday to permit burying the dead of both sides. Hostilities were suspended for several hours.

The most effective activity by rebel aircraft during the week was a bombing raid on the loyalist port of Culera, just below the French border on the Mediterranean. Rebel headquarters reported many persons were killed and much property destroyed in the raid.

Yesterday the rebel armies pressing on Durango and Bilbao were reported to be meeting stiff resistance from the Basque defenders. [See main news section.]

Armed Neutrality.

Great Britain had the spotlight last week in the Spanish war neutrality situation. Several British food ships, prevented from landing their cargoes at Bilbao by the rebel blockade, asked in vain for a convoy of British warships. The tacit recognition of the blockade by the British government was immediately denounced in parliament. It was feared that attempts to run the blockade would cause a new neutrality relapse. [See main news section.]

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin refused, however, to alter the announcement that no protection would be given to ships inside the three mile limit at Bilbao. On Friday Liberals and Laborites in parliament heckled Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary.

A change of attitude by Premier Mussolini of Italy on the question of recalling Italian "volunteers" fighting with the Spanish rebels was indicated last week. In London Ambassador Dino Grandi said Italy would be willing to discuss withdrawal of volunteers.

Six Americans arrested recently by French authorities on a charge of attempting to enter Spain to fight with the government army were sentenced to one month in jail last week at Perpignan, France.

Carol and Nicholas.

A political tempest developed last week in Rumania when King Carol summarily expelled his brother, Prince Nicholas, from the royal family because he refused to give up his commoner wife, the former Helen Dumitriscu.

A chorus of protests arose from subjects loyal to Nicholas. They pointed out, bitterly, that King Carol himself once gave up his throne for Mme. Magda Lupescu, his Jewish mistress. Early today Nicholas repudiated a political move to fight back at his brother. [See main news section.]

Hitler vs. Pope.

Realmleader Adolf Hitler's German Nazi government last week sent a vigorous reply to the Vatican at Rome in denial of the recent charge by Pope Pius XI. that Germany had violated the friendship treaty of 1933 between the Nazi government and the holy see. The note also warned that continued interference in Germany's internal affairs by the church would seriously hamper relations between the Vatican and the Hitler government. It was hinted that the government might cancel the friendship treaty.

Another blow against Jews in Germany was struck last week by the Hitler government. An unexplained police order prohibited all meetings of Jews for a period of 60 days except for religious worship. It was pointed out that as few as four Jews would be a gathering in the meaning of the order.

Gen. Erich Friedrich Wilhelm Ludendorff, Germany's most famous surviving world war general, was honored Thursday on the 55th anniversary of his joining the Prussian army.

Russian Navy.

Dispatches from London last week reported that the Russian soviet government had asked the United States to help build a Russian battle fleet equal to that of Japan. The basis for the report was revealed Friday in Washington. The state department was asked by two unnamed American shipbuilding concerns if the United States government would object to their selling materials and plans for battleships to the soviets. The state department replied that such a transaction would be objectionable on the ground of policy.

Fascist Defeat.

The Fascist party in Belgium suffered a crushing defeat last week when Brussels district electors chose Paul Van Zeeland as premier. The Fascist leader, Leon Degrelle, polled only a fraction of the votes cast.

Trotzky "Trial."

In Mexico City last week Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian revolutionary, defended himself before a committee of liberals against the recent Moscow charges that he had plotted to overthrow the soviet régime of Dictator Josef Stalin. The "trial" committee, headed by Dr. John Dewey, New York university philosopher, arranged the hearing to enable Trotzky to make public his side of the controversy. [See main news section.]

He branded as completely false the charges against him. In recent months a group of soviet citizens confessed in Russia that they had plotted with Trotzky to overthrow the government. Found guilty of treason they were executed.

Business

Fewer Failures.

That business is decidedly more healthy this year is emphasized in the sharp decline in commercial failures during 1937. Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported last week that insolvencies for the week ended April 8 totaled 190, compared with 215 in the same week last year. This brought total failures for 1937 to 2,530, compared with 3,041 a year earlier.

The extent to which business has put its house in order is indicated in a comparison with 1932, low point of the depression. During that year failures amounted to 31,899, an average of more than 2,600 a month and the largest in our history.

Mixed Trends.

Last week business continued to display mixed trends. Steel ingot production held steady at 91 per cent of plant capacity. Orders declined from the recent high level. Railroad freight trafic decreased 10,643 cars to 716,044 cars. This recession was greater than is usually experienced for the week. Electric power output rose 1.37 per cent to 2,176,368,000 kilowatt hours.

Settlement of strikes in the automobile industry lifted assemblies to 127,000 cars and trucks, highest for any week this year. Retail and wholesale trade held about steady on the whole. Inclement weather in many parts of the country resulted in recessions in volume of business but these were offset by gains elsewhere. Bank clearings in twenty-two principal cities rose 15 per cent for the nation and 23.5 per cent in Chicago.

Stocks and Bonds.

Stocks and bonds closed higher for the week. Commodities dropped sharply as successive waves of liquidation swept over the markets. The decline in commodities was attributed to selling by speculators who became frightened over President Roosevelt's remarks that prices were too high,

Strange

J. O. Goff of Fort Wayne, Ind., asked the Nickel Plate railroad to refund the money he paid for a one-way ticket from Latty, O., in 1903. He didn't use it.

A mongrel dog, its left foreleg crushed in an accident, was brought into a hospital in Buffalo, N. Y., to be put to death humanely. The dog licked a doctor's hand. The doctor then amputated the injured leg and made a wooden leg for the dog.

The parents of Kay Siegmund, 13 months old, of Aurora, Ill., reported the baby has a set of sixteen teeth.

Mrs. Exline Lloyd, doctor of philosophy at the University of Washington, has spent four years collecting live spiders as a hobby. She has 400 of which 75 are black widows.

Mrs. Rose Wilkes testified in court in Chicago that when she rebuked her husband for going around with another woman he tore off her clothes and threw her into a tub of ice water. She won a divorce.

Joseph Majewski joined a crowd gathered near a Chicago railroad crossing. Then he discovered that a man who had just been killed by a suburban train was his brother, Stanley.

India, vast and mysterious, is Great Britain's richest possession. It is also the most troublesome. Since 1611, when the first small English trading post was established on the Bay of Bengal, Englishmen in India have had to fight revolts. India is a conquered land but it doesn't stay conquered.

Today a British army is fighting to subdue a serious uprising of the wild tribes in the Northwest Frontier province. At the same time the civil authorities are faced with a new and widespread civil disobedience campaign led by Mohandus K. Gandhi, famous nationalist leader.

Gandhi's latest defiance of India's white rulers is a protest against the new India constitution, which gives semi-self-government to the British ruled provinces. Gandhi and his nationalists want complete independence.

The government of India is an elaborate organization. In England there is a secretary of state for India and a council of India of from eight to twelve members.

Also in England there is a high commissioner for India who acts as a sort of secretary of commerce. About every five years the king appoints a governor general or viceroy who is the crown's representative and the highest British official in India. The king also appoints governors for the various British provinces which have native legislatures. These provinces are Bengal, Assam, Bihar, Orissa, Bombay, Central Provinces, and Berar, Madras, Punjab, Sind, Northwest Frontier Province, and the United Provinces. Burma, though shown on the map as a governor's province, is now separated from India and will have a constitution of its own on similar lines to that of the provinces.

In addition to these Britain rules certain other and smaller states through appointed commissioners. The rest of India is composed of native states ruled by Indian princes with the help of British advisers. These states are independent so far as internal affairs are concerned but they may not make war or enter into foreign alliances.

The richest and most important native states are Hyderabad, Mysore, Kashmir, Baroda, Nepal, and Gwalior. Rajputana and Central India are ruled by many minor princes, closely supervised by the British.

The first organized British penetration and exploitation of India was done by the East India company, founded by Queen Elizabeth in 1600.

The purpose of the company was frankly to exploit India for profit. As colonies of English traders grew, the company gradually, and chiefly by force of arms, usurped the states of native rulers. By 1857 the company was in virtual control of all India and maintained a large army of native troops and white officers.

Then came the most serious revolt in the history of British India. The troops of the native army and wild native mobs massacred the white officers and scores of British residents in Delhi and Lucknow. The British crown stepped in, took over the government from the East India company and quelled the revolt with an army of British soldiers. India again was tranquil but it was unpacified. It never has been.

In recent years revolts, mutinies, and mass demonstrations against British rule have been numerous. A sensational incident was the massacre of 400 rebellious natives by British troops at Amritsar in 1919. Northwest tribes revolted in 1920. The Moplahs, residents of the Malabar coast of Madras, fought the British in 1921. Then in 1922 came the famous first campaign of civil disobedience led by Gandhi, who then used the title mahatma, or great soul. He recently dropped the title.

In 1924 a British army put down a revolt of Bengal natives. Since then, up to the present, there have been many minor uprisings in various provinces.

The population of India is more than 351 million persons. Of these more than 270 millions live in the British provinces. The natives are chiefly Hindus and Moslems but there are scores of tribes, religions, and languages to be found in the country.

Of the native princes one is renowned as being the richest man in the world. He is the nizam of Hyderabad. His income is said to be 50 million dollars a year. All of the native princes are fabulously wealthy.

The City

Drive on Quacks.

A new campaign to rid Chicago of medical quacks who prey on the sick was begun last week by the state department of education and registration. Fourteen men and a woman were arrested Tuesday evening on warants charging violation of the medical practice act. Four more men were arrested the next day. The defendants were arraigned before Judge Albert E. Isley, who set their bonds at approximately $1,000 each. Assistant State's Attorney Jacob Scheer was assigned to prosecute the cases.

Horner vs. Dunham.

The feud between Gov. Henry Horner and Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park board, over the pegged levy appropriation for the park district grew warmer last week. The governor has insisted that the park district needs only $7,600,000 to meet its annual operating expenses. Dunham wants a pegged levy of $9,000,000. On Monday the governor hotly denounced Dunham in a public statement.

The governor accused the park district of wasteful expenditures and sharply criticized Dunham for announcing that the park bathing beaches would be open a month late because of a lack of operating funds. Horner said that if the park board failed to open the beaches on time the state would do so. In reply Mr. Dunham said it was too bad the pegged levy question had become a personal issue. He said Gov. Horner was misinformed about park finances.

Personal Property.

Assessor John S. Clark announced last week that three Chicagoans have personal property in excess of one million dollars for tax purposes. He named E. L. Cord, automobile manufacturer; Harold F. McCormick, farm machinery magnate, and W. P. Paepke. All live in the gold coast area of the north side.

The Mordoffs.

In a widely publicized court action a year ago Dr. Gordon Mordoff of Wilmette lost the custody of Sonny Boy, his foster son. Last week Dr. Mordoff was in court again. His son, Gordon Jr., 22, was under arrest with Miss Ruth Middendorf, 19. It was charged they had been living together as man and wife in a Chicago apartment. Dr. Mordoff obtained the release of his son by putting up $25 bail. The girl remained in jail. Judge Joseph B. Hermes ordered the couple to get married. He set April 28 for a hearing of disorderly conduct charges against them.

Quin O'Brien.

Judge Donald S. McKinlay ruled in Superior court Friday that Quin O'Brien, an assistant corporation counsel, never was legally married to Miss Marguerite Eustice. This ended another phase of the famous O'Brien case. It came to public attention many weeks ago when O'Brien charged he had been kidnaped and forced to marry Miss Eustice. She denied it and said she was soon to become a mother. O'Brien then filed the annulment suit.

Labor News

Premier vs. C. I. O.

As the strike against General Motors of Canada went into its second week Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario stood firm last week in his opposition to agents of the American Committee for Industrial Organization—C. I. O.—headed by John L. Lewis. The C. I. O. has been held responsible for the recent epidemic of sitdown strikes in the automobile and other industries in the United States.

Early in the week Premier Hepburn, who had refused to confer with C. I. O. organizers, warned them that any trouble at the closed General Motors plants at Oshawa, Ont., would be promptly suppressed with armed force. At the same time he warned members of his cabinet that they would be forced to resign if they failed to support him in his refusal to allow the C. I. O. a foothold in Canada. On Wednesday he forced the resignations of David A. Croll, minister of labor, and Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck. He charged they failed to support his fight against labor agitators.

In the meantime at Oshawa negotiations between the striking members of the United Automobile Workers, a C. I. O. union, and officials of General Motors were in progress. Yesterday the peace parley collapsed. [See main news section.]

Labor Warfare.

Bullets fired from the C. I. O. offices at Galena, Kas., in the heart of a lead and zinc mining area, wounded eight men and a 15 year old boy last Sunday. They were part of a parade of independent union miners. The parade broke up in wild disorder. Shortly before the shooting independent miners had prevented a C. I. O. organization meeting at Picher, Okla., by wrecking the C. I. O. headquarters. The man or men responsible for the Galena shooting were not found. Reid Robinson, C. I. O. organizer in the district, said the C. I. O. would make no further attempts to hold organization meetings, but would continue to organize miners.

Crime

Three Executed.

Electric current switched on shortly after midnight Friday in the Cook county jail snuffed out the lives of three killers of Chicago policemen. The men executed were Stanley Murawski and Frank [Doc] Whyte, who killed Policeman Michael Toth five months ago in a west side saloon, and Joseph Schuster, who killed Policeman Arthur Sullivan three months ago to avoid arrest as a robbery suspect. All of the slayers were paroled convicts. An unruly crowd of 300 men crowded into the death chamber to witness the executions.

Love Tragedy.

A quarrel between youthful sweethearts in suburban Niles ended in a tragedy Thursday night. When Willard Schultz, 21, pleaded with his sweetheart, Dolores Tamillo, 19, to resume their engagement, another youth, Leonard Nowakowski, 17, interfered. A fist fight ensued and a call for police brought Sergt. Charles Zaleski of the Niles force to the scene in a squad car. He arrived just as Schultz was driving away in another car. The policeman pursued him into Chicago.

At 5536 Elston avenue Schultz stopped and attempted to escape on foot. Sergt. Zaleski fired a warning shot and then another which struck and killed the boy.

Mystery Shooting.

Mrs. Mary Lou Rini was shot and killed and her husband, Joseph, was critically wounded Tuesday night in their tavern at 513 St. Clair street in Chicago. On the way to a hospital Joseph said bandits had done the shooting. Police, however, searched the building and found a recently fired revolver in a narrow passageway at the rear. Later two men who said they had been in the tavern told police Rini shot and killed his wife during a quarrel and then wounded himself.

Storekeeper Slain.

Chicago police were searching last week for gunmen who shot and killed Frank Panfil, 55, in his grocery at 3756 Irving Park boulevard. On March 17 Panfil was robbed of $14 by a young woman and a man. He later identified Justine Le Blanc, 18, and James Pecones, 26, as the bandits.

Teacher on Trial.

Edward Strobel, former gymnasium teacher in a Chicago public school, went on trial last week in the Criminal court on the charge of a former girl pupil, now 16, that he had forced her into intimacies with him. Strobel denied the charge and accused the girl's parents of attempting to blackmail him. On Friday his attorney said in court that a confession made by Strobel to police had been forced from him.

Suspects Shoot G-Man.

A G-man of the federal bureau of investigation was wounded by two bank robber suspects Friday in Topeka, Kas. The suspects, identified as Gerald Lewis and Robert Suhay, shot Agent Wayne Walker and escaped from a trap laid for them in the Topeka postoffice. Later they were captured. They were questioned yesterday. [See main news section.]

Washington

Wagner Decision.

In a series of 5 to 4 decisions last Monday the United States Supreme court upheld the Wagner labor relations act, which provides for government regulation of relations between employers and employés in business and industry throughout the nation. The decisions were of great importance because the Wagner act, in the opinion of many authorities, alters the scheme of American government. It gives to the central government powers heretofore held to be strictly reserved to the states.

Because the law is a pet measure of the New Deal, the decisions had a direct bearing on the controversy in congress over President Roosevelt's plan to add six new members to the Supreme court bench. Opponents of the plan said the decisions showed the administration argument that the present court is not liberal enough to be unfounded.

The following phrase from the majority opinion in one of the decisions reveals the basis on which the majority reached its conclusions:

"Although activities may be intrastate [business activities within a single state] in character when separately considered, if they have such a close and substantial relation to interstate commerce that their control is essential or appropriate to protect that commerce from burdens and obstructions, congress cannot be denied the power to exercise that control."

In spite of the liberality of the decisions, the administration revealed during the week that there would be no halting of the plan to pack the high court. It was reported later in the week that President Roosevelt had ordered New Deal leaders in congress to press for early passage of his Supreme court bill. The measure would permit him to appoint one new member to the court for each of the six justices now more than 70 years old who fails to retire voluntarily.

Hearings for and against the measure were continued during the week by the senate judiciary committee. Judge John C. Knox of the United States District court at New York, the first federal jurist to testify before the committee was heard Tuesday. Judge Knox, a liberal Democrat, assailed the measure as anticonstitutional.

A compromise plan on the court issue was offered Thursday by Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.]. He introduced an amendment to the President's bill providing for an unconditional increase of two justices. Senate leaders said the amendment had little chance of passage.

President.

Elated at the Supreme court's Wagner act decisions, Mr. Roosevelt said on Monday, "It's a pretty good day for all of us, isn't it?" The President was busy during the week on his budget message, expected to be sent to congress this week. On Tuesday he called on all spending units of the administration to slash expenditures. It was reported Mr. Roosevelt was alarmed at the prospective deficit for the present fiscal year.

Diplomats of all the South and Central American republics were addressed by Mr. Roosevelt Wednesday at a secret conference. His talk was an informal and confidential explanation of his "good neighbor" policy in Pan-American relations. Mr. Roosevelt announced Friday that he will leave Washington on April 28 for New Orleans, La., for a two weeks' tarpon fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico.

Congress.

While the house was in an uproar of argument last week over the Gavagan anti-lynching bill, making the crime of lynching a federal offense, news reached the capital that two Negroes had been tortured and slain by a Mississippi mob. The effect of the news was passage on Wednesday of the Gavagan bill by a vote of 276 to 119. The vote was not taken, however, until irate southern representatives, traditionally opposed to anti-lynching measures, and equally vehement northern representatives had shouted themselves hoarse in debate.

An indication that New Deal leaders are becoming alarmed over the rate of government spending was given last week by Majority Leader Robinson of the senate. He blocked action on a 100 million dollar bill providing for educational aid to the states and warned that the government cannot go on spending money in new fields without increasing taxes. On several recent occasions President Roosevelt has expressed a hope that no increase in taxes will be necessary at this session of congress.

Capitol Notes.

In the opinion of the division of protocol, department of state, an American diplomat may wear silk knee breeches and silk stockings without violating the rule forbidding them to wear uniforms or costumes. As a result Ambassador to England Robert W. Bingham and James W. Gerard, representative of President Roosevelt, will wear breeches and expose their legs at the coronation May 12 of King George VI. in London. [See main news section.]

Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp of the federal food and drug administration reported last week that Americans spend 300 million dollars a year on medicines and so-called cure-alls which are worthless. The federal bureau prosecutes scores of individuals and companies each year for violation of the pure food and drugs act.

Sports

Cubs and Sox.

The Chicago Cubs took a one-game lead over the White Sox in their 1937 competition when they won the opening game of the home spring series, 9 to 8, Friday. Previous to that contest each team had won four games in that part of the series played on the road. Yesterday the Sox evened the series by winning, 3 to 2. The Cubs won three out of five games from the St. Louis Browns earlier in the week. They won, 9 to 5, on Sunday; lost, 8 to 7, Monday; won, 9 to 8, Tuesday, and 10 to 4, Wednesday, and lost, 8 to 2, Thursday. The Sox won four of five games from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Hocky Champions.

The Detroit Red Wings made hocky history when they won the Stanley cup series, 3 games to 2, from the New York Rangers. They divided the first two games, lost, 1 to 0, Sunday night; reversed that score Tuesday night, and won the decisive game, 3 to 0, Thursday night. By winning the cup after having previously won the National Hocky league championship they became the first team representing an American city in the league to win both the league championship and Stanley cup for two successive years.

Max Baer Beaten.

Max Baer, former world heavyweight boxing champion attempting to regain his prestige, was beaten in a 12 round bout with Tommy Farr, British empire champion, at Harringay arena, London, Thursday night. Baer, weighing 210½ pounds, allowed the 23 year old Welshman to gain a decided advantage in the early rounds and, though he attempted to overcome the advantage later, failed to show the form he believed he had regained. In the closing rounds Farr's superior condition became a factor and in the twelfth he had Baer covering up against the ropes. The crowd, 13,800, was the largest that has seen a bout in England during a decade.

Derby Favorite.

Louchheim's Pompoon, one of the favorites in the approaching Kentucky Derby, won his first 1937 start Thursday when he captured the Paumonok handicap, a six furlong race, the feature event of the opening day's program at the Jamaica, Long Island, track. Pompoon's time, 1 minute 11 seconds, was fast.

Tris Speaker.

Tris Speaker, former baseball star and manager, suffered a skull fracture when he fell from a second story porch at his home in Cleveland Sunday. The fall occurred when a railing against which he was leaning while fixing a porch box, gave way.

Flying

Twelve United States navy seaplanes rose in formation from the harbor at San Diego, Cal., last Monday and headed west. Twenty-one hours 25 minutes later the planes came down to water again at Pearl harbor, Honolulu. The squadron carried 78 officers and men under command of Lieutenant Commander L. A. Pope.

Maj. R. W. Schroeder, assistant director of the federal air commerce bureau, last week accepted an executive position in the operations department of United Air Lines. He will resign his federal post, which he has held four years, in midsummer. Maj. Schroeder formerly operated Sky Harbor airport north of Chicago.

◆

It was announced officially last week by the air commerce bureau that the crash of a United Air Lines plane into San Francisco bay last Feb. 9 was caused by a radio microphone, which had accidentally become dislodged, jamming the controls. Eleven persons were killed.

◆

Pilot Jack Knight, flying a new Douglas DC-3 airliner of United Air Lines, last week made a new speed record of 212 miles an hour on a nonstop flight from Cheyenne, Wyo., to the Chicago airport. Ten passengers and a crew of three were aboard.

FLEET MANEUVERS.

On Friday the United States battle fleet, composed of 111 warships under the command of Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, moved in stately array out of San Pedro harbor, Cal. It was the beginning of the annual fleet exercises, to be held this year between California and the Hawaiian Islands.

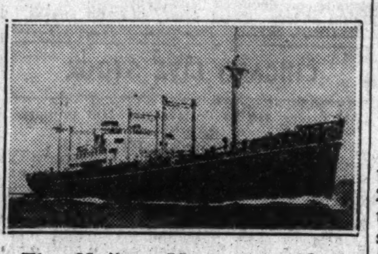
Japs Expand Shipping with Rise in Trade

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, April 17.—The secret behind the phenomenal growth of Japan's mercantile marine, third largest afloat and boasting the world's most profitable fleet of Diesel motor ships, is her booming industries and the ability of her shipyards to construct vessels comparable with the best in the world for a fraction of the cost.

Combined with this have been the extremely low wage scale of her seamen, the government's scrap-and-build subsidies, and the subsidies for operating freight routes. In exchange for every two tons in obsolete craft scrapped, the shipowners of Japan have been presented by the government with one ton in fast economical Diesel motorships since 1932.



The Nojima Maru, one of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha lines fast, Diesel powered freighters on the Japan to New York run.

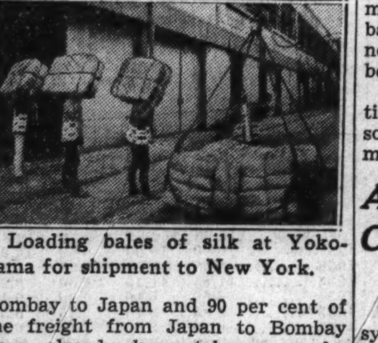
Japan's splendid fleet of motorships last year earned a much greater margin of profit than the ships of any other country. Today her merchant marine bids for business in every port of the world.

Fast Ships Subsidized.

An added impetus to Japanese shipping growth was the decision of the government last year to subsidize the building of 200,000 tons of combination passenger and freight boats with a speed of 20 knots or more, and the granting of $4,000,000 to operate freight routes.

Japanese seamen are paid the almost unbelievably low minimum wage of $15 a month and a maximum of $30. Workers in the engine room receive a minimum of $18 and a maximum of $35.

During the last few months Japanese ships have been driving many a British shipowner frantic. Eighty per cent of the freight carried from Bombay to Japan and 90 per cent of the freight from Japan to Bombay have already been taken over by Japanese ships. On other routes east of Suez the Japanese also have made tremendous inroads into British shipping.



Loading bales of silk at Yokohama for shipment to New York.

Break British Monopoly.

The British complain of Japanese encroachments, but from the Japanese standpoint it is argued that British shippers for years enjoyed almost a monopoly in the far east. Today Japan is one of the world's biggest buyers of cotton, wool, metal products, and lumber.

With the growth of her industries, Japan is able now to export goods manufactured from the raw materials she purchases from various parts of the world. Why should she not take advantage of her own mercantile fleet in moving these goods, the Japanese ask.

One of the most noteworthy events in Japanese shipping was the enforcement in 1932 of the ship improvement law, whereby the government presented shipowners with one ton in new ships for every two tons they scrapped. The idea was to replace 400,000 tons of obsolete craft with 200,000 tons of superior vessels. These were mostly fast Diesel motor ships between 5,000 and 10,000 tons.

Last year 120 ships, mostly Diesel freighters, aggregating 769,000 tons were either constructed or were under construction in Japanese shipyards. The government has recently authorized construction of two 26,000 ton passenger liners with a speed of 24 knots which it will present free to the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, largest steamship line in Japan and one of the largest in the world.

Although Japan's mercantile marine ranks third in the world, a wide gap separates it from the United States, which is second. In 1936 the tonnage possessed by the six leading nations were: Great Britain, 20,385,138; United States, 12,556,563; Japan, 4,215,690; Norway, 4,054,485; Germany, 3,718,417, and France, 3,002,455.

HUPP VOTES STOCK PLAN TO GET FUNDS, RESUME PRODUCTION

Richmond, Va., April 17.—[Special.]—Stockholders of the Hupp Motor Car corporation today approved the recapitalization plan filed by the board of directors with the Securities and Exchange commission on March 30. The new financing is expected to yield the company approximately $2,600,000 of new capital with which it will resume production of Hupp automobiles.

The plan provides for reduction in par value of capital stock from $10 to $1, and for an exchange of two shares of the old stock outstanding for one share of the new $1 par stock.

Present stockholders are also to be given the right to subscribe for one and a half shares of the new stock for each share of old stock held. The total authorized capital stock will remain at 2,000,000 shares. More than two-thirds of the outstanding stock was voted in favor of the plan.

SEC EXPULSION FAILS TO ALARM BANK DEPOSITORS

North Bergen, N. J., April 17.—[Special.]—Depositors of the North Bergen Trust company have not become generally alarmed over the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation's order canceling the bank's deposit insurance, inquiry at the institution revealed today.

Officials of the bank said that business was "going on as usual" and that they expected to continue functioning "at the same old stand." The bank has deposits of $1,200,000 and cash and liquid assets of about $700,000 along with capital funds of $185,000. Its total resources are listed at about $1,400,000.

Some withdrawals were reported today as a result of publication of the FDIC's order, but H. H. Dieckman, executive vice president of the bank said that these amounted to not more than one-half of what had been expected.

Dieckman declined to answer questions as to the nature of the "unsound loans" referred to in the statement of the FDIC.

AIR CONDITIONING CONTRACTS SHOW BIG GAIN IN 1937

The capacity of air conditioning systems contracted for in Chicago during the first quarter of 1937 established a new high record, the Commonwealth Edison company announced yesterday.

The total rose to 110 installations, with a total capacity of 5,786 horsepower, compared with 59 plants and 3,246 horsepower in the corresponding period of 1936. This was an increase of 86 per cent in number and 78 per cent in capacity.

During March 48 plants, with a capacity of 2,160 horsepower, were contracted for, compared with 20 installations and 1,506 horsepower a year ago, an increase of 140 per cent in the number of contracts and 43 per cent in total capacity.

WORLD DECLINE IN COMMODITIES COMES TO HALT

Some Staples Ease, Others Stiffen.

The sharp decline in international commodity prices on Friday was stemmed in world markets yesterday. Some staples continued to ease but support was accorded other divisions of the list, with the result that final prices were irregular.

Metal markets, both here and abroad, were dominated by the customary Saturday lull. Unofficial prices in London were a little firmer, with copper rising slightly and tin, lead and zinc unchanged. Domestic copper futures finished 0.21 to 0.28 cent a pound lower.

Producers' Prices Vary.

Two producers who lowered their price to 15½ cents a pound on Friday again quoted that figure yesterday but the Phelps Dodge corporation continued to quote 16 cents. Little business was transacted, producers seemingly awaiting developments.

No sales were reported in export copper, although the wire bar price was nominally quoted at 15.12 cents a pound. This figure does not indicate the current market price and does not reflect the recent decline.

Lead was unchanged and trading was quiet. Prices continued to be quoted at 6 cents a pound, New York, and 5.85 cents, St. Louis. Futures finished 0.10 cent lower to 0.07 cent higher. Zinc was nominally unchanged at 7 cents a pound for prime western grades at East St. Louis.

Rubber Rallies Sharply.

A sharp runup was staged in the rubber market, where futures rose 0.32 to 0.52 cent a pound. May rubber closed at 22.53 cents. Cocoa climbed 0.07 to 0.10 cent and hides eased 0.02 to 0.06 cent a pound.

All deliveries of lard fell to new low prices for the season early in the session but rallied sharply later, erasing the declines and closing 7½ to 10 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Foreign liquidation continued to depress the sugar market, where No. 4 futures sagged 0.06 to 0.08½ cent a pound. May sugar finished at 2.56 cents. Silver futures in Montreal closed unchanged to 0.10 cent lower, with the May delivery quoted at 45 cents an ounce.

U. S. to Appeal Ruling Against Social Security

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Attorney General Homer Cummings today announced that the justice department will appeal to the Supreme court for an immediate review of the decision of the First Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston holding the social security act unconstitutional.

Homer S. Cummings.

The decision against unemployment insurance and old age pensions yesterday threw New Dealers into a fever of apprehension. It was feared that the court's ruling might inspire a wave of injunctions against the collection of taxes under the act and disrupt the social security machinery. It was understood that the move to obtain immediate review was inspired by President Roosevelt after members of the board became "panicky" over the decision.

Seeks Action in Present Term.

"The government will request that the Edison Electric Illuminating company case involving the old age benefit provisions of the social security act be set down for argument at this session of the Supreme court beginning April 26," Cummings said. "This will make possible a determination of the matter prior to the adjournment of the court at the end of the present term in June. The unemployment case is not being appealed as that question is already before the Supreme court.

"The importance of the old age benefit provisions of the act, the immense number of workers and employers affected, the necessity of preparing for proper administration of the act, and the large amount of taxes involved make an early determination imperative. This will bring to the court the first case involving old age benefits."

What Court Ruled.

The court in its decision said, "The entire plan, viewed as a whole, is an attempt to do indirectly what congress cannot do directly, and to assume national control over a subject clearly within the jurisdiction of the states."

The ruling came from the same court which held against the processing taxes of the agricultural adjustment act in July, 1935. Its ruling was sustained by the Supreme court in the decision which ended the AAA. The AAA decision of the Boston court was, like its social security ruling, a 2 to 1 decision.

SEC WILL REQUEST AUTHORITY OVER REORGANIZATIONS

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—Commissioner William O. Douglas announced today the securities and exchange commission will ask congress next week for power to regulate bondholders' protective committees, reorganization proceedings, and indenture trustees.

In a speech at the American university graduate school of public affairs, he said the proposed legislation would give the commission:

"Power to prevent persons from acting in a fiduciary capacity as protective committee members if they have material conflicts of interest, or if they take unto themselves prescribed powers which history shows are oppressive and unfair.

"Power to intervene in federal reorganization proceedings and to lend assistance to courts in reporting on plans, and in acting on other matters pertaining to the administration of those estates.

"Power to condition the contents of trust indentures so that trustees acting thereunder will assume a more active rôle."

MORE BRITISH GOLD TAKEN FOR U. S. ACCOUNT

The New York reserve bank yesterday reported further heavy engagements of gold for shipment to this country. Newest engagements in England were: $5,685,000 of which $3,000,000 was taken yesterday and the remainder Friday, but reported yesterday for the first time.

The United States treasury reported an increase in its "inactive gold fund" of $2,100,000 over the preceding day, bringing the total to $467,436,000. This was the total metal imported since the treasury began its "sterilization" program early this year.

The gold price was fixed in the London market yesterday at the equivalent of $34.73 an ounce. On this basis the dollar was worth 100.68 per cent of parity.

Foreign currencies declined moderately against the dollar in New York. The pound lost a quarter cent to $4.91⅞. French francs eased .00½ point to 4.46⅞ cents.

STEEL INDUSTRY NETS 4.4 PER CENT ON INVESTMENT

New York, April 17.—(AP)—Notwithstanding the fact the steel industry had the third highest production in history in 1936, earnings brought a return of only 4.4 per cent on total invested capital, Iron Age said today. This finding was based on an analysis of earnings of 22 steel companies having combined yearly ingot capacity on Dec. 31, 1936, of 63,282,058 gross tons, or 91.4 per cent of the industry's total.

Combined net sales in 1936 of 19 companies with 89.2 per cent of the industry's capacity equaled 61,796,720 gross tons.

Gold Output Spurts on U. S. Price Boost

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, April 17.—World gold production increased 204 metric tons [a metric ton is 2,204.6 pounds] since 1934 when the United States raised the price to $35 an ounce, according to an estimate published by the league of nations today. It gives the 1936 total as 1,050 metric tons, representing definite figures for all the world except Russia and including an estimate of 200 tons for that country. The 1934 total including the estimate for Russia was 846 metric tons.

Prior to 1934 it took four years for world gold production to increase the 200 tons it gained in the last two years. World production in 1929, when the depression began, was only 608 metric tons.

Russia Has Biggest Gain.

The increase in gold output since the United States raised the price of the metal has been by far the largest in Russia, which nearly doubled its production, while United States production increased only about one-third. Russia is surpassed only by South Africa, which still has a big lead but is not increasing production nearly as rapidly.

The bulletin also gives the first figures for 1936 world trade valued in old gold dollars. Total exports were $12,189,000,000, excluding Italy and Spain. The figure was the highest since 1932, but far below in 1929.

Rise in European Trade.

Last year saw the first rise in European imports and exports since 1929, it said. France, Russia, Rumania, and Palestine were the only countries whose 1936 exports were less than in 1935, and Argentina, India, Switzerland, Portugal, and Palestine were the main ones whose imports fell.

The United States in 1936 continued the world's biggest exporter. The United Kingdom and Germany remained second and third; Canada took fourth place, passing France. Japan was sixth, only one notch higher than in 1929. The first four importers continued in order, the United Kingdom, the United States, Germany, and France. Japan was fifth, or three places higher than 1929, passing Canada, which has dropped to eighth.

115 Boats Move Into Lake Superior as Ice Breaks Up

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 17.—(AP)—Interlake navigation was in full swing today. An ice blockade at the entrance to Whitefish bay was broken. One hundred and fifteen freighters moved into Lake Superior today and many more were upbound in the Lower St. Mary's river. A south wind and moderating temperatures combined to remove the ice barrier that held 57 vessels fast off Whitefish point for two days.

WHY DID PRICES CRASH? GREAT SEARCH STARTS

Washington Seems to Be the Field.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

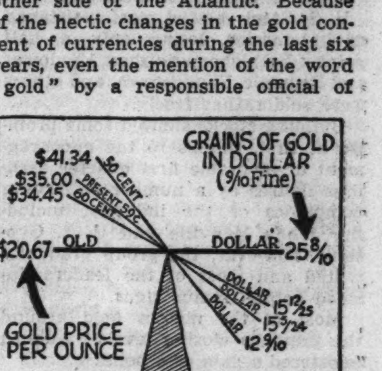
With commodity markets steadied yesterday by at least a temporary cessation of the tailspin started by the now officially denied rumor of an impending reduction in the price of gold, there was a great searching after causes by those whose profits had been shorn.

In the absence of other apparent causes it was generally agreed that the setback in the long upward swing of commodity prices had been precipitated by speechmaking in Washington. Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve board made a statement in which he warned of the dangers of "price inflation." Then he followed with a magazine article in which he pointed out that one effective way of checking a too rapid uptrend of commodity prices would be to have the government reduce the official price of gold.

President Roosevelt followed with remarks at a press conference on April 2 in which he declared that prices, especially prices of "durable" goods, were mounting too fast.

Taken Seriously Abroad.

A sudden burst of selling in American markets by European speculators indicated that these remarks had been taken very seriously on the other side of the Atlantic. Because of the hectic changes in the gold content of currencies during the last six years, even the mention of the word "gold" by a responsible official of an important nation is enough to give European investors and speculators a bad case of jitters.



This chart shows what happens when the dollar is devalued. As the number of grains of gold in the dollar are reduced the value of gold in terms of the dollar automatically rises. President Roosevelt now has the power to raise the value of the dollar to 60 cents, compared with the old parity, or to lower it to 50 cents or half of the value existing before devaluation.

As is usually the case selling begot selling and Americans followed Europeans in the rush to take profits.

Apparently alarmed by sudden break in the markets, Washington authorities began to deny the gold price reduction rumor as emphatically as possible. Secretary Morgenthau's denial proving insufficient, the President himself added his own.

Perusal of the statutes relating to gold disclose that a reduction of the price of gold—even if it were desired by the administration—might prove difficult to attain.

According to the gold purchase act of 1934, recently extended by con-

STOCKS EASIER; CLOUDED FUTURE CAUSES SELLING

Recessions Are Small in Quiet Trading.

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Growing uncertainties over future commodity values, the President's budget makeup, the labor strike situation and other influences kept selling orders dribbling into the stock market in today's abbreviated dealings. There was no particular pressure from any quarter, however, and losses in most instances were held within a point.

The usual scattering of imposing plus signs kept the score from being the unanimous affair that it has been in some recent "bear" markets. The turnover was around 444,000 shares. Brokers attributed a goodly proportion of the transactions to evening up operations invited by the recent shakeout of the list.

Early Liquidation Wanes.

Liquidation was rather pronounced in the early dealings, due partly to accumulation of overnight orders on yesterday's bad break in commodity prices. After the first fifteen minutes, however, the pace quieted down and some groups showed a disposition to brace up. The remainder of the session saw prices seesawing narrowly in rather listless fashion.

Coppers, tractions and steels seemed to bear the brunt of the selling. Anaconda, Kennecott, and Cerro de Pasco gave up about a point each, and American Smelting dropped $2 a share. International Nickel found the going rather heavy, particularly in the late dealings, and finished a point below its previous closing level.

In the traction division, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit and Manhattan Railway both dropped to new lows for the year before meeting with support.

U. S. Steel Resists Selling.

U. S. Steel showed most resistance of its division, losing only a half point. Bethlehem finished 1⅝ lower and Republic, Youngstown, and others were sold rather freely.

Building stocks showed some promise at first, thanks to the encouragment of favorable first quarter earnings figures by a number of leading companies of the industry, including Johns Manville and U. S. Gypsum. However, the group gradually wilted and most of the leaders finished behind minus signs.

Most of the motors held around the previous closing levels. Auburn registered a gain of a point.

The rails did little despite the noticeable absence of liquidation in rail shares during recent sessions.

Oils were steady. Some of the amusements looked up, among them Loews, which rose more than 2 points.

Armour was an active low priced stock, moving up for a good fractional gain.

BANKS' STOCKS RISE DESPITE LIGHT TRADING

Higher prices despite light trading marked the Chicago local bank stock market last week. Continental Illinois was the most active issue and closed $12 a share higher at $153 to $155.

An analysis by bank stock dealers indicated that the bank had net earnings of about $4,100,000, or $3.40 a common share, in the first quarter of 1937, based on the statement of March 31. In the full year of 1936 the bank earned $19,889,571, or $16.57 a common share.

First National, after opening the week at $320, rose to high sales at $340 and closed at $336 bid, $340 asked, up $16. Northern Trust rose $5 a share to $805 bid, $815 asked. Harris Trust was unchanged at $480 to $495. Merchandise Bank and Trust gained $5 at $295 to $305.

Lake Shore Trust and Savings dipped $5 at $95 bid, $105 asked. Terminal National was unchanged at $39 to $41 and Chicago Title and Trust rose $1 to $215 bid, $219 asked.

ARMOUR COMMON STOCK ADVANCES IN ACTIVE TRADE

Armour common stock advanced again on the Chicago board yesterday in reaction to an increased dividend, closing ⅜ point higher at 12. Trading in the issue was fairly active at 4,550 shares. The market as a whole was steady to lower, with trading light at 26,000 shares.

Volume on the exchange last week was 267,000 shares, compared with 367,000 in the preceding week, and 328,000 shares in the like week of last year. There were 178 issues traded, of which 98 advanced, 44 declined, and 34 remained unchanged.

COTTON

Cotton prices advanced today on trade and commission house buying induced by better than expected cables from Liverpool. Closing trades in Chicago were at net gains of .09 to .17 cent. Other markets were .11 to .19 cent a pound higher.

There were reports English banks might curb loans on commodities in order to restrict speculation. Spot cotton closed .10 to .15 cent higher with New Orleans, 13.65 cents; New York, 14.00 cents, and Galveston and Houston at 13.55 cents a pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

ALL LIVE STOCK AND MEAT RALLY LATE IN WEEK

Early Decline Reversed by Light Receipts.

Prices of all live stock and meats responded to lighter receipts at the stockyards after the middle of last week, rallying from the break precipitated by heavy selling during the fore part of the week.

The sharpest recovery was in fresh pork loins. These rose 50 cents to $1 per hundred pounds in two days. Boston butts came back up 50 cents. Pork shoulders, picnics, spare ribs and trimmings escaped the earlier break and closed unchanged.

Advances of 50 cents were registered in beef, while lamb meat advanced 50 cents to $1.50.

Hogs Close Slightly Higher.

The recovery in the hog market brought closing prices slightly above a week earlier, but the heavy volume sold at the lower rates earlier in the week held the six day average down to $9.85, a new low for the year. Better grades of hogs over 200 pounds and sows finished 5 to 15 cents higher for the week, with lighter weights up 20 to 40 cents.

The lamb market led the rise late in the week, the top soaring to $13, a new eight year April peak, with the six day average at $12.35. Closing sales showed gains of 50 to 65 cents in six days, with prices mostly $1 above the low spot of the preceding week.

High wool prices as well as the broad demand for lamb meat supported the advance. Wool sold 7 to 13 cents per pound higher than a year ago, and at the best April levels since 1929.

Cheaper Cattle Gain Most.

Beef steers and yearlings closed steady to 25 cents higher than a week ago, the cheaper grades scoring the most gains. Beef cows advanced mostly 25 cents, with some 30 to 40 cents higher. Hefers not only escaped the break early in the week but advanced along with other live stock later, closing 25 to 40 cents higher in the six days and 50 to 75 cents above the low spot of less than ten days ago.

Early losses in steers partly offset the later recovery, so that the week's steer average at $10.65 was up only 5 cents. Calves advanced 50 to 75 cents.

The high cost and scarcity of feeds on farms cut the country demand for replacement stock.

Practically all cattle and hogs yesterday were billed direct to packers. Five carloads of freshly shorn lambs sold steady at $10.85.

PRICES OF HOGS POINT HIGHER, SAYS U. S. BUREAU

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—The agriculture department predicted today that hog prices this year will average as high or higher than last year. It said short supply and high prices of corn were the major factor in the situation.

Because drouth forced early marketing of hogs last summer and fall and this spring, the bureau said slaughter supplies the rest of this season to Oct. 1 would be smaller than usual, but offsetting this would be larger storage stock. Although total supply of hog products will be larger than last year, the bureau said expected stronger consumer demand would support prices.

If the corn crop prospects are favorable this summer, the government said, marketing will be reduced by farmers keeping sows for breeding stock. This will tend to strengthen the seasonal price rise with most the advance expected in July and August.

SENATORS ASSAIL MOVE TO BOOST FARM LOAN RATE

Wheeler Derides Scheme to Pack Supreme Court.

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—A fierce congressional controversy developed today out of an administration proposal to increase farm loan interest rates as a means of preventing an inflationary "land boom."

Senator Wheeler.

Senator Borah.

Senators Borah [R., Idaho] and Wheeler [D., Mont.] quickly challenged the suggestion of Gov. W. I. Myers of the farm credit administration that the emergency 3½ per cent interest rate on land bank loans be permitted to expire July 1. Wheeler, who forced the low emergency rate through the senate, characterized as "sheer nonsense" Myers' statement that its continuation might stimulate a harmful land boom.

Borah, calling attention to the administration bill to relieve farm tenancy, said the "best way to handle farm tenancy" is "to make it possible for the farmer who now owns his farm to continue to own it."

Caused by Myers' Statement.

The two sharp senatorial statements were inspired by Myers' testimony before the house agriculture committee yesterday against continuing the emergency 3½ per cent rate for two years longer.

"It appears quite possible," he told the committee, "that if the federal land banks continue to finance the purchase of farms at an artificially low interest rate it may have the effect of stimulating a land boom and ultimately may have a far-reaching and undesirable effect on the whole structure of land values in the United States."

Wheeler seized upon the proposal as a new argument in his battle against the Roosevelt court reorganization bill. Asserting that there was no better way for the government to help farmers than by providing low interest rates, he said: "It isn't necessary to pack the Supreme court or to change the constitution in order to help the farmer of this country get out from under the load of debt he has been carrying."

Hits "Nine Old Men" Argument.

Wheeler added that the interest move was in conflict with the administration claim that "the only thing standing in the way of assisting the farmers was 'nine old men' on the Supreme court."

"This demonstrates the insincerity of the department of agriculture and the head of the federal land banks in carrying on their reprehensible propaganda against the court in order to cover up their own mistakes," he added. "It should be borne in mind that everything that the farmer has to buy went up in price as a result of the price fixing methods adopted under the NRA; and those prices did not come down even after the NRA was abolished, but have continued to increase. To raise the interest rate on the farmer is unthinkable."

ILLINOIS SALES OF ELECTRICITY RISE SHARPLY

Springfield, Ill., April 17.—(AP)—Electricity sales in Illinois in March totaled 615,067,821 kilowatt hours, 18.6 per cent more than for the same month last year, the state commerce commission reported today.

Representing an increase of 3.6 per cent over February, last month's sales almost equaled the peak gain of 18.7 per cent established in September, 1936, the commission said.

Downstate sales increased from 195,023,962 kilowatt hours in March of last year to 245,158,221 kilowatt hours last month, a 25.7 per cent gain.

Bank to Ask Rehearing on Stock Liability Suit

Attorneys for the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company said yesterday that the bank plans to ask a rehearing on its suit against 200 stockholders of the Peoples Trust and Savings bank for $2,500,000 of stock liability. Friday the Illinois Supreme court ruled in favor of the stockholders, reversing a Circuit court decision. The suit arose from a loan made by the Continental to pay off depositors of the Peoples bank after it closed voluntarily in 1932.

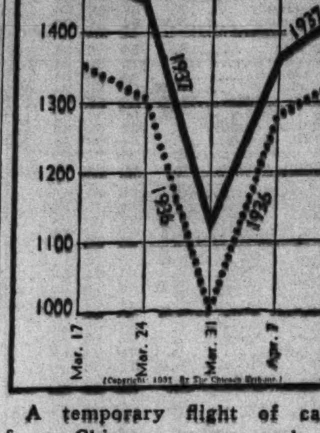
April Fools' Day Past—Chicago Money Comes Home



A temporary flight of capital from Chicago occurs each year prior to the April 1 personal property tax assessment date. The above chart shows the decline in bank deposits which resulted in each of the last two years from the efforts to escape assessment. In the last two weeks of March this year Chicago banks lost nearly 400 million dollars of deposits. In the first two weeks of April approximately 300 millions of the tax timid money returned to the banks.

WHY DID PRICES CRASH? GREAT SEARCH STARTED

Washington Seems to Be the Field.

gress until 1939, the President has the power to reduce the gold content of the dollar substantially, but he may not increase the gold content of the dollar to more than 60 per cent of its content prior to the abandonment of the gold standard in 1933. An official reduction of the price of gold would increase the value of the dollar, just as the increase in the price of gold from $20.67 per ounce to $35 per ounce reduced the value of the dollar.

Inasmuch as the President in 1934 established the value of the dollar at 59.06 per cent of its pre-1933 value he now possesses the authority to raise the value of the dollar only the difference between 59.06 and 60. This is simply another way of saying that the President by proclamation is not empowered to reduce the price of gold below about $34.45 per ounce. This would be a reduction only 55 cents from the present value of $35 per ounce.

The gold reserve act gives the President much more discretion on the down side. He may reduce the dollar to 50 per cent of its pre-1933 value; that is, he may increase the price of gold to $41.34 per ounce.

There is, however, another provision of the gold reserve act which might offer a loophole. Section 8 states that the secretary of the treasury may, with the approval of the President, purchase gold in any amounts, at home or abroad, "at such rates and upon such terms and conditions as he may deem most advantageous to the public interest."

Thus, although one part of the law in effect prohibits the reduction of the official price of gold below about $34.45 per ounce, another part of the law seems to give the President and the secretary of the treasury the power to buy and sell the metal at whatever prices they "deem" to be in the public interest.

Raises Legal Point.

This raises the fine point as to whether the dollar could be kept from going above the 60 per cent level if the treasury should "deem" it expedient to buy gold at such reduced prices that the effective value of the dollar in foreign exchange transactions would rise above the 60 per cent of pre-1933 value which congress has established in the gold reserve act as the ceiling. In order to raise this ceiling an act of congress would be necessary, and it is generally agreed that the sentiment of the present congress is not sufficiently deflationary to permit the passage of a law aimed at lowering commodity prices by making the dollar dearer.

A much more potent reason for not fearing a deflationary reduction in the price of gold is the matter of political expediency. If merely talking about reducing the price of gold will give the markets as severe a setback as that of the last two weeks it is generally conceded that actually reducing it would upset the apple cart. Deflation is politically unpopular, at least until inflation has brought on actual disaster.

Doesn't Wish to Stop Boom.

Even Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve board, who seems to have started the gold price reduction scare, does not wish to stop the boom.

"I have been and still am an advocate of an easy money policy and expect to continue to be an advocate of such a policy so long as there are large numbers of people who are unable to find employment in private industry, which means that the full productive capacity of the nation is not being utilized," he said last month in the same statement in which he warned against inflation.

COMPANIES SEEK WAY TO CONFORM WITH LABOR ACT

Reorganizing of "Inside Unions" Involved.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Several Chicago companies are considering changes in their employé representation plans to conform with the Supreme court decision in the Wagner labor act case, a canvas yesterday showed.

Officials of companies affected by the ruling declined to discuss in detail their plans for adjusting to the ruling. Most of them reported that the matter is still being studied by counsel. While the "company unions" as such were outlawed by the ruling, it is believed that many such organizations will be reconstructed to carry on the work of employé representation. The changes of necessity, however, will be of such drastic character that it will amount to the organization of new unions.

Some Have "Industrial" Councils.

The organization of employés in the meat packing industry, the largest single employer of labor in Chicago, is along the lines of the "industrial council." Under this system which has been sponsored by the companies, employés elect representatives to act for them in all matters to be negotiated with the management. Other important Chicago concerns which have similar organizations are the International Harvester company and the Western Electric company, which employ several thousand men.

Whether divorcement of the "industrial council" type of union can be made effective so as to qualify under the act appears to be uncertain in the minds of many corporation officials. Most of them are anxious to salvage something out of their present systems.

Opinion of Attorneys.

The concensus of attorneys is that the revamping of the unions must be so complete that the present organizations may as well be junked. This opinion was reflected in the advice given to the Illinois Manufacturers' association by its counsel, who described attempts to maintain old style employé representation plans as futile.

The reticence of corporation officials in discussing the future of the company unions rests in their anxiety not to jeopardize the standing of the reorganized units before the labor relations board.

In the majority of cases Chicago companies which have maintained employé representation system plans have been comparatively free of labor trouble. They do not now wish to invite professional organizers into the ranks of their employés and are taking care to avoid the appearance of fathering new unions.

Orders "Council" Dissolved.

Prior to the Supreme court's decision upholding the Wagner act, the national labor relations board ordered International Harvester to dissolve the "industrial council" at its Fort Wayne, Ind., plant. The board described it as an illegal labor organization under the terms of the act, which forbids employé domination, interference with, or subsidization of unions.

After reviewing the benefits conferred on the workers under the system the labor board said in its ruling: "But most of the privileges are granted in the form of paternalism and are worked out entirely by the company, although credit for improvements has factiously been given to the Harvester industrial plan and the works council to obtain employé support for the plan."

While the ruling dealt only with the Indiana plant, it set a precedent for future decisions regarding similar systems in other manufacturing plants.

Cotton.

Cotton prices have a pronounced effect on economic life throughout the world. The United States is the largest producer but sizable quantities are also grown in India, China, Egypt, Russia, Brazil, Chosen, Mexico, Argentina, Uganda, and Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. In the 1935-'36 season the United States produced 10,638,000 bales; the rest of the world grew 15,365,000 bales, a total of 26,003,000 bales.

Millions of persons are directly concerned in cotton for their livelihood. Growers, transportation agencies and employés, spinners, dressmakers, and kindred other lines all depend on the staple.

Cotton futures are traded in four principal world markets—New York, New Orleans, Liverpool, and Alexandria. There are others, including a cotton department of the Chicago Board of Trade. The New York exchange is the oldest, having been established in 1870.

The minimum transaction in New York is 100 bales or 50,000 pounds. Chicago and New Orleans trade in minimums of 50 bale lots—25,000 pounds—and Liverpool trades in 100 bale lots of 48,000 pounds net weight. At Alexandria the unit is 250 centars—approximately 24,750 pounds.

In American markets prices are quoted in points or 1-100th per cent pound. Thus a fluctuation of 1 point, or .01 cent, is equivalent to 5 cents per bale of 500 pounds, or $5 per 100 bale lot and $2.50 per 50 bale lot. The maximum variation allowed daily is 200 points, or 2 cents per pound, above or below the previous day's closing quotation.

LARD

Lard futures declined 7½@20c early yesterday to a new low level for the season, but the late strength in grain and short covering caused a fair rally with the close 7½c higher to 10c lower, with the September delivery showing the most strength. Clear bellies [salt pork] closed unchanged to 2½c higher. Cash lard was quoted at $11.30; loose, $10.65; leaf, $10.62½, and clear bellies at $15.75 per 100 lbs. Prices, per 100 lbs, follow:

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Yesterday's closing prices on grain for delivery in July with comparisons follow:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago.	Month ago.
Wheat	$1.19⅞	$1.17⅞	$1.26¾	$1.24¾
Corn	1.16⅝	1.13⅞	1.23⅝	1.08¼
Oats	.45⅝	.44⅝	.47⅛	.44
Rye	1.03⅜	1.02⅜	1.09	1.08
Soy beans	1.71	1.70⅝	1.73¼	1.58¼

The declining tendency in North American grain markets came to an abrupt halt yesterday despite a break of as much as 6 cents a bushel in Liverpool wheat futures. While there was heavy selling at the opening of the market, the pressure was materially less than the trade anticipated.

A rush of commission house and professional buying quickly absorbed offerings and closing prices of all grains were at the best figures of the day. Net gains in wheat were 1 to 2¼ cents, and in corn, 2⅞ to 3⅛ cents. Oats, rye, and soy beans gained a cent a bushel or more.

Winnipeg grain futures, after dropping about 1¼ cents on wheat and 4¼ cents on rye in the early trading, developed pronounced strength. Gains on wheat ranged upward to 3¼ cents, with the October delivery showing the most strength, while rye closed irregular.

Wheat Slumps in Liverpool.

Liverpool wheat futures were 2¼ to 3⅞ cents lower, with the October delivery in new low ground for the season. Buenos Aires surprised the trade by closing practically unchanged on wheat and corn.

According to trade reports, a large part of the early selling of wheat futures in North American markets was for European account, presumably a continuation of the liquidation by operators abroad who bought recently on inflation talk. Reports that English banks might curtail loans in an effort to prevent speculation in commodities attracted little attention from the trade.

At the low point yesterday Liverpool May wheat showed a decline of 27⅝ cents from the high on April 6. During the same period May wheat in Chicago has declined 16¼ cents; Winnipeg, 21⅜ cents, and Rotterdam, 21⅜ cents a bushel.

Wheat Situation Unchanged.

Comparatively little change was being shown in the world statistical position during that period. It was the almost unanimous consensus of traders yesterday that the sensational decline in prices within less than two weeks was the result of excessive speculative purchases of wheat and other commodities for future delivery on the part of European speculators.

The total volume of uncompleted contracts in grain for future delivery on the Chicago Board of Trade was reduced 7,764,000 bushels as a result of the decline in the market on Friday. When trading started yesterday the open interest in all grain futures aggregated 190,748,000 bushels, compared with 198,512,000 bushels when the market opened on Thursday. Trading in grain futures on Friday was 94,918,000 bushels, the largest day's business on the exchange since August 3, 1936, when it was 101,481,000 bushels.

Southwestern mills were reported to have been large buyers of May wheat in Chicago yesterday, presumably reflecting a better domestic flour trade.

May corn at one time yesterday was 3⅞ cents a bushel above Friday's close, or within ⅛ cent of the permissible limit for one day's upturn under exchange regulations.

KNICKERBOCKER THEATER PAYS $3; REPORTS LEASE

Another dividend of $3 a share has been paid on the stock issued in connection with the reorganization of the Knickerbocker theater, Arthur F. Mohl, secretary of the committee acting in the reorganization, announced yesterday. This is the fourth dividend since the bondholders' corporation took possession of the property on Aug. 1, 1935, bringing total payments to $21 a share.

The stock trustees, announced negotiation of a new lease of the theater, at 6217-27 Broadway, Chicago, to the Greater Chicago Theaters corporation for a term from June 1, 1937, to Dec. 31, 1950 at a minimum rental of $14,000 per year plus a percentage of gross receipts. This represents a substantial increase over the old lease.

What is the trend in

REAL ESTATE?

The trend in Chicago real estate can be read in the real estate columns of the Tribune want ad section.

During the first three months of this year the Tribune printed 61% more real estate want advertising than in the same period of last year.

Today, as for more than twenty years, the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

PRICES OF BONDS MOVE UPWARD IN LIGHT TRADE

Federal Loans Advance; Only Four Under Par.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 16.—Bond prices moved higher on the New York Stock exchange today. Volume of trading was exceptionally small, amounting to $5,330,000, par value, compared with $6,072,000 a week ago.

All sections of the list moved forward with the exception of rails and utilities, where some issues suffered slight declines. The trend was not uniform, however, and gains and losses were fairly evenly divided at the close.

Federal Issues Rise.

Small scale buying lifted the prices of federal obligations, enabling the group to finish higher for the fifth successive day. Only four issues were below par when trading ended. Most advances were small, although Home Owners Loan 2¼s of 1944 improved $3.75 per $1,000 bond to $992.30. Several others climbed $2.75 or more.

At the close yesterday the government group was yielding approximately 2½ per cent, a level which many observers believe is too low to stimulate buying interest.

Corporate Issues Firm.

Small gains also ruled the domestic corporate list. Southern Pacific 4½s advanced $10 on announcement that a threatened strike by trainmen had been averted. International Hydro-Electric 6s improved $5 to $815, and St. Paul 5s of 1975 gained $5 to $305.

New York City traction issues, which have been subjected to pressure recently, rallied moderately. Interborough Rapid Transit 5s regained $11.25 to $780, and Third Avenue railway adjustment 5s moved up $7.50 to $345. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit 4½s improved $12.50 to $932.50.

Most foreign loans were higher for the day although the list dallied throughout the session. Uruguay 6s rose $8.75 to $681.25. Other changes were small.

Agricultural Machinery.

One of the industries still definitly on the upward swing of recovery is the agricultural equipment business. In fact, some statistical agencies profess to see a possibility that total sales of farm equipment during 1937 may pass those in the peak year of 1929.

Sales of farm machinery suffered one of the worst of the depression slumps, falling in 1932 to scarcely one-fifth of the 1929 total.

Higher prices for crops, together with government bounties, have lifted the purchasing power of the farmer sharply during the last three years. With more money in his pocket, the farmer has bought needed equipment eagerly.

* * *

The result has been that sales of agricultural equipment during 1936 were slightly more than two and one-half times the depression low. Even so, sales were held back to some extent by the ravishing effects of the drouth in some parts of the country.

With 1937 crop prospects brighter, prices holding up well, and larger government payments contracted than in 1936, farm buying this year is expected to show a definite increase over last year.

One of the brightest spots in the picture is the market for tractors. It is estimated that less than one-third of the 4,300,000 farms of more than 50 acres in this country are equipped with tractors now. The estimated potential market for more than 3,000,000 additional tractors is enough to keep the industry busy at its 1936 production rate for more than ten years and does not include substantial replacement demand that reasonably may be expected.

* * *

Possibilities have been broadened substantially by introduction of the one-plow tractor. In addition, improvement in Diesel-powered tractors has brightened sales prospects, particularly on larger farms where savings on fuel costs are important.

Tractor production was at a record of about 250,000 units in 1936, contrasted with a low of only 16,000 in 1932.

Foreign sales, which normally account for about one-fifth of farm machinery business, also have been encouraging. Expansion has been particularly marked in the case of tractors.

Potential demand for agricultural equipment is large as a result of subnormal buying during the depression, the tendency toward further mechanization of farms, and increasing obsolescence of present equipment.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw: Unchanged today at 3.50c per lb for spots. No sales were reported.

Futures were featured by a sharp break in the No. 4 contract under heavy general liquidation promoted by the decline in the London market and absence of progress at the world sugar conference. Stop orders were uncovered on the initial decline which carried prices 3 to 9 points net lower, but after their execution there was a rally of about 4 to 8 points on covering. This attracted renewed liquidation and the market sagged again, closing near the lowest and 5 to 7½ points off for the day. Sales were 50,250 tons.

The No. 3 contract was less active and the tone steadier on further trade buying. After advancing 2 to 5 points there were partial setbacks with final prices 1 point lower on the spot month and unchanged to 3 higher on later positions. Sales, 7,850 tons.

AMERICANS BUY MORE INSURANCE AS INCOME RISES

Big Life Companies Report Sharp Gain in Sales.

More money in the pockets of the public resulted in a sharp boost in sales of life insurance during the first three months of 1937.

Inasmuch as the largest field for prospective sales of life insurance is among individuals earning $5,000 a year or less, the rise in sales indicates that the average individual is better prepared to look after his insurance needs and is doing so. One leading eastern company, which reported a sharp gain in new sales for the first three months of the year, found that the average new policy was for $2,159.

Social security legislation has also had the effect of making the public insurance-minded, and it is preparing for the proverbial rainy day whether for the benefit of self or kin.

Gain in Sales Tabulated.

Statistics illustrate the rising insurance sales. The Association of Life Insurance Presidents recently reported that 40 companies—having 83 per cent of the total life insurance outstanding in legal reserve companies in the United States—experienced a gain of 19 per cent in new insurance written in March as compared with a year earlier.

For the first quarter of 1937 these companies had an increase in sales of 8.8 per cent. These gains compare with an increase of only 1 per cent in March, 1936, over the like month of 1935, and a decline of 8.2 per cent in the first quarter of 1936 compared with the first three months of 1935.

Total insurance written in March, 1937, was $917,780,000, against $771,311,000 in March, 1936. For the first quarter the total was $2,299,881,000, against $2,114,707,000 in the like period of 1936.

Chicagoans Add Insurance.

Chicago in February experienced a rise of 7 per cent in new ordinary insurance over sales in the corresponding month of 1936, and the gain for the first two months was the same as that for the state as a whole.

In Illinois during February, the latest figures available, there was a gain of 9 per cent in new paid-for ordinary insurance, according to the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau. Such sales totaled $42,166,000, and 68 per cent of the companies reported an increase over sales for February, 1936. For the first two months of 1937 there was a gain of 2 per cent.

Northwest Bancorporation Approves Instalment Loans

Omaha, Neb., April 17.—(AP)—The operating committee of the Northwest Bancorporation today approved a program recommending the entrance by the organization's 112 affiliated banks into the "instalment loan" field. An extensive advertising program was outlined.

THE PASSING OF "PITTSBURGH PLUS"

In 1919, a Chicago manufacturer ordered a ton of rolled steel from the mills a few blocks away from his plant. One of his own trucks went and got it. When the bill arrived, it called for payment at the prevailing price of rolled steel in Pittsburgh—plus a freight charge for a fictitious 470-mile ride between the eastern steel city and the manufacturer's plant.

He paid the bill. There was no recourse. Regardless of any advantages of manufacturing efficiency or of closer proximity to raw materials which steel mills in the Chicago district might enjoy, the "Pittsburgh Plus" system of price-fixing exacted tribute from Chicago and the Central States.

Pittsburgh Plus throttled the growth of industry . . . boosted rents by adding to building costs . . . and otherwise imposed handicaps which in a normal year took a toll of some $75,000,000 from the Middle West.

The Chicago Tribune addressed attention to this evil in 1919. To its editorial platform for the Middle West, it added a new plank: "Abolish Pittsburgh Plus." News-stories, editorials, and cartoons exposed the operation of the system and its results. Soon the legislatures of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota joined the fight and appropriated funds for bringing the situation before the Federal Trade Commission.

In July, 1924, within five years of the day the Tribune took steps to bring about the abolition of the system which had grown up through nearly half a century, the Federal Trade Commission outlawed Pittsburgh Plus.

Freed from this strangle-hold, steel companies in the Chicago region began to expand. Under the play of free competition, the Chicago district has attained a notable position in the production of steel.

The battle against Pittsburgh Plus is typical of the Chicago Tribune's crusading spirit throughout its eighty-nine years' history. Published for and by Chicagoans, the Tribune is the voice of the West.

It is first of all a newspaper with its chief interest centered in the territory it serves. Alert to attack abuses of political, social, or economic origin, it makes no compromise for the sake of expediency or temporary popularity.

As a result, the Tribune today has the circulation, the reader-interest, and the confidence which make it Chicago's first newspaper and most productive advertising medium.

SCHOOLS OPEN YOUTH WEEK TUESDAY

GARDEN CLUBS MAP WOMAN'S RETURN TO EDEN

New Floral Species Add to Work.

[This is the thirteenth in a series of articles explaining the work of the departments that are included in the 7th district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Another department will be explained in next Sunday's issue.]

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Mrs. Milton Meyer.

All the world loves a garden. In it there is the setting for life's leisure. There tragedy is tempered and romance is spoken. And lately new species have been added to this flora kingdom, a boon to those who say it with flowers.

Nature has been made to bring new fashions. The rose still smells as sweet, but it has changed its looks and has gained some new names. The marigold has lost its acrid odor. Even Narcissus would not know himself should he glance in the lily pond. With these better varieties to intrigue her modern woman has found her way back to the garden.

The garden department of the Seventh district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs is getting at the roots of things now that spring has come. The study of the soil, lawn making, and insect habits is all in the schedule planned by Mrs. Milton Meyer, 5352 Barry avenue, district garden chairman. It is her job to solve the planting problems of the 22 local garden department members who are included in her district.

Swamped By New Varities.

One of the greatest tasks for Mrs. Meyer, she says, is to keep up with the hundreds of new varieties and species of flowers added to the catalog each year. Hybridizers, she explains, are working constantly to "make new things familiar and the familiar things new." Asters can be bought that are wilt resistant and there are single and dwarf asters designed for garden borders. Calendulas now reflect more sunshine and a cosmos could deny relationship with its new cousins and get away with it.

A style show in flowers will be held in northwest side back yards all spring and throughout the summer, even after club work in general has ceased. At present the garden department members are working on scrap book contests in which will be contained little hints on such topics as growing string beans and sandless spinach.

Link Garden and Philanthropy.

Tying up their work with philanthropy the gardeners of the Irving Park Woman's club will send a plant to every mother at Dunning State hospital for Mothers' day. Suburban club members are not only brightening their own corners with a bit of Eden but are taking their spades down Main street and to every highway and byway leading into town.

This is National Garden week. Every chairman in the district is receiving an outline from Mrs. Meyer who in turn received her hints from the state garden chairman, Mrs. E. G. C. Williams of Danville. In it she says that since Illinois ranks first in the number of junior club members that there would be more more junior garden clubs organized. She brings plans for such projects as school contests, poster contests, miniature gardens, bottle gardens, bird study, leaf scrap books, study of wild flowers and flower painting.

Await Coming Events.

Among the coming events this spring in which the Seventh district gardeners will participate is the National House and Garden exposition which will be held from May 8 to 16 in the Coliseum. From May 11 to 13 at the federation's state convention in Peoria there will be a garden exhibit staged in the ballroom of the Pere Marquette hotel. Sometime in June the members will be the guests of Mrs. Walter W. Seymour in Lakeside, Mich.

The garden department is one of the few work units in the district which holds a district institute once each month. In January, February, and March the members do armchair gardening which includes reviews on garden books and lectures. In April, May, and June the gardeners begin their social activities and go to see what the other fellow is doing and digging. The three summer months are a time for exchanging bouquets and to thumb through the "Cyclopedia of Horticulture" for the correct pronunciation of plant names.

From October to December the Seventh district department turns to counting the harvest. Gardens as much as possible are moved indoors. In fact, says Mrs. Meyer, let our plants do what they will but no good garden department goes to seed even when there's snow on the ground.

When Family Feuds and Love Meet

In the Maxwellton braes that are bonny and blue-red with heather bells, Annie Laurie gave her promise true to Sir William Douglas. But the path of true love is not so smooth even where Scotland's romantic strains ring along Monan's rill. Sir William belonged to the wrong political party—which made a difference.

So here Miss Lucille O'Connell, in the title role of Alvernia High school's senior class play "Annie Laurie," smilingly eludes the gallant Lord Ferguson, played by Miss Dorothy Rieger. Lord Ferguson is the suitor approved by the Laurie clan.

CLAYTON SMITH RAISES HOPE FOR SUPERHIGHWAY

Backing Follows O. K. of 5 Year Plan.

Hope for the construction of a northwest side elevated highway leading into the city was given impetus last week following the Cook county board's approval of a $14,000,000, five year highway improvement program.

Clayton Smith.

The program, originally submitted by George A. Quinlan, highway superintendent, had been altered and offered to the county board by a joint committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Chicago Regional Planning association. It included $4,780,000 in north and northwest side projects.

Although the program made no mention of an elevated highway, Clayton Smith, county board president said, "Within the next few years I expect the county board to direct action toward the development of elevated highways and suggest some sort of unified commission, including city, county, and state highway officials, to consider the problem. Such a project should be financed by all three bodies."

Wants Long Range Plan.

Mr. Smith said, "The county board should rightfully do more than plan five years in advance. We should plan our construction 10 and 20 years ahead to meet with the anticipated development of the metropolitan area."

The plan approved last week is the third such plan to be outlined by the county highway department. In

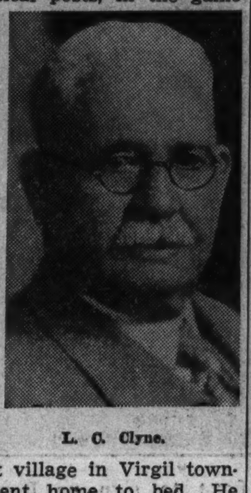
L. C. Clyne's General Store a Shrine of Political Faith

In a world of shaky dynasties and wobbly political posts, in the game in again, out again, some one might ask the question—What do you do to be popular? If there is an answer, L. C. Clyne, a storekeeper of Maple Park, must have it.



L. C. Clyne.

One spring evening in 1885, Mr. Clyne locked up his general store in that village in Virgil township and went home to bed. He awoke the next morning, which was election day, and found that some friends had a ticket printed the night before including his name as candidate for the village board. Before he knew it, Mr. Clyne had become a town father. For 17 years he served on this board and for eight of those years was its president.

Now he is the town grandfather. In 1892, while still on the village board, Mr. Clyne was elected to the board of supervisors of Kane county and he has served continuously from that date. This election is his 22d victory and this month he begins his 46th year in county office. His record is believed to be the longest period of consecutive service in an elective office in the state of Illinois.

Misses Two Meetings.

And in this record is his reputation. He has missed only two meetings in his 45 years as supervisor. Once he was out of town attending the national convention of Modern Woodmen in St. Paul and the other time he was convalescing from an auto accident. For 28 of those years he has served also as Democratic precinct committeeman.

Election holds no terrors for Mr. Clyne. Another election is just another celebration. He might close his store, which he has managed since 1884, a little early to greet old friends who gather to congratulate him. Six times during the 22 elections he was opposed by another candidate. "Those occasions were more fun," he says, "they called for a bigger celebration."

Maple Park is a village of 500 people on the Northwestern railroad in Kane county, 50 miles northwest of Chicago. It is connected with the Lincoln highway and when seen by its neighbors is often described as "the loveliest village of the plain" because of its beautiful trees. The site of Mr. Clyne's general store is marked by an old poplar tree twenty feet in circumference. The natives claim that their trees and their patriarchs are stout hearted.

Settles in 1863.

Mr. Clyne came from Ireland. In 1863 he found his friends of Maple Park and settled there to help his brother, John Clyne, manage the store. When John went to Kansas, L. C. Clyne's name was printed on the window. It is still there.

Kane county's political veteran likes vacations second only to his work. He has crossed the ocean five times and traveled through 37 states. Last Christmas night he left home for a jaunt to Miami by auto. He wanted to try surf bathing in Florida before his 74th birthday, which was celebrated last month. His skill at swimming was gained in the River Shannon when he was a boy.

Next to vacationing Mr. Clyne likes the sport pages of national events. He has his own ideas about the length of the count at the Dempsey-Tunney fight and how Grange got away from Michigan that muddy day in 1924.

There is another feather in the Clyne cap. He has been repeatedly elected to office despite the fact that he was not of the prevailing political faction of the community.

SCOUT LEADERS TO HAVE RALLY TOMORROW NIGHT

Northwest district Boy Scout leaders will be entertained at a program tomorrow night in Logan Square auditorium, 3147 Logan Square. Alfred C. STUDENTS WILL SHOW ABILITIES IN MANY LINES

Self-Help Is Theme of Observance.

BY TED TOLL.

The integral part which northwest side high schools are to play in the Chicago Youth Week activities beginning Tuesday will be displayed in programs outlined by the individual high schools. Under the presidency of Maj. John L. Griffith, the Chicago Youth Week federation announced that its objective this year is to help youth help itself, and to further—by spotlighting—the many activities conducted by and for young people throughout the city.

The community Youth Week programs for the northwest side will be directed by committees headed by the following district chairmen: Jefferson park, Harry Varnell of Norwood Park Community center; Albany park, Varian M. Shea of Von Steuben High school; Irving Park, James T. Gaffney of Roosevelt High school; Portage Park, Nellie F. Ryan of Foreman High school; Belmont-Cragin, Daniel F. O'Hearn of Steinmetz High school; Logan Square, Rose A. Pesta of Kelvyn Park High school, and John L. Hancock of the Goethe school.

Family Day Tuesday.

Youth week opens Tuesday with Home and Family day. On Wednesday Vocational and Industry day will be recognized. Health and Athletics day will be featured Thursday, and Friday will culminate the schools' activities in a School and Citizenship day. On Out-of-Doors and Playground day, Saturday, tournaments and contests will be sponsored by park and school playgrounds. Sunday is church day and all Chicago churches have been asked to focus on youth. Leisure time agencies are coöperating in Youth and Leisure day, Monday, April 26, and Club and Demonstration day, Tuesday, the last day of Youth Week.

A concert by the Schurz High school band, at 8 o'clock Thursday night, will feature that school's celebration. Proceeds will be used toward purchase of band uniforms. The concert is sponsored by the Schurz Parent-Teacher organization, of which Mrs. Charles S. Nation is president. Mrs. H. J. Lutz is band chairman. The concert will be under the direction of Capt. Clayborne Harvey.

Dance Numbers Planned.

Supplementing the concert, girl students in the advanced dancing class and the crack drill squad of the R. O. T. C. unit will perform. Mrs. William C. Kellerman will conduct the Irving Park school band in several selections.

Special programs by each of the school's departments will augment the week's activities. The Engineering club will combine with the physics classes to sponsor a sound demonstration by William B. White, director of research for the American Steel and Wire corporation. The Spanish Fiesta club of the school will present a musical play tomorrow in the school auditorium.

Foreman High school plans appropriate stress of its cleanup campain, as its Youth week contribution. Foreman has enlisted the coöperation of seven elementary schools in its district, the Foreman, Falconer, Gray, Hansen Park, Prussing, Schubert, and Reinberg schools, and has arranged a poster contest, permitting four entries from each of these schools.

Plaque for Winner.

These posters are on exhibition in the Foreman High school auditorium, and will be judged by two of Foreman's art instructors aided by a committee. The winning artist will receive a plaque at a tea to be attended by representatives of all the district elementary schools.

All this week a traveling unit of Foreman students will visit the grade schools, presenting a program of entertainment for the students.

Mrs. H. W. Ramm is faculty sponsor for Foreman's campaign, assisted by co-chairmen Christ Regas and Gladys Bergeson, and Secretary Marge Crane. Divisional committee heads include Henry Wessel, finance; Eleanore Jacobsen, publicity; Mel Schwucho, editorial; Ray Nerhus, photographer; Leslie Jacobsen, contract; Marjorie Anden, entertainment; Florence Pacilio, report book, and Helen Wiczkewicz, poster.

As its contribution to health and physical education day, the Von Steuben health committee will present a health play at an assembly for parents and the 3B class. This will be augmented by a gymnasium demonstration by both boys' and girls' classes, with parents and the freshman class as guests.

Finally a Youth week assembly divided into three sections will be presented on Friday. Social science students will present a pageant on

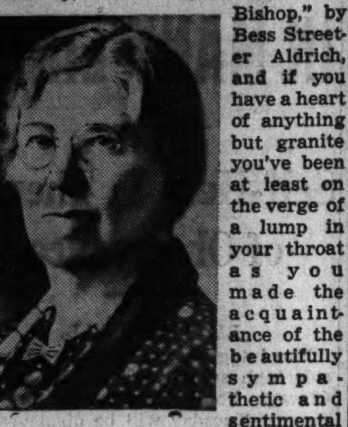
DUNDEE RECALLS ITS SCHOOL DAYS AND MISS KEELER

Veteran Teaches Final Class of 44 Years.

BY TED TOLL.



Katherine Keeler.

If you've read either James Hilton's "Good-by, Mr. Chips" or "Miss Bishop," by Bess Streeter Aldrich, and if you have a heart of anything but granite you've been at least on the verge of a lump in your throat as you made the acquaintance of the beautifully sympathetic and sentimental characters created by the authors. These two fictional school teachers who devoted their lives to molding the personalities of three generations of pupils, sharing their heartaches and joys, their later-trivial adolescent embarrassments along with their naïve wide eyed elations, might have been engendered from the actual life of Katherine Keeler of Dundee.

Katherine Keeler is teaching her last class of 7 year olds. Forty-four years ago, when she was 19 and just out of Normal school, she taught her first class of 7 year olds, which included mothers and dads and great-aunts and great-uncles of today's tots who attend the routine of going to school, entirely oblivious of their status as Miss Keeler's last class, and oblivious of the moral stamina being built into their embryonic personalities by Miss Keeler.

Dundee Doesn't Forget.

But Dundee and the 4,500 residents of its community are far from oblivious of the part Katherine Keeler has played in their lives. Since she has announced her retirement to take effect in June Dundee has risen as one to fête her, presenting at times tearful recognition to its idol in ceremonies participated in by the entire community, including the almost 2,000 former pupils of Miss Keeler. On one of these occasions recently, Katherine Keeler Recognition day, she was presented with a gift of $500, a gold wrist watch, and a bouquet of forty-four roses, significant of her forty-four years' service. Coincidental is the fact that in Miss Keeler's present and last class there are forty-four pupils.

Prominent Dundee citizens have proposed memorials in her honor. The Rev. William Hill, pastor of the First Congregational church of Dundee, has suggested a grade school to be built sometime in the future, bearing Miss Keeler's name.

Playground Is Suggested.

The Dundee Woman's club, headed by its governing board including Mrs. E. H. Hager, Mrs. L. L. Cumlein, and Mrs. Warren Krahn, proposed a community playground, or a scholarship bearing her name.

The Dundee Parent-Teachers' association presented Miss Keeler with an overnight bag in recognition of her unusual record, and upon her arising to thank them, proof of a deeply felt love and gratitude, in the form of tears, began to trickle down the cheeks of several parents present.

When asked what method of child-reprimanding she employed, Miss Keeler answered: "It should never be necessary to reprimand a child severely. I don't punish them; a sympathetic and understanding attitude toward children will do more toward making them your friends and willing to do as you suggest than all the scolding possible. I've tried to impress them with the idea that when they abuse privileges they are being selfish.

Thoughtful of Handicapped.

"When I've had subnormal or nervous children in my classes I'd explain to the others the unfortunate condition of the newcomer, appealing to their sentiments so that they woud accept him kindly. As a result of which they invariably have been extremely thoughtful of the handicapped child. Realizing that a child reacts directly to an older person's personality, I have tried to be worthy of their emulation.

"What do I intend to do when I retire? Well, to read, and to make it a point to call on my friends; and especially to look up lonely people—we have so many lonely people in the world. I haven't quite decided what to do with the $500, but what would give me most happiness would be to give it back to some worthy community cause, through the Woman's club.

Recalls First Job.

When Katherine Keeler began her teaching career in 1891 it was through no carefully carried out plan for the future. Instead, with a sudden illness of a teacher in the Meadowdale school near Dundee Miss Keeler was asked to substitute, having had sufficient education to warant her capable. She accepted, and upon the death of her predecessor decided to continue. "That," she smiled, "was in the days when I got $28 a month if I didn't build my own fire in the stove, and $32 if I did—I did."

In Miss Keeler's first class at Dundee grade school in 1893 was E. H. Hager, who was president of the Dundee board of education for six years. She has since taught his daughters, Mrs. Barbara Estes and Marcy Hager. Also in Miss Keeler's 1893 class was Newton Averill, whose son Robert is in Miss Keeler's present class.

Teaches Third Generation.

An instance of her having taught three generations is given in the case of Mr .and Mrs. Herbert Ervin, both of whom were in Miss Keeler's classes. Mrs. Ervin's aunts, who were the Quicker girls, were both taught by Miss Keeler, and in the present class is Joanne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin.

Miss Keeler, who resides at 711 Oregon avenue, Dundee, comes from sturdy Scotch stock, her parents having made a six weeks' crossing from Scotland to America in 1886 on a sailing vessel which foundered and sank on the return trip. She was graduated from the Dundee High school in the class of 1890, having entered at the age of 14 when her family settled in Dundee.

During the one year in which she was a student at the Normal school its celebrated president, Col. Francis B. Parker, took a special interest in her work and recommended her as having unusual qualifications for teaching—an opinion which the years have seen indorsed many times by school authorities, pupils, and parents.

REFUND DELAYED BY TWO CLOSED NATIONAL BANKS

Bowmanville Pays RFC $30,100 on Loan.

Little change in the condition of the closed Bowmanville and Lawrence Avenue National banks was indicated last week in the first quarterly report for this year by Frank J. Cimral, receiver for the two institutions.

Reports that the Bowmanville bank may repay depositors another 10 per cent have not been fulfilled but during the last three months an additional $30,100 was repaid on the bank's $509,800 RFC loan. The loan now stands at $120,000. Depositors have so far received 40 per cent or $500,300.

Book Value Drops.

During the last quarter $23,599 was collected from assets and stock assessment at the Bowmanville bank. The book value of remaining assets is now given at $1,200,620, a decrease of $24,379 from the statement of Dec. 31. The remaining assets are now estimated to produce ultimately a return of $326,424, a decrease for the quarter of $8,943.

Liquidation costs for the quarter were $4,993 and a comparison with last year's first quarter report shows a cost of $22,954 for the 12 month period, a low figure.

The report on the Lawrence Avenue bank showed a slight increase in the cash condition from $56,233 the previous quarter to $60,320. During the last quarter $12,021 was collected from assets and stock assessments. Total remaining assets, listed at $572,684, are estimated to produce a return of $26,362.

27 Per Cent Repaid.

Liquidation costs for the quarter were $1,522 or only $5,091 for the last 12 months. Depositors have received $150,652 in repayments, or 27 per cent of their deposits. Unadjudicated claims are continuing to delay any further repayments, although the cash condition of the bank would ordinarily permit an additional 10 per cent payment.

A RADIO ERA ENDS AS M. L. EASTMAN GIVES UP BATON

Pioneer's Record Recalls Early Air Days Here.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Tonight the Edison Symphony orchestra will broadcast a 15th anniversary program and then leave the air for good. Thus will come to an end radio's oldest sponsored program. It will also wind up the radio career of Director Morgan L. Eastman, Chicago's pioneer broadcaster. [Edward Davies will be soloist on the birthday broadcast at 9:30 p. m. over WENR.]

Mr. Eastman has been vacationing this winter in California. He came back recently to handle the anniversary program and to tell his bosses that he had decided to retire. He had bought a house in San Diego and planned to sail his yacht henceforth in the blue waters of the Pacific, he explained. When he made known his plans the Edison company decided to end the broadcast series. And with its final broadcast tonight ends also a radio era for Chicago. For the history of the Edison concert series coincides roughly with broadcasting from its cradle to its coming of age.

Morgan Eastman has been conducting the orchestra since 1911. In 1922 he put it on the air after he had helped to organize KYW, Chicago's first station. Eastman was probably the most enthusiastic of radio's early proponents here. He introduced to radio many of the earliest headliners of broadcasting as well as such programs as the Weener Minstrels and the Contented hour whose directorship he recently yielded to Frank Black.

Only a Few Still Active.

Few of those early Eastman performers of radio are still identified with the broadcasting business. There's Wendell Hall, the Red Headed Music Maker who is conducting the CBS Community Sing nowadays. Way back in the good old days he was a xylophonist and actually started out on the air as an instrumentalist.

Eddie and Fannie Cavanaugh, who recently celebrated their 15th anniversary with their Gossip club program over WBBM, started out on KYW.

Sen Kaney, now an NBC executive, is another of the few of that early group still in the business. Sen left La Salle street to enter the new field of announcing, liked it and stayed. Later Sen came to W-G-N and served as station manager.

Three Periods of History.

Chicago's radio history may be divided roughly into three periods—1921 to 1925, the infancy period; 1925 to 1930, a period of much growth, change and orientation, and from 1930 to the present, the settling-down-to-business period [if one may safely say that radio has settled down].

Quin Ryan, W-G-N's manager, first bobbed up in the fall of 1923 at WMAQ. Hal Totten bowed in at the same station. Following year Kaney started baseball broadcasting on W-G-N, Hal Totten for WMAQ. W-G-N soon had the edge on the baseball picture because WMAQ, owned by Victor Lawson, shut down on Sundays.

The Team of Little and Small.

Harry Geise, who opened WIBO, was going great with the song "How Do You Do Everybody, How Do You Do." Little Jack Little, pianist, and Tommy Malie, songster, turned out "Jealous" and rode to fame on it. A little later Paul Locher joined Little to form the team of Little and Small. Wendell Hall turned out the hit of the decade "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More."

Jack Nelson, original director of WDAP which later became W-G-N, was grinding out tunes too, and with Al Fuller, now advertising director of the Palmer House, turned out the Broadway play "Remote Control." Nelson has lately been producing radio shows in Hollywood. Jack Chapman you may remember as the first "big name" orchestra at W-G-N.

Ford and Glenn Mail Pullers.

WLS, started in 1924, by Sears Roebuck, opened as WES, until someone thought up the slogan "World's largest store" when it became WLS. Ford Rush and Glenn Rowell became their biggest names and drew more mail probably than anyone has to this day—trick contests excepted.

The Atlass brothers—Ralph and Leslie, who later became so firmly intrenched in Chicago radio, were fiddling around with WBBM up in Rogers park a little over a decade ago. They had the transmitter for WBBM in their bedroom. Ralph was the boss, Les announcer. Charlie Garland started the WBBM Nutty Club in 1924. Bobby Brown and Larry Fisk, still with WBBM, were around way back then. Nate Colwell was an Atlass announcer. And Earl Babcock, the "Unwashed baritone," was getting his first laughs. Kay Ronayne was one of the early warblers.

And over at WMAQ, in addition to Hal Totten, one heard such names as Judith Waller, now NBC's educational director, and Robert Whitney and his trio, the Three Doctors, Pratt, Sherman and Rudolph.

PAUL WHITEMAN TO PLAY RHYTHM CONCERT TONIGHT

The first of the series of concert programs by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra presented directly from the Gold Coast room at the Drake hotel will be broadcast from 7:30 to 8:30 tonight over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Mr. Whiteman is augmenting his regular orchestra with a number of additional musicians for the concert, which is titled "A Rhythmic Concert in the Whiteman Manner."

The programs are specially built by the maestro along the lines of the concerts his organization has been giving for several years in concert halls in conjunction with internationally famous orchestras and as a separate musical group. Whiteman's orchestra has appeared with such famous musical groups as the Philadelphia Philharmonic orchestra and the New York Philharmonic orchestra.

All of the famous Whiteman soloists currently appearing with the orchestra will be implanted in the rhythmic concert. Bob Lawrence, baritone, who has just rejoined the orchestra, will be heard in a special arrangement of "All Points West," by Rodgers and Hart. Other production numbers on the program will include the famous Whiteman arrangement of "Waltzing Through the Ages," a descriptive bit of music which traces the progress of the waltz from the old time minuet right through to the comparatively modern "Three O'Clock in the Morning," Ravel's "Bolero," a medley of Stephen Foster's melodies, and Jerome Kern's famous show music.

The cast is composed of several of Chicago's outstanding radio actors and actresses with Don Merrifield as Arnold Grimm, the father; Nancy Hurdle, as Constance Grimm; Ed Prentice as Dallas Termaine; Orin Brandon as John Tremaine; Gertrude Bondhill as Mrs. Tremaine; Guila Adams as Mrs. Grimm; James Andelin as Tom Grimm; and Jean McDonald, fine young actress, as Gladys Grimm.

CIVIC MUSICAL GROUP TO GIVE FESTIVAL MAY 2

Children's Chorus to Sing Special Numbers.

The twenty-fourth annual festival of the Civic Music Association of Chicago will be held at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, May 2, in Orchestra hall. The program will include folk songs and a festival cantata by a children's chorus of hundreds of voices, accompanied by the Civic orchestra, as well as orchestral numbers. Marx E. Oberndorfer is director of the chorus and Hans Lange conducts the orchestra.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham.

The association was formed in 1914 and has been providing free choral training for children in the city since that time. At present classes are held in eight of Chicago's parks and institutions, as well as at the Park Ridge School for Girls. More than 4,000 children are instructed each week, and it is not uncommon for a child to walk long distances to class after he has moved from the neighborhood where it is held.

Hold Orchestral Classes.

In addition to the choral work, the association, through Dr. Frederick Stock, musical director, and Eric De Lamarter, conductor, provides the opportunity each year for ninety young musicians from all parts of the country to study orchestral repertory, sightreading, chamber music, harmony, and conducting, as well as to participate in weekly rehersals.

The young men and women are chosen following competitive examinations. This orchestra, founded in 1920, is the first training school in America for developing symphony musicians, and has graduates in all of the leading symphony organizations. Twenty-eight are on the roster of the Chicago symphony.

Officers of the association are Henry B. Vanzwoll, president; Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, first vice president; John Alden Carpenter, second vice president; Miss Priscilla Carver, secretary, and Edwin S. Fetcher, treasurer.

Directors Are Named.

Directors are Mrs. Sidney Bartlett, Mrs. A. F. Callahan, Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Miss Jessie Colvin, Mrs. Ernest Freund, Robert C. Fenner, John H. Hardin, Mrs. William Sherman Hay, G. T. Hellmuth, Mrs. Harry Lachritz, Leeds Mitchell, Mrs. Roland D. Whitman, and Miss Catherine Wolcott. Miss Werra Schuette is executive secretary and Dr. Stock is honorary president.

The association, located at 410 South Michigan avenue, hopes to raise enough money through membership fees so that the choral work may be expanded next October, when the fall season opens.

NORWEGIAN GLEE CLUB TO PRESENT CONCERT TONIGHT

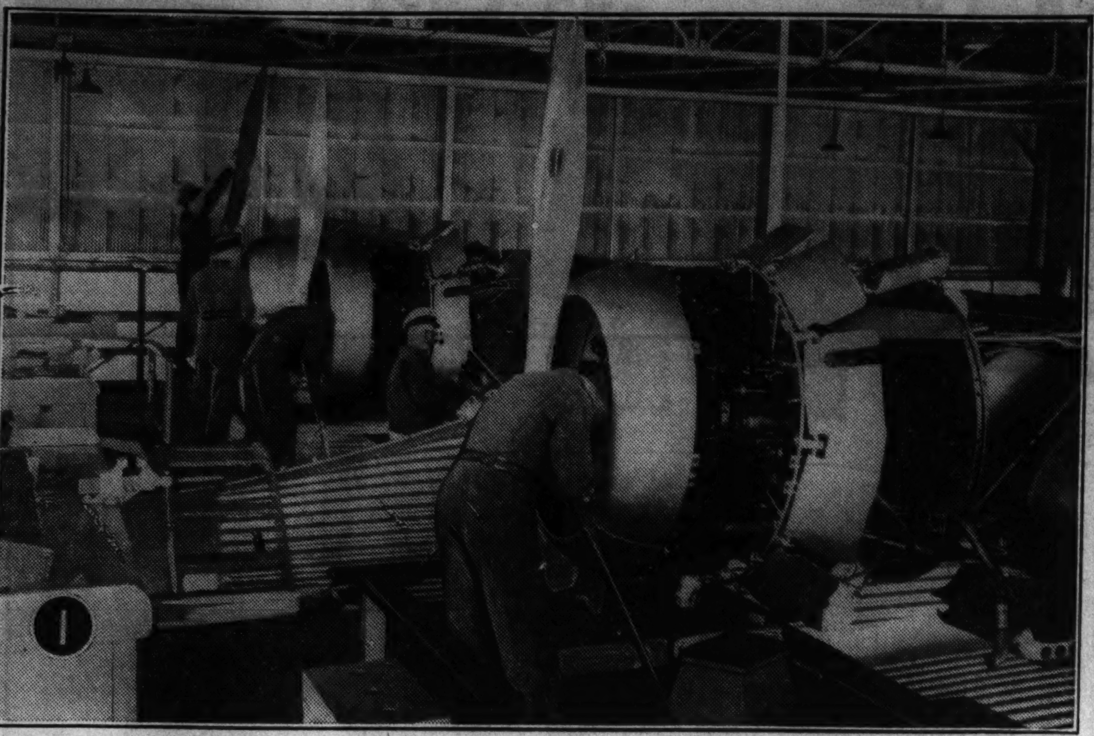
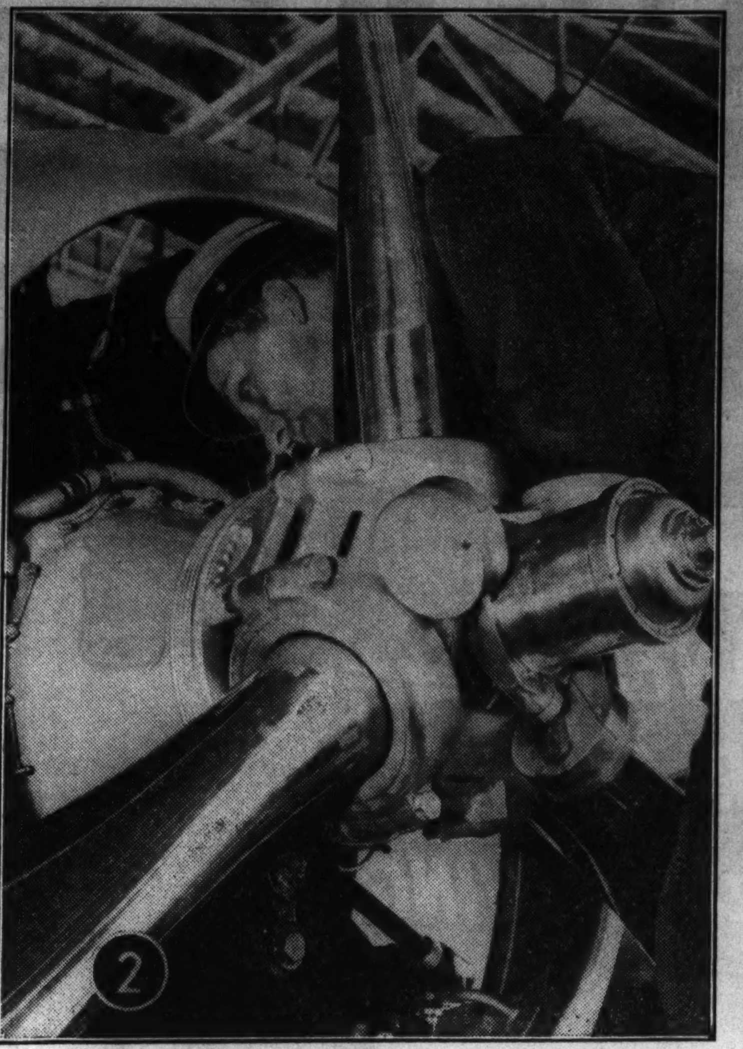
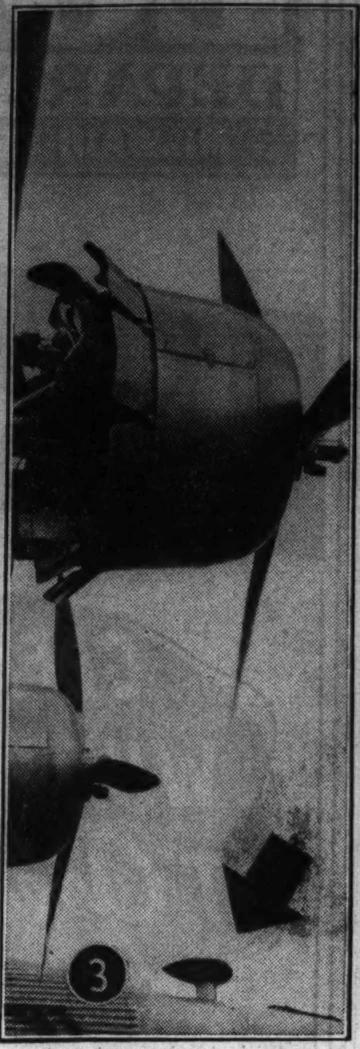
Air Lines Make Regular Inspection of Planes and Their Engines—Trans-Pacific Clippers Undergo Tests



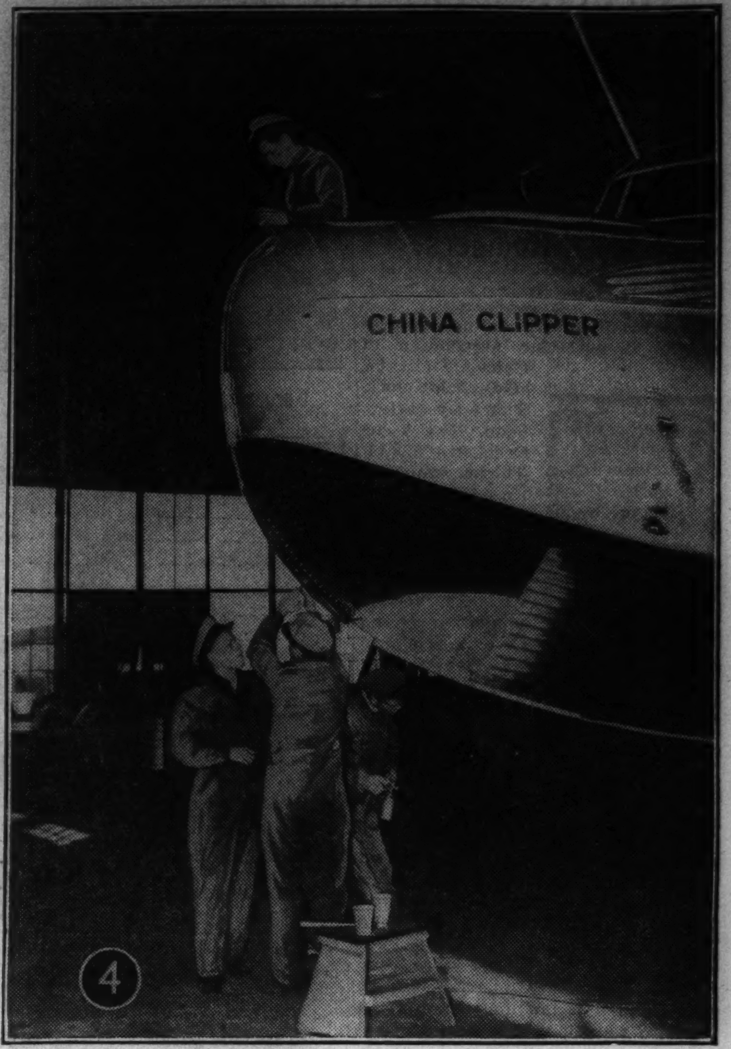
MOTORS REMOVED FROM PLANES FOR INSPECTION—These engines, taken from Pan-American Airways Clipper planes employed in trans-Pacific service, are scrutinized by mechanics at the Alameda, Cal., base. They must be kept attuned to carry the planes and their passengers and mail to the Orient.



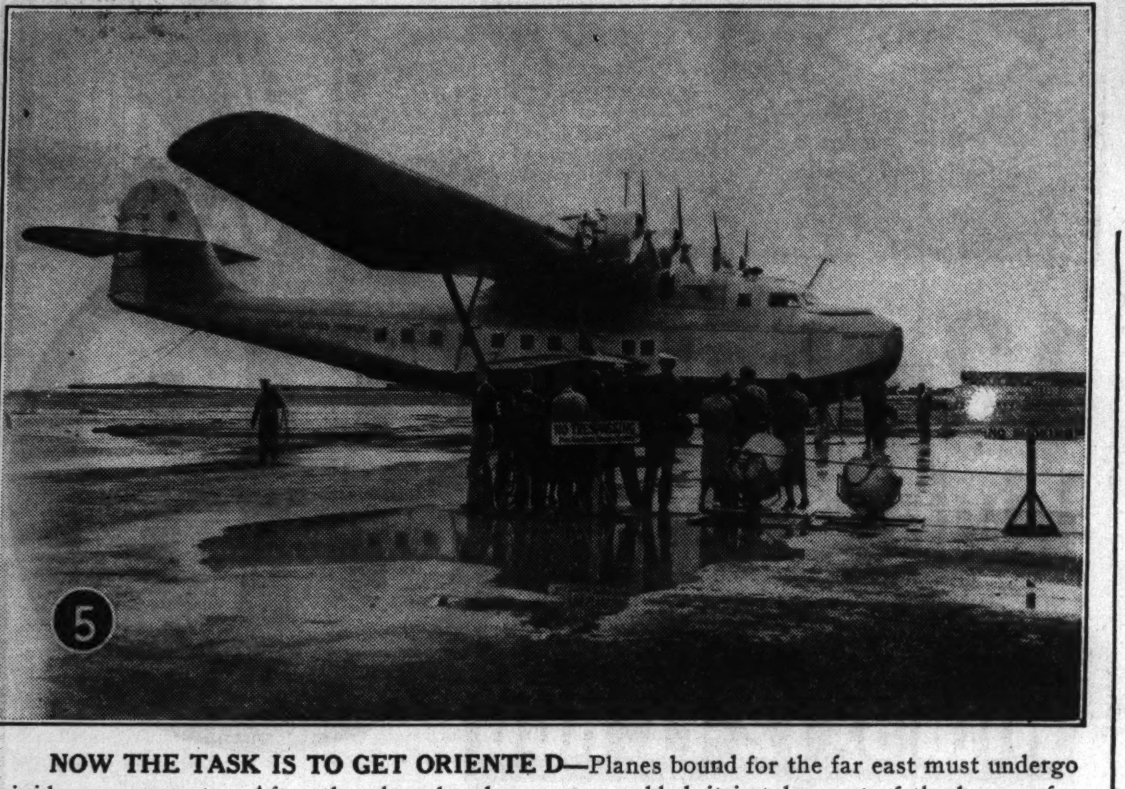
THE PROPELLER—Mechanic Lou Green works on one of the four 850 horse power engines that propel the Clippers across the ocean. Maintenance is a continuous job, requiring careful attention by expert workmen.



A FORWARD STEP—Arrow indicates egg shaped radio aerial with which planes are equipped.



RIGHT ON THE NOSE—The prow of the China Clipper comes in for close study during inspection and overhauling operations. Trained mechanics capable of this work are scarce, according to air officials.



NOW THE TASK IS TO GET ORIENTED—Planes bound for the far east must undergo rigid compass tests. After the plane has been reassembled, it is taken out of the hangar for the final O. K. The compass is inspected from all directions through use of a revolving platform under the big airliner.

OH, JANE, I CAN'T GO. MY SKIN'S SO ROUGH FROM RIDING IN THE RUMBLE SEAT THAT I'M A SIGHT
DON'T BE SILLY! I KNOW A SPECIAL CREAM THAT MELTS SKIN SMOOTH...

THAT WAS A SWELL STEER ABOUT POND'S VANISHING CREAM MY SKIN'S SMOOTH NOW. POWDER STAYS ON!

Melts FLAKINESS AWAY —IN ONE APPLICATION

ANN'S made a hit! Any girl does, if her skin is smooth and soft, if her make-up looks flawless—stays looking that way.

Popular girls use Pond's Vanishing Cream. As a famous dermatologist says: "A keratolytic cream (Vanishing Cream) has the ability to melt away harsh, dried-out surface cells when it touches the skin. Instantly, the skin becomes fresh and smooth."

Just one application of Pond's Vanishing Cream, and dry, flaky bits melt away. An instant later, powder goes on smooth as silk. You'll be delighted with the way it clings!

For powder base—Pond's Vanishing Cream makes a perfect powder base because it smooths your skin. Make-up goes on with an even finish...stays.

Miss Nancy Whitney

"Pond's Vanishing Cream smooths off little roughnesses right away. That's why make-up looks so much better—and stays better."

For overnight—Apply after cleansing. Not greasy. It won't smear. Lovely skin by morning!

BATH AND HALF NEWEST TREND IN HOME BUILDING

Powder Room Needs Only 3½ by 4½ Foot Space.

Learn how to plan an attractive bathroom. The booklet, "Modernizing the Old Bathroom," by Louise Bargelt, Tribune home builders' editor, gives scores of helpful suggestion. Get a copy today at either of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Bathrooms and powder rooms are making news these days. Not through any new beauty. They have been beautiful for some time now. The news element lies in the fact that the two now appear in many homes as inseparable and standard equipment.

So if one plans to build or remodel in the near future it would be practical to consider installing a "bathroom an a half." This modern phrase merely means a powder room or lavette or first floor lavatory, in addition to the bathroom.

What is the minimum space required for one of these new powder rooms? The minimum space required is 3½ feet by 4½ feet. If possible make it 4 feet by 6 feet.

Shelf Back Lavatory.

What is standard equipment for the powder room? There are two requisites for this room—the lavatory and the closet. A shelf back type of lavatory is most convenient, since it can be used for makeup accessories. The cabinet type lavatory is very practical, with its storage spaces nicely concealed. One-piece-type closets with quiet flushing action are likewise a good investment.

What are the newest colors for the powder room? Brighter colors may be used here than in the bathroom, which is a larger room and which, therefore, should be handled with more restraint. Stunning fixtures in various shades of red can be installed against a background of ivory walls. Black fixtures look well against walls in tan or peach or yellow, and blue fixtures are enhanced by a background of silver and mottled blue.

What type walls and floors? Here you have as wide a range as in the bathroom . . . ceramic tile and paint, metal tile and composition tile, linoleum tile and structural glass, besides washable wall papers which may be effectively used above wainscoting.

What style mirror? Modern, of course . . . compact, with tubular lighting which will afford a clear, shadowless illumination.

What about invisible parts? No bathroom or powder room or lavette is any better than the concealed pipings, valves, and fittings in it, and to be satisfactory they must be noiseless and leakproof.

In a home which is being built or being modernized the plumbing system will become troublesome if it is undersized, poorly designed, or improperly installed.

There are many points pertaining to good installation. Here are a few of the most important: [1] Proper pitch of pipes, so that system drains well and easily. [2] Proper trapping of all fixtures to keep sewer gas from entering house. [3] Proper supply of water available for all fixtures. [4] Proper separation between supply lines and waste lines, so no interconnection can occur and cause water pollution. [5] Insulation of hot water pipes and insulation of waste pipes with sound deadening material. [6] Selection of durable materials for piping.

Shower in Garage.

And here is a modernizing suggestion for spring home improvement. What better present for the basement or the garage or the summer cottage than a shower compartment? These can be had now in inexpensive form. Naturally, if one is installing a shower cabinet in a bathroom or in a hall end close to the bath, higher priced units with better receptors and more substantial framing will be selected. If one doesn't want a complete shower cabinet, there are over-the-head tub showers in greater numbers and styles than ever. Different types of diverter fittings are available, and the valving for the shower can be combined with the tub supply so that one set of valves controls the water supply for both tub and shower. And the nice thing about the modern shower head is that it no longer has a tendency to clog. Its efficiency has been increased and it uses less water than the one time, large-diameter shower head.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Monday at 2:15 p. m.

200,000 PUPILS TO GET HOLIDAY FOR CADET SHOW

School Head Supports Military Pageant.

BY JEAN DE BERG.

Declaration of a half-holiday enabling more than 200,000 school children to attend the second all Chicago R. O. T. C. review on Friday afternoon, May 21, at Soldiers' field, was announced last week by William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools. Approximately 130,000 high school students, 70,000 seventh and eighth graders, and pupils at the Montefiore, Moseley, and parental schools will be dismissed from classes at 11 o'clock to attend the review under the supervision of their teachers.

William H. Johnson.

"I believe that the R. O. T. C. is so worth while," said Mr. Johnson in issuing the announcement, "that every child capable of understanding it should have the opportunity to witness this challenging spectacle. For myself, I don't see how any one could see a show of this kind without bursting buttons. The only trouble with the R. O. T. C. is that it isn't half big enough. There should be at least 15,000 cadets."

Begins at 2 P. M.

The two hour spectacle of the maneuvers and special demonstrations by crack units, bands, and exhibition teams from the twenty-seven public high schools and the St. Met cadet corps, will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Admission to the show, which is sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in coöperation with the board of education, will be free.

Beginning with the entrance of a single squad, the basic group of army organization, the show will present a graphic record of the achievements of the city's 8,000 cadets in the course of their routine instruction, culminating in a parade and review of the entire corps.

The routine maneuvers featured in the first part of the show will be alternated with a variety of special demonstrations and stunts by bands, and teams, according to Maj. John Ringe, U. S. A., review chairman.

Freshmen on Program.

Freshmen, who are not issued uniforms during the first year of their instruction, will have a place on the program, Maj. Ringe indicated.

In continuance of its policy to reward distinguished achievement in military training, THE TRIBUNE will again present two stands of national and school flags during the review to the older and newer schools whose cadets receive the highest rating in the annual federal inspection.

MAD ANTHONY'S COUP AIDS BIRTH OF NEW NATION

Wayne's Foray on Stony Point Recalled.

[This is the second story in a series of dramatic episodes in the lives of American military and naval heroes. Another article will appear next Sunday.]

A cloud of dust rose high and choked the sentry who gaped as the carriage passed. It carried Gen. Anthony Wayne who was riding post haste into the garrison at West Point. Gen. Washington had sent for him. The day was July 1, 1779. Sometime later Gen. Washington's study door opened and a blue coated officer came out still talking. Gen. Wayne had been closeted with his commander. His black eyes darted fiercely, indication of his repressed excitement. He cupped his fist into his sword calloused hand, then abruptly loosened it. For days now with Washington he had debated the recapture of Stony Point, that malignant rocky hill now measled with the British. Washington coveted this vantage point that had once been his beneficent bald god, crouching to its waist line in the Hudson river about 15 miles south of West Point where now he had his garrison.

A Job for Mad Anthony.

Stony Point was the key spot in the Hudson river highlands, the ramparts by which upper New York and the New England states were defended. While a British flag waved on this point, fighting America was cut in two. Washington had sent for Anthony Wayne, the rugged Pennsylvania Irishman, to put it together again.

Now the conference was over and Gen. Wayne was ready to go back to Sandy Beach where the first and second regiments of the American light corps were encamped. It was a hard job ahead of him, even for the "ruffian" who had played "killing Indians" a festive sport to Easttown lads before Pennsylvania had shed its blood in the revolution. The pros and cons for the reoccupation of Stony Point had been heard. This was farewell for the moment between Washington and his general. "Sir," said Wayne pressing his hand, "I'll storm hell if you will plan it."

Washington smiled. "Perhaps, my dear general, you had better try Stony Point first."

Student of Caesar.

And Wayne, the Pennsylvania farmer, could do it—Gen. Wayne, who once had been a surveyor, whose wife, Polly, at that moment back with his mother on the farm, caught a tear on her hand. It was a consolation for her to have her son, Izaac, and daughter, Margaretta. She had been so fearful since her husband started reading Caesar's diary and reminding her of the duties of a Spartan wife while the colonies were at war.

She had doubted that his job in Philadelphia on the committee of safety would end there. She foresaw bloodshed and fighting. And her fears had come true when he raised the regiment of the Canadian campaign of '75. She had thought he might be through after that winter of '76 and '77 spent at Ticonderoga. But neither did Brandywine nor the winter at Valley Forge, nor Monmouth nor Germantown bring him back. Izaac, her son, was lusty voiced—almost like his father. Yes, the Waynes had died of gout, but never of anemia. Even as Wayne rode from West Point, Polly pulled her son away from his attack on the spinning wheel.

White Feathers for Brave.

And Gen. Wayne was ready to attack "hell" at midnight of July 15, 1779. Believing men fought better in spic and span uniforms, he asked for them in addition to bayonets. He got guns but no new uniforms. But when at 10 o'clock he divided his troops into columns and called out the orders for battle, the men all had their faces washed and their hair combed. Every man had a white feather in his cap. Some used white paper. This was to tell them from the enemy.

Col. Febiger, a Danish officer in sympathy with the revolution, would lead his column from the southern end. Col. Butler would come from the north. Before the battle every dog in the environs had been killed to insure silence and men were selected to go in advance to cut the abatis, the defense formed by felled trees.

Silently, in three snakelike lines, more than a thousand men were to go into the dead black night, into the Hudson river swamps, led by "Mad" Anthony Wayne. No musket was to be loaded in the two main columns. Fighting would be done with bayonets in close conflict. The men of the third column carried loaded muskets which they were to fire rapidly to divert British attention from the main attacking columns. All must reach the point together.

Wade Into Attack.

Wayne's men waded through the high tide—black bodies in a heavy night—went above boot tops, then soaking went to the waist. They went toward blacker shadows, a shivering mass of men.

There was a flash from the rampart. A flare—and the line moved faster—men hurried to stay next to the figure ahead. Then gunfire. The enemy had seen them. The war god belched again. Hundreds of prepared men led by the "Mad" Anthony, who liking his daring, was careless in it, ushed toward hundreds alarmed from their sleep. The British, bewildered, all run for guns and fired. Then Lieut. Col. Fleury pulled down the British flag. Wayne, shot in the head, gave a cry, "Carry me inside, men. I'll die there." But it was only a slight wound; he could still feel and smell the stench of sweat and warm blood. Then rushing bayonets met spontoons. Trembling groups of British screamed the word "Surrender." Col. Johnson, until that moment, the British officer in command of the fort, looked at leveled rifles and handed over his sword.

"Your servant, sir," he said.

A Mission Fulfilled.

On the Hudson a British man of war, "Vulture," dodged down the river away from the gunfire. Ver Plank's point opposite tasted lead. The dead were collected. Gen. Wayne found himself a table and prepared to write.

The man who was to rid Ohio of the Indians four years later, the man in whose honor there are Wayne counties, Wayne townships, and Waynesvilles and Fort Wayne, was ready to pen another line in his martial march.

His message was to Washington. "The fort and garrison with Col. Johnston are ours," he wrote. "Our officers and men behaved like men who are determined to be free."

—Steinmetz—

The Steinmetz high school R.O.T.C. will join with members of H. G. Behrentz post No. 612 of the American Legion in a Youth parade Sunday morning, May 16, according to Sergt. Carl Christoffersen, military instructor. Legionnaires and cadets will assemble on the northwest side of Logan Square at 10 o'clock and march to Humboldt park. The parade is sponsored by Behrentz post.

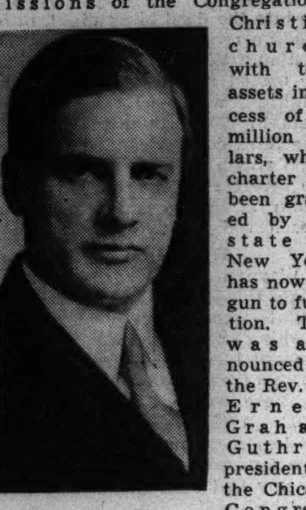
CHURCH MERGES WORK OF SEVEN MISSION UNITS

Congregational Board Has 23 Millions Assets.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The consolidated board of home missions of the Congregational-Christian church, with total assets in excess of 23 million dollars, whose charter has been granted by the state of New York, has now begun to function. This was announced by the Rev. Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie, president of the Chicago Congregational union, who stated that transfer of all activities and administration of the funds of seven historic boards has been effected according to instructions previously voted by the denomination's general council.



Dr. Ernest Guthrie.

Dr. Guthrie explained the process whereby the multiple boards were consolidated into a single corporation. This process, he said, was steered by Dean Luther A. Weigle of Yale Divinity school.

The action was begun in 1917, when the home missionary society, church building and Sunday school extension societies were merged through identical officers and directors. It was extended in 1926 to include all seven boards, and the whole scheme finally was confirmed last June at the biennial meeting of the general council at Mount Holyoke college, South Hadley, Mass.

Continue in Offices.

The Rev. Dr. Edward Weeks Cross, pastor of Union church, Richmond Hill, N. Y., is president. The Rev. Dr. William F. Frazier is general executive, and William T. Boult is treasurer. They continue in the corresponding offices which they held in the seven boards whose general officers are identical, and the new board will be organized into divisions which will be subdivided into departments.

The work combined under this new board of home missions constitutes the oldest nationally organized Protestant missionary enterprise in America, antedating by several decades the incorporation, under the laws of New York, Connecticut, and Massachusetts, any one of the seven boards involved.

In 1796 persons returning from England told of the London Missionary society, organized in London in 1795 by Congregationalists. The result was that the New York Missionary society was formed. Other societies in various cities, counties and states were all united nationally at a convention in New York, 1826, when the American Home Missionary society was formed. The name of this was changed in 1893 to the Congregational Home Missionary society.

Second of Home Boards.

Although the corporate existence of the Congregational Missionary society dates back to 1826, it was not the first of the home boards. The American Education society was organized in 1816 at Boston, Mass. A third board, the American Missionary association, was incorporated in 1846. The major work of this last board has been with Negroes in the south. It has at the present time five colleges and twelve secondary schools in addition to having founded Hampton institute and Fisk, Howard, and Atlanta universities. It also conducts a hospital and churches in Porto Rico. The work of the other four boards has been church building, publishing, ministerial pensions, and Sunday school activities.

The work of these boards has been an important factor in the religious and cultural development of the United States. They have helped found over 8,000 existing churches, of which 2,000 are affiliated with other denominations; assisted in establishing more than 75 colleges; published thousands of books and at different times some 50 periodicals, and maintained continuously a field force of several thousand workers whose labors extend into all parts of the country.

Realignment of activities is being made in readiness for the board to begin its first complete fiscal year on June 1. The detailed budget adopted for 1937-'38 by the directors of the new board is $1,324,888. The first annual meeting of the board will be held next fall in Plymouth church, Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 19 to 21.

Dr. George L. Robinson, professor at the Presbyterian Theological seminary, will lecture on "The Trial of Jesus" tonight at Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 6400 South Marshfield avenue.

Directed by Raymond Brown, the choir of Englewood First Baptist church, 5900 South Emerald avenue, the Rev. Carl A. Olsson, pastor, will sing Du Bois' cantata "The Seven Last Words of Christ" tonight.

The Rt. Rev. Edmund Walter Sheehan, auxiliary bishop of the Liberal Catholic church will administer the rite of confirmation this morning at St. Alban's church, 104 East 51st street. "Practice of the Christian Life" will be the subject of the bishop's address.

Dr. Walter Wilson of Kansas City, Mo., will conduct a two week evangelistic campaign, April 18 to 30, at Ravenswood Baptist church, Seeley and Sunnyside avenues. Dr. F. H. Farrington, pastor, will assist in the daily services at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 7:45 o'clock in the evening.

Dorothy Day, founder and editor of the Catholic Worker, will speak at the monthly meeting of the Holy Name cathedral study club, April 22, at the Towertown club, 111 East Pearson street.

Sponsored by the Men's club of their respective congregations an exchange of pulpits will occur next week-end between Albany Park Methodist Episcopal church and Temple Beth Israel. On Friday evening the Rev. John M. Schneider will preach at the synagogue on "If I were a Jew," and on Sunday morning Rabbi Felix S. Mendelsohn will preach at the church on "If I were a Christian." Lester Stone of Beth Israel will introduce the pastor, and Ralph Beart the rabbi.

West Side Baptist Choral association will give its annual concert on Thursday, April 22, at Oak Park Baptist church. The chorus of 150 voices is made up from the choirs of the participating churches and will be directed by four conductors in the twelve numbers on the program. The soloists will be Estrid Buck, soprano; Bertha Spafford, solo organist, and William J. Krogman, accompanying organist. The choirs appearing are from Austin, Berwyn, Forest Park, Oak Park, Judson, Tabernacle, and the Second Baptist churches. The conductors will be Reuben C. Bergstrom, Charles H. Haberman, John Illika and Judson S. Tyley.

EPISCOPAL LAYMEN'S CLUB TO HAVE ANNUAL MEETING ON APRIL 22

Clarence B. Randall, a trustee of the University of Chicago, will be the principal speaker at the 47th annual meeting of the Church club of Chicago, Episcopal laymen's society, on Thursday evening, April 22, at the Hotel Sherman. As a former director of the Church club, he will tell of a layman's opportunities and responsibilities as he sees them.

Clarence B. Randall.

A feature of this meeting will be the launching of Episcopal "G" men, the idea of which emanates from the Church club, whose objectives will be to coordinate the work of the laity and increase interest in the church. Bishop George Craig Stewart will deliver his annual message, and the annual election and installation of officers will follow.

5,000 EXPECTED AT ST. ANASTASIA PARTY SATURDAY

More than 5,000 Chicagoans are expected to attend the benefit party for St. Anastasia parish, Waukegan, at the Lake Shore Athletic club Saturday night. The reason for the size of the turn out is that the parish is Father Joseph Garrity's parish, and the party will also serve as a testimonial to him. The Rev. Father Garrity was assistant curate at St. Bernard church, 6600 South Harvard avenue, from 1925 to 1928, and served as assistant pastor of St. Genevieve church, 4838 Montana street, from 1929 until he went to St. Anastasia last year.

TEN TO RECEIVE SCHOLARSHIPS AT ARMOUR TECH

Ten one year scholarships for male high school graduates of June, 1937, providing free tuition for the academic year of 1937-'38 will be awarded by the Armour Institute of Technology, according to an announcement by Dr. C. A. Tibbals, scholarship chairman. The awards will be based on competitive examinations and a consideration of the candidate's personality, scholastic record, and extra-curricular activities. The examination will include a personal interview and a written test.

The written examinations, consisting of English, algebra, physics, and chemistry, will be held at Armour institute, 3300 South Federal street, at 9 o'clock the morning of May 22. Interviews, required for eligibility in entrance to the examinations, must be before May 20.

The scholarship committee at the institute is composed of Dr. Tibbals, assistant dean; S. F. Bibb; W. E. Kelly, registrar; A. W. Sear; Walter Seegrist; A. D. Sprague, and S. E. Winston.

PLAN EPISCOPAL CHURCH MISSION AT ST. PHILIPS

As the initial step toward a city-wide religious and social program, the Episcopal church of Chicago will establish a mission for the stockyards district in St. Philip's church, 36th street and South Hamilton avenue, under the auspices of the Mission Sisters of Charity.

The project which has been endorsed by the diocesan council will include a full schedule of community work carried on by the sisters with the parish house as the headquarters. The religious services will be conducted by an Episcopal monk associated with the order.

The Sisters of Charity will transfer their mother house from the House of the Holy Redeemer, Pontiac, to St. Philip's. Prison work, undertaken at the Dwight reformatory for women, will be continued under the supervision of Sister Mary Elizabeth. The Rev. C. B. Upson, former pastor of St. Philip's, has been appointed to Holy Trinity church, 4716 South Union avenue.

BEHOLD! HE BREATHES FIRE... BACK!
RUN! WE ARE LOST!

HAWKS REACHES HIS PLANE AND RETURNS TO RESCUE TIM AND PATSY! THE TARTAR SOLDIERS TERRORIZED BY THE ROARING PLANE, FORGET THE YOUNGSTERS AND FLEE IN FEAR!

IT'S GOING TO BE TOUGH GETTING OUT OF THIS VALLEY. THAT CLIFF LOOKS TOO CLOSE TO CLIMB OVER! BUT WE'LL HAVE TO CHANCE IT!
HURRY-THEY'RE COMING BACK!

UNABLE TO FLY OVER THE TOWERING CLIFF, HAWKS TAKES A DESPERATE CHANCE. WITH BUT INCHES TO SPARE, HE LOOPS UP THE FACE OF THE CLIFF—AND BARREL ROLLS AT THE TOP, COMPLETING A BRILLIANT IMMELMANN TURN!

DICK TRACY
By CHESTER GOULD
YOU SEE, TRACY, THEY THOUGHT I WAS A LITTLE SNITCH-THIEF AND AFTER THEY HIT ME AND SAW THE "BLOOD" WHICH WAS NOTHING BUT MERCUROCHROME, THEY GOT PANICKY AND CALLED THE COPS.
AARONS OF THE SEVENTH PRECINCT CAME OVER. AS SOON AS I SAW HIM, I WINKED AND GAVE HIM THE HIGH SIGN AND HE TOOK ME AWAY.
GOOD! AT LEAST YOU ACCOMPLISHED WHAT YOU SET OUT TO...YOU DISCOVERED WHERE THEY'RE STAYING.
BUT TELL ME HOW YOU GOT YOURSELF DRENCHED WITH PERFUME. YOU SMELL LIKE A WHOLE COUNTER OF BEAUTY PREPARATIONS.
I SAW THREE BIG BOTTLES SETTING ON A TABLE.
I PURPOSELY STUMBLED AGAINST THE TABLE AND KNOCKED A BOTTLE OVER ON ME.
BENSON, HAND ME THAT VACUUM BOTTLE SITTING ON MY DESK—THE ONE WE PICKED UP IN THE GIRLS' FIRST APARTMENT!
THE ODORS ARE IDENTICAL.
YES, THIS IS MR. GENS, PERFUME BUYER FOR MARSHALL HITES COMPANY.
MR. GENS, WE'D LIKE YOU TO COME TO HEADQUARTERS AND IDENTIFY A PERFUME FROM SOME SAMPLES WE HAVE. CAN YOU DO THAT?
I'LL TRY.
IF HE CAN TELL US THE NAME OF THE PERFUME, WE CAN CHECK TO SEE IF THAT'S THE KIND THAT'S BEEN STOLEN FROM THEIR SHOPS LATELY. THEN WE'LL HAVE A CASE.
MEANWHILE
OH—COME IN, MADAME.
WE HAVE A VERY FINE BATCH FOR YOU TODAY—THERE'S TWENTY-TWO OUNCES OF "FLOWER-OF-NIGHT." YOU CAN HAVE IT FOR 500 DOLLARS.
FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS? LISTEN, MY DEAR, YOU'VE GOT A SWEET RACKET—BUT THERE'S SUCH A THING AS OVERDOING IT.
I'LL GIVE YOU EXACTLY 20 DOLLARS AN OUNCE—BUT I MUST DO MY OWN MEASURING.
HM-M! 440 DOLLARS. OKAY, WE'LL TAKE IT—HERE'S THE GRADUATE...

If...at the end of the next 30 days...you do not feel better, return the top of the Postum container to General Foods, Battle Creek, Michigan, and we will cheerfully refund the full purchase price, plus postage! (If you live in Canada, address General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ont.)

All we ask is that you give Postum a fair trial...that you drink it for the full 30 days!

Postum, you see, contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. Postum comes in two forms ... Postum Cereal, the kind you boil or percolate ... and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. Either way, it is economical, easy to make and delicious. You may miss coffee at first, but after 30 days, you'll love Postum for its own rich, full-bodied flavor. Postum is a product of General Foods.

The reason we offer these large cash prizes is to induce more women to try OXYDOL . . . the Ivory soap people's latest amazing "no-scrub, no-boil" laundry soap. OXYDOL is often called the "miracle soap of modern science," because of its great difference in action and results.

What It Does

Combining speed and safety in a way no single soap has done before, OXYDOL does these 4 amazing things:

(1) Soaks out dirt in 15 minutes without scrubbing or boiling. Even grimy collar bands come white with a gentle rub between the fingers.

(2) Gets white clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter than other soaps, proved by scientific Tintometer tests.

(3) Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine.

(4) Yet so safe that every washable color comes out sparkling and fresh—your hands stay soft and white. Even sheer cotton prints have been washed 100 consecutive times in OXYDOL suds without perceptible sign of fading.

In addition to its marvelous results OXYDOL is economical, too. Tests show it will go ⅓ to ½ again as far as the latest soap chips on the market. DISHPAN REDNESS WAS RUINING HER HANDS
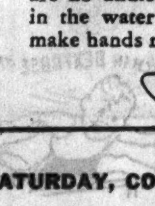
THEN SHE TOOK A BEAUTY EXPERT'S ADVICE
I'M ASHAMED TO HAVE YOU LOOK AT MY HANDS! SEE HOW RED, AND ROUGH THEY ARE? AND MY NAILS ARE A SIGHT---ALL BRITTLE AND BROKEN...
WELL, MY OPERATORS WILL GIVE YOU A GOOD MANICURE, BUT THEY CAN'T MAKE YOUR HANDS BEAUTIFUL SO LONG AS YOU ABUSE THEM IN THE DISHPAN!
BUT THERE'S NO ESCAPE FROM DISHWASHING! NOT FOR ME, ANYWAY!
PERHAPS NOT--BUT YOU CAN WASH DISHES AND STILL HAVE SOFT, SMOOTH HANDS IF YOU USE THE RIGHT SOAP. I RECOMMEND SUPER SUDS IN THE RED BOX.
YOU SEE, SUPER SUDS IN THE RED BOX IS A SOAP MADE SPECIALLY FOR WASHING DISHES. IT IS AN UNUSUALLY MILD SOAP, MADE IN TINY HOLLOW BEADS. THESE BEADS DISSOLVE INSTANTLY AND COMPLETELY ...LEAVING NO UNDISSOLVED SOAP PARTICLES TO IRRITATE SKIN- REDDEN AND ROUGHEN HANDS.
3 WEEKS LATER
I'M CERTAINLY GLAD IVAN TOLD ME ABOUT SUPER SUDS IN THE RED BOX! THERE'S NOTHING LIKE IT FOR CUTTING GREASE AND GETTING DISHES SPARKLING CLEAN IN A HURRY!
AND LOOK AT YOUR HANDS! THEY'RE SO SOFT AND LOVELY NOW THAT NO ONE WOULD EVER GUESS YOU WASH DISHES!



ROBERT, FAMOUS
NEW YORK BEAUTY
EXPERT, SAYS:

I recommend Super Suds in the Red Box because I know this soap is particularly mild. Besides, Super Suds in the Red Box is made in tiny hollow beads which dissolve immediately, completely. So there are no undissolved soap particles left in the water to irritate skin . . . to make hands red and rough.

Robert of 5th Ave

CUTS DISHWASHING TIME IN HALF, TOO!

Super Suds in the Red Box is specially made for washing dishes—for cutting grease.

It is made in tiny hollow beads that dissolve instantly and completely, leaving no undissolved particles to redden hands—no film to streak or dull your dishes. A hot rinse . . . and they dry sparkling clean without wiping! You're through in half the time!

(This offer holds good until August 31, 1937.)

Save Your Labels Every Day!

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES SPOIL YOUR GOOD TIMES

Read these TRUE EXPERIENCES of how Fleischmann's Yeast helps to Clear the Skin

BEFORE
Jean Dietrich, of East Orange, N. J., had pimples like these before she started to eat Fleischmann's Yeast. "My face was a perfect sight, it was so broken out," she says.

AFTER
See how yeast helped Jean's skin to clear. Pretty and happy, she says: "I ate 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every day for 4 weeks and now my skin is nice and clear again."

BEFORE
Dick Rooney, of Brooklyn, N. Y., looked like this before he started eating 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily. "I was ashamed to have people see me," he says.

AFTER
Pimples no longer spoil Dick's good times. "Everybody that's got pimples sure ought to try Fleischmann's Yeast," he says. "It's swell how it chased mine away."

"STICK TO IT," says Dr. R. E. Lee, well-known physician, "and Fleischmann's Yeast will help to correct Adolescent Pimples . . ."

After the start of adolescence many young people have trouble with pimples.

At this time—from about 13 to 25, or even longer—important glands develop and final growth takes place. This causes disturbances in the entire system. The skin, especially, gets over-sensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin, and pimples break out.

Fleischmann's fresh Yeast helps to free your skin from pimples by clearing these skin irritants out of the blood.

Eat 3 cakes daily—a cake about ½ hour before each meal—plain, or in a little water. Keep this up regularly. Start now!

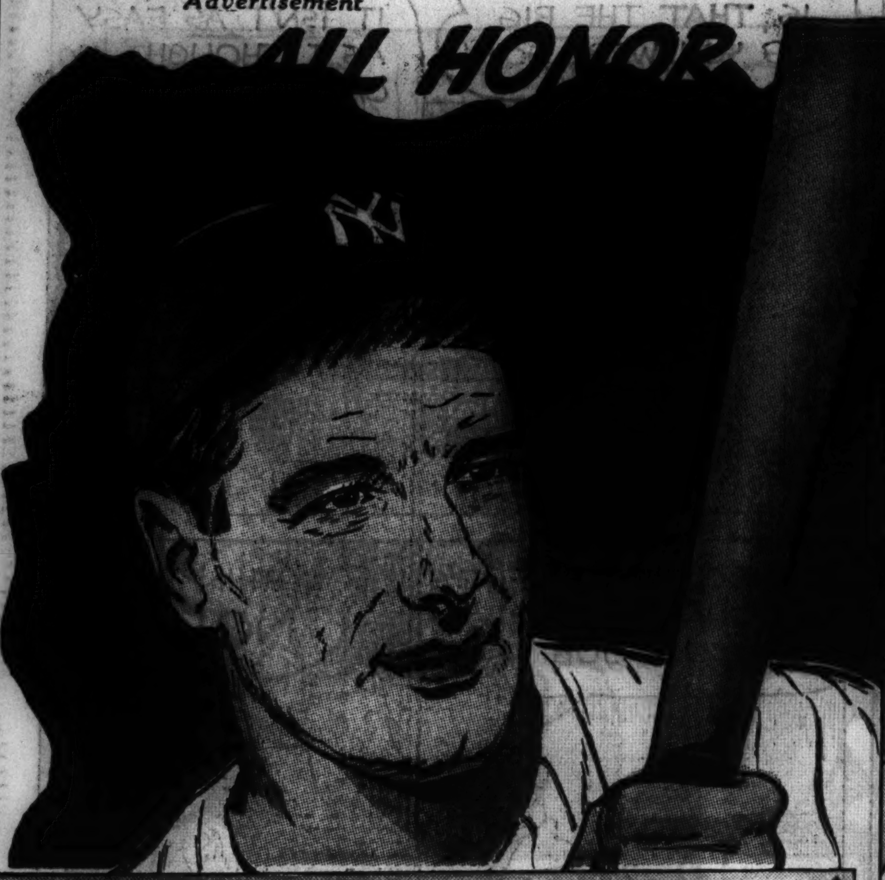
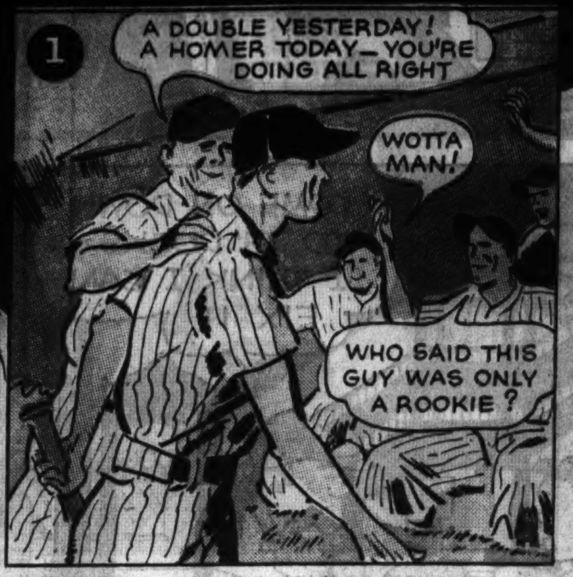
ALL HONOR TO A GREAT ATHLETE

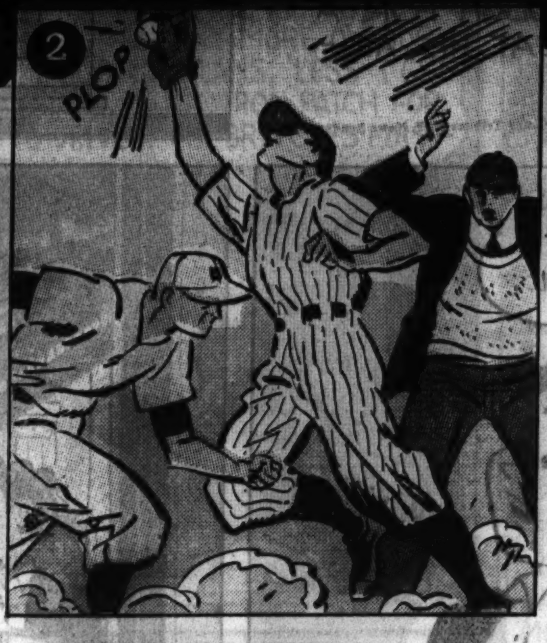
LOU GEHRIG





1
A DOUBLE YESTERDAY! A HOMER TODAY—YOU'RE DOING ALL RIGHT
WOTTA MAN!
WHO SAID THIS GUY WAS ONLY A ROOKIE?

THIRTEEN YEARS IN THE BIG LEAGUE. "Rookie" Gehrig signed up with the New York Yankees in 1923 and started making baseball history. September 27th that year he hit his first home-run. By 1927 he was the American League's MOST VALUABLE PLAYER. And won the same honor again in 1931, 1934, and 1936.



A GREAT FIRST BASEMAN. Lou's prowess as a slugger is matched by his brilliant play at first base. His record last year was only 6/1000ths short of PERFECT. He had 1,377 put-outs, 82 assists, and 128 double plays.

TWO-THREE-
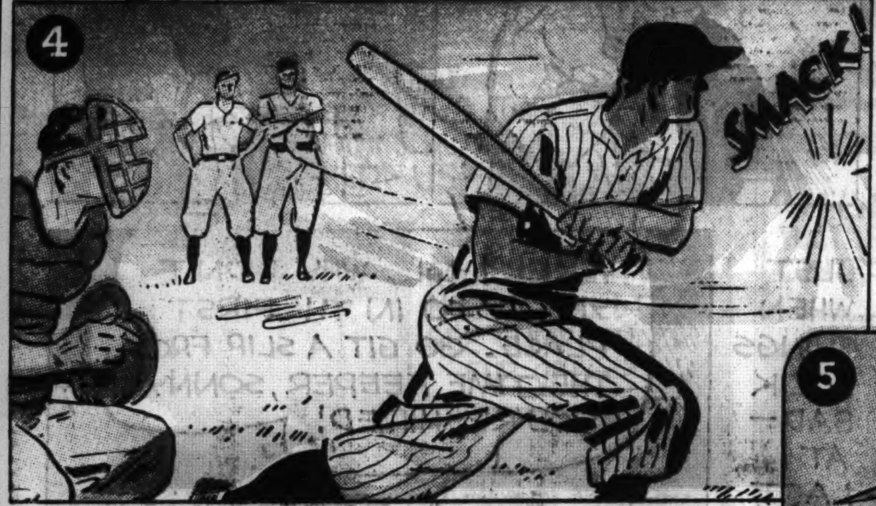
FOUR HOME RUNS IN ONE GAME! YEOW!

LOU HOLDS MORE RECORDS than any other man in the game today. Here are a few for any four-game World Series: most runs batted in (9); most home-runs (4); most bases on balls (6). During the regular schedule he has knocked 4 home-runs in one game—scored 100 or more runs and batted in 100 or more runs for 11 consecutive American League seasons. Lou has hit for 400 or more bases every year for the last five years.



THE HOME-RUN KING! Gehrig has an average of 38 home-runs per season. In 1931, Gehrig shared the crown as the American League's home-run king by knocking out 46 circuit clouts. He led the league with 49 homers in 1934 and again in 1936. Gehrig's follow-through is shown above. With only 2/5ths of a second to size up a pitched ball, it takes healthy nerves to connect with one, and, as Lou says: "Camels don't get on my nerves."

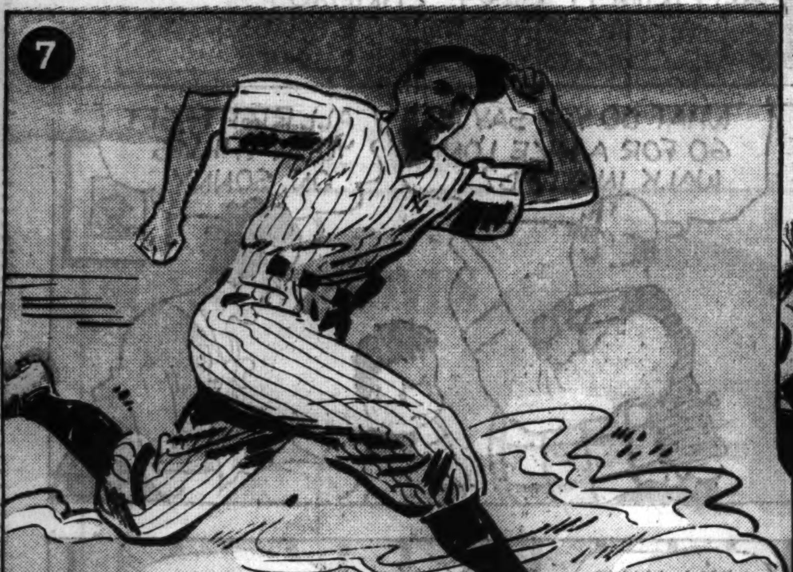
For Digestion's Sake CAMELS
PACK OF CAMELS? YES, SIR!
SOCK IT, 'IRON MAN'!
YES, MABEL, IT'S HIS 1809TH GAME WITHOUT A BREAK

BASEBALL'S "IRON-MAN"! When Lou steps out on the field, this month, for the first game of the 1937 season—he'll be playing his 1,809th consecutive game. His streak started 'way back on June 1st, 1925. Injuries never stopped "Iron-Man" Gehrig. Once he chipped a bone in his foot—yet knocked out a homer, two doubles, and a single next day. Another time, he was knocked out by a "bean ball," yet next day walloped 3 triples in 5 innings. Gehrig's "Iron-Man" record is proof of his splendid physical condition. As Lou says: "You can bet all the years I've been playing, I've been careful about my physical condition. Smoke? I smoke and enjoy it. My cigarette is Camel."

HERE'S LOU'S FAVORITE BAT and his favorite first baseman's mitt. His bat is especially made. It weighs 37 ounces—is 35 inches long. He wears out two mitts a season—and you can just imagine the knocks he absorbs doing it.



CLEAN-UP MAN for the most sensational slugging aggregation ever known. Pity the pitcher who faces the Yankees' starting line-up. Three heavy hitters to face—then Lou Gehrig steps up to the plate. Lou holds the American League record for runs batted in. No wonder he's walked more than any other man playing today.

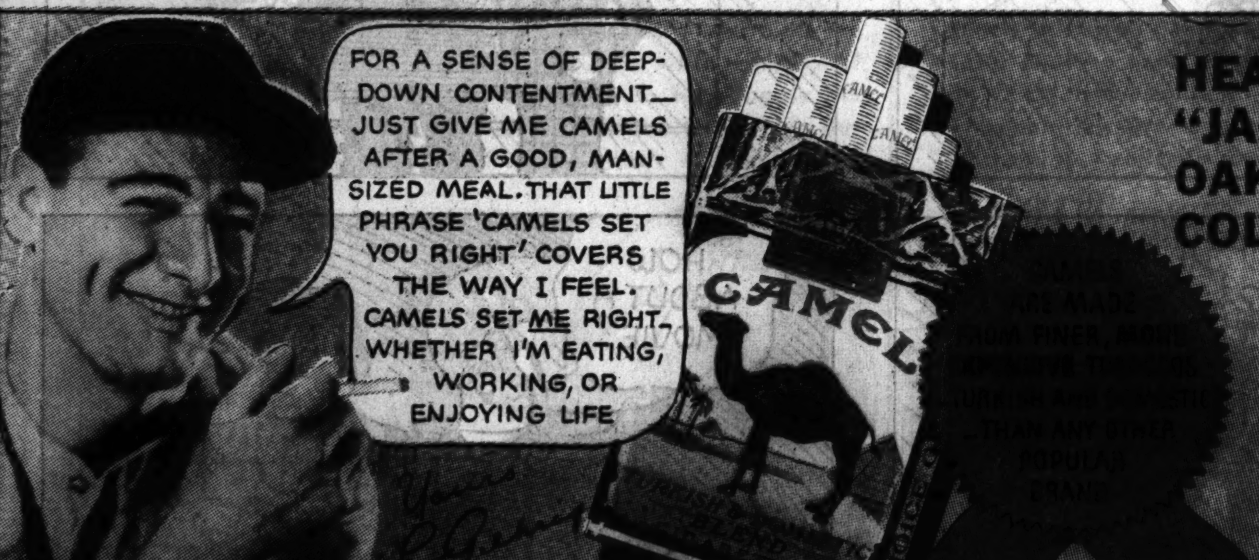
UM-M-M! HERE'S THE BEST PART OF EATING

X MARKS THE SPOT where once there was a thick juicy steak smothered in mushrooms—Lou's favorite dish. Gehrig is a big man—6 ft. 1 in. tall—weighs 210 pounds. And he has a big man's appetite. Lou eats what he wants and isn't bashful about coming back for "seconds." Read what he says below.



FOR A SENSE OF DEEP-DOWN CONTENTMENT—JUST GIVE ME CAMELS AFTER A GOOD, MAN-SIZED MEAL. THAT LITTLE PHRASE 'CAMELS SET YOU RIGHT' COVERS THE WAY I FEEL. CAMELS SET ME RIGHT—WHETHER I'M EATING, WORKING, OR ENJOYING LIFE

SCIENCE PROVES
Canaries need YEAST even more than do human beings
French's

You and your children have all the advantages of a wide variety of foods like these to help supply the diet essentials for health . . . But what about your Canary?

Experts in French's own aviaries have found the answer in YEAST. Feeding tests with 3 generations of canaries proved that YEAST in the Canary's daily diet supplies the same tonic and regulating effects as foods that bring you better health. That's why French's now contains YEAST.

Tests also proved that the most effective way to give Canaries YEAST is in French's specially-prepared Bird Biscuit, included free in every package of French's Bird Seed.

NEW SONG!

The tonic benefits of yeast in French's will make your Canary feel like singing. Don't be surprised if you hear new notes of song! Yeast also helps Canaries to combat colds. It supplies vitamins that tend to prolong life.

Remember—in French's the yeast is in the Bird Biscuit, free in every package of French's Bird Seed—the right amount of yeast, in a food he eats freely because he likes it.

Don't risk your Canary's health and song! Surely, selecting the right food for your pet means more to you than the mere saving of a few pennies! To be safe, change to French's—the balanced diet that gives your canary the amazing advantages of yeast.

AIDS DIGESTION. Canaries need hard, sharp gravel to help them grind their food. French's Bird Gravel is hard quartz — uniformly sized and sterilized for health.

French's BIRD SEED and BISCUIT containing YEAST

NEAR NORTH SIDE

"Well, here's where we head in, pater." These words from my boy sound pretty good to me every night when we reach home. The Cook Estate tries to make their studios and apartments so darn comfortable and homelike that that's the place where you will like to head in, too. Double height ceilings, balconies and fireplaces. 2, 3, and 5 rooms. The 5 room is just great. Also a beautifully furnished studio apartment and other interesting places in which to live.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Seed Catalogs Arrive

April 17, 1937.

GAYLY illustrated seed catalogs are getting a lot of attention at the Yorkville farm. Drop in at any of the farm homes these days and you'll see alluring catalogs being studied now that it is time to get busy in the gardens.

The women are especially interested in flower seed books although there is plenty of garden seed literature also being examined on the farm. Art Wade was so impressed by the spring weather last week that he spaded a part of his garden plot and planted potatoes. From now on nearly everybody on the farm will be devoting some time to garden work so that the different families will have vegetables for table use.

April showers bring May flowers, but April winds are apt to blow down clothes and curtains during the spring housecleaning routine. When we were on the Yorkville farm the other day Mrs. Thurow was complaining about high winds interfering with her curtains. She put several sets on a line near her home. But the heavy April winds blew them away.

Rabbits Scare Hen.

One of the most amusing spring episodes that has occurred on the Yorkville farm during the last few days involved a hen and a pair of rabbits. What happened proves that rabbits have a sense of humor or else it's just one of those funny things that happen when a barnyard fowl gets mixed up with a couple of wild animals.

The hen had wandered some distance from the barnyard. She was scratching around looking for food in the pasture when right in front of her up popped a couple of rabbits. The scared hen let out a squawk and started to run for all she was worth. She headed for the barnyard making an awful racket. The rabbits, instead of going the opposite direction, trailed after this scared hen for a couple of yards and then turned and headed for the orchard. The poor hen was so frightened that she did 50 yards in about nothing flat.

There is a very persistent mutant pheasant on the Yorkville farm. Twice this bird has come to the poultry yard not far from Clarence's house and tried to get through the fence in order to join the chickens inside the yard.

It paced up and down the wire fence like an animal in a cage. But it failed to find an opening. When anybody came near it the bird flew back into the woods.

Ewes Get Chilly.

The ewes at Yorkville wouldn't mind having plenty of warm weather from now on. They have been sheared so they no longer have overcoats as protection against raw spring days. We notice that since they have been separated from their warm coats they like to huddle together in one of the barns when the wind has a bite in it.

The rat campaign on the Wheaton farm moved to the sheep barn and the poultry house this week and also was extended to Yorkville. The poultry house and barn have been practically free of rats. But during the last couple of weeks several "travelers" apparently have come to these buildings, probably due to the campaign against them in a group of farm buildings not far away. Red squill baits were distributed around the barn and the poultry house which should end the rat menace there.

—COULD YOU INVEST IN ANYTHING— that will match the security, independence, or investment of a good farm? Remember, the productivity of a good fertile farm is not affected by distressed economic conditions. Incomes from farms are very high, but the prices of good farms ARE THE LOWEST IN HISTORY, based on their present income.
We have highly productive farms with good buildings only 60 to 90 miles south of Chicago, in the famous Illinois Corn Belt, selling today FAR BELOW THEIR ACTUAL VALUE.
There is only a certain amount of good land. There will never be any more. OWN SOME OF IT. Buy it with good judgment and IT WILL TAKE CARE OF YOU AND YOUR CHILDREN.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

REPLACE GOOD PAVEMENTS.

Chicago, April 8.—Imagine my surprise when I looked out of the window this morning to find a crew of men engaged in tearing up the asphalt in our block [7300 Harvard avenue]. It seems a waste of public money when I know there are many streets in the city, some right in this vicinity, that need resurfacing more than ours. In fact, just around the corner there are, and have been for many months, several large holes in the paving, the repairing of which would have done more good than the work now being undertaken. I expect they will still be there when the men have gone. Also, our street is now "decorated" with wire stretched from one light post to another, apparently because the city lacks funds to make the necessary repairs on the underground wiring. L. DE SWARTE.

SUNDAY DRIVERS.

Chicago, April 12.—I noticed your article in this morning's TRIBUNE and would suggest that your good paper start a campaign to educate the poor sap drivers that block the center lanes of our fine four lane highways. It seems some of these Sunday drivers will never learn that the center is for passing only. In driving to my summer home in southern Wisconsin I find this trouble.

I think the state highway signs are not plain enough for some of the dumb drivers. They should say plainly "Drive on right side. Keep center of road for passing cars only." I think the highway police should stop these road blockers and give them a lecture or small fine to teach them where to drive.

GEORGE HOPPE.

A TRUCKER'S VIEWPOINT.

Chicago, April 3.—I noticed your article in yesterday's TRIBUNE, with respect to the restriction of the use of the highways by commercial vehicles.

While, so far as I know, long distance truck operators, for hire, would have no particular objection to having this restriction apply between 4 a. m. Sunday morning and midnight, it would be a very serious matter if they were to be restricted from the use of the highways from Saturday afternoon until 4 o'clock Sunday morning. As a matter of fact, practically all of the long distance trucks do not get out until after dark on Saturday and therefore do not interfere seriously with the use of the highways by people who wish to drive to resorts, as the majority of this trafic is in the daylight hours.

If the bill which Mr. Hruby has introduced were to pass it would greatly interfere with privately owned trucks. For example, gasoline delivery trucks must supply outlying filling stations, perhaps several times between Saturday noon and Sunday night, during the summer rush period. To my way of thinking it is a very serious discrimination when they would allow farm trucks to use the highways without restriction and not extend the same privilege to other commercial vehicles.

I wanted you to have these comments because I gained, from the last time we talked together and from your articles while you were making your transcontinental truck tour, the impression that you would like to see the commercial vehicles get a fair break.

TRAILER TAXES.

Madison, Wis., April 1.—State legislatures, many of which are now in session appropriating money far beyond their present revenue, are faced with the necessity of finding new and virgin fields for taxing since the old ones are so far overtaxed that, believe it or not, the taxpayer is beginning to kick. Now one of these virgin fields which for the most part is still untouched is an up and coming though infant industry known as the trailer business. Hotel men and others who are anxious for an excuse to pay less taxes [and one can hardly blame them] are complaining that these people are getting out of paying their just share of the tax bill and besides what will happen to me if these new contraptions actually come into vogue? Well this just pleases the legislators who have probably had their daily sleep disturbed by bad dreams of an unbalanced budget and a chance to please one group of people [although their taxes won't be reduced any].

Granting that what the hotel and restaurant owners say all be true it would indeed be a grave injustice to slap a heavy tax on trailers in order to get at those who own no personal property and live the year around in their trailer. First, many of those who belong to this group would not in most cases be able to afford to stay at hotels. The government is now getting more off them in gasoline tax than any form of tax if they stayed at home. It is true that a large number of salesmen are taking advantage of this form of living in order to save money. The reason for this is necessity since being a salesman now is a plenty tough racket. The majority of those salesmen who are fairly successful still stay at hotels.

However, the great majority of people now owning trailers are people who own their own property, pay taxes, etc., and who in eras past were the great body of stay-at-homes. These people use their trailer for two or three weeks in the summer and maybe week-ends. It would be wrong to tax these people in proportion to those who live entirely in their trailer. I therefore propose the following plan.

First, that the tax should be in proportion to the approximate value of the trailer [or weight].

Second, that they be licensed by the month rather than the year. The tags could be stuck to the trailer and thus the tax fall according to the amount the trailer was used. I also propose that trailers be tax free if used only week-ends.

Third, that some sort of an agreement be made between the states lost through higher and higher retaliatory taxes this industry be taxed out of existence.

DICK KNAUF.

BUSES' BLAST HORNS.

Chicago, April 12.—I was interested in a reference in yesterday's newspaper to the intercity bus with a horn like a steamboat whistle. To use these compressed air blasts in city trafic is a violation of the Illinois motor vehicle code which prohibits motor vehicles from operating a horn emitting an unreasonably loud sound. Any policeman witnessing one of these offenses should make an arrest. Any citizen with nerves shattered by the explosive noise of one of those horns can swear out a warant.

LAWYER.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Nash has a new body type named the "all purpose coupe." Behind the regular coupe seat, inside the car, are two folding seats, giving a capacity of five persons when the occasion demands. These opera seats, when not in use, are flush against the back of the car affording more than ordinary inside space for luggage. There is another spacious baggage compartment in the rear deck. The all purpose coupé type body is available in all three of the Nash 1937 series, the Nash eight and six and the LaFayette.

Two hundred and fifty Willys dealers and salesmen attended the first annual dealer convention of the new Willys of Chicago, Inc., here last week. These key men of the Illinois sales organization, who control more than 100 dealers in every section of the state, went back to their territories well armed with plans for a spring sales campaign that is expected to set a new pace for Willys-Overland in automobile merchandising.

David R. Wilson, president, traced the progress that has been made since the company was organized last fall and introduced the 1937 models at automobile shows last November.

More cars were produced by Packard in March and more delivered to purchasers than in any other month in the entire history of the company, it is announced by M. M. Gilman, vice president and general manager. Still further increases are indicated by the present higher rate of production and by delivery reports from the selling field for the first ten days of April, he added. Production for the first three months this year, Mr. Gilman said, exceeded that for the first quarter of 1936 by 131 per cent.

A gain of 52 per cent in Graham domestic retail deliveries for March as compared with February is reported by L. A. Miller vice president of Graham-Paige.

R. F. Gloster last week was promoted in the Studebaker corporation from South Bend zone manager to assistant sales manager with headquarters in New York. With the recent reopening of the Chicago branch, C. H. Monahan has been regional manager here.

SPEED COPS GIVE MOTORCYCLISTS LESSON IN QUIET

BY HAL FOUST.

Capt. David Flynn, in command of the police trafic division, last week inspected the mufflers on all of the motorcycles ridden by speed cops. Then he issued these instructions:

"Your machines are now as quiet as engineers can make them. Don't let any one else ride a motorcycle on the streets of Chicago without an adequate muffler."

This news concerns more than the few thousand who own the two-wheel jobs. There are delivery boys for drug stores and for garages who shock the nerves of whole neighborhoods with the back fire from their twin cylinder machines. Garages, with three wheel motorcycles, deliver automobiles to apartment house and hotel districts in the before breakfast hours when many residents would continue their sleep.

Small Engine; Big Noise.

The motorcycle industry has been delinquent in the development of adequate mufflers. With engines about a fourth the size of the plants in automobiles, the reduction of exhaust noises has been a more difficult task than with motor cars. Some motor cycles are still sold with cutouts as standard equipment.

"We try to discourage the use of cutouts," said a South Michigan avenue dealer, "but motorcycle owners are an independent lot. There are high school boys who have removed the mufflers from their machines.

"The muffler reduces top speed about seven miles an hour. Our big jobs, instead of having a top of 10 miles an hour with the cutout, have a top of 98 with the muffler. There's plenty of power and speed with the exhaust noises quieted.

Dealer Favors Mufflers.

"The operation of motorcycles without a muffler has given our vehicle a bad reputation. We are in favor of the enforcement of the muffler laws."

Under the Illinois motor vehicle code it is a misdemeanor to operate a motor vehicle on any public street or highway without the exhaust noises being properly muffled. A statute enacted by the legislature two years ago authorizes the secretary of state to recall the registration plates of any vehicle involved in three violations of the muffler requirements. Gov. Horner, in a bill pending before the present general assembly, recommends repeal of this license revocation provision.

TRUCKS REMOVED FROM ROUTES OF SUNDAY DRIVERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., April 17.—[Special.] —The new venture of Illinois state highway patrolmen in clearing the main roads of slow moving trucks for the benefit of Sunday passenger car trafic today recalled a move Wisconsin authorities made in that direction three years ago.

Beginning in 1934, the state public service commission each year has issued an order barring from specified highways on week-ends and holidays between Memorial day and the second week-end in September all trucks with a gross weight of 6,000 pounds or more, except the following: Emergency vehicles, such as public utility service trucks and ambulances; trucks used exclusively to haul newspapers, livestock, milk, cream, fresh fruit and vegetables, ice cream, fresh bakery goods, and ice and wreckers.

Last year the commission's order applied to 21 stretches of congested Wisconsin highways. An annual hearing is held to determine what highways or parts of them shall be regulated under the order. New roads and shifts in trafic have made changes necessary each year, commission officials said.

The 1937 order will become effective on Sunday, May 30, and continue through the week-end of Sept. 11-12. Heavy trucks, other than those on the exemption list, will be barred from the specified highways from 1 to 11 p. m. on Saturdays and from 9 a. m. to midnight on Sundays and holidays.

When the first commission order became effective in May, 1934, it was believed to be the first of its kind in the United States. "We have found that trafic flows much more smoothly and certainly a great number of accidents have been prevented," a commission official said.

The orders are issued under provisions of the 1933 Wisconsin motor transportation act, which contained clauses intended to relieve congestion and increase safety on the heavily traveled highways.

Expert Gives Canned Meats Home Test

By MARY MEADE.

(Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.)

LOST in a sea of canned meat! Billows of ham and pork loin arise on either side. Whirlpools of pickled pigs' feet draw one back at each attempt to clamber over a wave of tripe. Corned beef hash dashes against one's face. And cocktail frankfurters rain down from the sky! The only way to save yourself from this maelstrom of meat is to eat your way out!

Yes, it was a dream, but not an entirely irrelevant one, for there was the reality of a kitchen full of canned meat—large cans, small cans, square cans, round ones, some of them weighing only 3 ounces, others 10 pounds. More than 150 cans were there, lining the shelves, overflowing to the floor. All of this meat must be opened and tested. Chile, tamales, pork brains and all!

This was the reason. Meat Magazine, a monthly publication for meat packers, had organized an extensive survey to determine why canned meat sales weren't greater in volume. As the housewife is a large potential purchaser of canned meats, editors of the magazine wanted to discover why she didn't buy them more frequently. They came to the Tribune cooking editor to find out.

Canned meat products of 10 important packers were sent to me with the request that I open, examine, and prepare them for the table just as would the average housewife. Then I was to report my findings, through the medium of the magazine, in a series of three articles.

Each product was judged, not only by a taste test, but by its appearance, the attractiveness of its label, and the adequacy of serving suggestions made on the label. A comparison of cost between canned meat and fresh meat of the same type also was made. A thorough and critical analysis to determine just what the average housewife might find objectionable in canned meats was intended. As a comparison of similar products of different packers was desired, it was necessary to test 10 cans of corned beef hash or of chile, for instance, at the same time.

I made a number of discoveries during this extensive period of canned meat testing. Among them were these:

1. There are dozens of canned meat products with which the average housewife is unfamiliar. Many of these would appeal to her if called to her attention.
2. Housewives would be further attracted to canned meat if every label bore a statement of ingredients, a guarantee of quality, and adequate suggestions for serving the product.
3. Canned hams and pork loins and canned frankfurters, especially the cocktail variety, are excellent products. The ham and loin are not too expensive when it is considered that they are ready cooked and boned.
4. "Roast beef" might better be labeled "steamed beef" because of the processing method. While it does not resemble home roasted beef, it has many uses. Some canned stews are good; others need improvement.
5. Packers haven't yet discovered all the possibilities for use of their own canned products.

Suggestions for improvement of canned meat products and specific criticisms for each product were made in the magazine articles. Meat packers have shown a great interest in the results and many not represented in the survey have sent products for criticism since the publication of the articles.

Looking over the results of the entire survey of canned meats, I arrived at two major conclusions: 1. That the quality of canned meat, in general, may be further improved. 2. That if canned meat is brought to the attention of the housewife it will be as much to her advantage as to that of the packer, because the infinite variety of canned meats should mean to her not only more easily prepared meals, but a wider variety of table fare than she is able to provide now.

Ideally, a can of meat should have the following characteristics:

1. The meat contained is of choice quality.
2. It has been well cooked and properly seasoned. Overseasoning gives a characteristic "canned" flavor that is undesirable.
3. If the meat is in combination with other ingredients, the other ingredients have been carefully chosen, well cooked and well seasoned, and there is a goodly proportion of meat in relation to these added ingredients.
4. The label on the can is attractive in makeup, states the quality of the ingredients, names them, and gives serving suggestions, preferably in recipe form.

It was surprising to me that so many of the canned products tested were equally as desirable as fresh meats. In spite of the fact that the group which assisted in the testing lived on a diet consisting mainly of canned meats for a period of several weeks, there were no complaints and but few requests for fresh meat.

Below: Canned sausage patties, browned in butter, are prepared for the table. Canned sausage may be purchased in loaf shape, ready for slicing, in prepared patties, in "hash" form, or in pork sausage links.

Left: A platter of cold, canned luncheon meat is a labor saver for warm weather meals and a thoughtful addition to a "Dutch lunch" or Sunday night supper.

Above: Canned meat spreads add appeal to the tray of appetizers. Deviled ham, mock chicken spread and pate de foie gras were used in making these sandwiches and canapes.

Career Girl Clothes Do Good Job of Being Smart

By Rhea Seeger.

CLEVER clothes collectors, those snappy looking young office workers! Whether they are just fresh from the last of the pothook note books, starting at the very lowest step, or whether they unassumingly but most efficiently virtually run the entire show, unquestionably they have a decided flare for being well groomed, for finding suits, sleek dresses, slim, unusual ensembles, that look far more expensive than the price tags proclaim. They really are barometers of what the American well dressed woman wears and darn good examples of what a microscopic clothes allowance accomplishes in the hands of a knowing, enthusiastic clothes hound.

Nothing short of super distinctive outfits is chosen, even though it be just a jacket and a skirt. And miracles are performed each day with such outfits and ascots of different hues. If you weary of the "sore throat effect" try the skin smooth, linen blouses with virtually no sleeves and in vivid colors, so that a dashing V of color will show at the neckline of the jacket. When white accents are worn, they are spotless. Sometimes it's a huge carnation of white or pastel piqué clipped to a lapel; sometimes chalk white clips that stay white for weeks; sometimes a soft white sweater blouse under a well fitted jacket. Whatever the dramatics, it changes the ensemble magically and always makes it look brand new.

SIMPLE, one piece dresses are almost a uniform, but the secret is superlative streamlines, fitted underlayers and, believe it or not, a good portion of the clothes allowance first goes for that most important underlayer. "The best of materials" makes it possible for a dress to take its regular trip to the cleaner and to return as good as new. These dresses are chosen not only for simplicity but for lines that remain dateless, and for details of stitching, well spaced plaits, restrained bits of trim, if any, and sleeves that flatter and that are not spectacularly puffed.

Sheer wool and dull crêpes go strong for these wardrobes — supple stuffs that keep a press, that do not wrinkle easily, and that take the daily punishment of active living. Black, deep blue, dark brown, forest green, and even extremely dark red are basic office colors that can be dramatized with white dotted scarfs, ascots, belts, and bows, with lighter shades of the ensemble color, with stripes, or with beige, copper or flesh.

Belts, hosiery, and handkerchiefs are three small but effective ways of achieving good color contrasts. Colored zippers is another idea . . . one quite new.

WE have sketched four new spring outfits, each agood basic ensemble for a smart office wardrobe. All of them are shown in black, but can be duplicated in navy and sometimes in brown.

A . . . Sleek and ready for any kind of a day is this short sleeved dress of sheer, dull crêpe, but a heavy sheer. A contrasting band of sharkskin streaks up the front and around the cuffs and neckline. Otherwise it is puritanically plain, but terrifically smart. Ready for an important dinner date or a good movie after a busy day, it can be made more decorative by the addition of a short sleeved bolero jacket of light shaded sharkskin. Comes in navy with band and bolero of French blue, or in black trimmed and bolero-ed in parlor pink.

B . . . A bit more efficient, but made with the same engaging smartness, is this ensemble that combines a black and dull white checked skirt that has flat side plaits with a fitted, dull black jacket top. Some of the checkered material faces the short, high lapels of the jacket. A patent lether flower matches the narrow patent lether belt. The skirt can be worn with gray, white, beige, or green linen jackets during the summer and the jacket can be used with other skirts.

C . . . As flawlessly tailored and designed as the most expensive of tailored suits is this one piece dress in a fabric of dull crêpe. The plaits are achieved by an expert. Buttons go down the front, and a white dotted, yellow bow belt and pocket handkerchief provide a most interesting contrast.

D . . . A brand new spring suit dress, with a flare skirt, rather short jacket, and frilled blouse. The material is of a soft, dull texture, and the dress if self-trimmed with shaped bands. Barred net resembling tucked material makes the blouse, which has a high neckline and a big pouff of the net at the throat. All dresses sketched carry reasonable price marks and all are to be found in a boulevard shop in Chicago.

Marbleized Enamel Attractive Finish in Painted Kitchen

BY "marbleizing" the enamel one can obtain a practical finish for a painted kitchen. This is not a difficult process. After the ground coat has dried thoroughly apply a light tint and before this is dry take an elongated wad of wrapping paper and place it firmly on the floor. Roll it over and over. In this way some of the wet coat is removed allowing the ground coat to show through. After this had dried thoroughly finish with a coat of wax.

Simplicity Is Key to Cutting Wedding Costs

Hints on what clothing the bride should select are given in the booklet, "Selecting the Trousseau," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

NINTH in the wedding etiquet series.

This is a discussion of the wedding finances in anything but a romantic phase of the subject. And when the strictest economy must be observed, it is even less romantic. With many prospective brides, economy is a thing that must be considered, however. Here is where the budget system shows to advantage because, without it, there is danger of too large a proportion of the allowance being spent on wedding gown, veil, reception and decorations, which funds, doubtlessly, could have been used to better advantage in collecting a more adequate trousseau. There is no evidence of good judgment or taste in consciously or unconsciously overlooking the necessities and the items of lasting value in favor of a showy demonstration which lasts 30 minutes at the most.

THE expenses of the wedding that the bride or her family are expected to bear were tabulated for you last week in this column. They are the invitations, trousseau [bride's personal wardrobe and household linens], bridal gown and veil, bouquets for attendants, presents to the attedants, decorations for church and house, musicians, motors for bridal party to and from church, expenses of reception, and wedding announcements.

A big slice can be cut from the expenses when it is necessary to do so, by having the wedding take place at home. True, the house will have to be decorated a little, but a casual and dignified arrangement of fresh cut flowers is all that is required. This expense is as nothing compared with decorating the church. A home wedding also lessens the need for expensive musicians. A simple ceremony makes a simple piano rendition of the wedding march quite adequate. A present to the friend of the bride who performs this function is all that is required in the way of payment for her services. Transportation to and from the church for the wedding party may be forgotten entirely.

Another cut in the expenses becomes effective when the bride decides on an informal wedding rather than a formal one, and decides on wearing an afternoon dress or suit instead of the formal wedding gown and veil. By so doing the bridegroom's problem of correct attire is simplified. He is allowed to wear a business suit. And for an informal wedding there is no need for engraved invitations. Instead, the bride or her mother may write little personal notes to the friends and relatives who are to be invited, or invitations may be telephoned.

SO far we have eliminated everything except the bride's wedding dress and traveling costume [which may be one and the same thing], the trousseau, the reception and the announcements.

The trousseau will consume the greater percentage of the allowance. How that amount is divided between towels, table cloths and lingerie will depend on the individual bride, on what she needs, and on the size of the household she expects to establish.

A summer bride may have a charming frock at a moderate cost. Cotton is a highly fashionable fabric. If the bride is practical she will choose a dress that fills other needs in her wardrobe. Or she may prefer a suit or a tailored outfit that she can wear as her "going away" costume. Suitable fabrics for a summer wedding dress are organdy, dotted Swiss, handkerchief linen, mousseline de soie, silk crêpe, chiffon, lace, and paper taffeta. Flowers for the bride and her attendant [if she has one] may be fresh cut garden flowers . . . bridal wreath, sprays of apple blossoms, lilacs, tulips, lillies of the valley. White gladioli with shasta daisies would make a pretty arm bouquet.

With careful management a small amount of money will see the bride through the reception. The menu would be just the same as that for an afternoon tea. Tiny open faced sandwiches, relishes, pretty cakes, salted nuts, fondant patties, tea and coffee and wedding cake comprise a typical collation. Even that list may be cut down to wedding cake and punch, if necessary.

A FEW NOTES ON FASHION EFFICIENCY

● A . . . This brand new spring suit dress has a flare skirt, a rather short jacket, and a frilled blouse with a high neckline.

Single Item May Be Inspiration for Decorative Theme

EVERY room scheme, if it is to work out successfully, must have a definite starting point.

It may be some very insignificant item—a lamp that we like, a picture, or a treasured piece of bric-a-brac. Or it may be a length of fabric which we have seen and would like to use in some way. If there are a few present belongings which are to remain, these are sure to furnish an inspiration, even though they may not play an important part in the finished room. But something to start your imagination working is the first requirement always.

One woman began a bathroom color scheme with a gorgeous yellow bath towel some one had given her for a shower present. It was one of those ultra-luxurious affairs, thick and heavy with plain white borders and the yellow was just the color of butter. She loved it and wanted to buy more towels and wash cloths to match.

So, using this as the starting point, the scheme for the bathroom was planned around it. The lower walls are white tile and the fixtures are white, too. The upper walls and ceiling are painted soft yellow to exactly match the towel and the woodwork is done in white gloss enamel.

The single window will have white Venetian blinds with yellow tapes and tied back curtains of white muslin. The shower curtain is to be a boldly patterned one in yellow and white. Then to give a sharp contrast there are to be a few accents in brilliant dark green.

A decorative white wire wall rack is to hang on one wall space and this is to be filled with green glass bottles and jars. The rug will be plain velvety green and a green tumbler will be put in the glass holder.

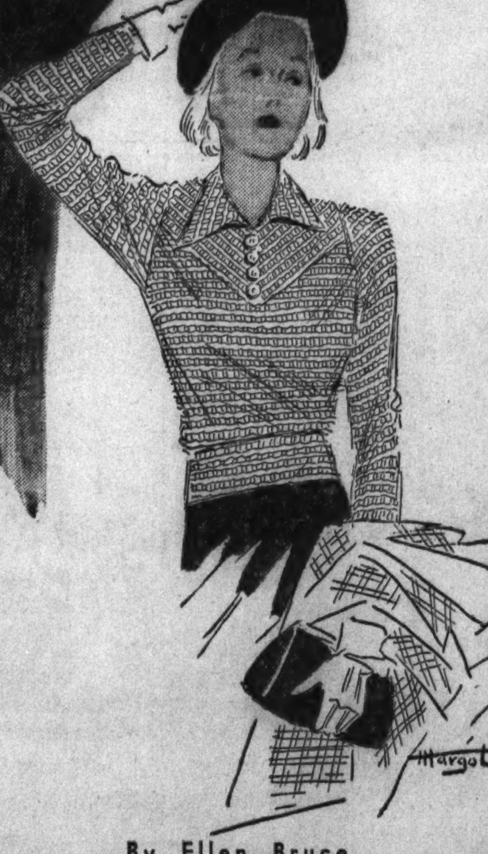
Hand Crocheted Suits Are Late Spring Favorites



By Ellen Bruce.

COTTON and linen suits with contrasting blouses are the favorite crocheted outfits for late spring and the first warm days of summer. The suits usually are of a close, firm crocheted stitch which prevents stretching of any kind. The blouses, like the one illustrated today, are of a tailored openwork mesh or a lacy, elaborate openwork pattern. The lusterless pink sports blouse is worn with a natural or beige linen suit. The tight waist band and smooth sleeves fit beautifully under the rather slick fitting jacket. The sleeves are joined to the yoke so as to create a semi-raglan effect. The buttons may be of natural wood, or of bone to match the suit.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for crocheting the filet sport blouse illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Here Are Ways to Keep White Articles Clean

SINCE the accent on white is so strong in household accessories at the present time the problem of keeping these things clean is a pressing one. Here are a few hints for those who are puzzling over ways and means of freshening up various white articles around the house.

White wooden furniture. Apply sifted whiting with a soft, damp cloth. Rinse with a piece of soft flannel that has been dipped in cold water, and wipe dry and polish with soft silk.

White candles. Saturate a cloth in alcohol and apply to renew the luster.

White window shades. If these are not washable try a good grade of commercial wall paper cleaner.

White painted woodwork. If paint finish is a good quality one you may use warm water and mild soap. Rinse well and dry with lintless cloth. A cloth moistened with kerosine always is effective on a painted surface which should not be given much washing with soap and water. Use kerosine sparingly on white paint, however, as it has a tendency to yellow it in time.

White patent lether articles. Finger marks may be removed from these articles by rubbing with a cloth dipped in cold milk.

White marble objects. Make a paste of benzine and powdered soapstone and apply over soiled or greasy spots. Let stand overnight, removing with warm water in the morning. Avoid acids in cleaning marble and use only soft brushes and soft cloths.

Early Colonial Days, Era of Primitive Lighting

WHAT do you think was the most popular form of lighting among our earliest American settlers? It may surprise you to know that they used a lamp similar to a type employed in ancient Rome and Athens, a lamp which had not changed essentially over a period of thousands of years. This lamp, boat-shaped, and using fish oil and an open wick, was called the "betty" lamp, it gave weak illumination and discharged thick, odorous curls of smoke. It is rather flattering for us moderns to note how improved our lighting systems have become in such a short space of time.

Italian Women Rapidly Joining Army of Moderns

A GIRL'S dowry in Italy today is more likely to consist of a university education and the preparation for a career than the old-fashioned sum of money, according to Mme. Olivia Rossetti Agresti, who has just finished a lecture tour from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore.

Known as one of Europe's keenest political commentators, Mme. Agresti is outstanding proof of her argument that, contrary to American opinion, the position of women in Italy is a progressive one. She holds a key position in the Italian Confederation of Industrialists, has served as interpreter at virtually every major European conference since the world war, and has been a lifelong student of social and economic movements in Europe.

"Americans have the wrong impression of Italian women," says Mme. Agresti. "The latter play a big part in the business and professional life of their country, and their position is a progressive one.

"Since the world war there has been a great turnover in fortunes, and nowadays a girl comes to a marriage with a dowry consisting of an education and the preparation for a career, more often than with one consisting of a lump sum of money, because Italian women today are not reared purely for marriage."

Between 1921 and 1931, said Mme. Agresti, the number of women occupied in hard field work fell off 30 per cent, due to an increase in wages and living standards.

Women in journalism, teaching, medicine, and nursing are constantly increasing in number, and in 1925 it became illegal to dismiss a woman from any government job, national or local, because of marriage, and this rule has also been established in private business.

IF you've been wondering what special providence took a hand in shaping the lovely svelte and graceful creatures mannequinning the clothes you've come to see and ponder about buying, perhaps a certain little book just out, on how to become a successful mannequin, will tell you. Anyway it will tell you a great many things you ought to know about what makes a dress a success besides material and dressmaker's tag.

Yes, if you will listen to Carol Lynn, in "Modeling for Money" [Greenburg], you'll discover that that walk you envy hasn't been achieved as naturally as you think, nor the lithe body, nor, perhaps, the good back. There's a great deal of goings-on behind the scenes to perfect the model's walk, her posture generally, her ease, poise, and grace. Carol Lynn, author of the little book, hides behind a nom de plume, but she knows of what she speaks and writes because she has been a successful model and still is one.

AS Miss Lynn says, even though you may have no ambition to parade at a style show at so much per hour, how to attain that perfection of carriage, grace, and poise that makes anything you choose to buy and wear look smart should become a personal ambition. Acquiring a flair for wearing clothes well may save you barrels of money, it is hinted. As Miss Lynn points out, there are women whose clothes are neither expensive nor exclusive models, but whose wearing of them gives them a sense of importance comparable to any imported model.

We are told of the drama, as the author-model sees it, of a gown displayed by the mannequin. The same gown on its prospective owner later may show a marked change, but not through the fault of the gown, you may be sure, but because the woman buyer brings to it rounded shoulders, or maybe a poor carriage. And all the artistry of all the Vionnets, Lanvins, Mainbochers, Alixes, and so on, combined, cannot make a chic woman of one with a poor and distorted carriage.

The author-model herself, as well as most of the other successful models, had to enroll in a school in order to learn the technique that goes into the proper mannequin display of a gown. You must learn to walk, as already hinted; how to use your hands; how to come down stairs with body erect and head up and no groping your way down or looking for the next step. You learn about coiffures. You learn that an extreme style of hair dressing is not the thing for wear with sports clothes, and vice versa.

You are put through a series of limbering and stretching exercise as your first step toward acquiring the perfect walk and poise. If the shoulders need straightening and neck hollows need filling in you are given special exercises. If you're a bit "hippy" you have to plane down this part of the anatomy. If the thighs are too fulsome, you sit on the floor, with legs and feet crossed, arms folded Hindu fashion, and you rock from side to side as far over on each thigh as you can go without losing balance. A fine exercise, if you'll do it morning and night regularly, I will add from personal experience.

Strong emphasis is placed on back beauty in Miss Lynn's recital of smart dress needs. No dress can stand up under the round shouldered drawback. With a good straight back you can wear your bargain number with a flair, you're promised. But with round shoulders, chest caved in and stomach protruding the gown hasn't a chance nor the woman in it.

A smooth back and hips are the designer's delight. To accomplish these Miss Lynn offers two exercises. Stand with back against wall, heels together, toes pointing outward. Touch the wall with shoulders and back for the full length of the spine. It is necessary to swing the hips slightly forward to accomplish this. Keep abdomen in. Relax and repeat twenty times.

The second exercise is: Lie flat on floor, legs together. Bring up knees, keeping feet flat on floor. Touch backbone to floor and keep touching for ten counts.

THE mannequin's walk is practiced before a full length mirror. Start a distance away and walk toward the mirror. Stand erect, feet together, stomach in, hips slightly forward, and then walk in a straight line, taking steps of medium length. This, for the smooth, gliding walk. Keep on walking the straight line until you have it down pat, an easy, natural thing. And then, when you have accomplished the first step go around with book or magazine on your head. Allot yourself a distance to cover and until you can make that distance ten times without shifting or spilling the book you're not to shout that you're wonderful.

So, now, you see if all that training must go into showing the frock off beautifully before you get it you may be sure that having to wear it for months means training for you so it will look its value and you your own very best value too.

A word on measurements for the corset model, as Miss Lynn presents them, may be enlightening to the rest of us. The bust measurement for the size 32 corset model must be 32 inches, her waist 25 inches, and her hips 34 or 35 inches. The size 34 corset model has 34 inch bust, 26 inch waist, and 36 inch hips. The size 36 model has 36 inch bust, 29 inch waist, and 39 inch hips. Size 38 model is 38 inch bust, 32 inch waist, and 42 inch hips. Size 40 has a 40 inch bust, 33 inch waist, and 43 inch hips. A chance here to get out the tape measure and do a little comparing and, perhaps, a little dieting or exercising, or both, yes?

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune.

IT'S THE WOMAN WHO "MAKES" THE CLOTHES

At right: This devastating creature is Betty Wyman, one of the most successful models in the business. Long and careful training creates svelte figures, poise, graceful carriage, and the air of delightful sophistication of professional mannequins. Their loveliness sells gowns in the smart shops, and it's up to you women to equal their poise and grace when you wear the garments yourself. It can be done.

Below: Carol Lynn, author of an illuminating book about models and their profession, poses here, showing off to advantage the intrinsic loveliness of a fur cape. If you don't carry yourself well, and if you don't have impeccable grooming, the same fur cape might look like a rag over your shoulders. In the accompanying article Miss Lynn passes on some valuable suggestions about the wearing of clothes.

Just Picture an Englishman Sans Hobby!

LONDON

England is the country where a man is considered "queer" if he lacks a hobby. Every one must have a hobby quite apart from his business. Even small boys at school are taught they must have a hobby, and everything is done to let them find one. "Prize giving" usually includes not only rewards for good work in all the usual subjects but it includes a prize for the best hobby.

It is not to be wondered at that hobbies frequently usurp the news. Near Central hall, Westminster, a constant stream of people passes under the coronation structures with no outward show that such an event is on the way. Their eyes are set straight for the annual exhibition of model railways! The relatively small hall is packed tight with men, women, and children of all ages, straining to see the latest thing in miniature railways, for this hobby is, perhaps, one of the most popular ones known, rivaling stock breeding, stamp collecting and golf.

THE amount of hobby literature in books and leaflets exhibited in the various library stalls is amazingly large, and the model layouts and rolling stock which take up the rest of the exhibition leave nothing to be desired.

A paradise for small boys, yes, but more than half of them are grown men and a large percentage of women. The small boys look on in wonder, the men run the railways, and the women mostly scrutinize the miniature scenery which seems to be their part in this absorbing hobby.

It must be remembered these are not toys. They are exact reproductions of real railways or perfect models of imaginary ones, each part to scale, and working as if it were carrying passengers in everyday life.

One of the most interesting is the new modern scheme with bright, streamlined, sun-roofed stations and landing fields attached, running aluminium cars through a landscaped right-of-way.

ANOTHER hobby which is causing congestion in the west end is an exhibition of 4,000 playing cards from the collection of H. T. Morley, honorary curator of the medieval section of the Reading museum. There are nearly 300 different packs, including samples from China, Japan, Persia, Germany, France, Holland, Spain, and Portugal. It is the world's largest collection.

The oldest pack is an astrological one issued in 1640 for fortune telling. The most valuable pack is a rare collection of 52 cards each bearing a map of an English or Welsh county, and was issued in 1680 bearing portraits of Charles II. and Queen Catherine. A "thousand and one waltzes" are engraved on the backs of 32 piquet cards published in Vienna in 1830. Two staves of music appear on each card and, by arranging the cards in sequence from king to ace, regardless of suit, almost unlimited melodic combinations are possible. A quaint reminder of prisoners of war exists in the pack carved from bones on which the symbols have been painted by hand.

Science Now Reveals Alkaline Cleansing Is A Chief Cause of Dry Skin

GOOD GRIEF !!! TO THINK THAT WASHING MY FACE IS RUINING MY COMPLEXION

That's why so many women suffer this beauty-robbing condition that makes skin rough, dry and old-looking

Here's what you should do

IF you have wondered why your skin is so dry and rough, in spite of everything you have done, then you will be thrilled to know that modern beauty science has not only found a chief cause of this trouble—BUT, MOST IMPORTANT, A WAY TO CHANGE THIS BEAUTY-ROBBING CONDITION. What you do is substitute a neutral cleanser for an alkaline one.

For skin specialists will tell you that alkaline cleansing can actually cause dry skin. And virtually ALL popular cleansers in use today are alkaline in reaction. Their daily use actually removes precious lipoid material from the skin, faster than nature can resupply it. The very lipoid substance which the skin must have, to be fresh and youthful.

This is why so many women suffer with drying skin today. Why skin looks old long before its time.

But today, a wonderful new skin cleanser has been developed which is ABSOLUTELY NEUTRAL IN ACTION. It is called Lavena and it makes such a thrilling difference in your complexion that you will be simply amazed.

Lavena is not soap! It is not cold cream! It is a brand new beautifier that cleanses the skin to a thrilling degree of beauty—removes every trace of dirt and make-up—without drying the skin—without robbing it of the precious lipoid material it must have to be fresh and youthful.

This is why the skin is so soft and smooth and velvety after Lavena is used. Why it is gloriously refreshed and radiant. Why the complexion is left thrilling beyond compare.

Women who have used Lavena rave about the new softness, new smoothness, new beauty of their complexions. A week's trial will prove a revelation to you. Get Lavena from your drug, department or 10c store at once. Follow the simple directions printed below. Over 4 million packages have already produced amazing results. Start using Lavena today for the beauty thrill of your life.

Do These 2 Simple Things Daily

1. Put a small quantity of Lavena in the palm of your hand and moisten with warm water until it becomes thin and creamy. Then apply to your face with finger-tips and massage gently.
2. Remove from your face immediately with a wash cloth dipped in warm water. Entire treatment takes less than one minute. Do not use soap or cold cream.

Week to Find D. A. R. Society in Washington

By Ruth De Young.

WOMEN of patriotic ancestry from 48 states of the Union will join with diplomats and congressmen on Capitol hill in Washington, D. C., this week.

In a colorful ceremony tomorrow night the Daughters of the American Revolution will open their 46th annual continental congress in Constitution hall, their handsome white marble home. The five day congress will combine ceremony with vital consideration of problems affecting the nation.

Mrs. Samuel James Campbell

Mrs. William H. Becker, president general of the D. A. R., predicts that the session will be one of the most important in the history of the organization. Listed for consideration are such problems as the President's Supreme court proposal, his youth program and the government's program for national defense.

Mrs. Vinton E. Sisson of Winnetka will conduct a national defense symposium at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower hotel, preceding the official opening tomorrow night. Your correspondent will be in Washington tomorrow in time to give you the news of this symposium and the opening session in the evening.

The Illinois delegates, with those from various western states, left Chicago yesterday afternoon on special cars attached to the Capitol Limited. Heading this party was Mrs. Samuel James Campbell of Mount Carroll, who will officially welcome Mrs. J. F. Zimmerman of Harvey as her successor as Illinois regent tomorrow night. Mrs. Zimmerman was elected to this post in Galesburg in the middle of March. Another Illinoisan who will have an important part in the national meeting is Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue, historian general of the national society.

Mrs. Jacob F. Zimmerman.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Ralph E. Church, wife of Congressman Church, will entertain at tea for the delegates. That evening the Illinois state dinner will be held in conjunction with the five other states that formed the old northwest territory. Following the dinner the president general will hold her reception in Memorial Continental hall.

On Wednesday Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will receive the delegation at the White House at 3 o'clock, and a final dinner is to be held Friday evening in the Mayflower hotel.

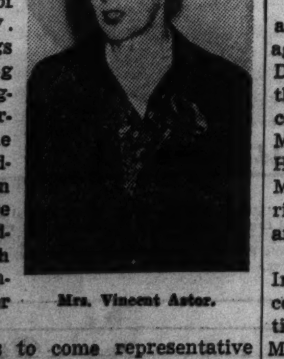
OF further interest will be the presentation of the 48 young women winning the good citizenship pilgrimage awards which grant them a trip to Washington for the continental congress. Illinois is represented this year by Miss Lorraine Ploszek of the Argo High school.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Campbell during the last year the Illinois D. A. R.'s have made a notable record. They have raised more than $6,000 for much needed philanthropy, particularly in the field of education. They also have swelled the fund which is making possible the erection of the Lincoln monument in Lawrence county at the spot where Lincoln first crossed the Wabash river from Indiana into Illinois. Only $4,000 of the total of $15,000 needed for the monument is yet to be raised.

Looking two years into the future, the advisory committee of women's participation in the 1939 New York world's fair announces a tentative program of activity. Meetings are being held at regular intervals in the fair headquarters in the Empire State building, with Mrs. Vincent Astor presiding.



Mrs. Vincent Astor.

In weeks to come representative women of the country are to be asked the question, "What outstanding activity for women would you like emphasized on the program of the New York world's fair?" according to Mrs. William H. Purdy, representative of the General Federation of Women's Clubs on the advisory committee. Mrs. Ruth Haller Ottoway, president of the National Council of Women, asks for the appointment of a key woman in each of the 48 states.

Mary Roberts Rinehart, author and another advisory committee member, has expressed keen interest in the basic scheme of the New York fair, "to make it a fair, not feminine as opposed to masculine, but one in which men and women work along together as they think along together."

MISS LENA MADESIN PHILLIPS, associate editor of Pictorial Review, is in favor of an international congress of women at the fair.

Some of the other members of this advisory committee which will meet again on May 6 are Mrs. Courtlandt D. Barnes, vice chairman; Mrs. Winthrop Aldrich, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, Miss Marguerite Wells, and Mrs. Julius Ochs Adler.

Music interest centers this week in Indianapolis where the 20th biennial convention and American music festival of the National Federation of Music Clubs is to be held. The location of the event is a sort of flood result, since the festival originally was to have been held in Louisville. The disastrous conditions resulting from the January floods made the change to Indianapolis necessary.

Mrs. John Alexander Jardine of Fargo, N. D., president of the music federation, will be the chairman of the convention and festival which opens next Friday to continue through the 29th.

• • •

ONE of the highlights of the program will be the presentation of Maxine Stellman, 27 year old dramatic soprano of Brattleboro, Vt., and Thomas L. Thomas, 25 year old Scranton, Pa., baritone, winners in the recent Metropolitan opera auditions of the air. Miss Stellman and Mr. Thomas will sing at the banquet the evening of April 24 in the Claypool hotel.

Speakers on this occasion will be Milton Cross, radio announcer; Mrs. Herbert Witherspoon of the Metropolitan Opera Guild; Dr. Nikolai Sokoloff, director of the Federal Music project, and an official of the Chicago City Opera company.

Besides 30 choral and instrumental groups representative of almost as many states, a number of outstanding artists from the American concert stage will take part. The list of soloists includes Beryl Rubinstein, pianist and director of the Cleveland Institute of Music; John Charles Thomas, baritone; John Powell, pianist and composer; Dalies Frantz, young artist winner of 1933, and W. Lawrence Cook, Louisville organist.

Another important feature of the festival will be the finals in the young artists' contests which will present the winners in 14 district contests. Preliminary contests are scheduled for Saturday and finals for Monday, April 26.

Indianapolis will be host to another assembly of distinguished visitors the week of May 23 when the National Conference of Social Work meets for its 64th annual session. The meeting is expected to draw more than 5,000 social workers from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Miss Edith Abott of the University of Chicago, eighth woman president of the conference since 1874, will deliver the keynote address. Her sister, Miss Grace Abbott, past president of the conference and former chief of the United States children's bureau, will have another leading part in the program. Topics such as relief, social security, child and family welfare, crime, public housing, and labor will come up for discussion.

UNDOUBTEDLY your wardrobe already has a frock designed along peasant lines. This quaint styling has taken the fashion world by storm, and it's time now for the variations. The dress I'm passing on to you today puts the peasant lines into the tailored category. I think you'll like this model, because it IS different. All the precious skirt fullness is intact, you will notice, but instead of being merely gathered into the waistline, it is plaited. You need not be afraid that the plaits will cause you sewing difficulties, because for a very small sum you can have the work done professionally, and the results will remain indefinitly.

The tailored model has a heart-shaped neckline trimmed with ruffling. Otherwise the frock is beautifully plain, with puffed sleeves offering the only contrast to the severe simplicity of the bodice. This is the type of frock you can wear to any daytime event. Soft plain silks are excellent mediums, and small prints make up surprisingly well. The idea of prints plus plaits is a grand idea, one that fits well into the late spring and early summer fashion picture.

The model sketched at the left has its own claims to individuality. It allows the skirt fullness to remain in the truly peasant style, that is, shirred into the waistline, but a rather wide sash is a feminine touch at the waist, and the collar and sleeves are just too demure for words. Nobody will believe you're over 16 if you wear this version of the dress. It absolutely avoids sophistication. You may use a larger print for this frock, and gay colors are in order.

Style No. T-8513 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years.

Anything Goes! Daring Fashion Cry from Paris

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—Style this coming summer is to be a case of mix your own. There ain't gonna be no system and nary a rule that will be unbreakable. There will be blazing color, and some of the smartest women are to go about in all black, all white, or all navy blue, or whatever. The only order is going to be: Do right by your figure and face! In other words, flatter yourself. Wear a dancing dress that is ten inches off the floor, with a skirt like a Gypsy's. Wear a skirt that is thirty yards around, with crinoline under it, and that has a bodice of pint size. Wear a slim, draped frock, swathed in the manner of Cleopatra. Wear a streamline, modern frock with sleeves. All are in style. Anything goes. And the same for daytime . . . swagger coat, a loose, narrow coat, a three-quarter belted tunic coat, a redingote, a box jacket, all are high fashion. Anything goes, so long as it is alive, vibrant, and charming.

One small, shy, gifted French woman has done more to bring about this be personal business in fashions than any other living creature. Her name is Mme. Alix, and ever since she opened her dressmaking salons she has had the world that knows clothes at her feet. She has only one big aim when she creates the silhouettes of her clothes, that is, to make a woman's silhouette lines as beautiful as those of a Greek statue. In color she creates effects as noble as Rubens or Tintoretto, and she never worries about where the waistline falls, nor about making shoulder lines to ape a boxer, nor whether skirts are going to be long or short, wide or narrow.

THIS Alix way of going about dressing a woman is one which any of us might do well to adopt for ourselves. Too many women try to make themselves all over for the sake of a dress. It can't be done. No matter how you slice it, it is the same old personality, the same hipline, etc. Choose your dress, or coat, or suit with a stern determination that it is going to flatter you, and that you are not going to try to revamp yourself to suit it, no matter how grand it is. Be exacting with your hat, for if it doesn't do swell things for your head and your face it will be a criminal bit of straw and gadgets. The school of torment to be fashionable is going the way of all fake schools, into the ash can.

Let the lines and the colors you wear this summer choose you because there is a real affinity. If you have a long face don't let any high-powered millinery saleswoman persuade you that a high, off-the-forehead hat will do other than make your face as long as old Dobbin's. If your skin is even slightly sallow stay far away from the most beautiful blue in the world, unless it is navy, for it will do you wrong. If you run to flesh around the neck, shoulders, and upper arms permit no human creature to inveigle you into a low-cut, revealing evening dress. If your ankles are more than they should be, let the brief, tight skirt strictly alone. Snub it ruthlessly. If your waistline is ample, though athletic, you needn't advertise it by a glaring belt or sash or girdle, or by any such tricks. Styles this year are so varied that they are kind to all types of women, and it is just too bad if you don't take advantage of this new trend.

MME. ALIX does things to one simple street suit that creates a definite personality. The model referred to is made of black, smooth wool, with a simple skirt that has a panel front that conceals two kick plaits which give room at the hem. The hiplength jacket has a slight peplum flare, and instead of the usual collar and revers it has a deep yoke, shaped something like a Quaker collar and made of heavy white linen. The ties at the neckline are also of white linen. A sleeveless blouse of the same material as the collar of the jacket has a V-shaped yoke and a standing ruffle collar that ties at the back of the neck. A big black straw hat with an odd crown goes with this suit.

Another Alix ensemble has the most exaggerated swagger coat possible. It is made of plaid blue, red, and white beige madras and has a simple turnover collar, short sleeves, and set-in pockets. It is worn over a slender dress that is closely moulded to the body by triangular set in pieces of the material and that has no sleeves. A red lether belt is placed around the waistline and the slender skirt has an inverted plait at the center front. A softly draped collar of the beige silk that makes the dress, fashions a flattering neckline. The beige lether buttons are sewed on with red thongs.

A Mme. Alix Egyptian evening silhouette, which she fashioned of printed silk crêpe, shows bouquets of pink and purple violets on a black ground. The bodice is low cut and revealing, and the skirt is draped close around the body, with lots of fullness and falling drapery at the front. Mme. Alix makes gowns like this and veils them by long, transparent black coats of stiff lace.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

There's something new under the beauty sun for the dry skinned woman whose makeup never looks as smooth and velvety as it should: a foundation that is a blend of several oils! A few drops prepares the skin beautifully for powder and rouge, and the oil does not ooze back later. It remains until cleansing time and softens the skin.

IT'S a red letter day in the beauty department when a preparation comes in that's new in the true sense of the word, one that's not just a variation of an old theme but quite unlike anything ever seen or experimented with before.

Such a beauty aid arrived not long ago. It is a foundation, and if you've ever seen one like it you've been around in the beauty world a good bit more than we have. It's an oil, or, more correctly, a blend of a whole flock of oils. Which makes it sound rather peculiar, we must admit, because heretofore oils haven't been introduced as a makeup base. The surprising thing about this preparation is that the oil disappears and does not ooze back again.

Only a little bit is used. A drop or two suffices for nose, forehead, and chin. It's worked in quickly and easily. You don't have to worry about blending or wish you had more clever fingers. You'll be surprised, and you most certainly will be pleased to find that the skin is transformed instantly into a smooth, just sufficiently moist surface to take powder and rouge as it never took it before. It's elegant really, paricularly for women whose skin is dry, flakey, and anything but satin smooth.

It's maddening to have a dry skin. It means endless oiling and a beauty routine that's painstaking. But perhaps the worst thing about owning one of those paper thin, peeling complexions is the sheer envy that grips you when you see other women with perfect makeups, never a shiny spot, a dry bump, or a horrible little flake popping up here and there. With this most unusual foundation you can give those fortunate damsels a good run for their money.

We want to emphasize the fact that the oil does not return after a couple of hours. The skin is just moist enough, matlike enough, to make the powder cling in the suave way it should. We can recommend this to all dry skinned women who want a foundation that's effective and that is utterly simple to use. We even have a hunch that regular use of this oil, which makes the skin velvety in preparation for makeup, must have a good cumulative effect doing its daily bit to counteract dryness.

A bottle of this should last about a year. When you use it don't go on the theory that if a little is good more must be better. Use it sparingly for the best results, and you'll find those "best results" really something!

[For information about this oil foundation, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write to her in care of the Chicago Tribune.]

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

REQUESTS for clothing of all kinds become more numerous as the warmer weather approaches. There are hundreds of persons of all ages, on and off relief, who have been unable to replenish apparel for several years and who will have little opportunity to do so in the near future. Direct relief budgets and work relief salaries are generally inadequate for anything but rent and food, and those dependent on either of these sources for livelihood must have help with their clothing problems. In other cases, wages insufficient for the needs of families force working men to seek aid. There are hundreds of elderly persons who, although willing and able to work, are classed as unemployable.

In the latter division is Mr. D., who would appreciate any wearable clothing. He is 62 years old and formerly was a salesman. For the last several years he has been without work. Because of severe arthritis in one foot he was hospitalized for seven months and only recently recovered his health. Three deaths in the family during 1935 and '36 have left him without relatives. He feels that only by improving his appearance can he make a contact in his line of employment. A suit, size 42 or 44, for a man 5 feet 9, weight about 190 pounds, would be a great help to him. His address is on the near north side and he will be happy to call for offers.

Mrs. O'C. lives on the south side of the city and would appreciate some housewife's discarded aprons, size 38, and some men's clothing, size 34. She is a widow who has supported her two children since infancy. Now age and illness and great losses suffered during the depression have made it difficult for her to continue. Her son still is in school, after an enforced absence of four years when he had infantile paralysis. The boy also needs shirts, size 15, and socks, 11½. Certainly some reader has wearable articles in these sizes which may be passed along.

From the northwest side of the city comes a plea for assistance for a baby six weeks old. His mother tried to save some of her husband's small salary for clothing for the infant, but a hospital bill and an enforced layoff in his work took all available money. The father was without work for several weeks, and the family now owes back rent, grocery and milk bills. They will be glad to call for discarded baby clothing.

Mrs. H. writes from the west side of the city:

"Dear Miss Brown: Do you know any one who has a baby bed or high chair we could have for our daughter? She has been sleeping in a big chair and now is getting so active that I'm afraid she will be injured. My husband earns $55 a month, but after rent, coal and food are bought there isn't enough left for anything else. All of our five children need clothing badly, and if you have any offers I would be glad to have them. I am handy at sewing and would be able to fit them. We have boys 12, 9, and 8, and girls 14 and 11, in addition to the baby, who is almost 6 months old. My husband gladly will call for anything."

YOU simply can't beat the princess lines for figure flattery. If you have any silhouette faults, a princess dress will minimize them, and if you have a well proportioned figure this type of frock will tell the world. The pattern illustrated today is a versatile one. It may make either a knockout daytime frock, as shown in the sketch at the left, or it may fashion a distinctive dress for informal hours at home.

The original of the daytime dress is created in heavy navy blue sheer with white pin dots. The schoolgirl collar is of white piqué. The decorative buttons give the illusion of fresh white daisies. [Select your own posy motif! The button counters these days are brimming over with clever concoctions designed to make any dress appear out of the ordinary.] The splendid paneling of this frock molds a pretty silhouette, making the shoulders broad, the bust gracefully curved, the waistline slim, the hips trim, and the skirtline full and sweeping.

The house frock version of this pattern, which is ideal for gardening, marketing and very informal hostessing, takes to a sash which extends from the side panels around the back. The neckline is the rever type, but otherwise the dress is quite the same as the dresser model. Rickrack braid trims the neckline, sleeves and the entire front. You will find this dress comfortable and flattering. Any type of cotton, linen or a rayon mixture is suitable for this informal model, and gay peasant prints are especially favored.

Style No. 2752 is designed for sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires four and one-quarter yards of 39 inch material, with one-quarter yard of 39 inch contrasting for collar.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 19.

Prune the roses as soon as the buds begin to grow. The rule is to prune weak, slender varieties severely and the stronger growers slightly less. Hybrid perpetuals should be cut back three to four eyes. Hybrid tea varieties should be pruned severely. Bush or hardy roses, such as the ramanas rose [rosa rugosa] should have the old canes cut to the ground and the younger wood cut back somewhat. The oldtime Harnison's yellow rose and hugonis rose flower on the old wood and should not be cut back until after flowering, otherwise the flower buds will be removed.

Tuesday, April 20.

Start the garden by turning over the soil in proper manner, taking thin slices so that each slice can be easily broken up, with few clods remaining. Do not spade if the ground is saturated with water, but wait until it has dried out to a crumbling condition. When sowing seeds do not be so generous as to waste them. Too thick sowing is injurious because, unless the seedlings are thinned, there is no chance for them to develop. This applies to both vegetables and flowers.

Wednesday, April 21.

An application of food to the bulb beds will stimulate growth and produce better flowers. See that the beds are edged, for untidy edges never give a finished effect. This applies to all outdoor beds, whether perennials or shrubs are grown. The half hardy annuals may be sown now. Make a fine seed bed and sow slightly beneath the surface. Plant more vines, for they are hardly comparable to any other type of ornamental vegetation. The comparatively new vine, giant golden honeysuckle, has tubular flowers that are produced in large clusters and are very fragrant.

Thursday, April 22.

Begin spraying peonies as soon as they start into growth to control the botrytis bud blight. The standard spray material is Bordeaux, which may be obtained from dealers. Evergreens should be transplanted during April and early May. See that the holes are large enough to accommodate the roots easily. It is best to buy plants that are balled and burlapped to avoid exposure of the roots. Water well after planting. It is advisable to spray the foliage occasionally.

Friday, April 23.

Take care of the new seedlings. Tender annuals that were started early in the house should be given full sun to promote a compact healthy growth. Keep them growing by transplanting into flats or pots and, if a hotbed is used, be sure to give ventilation to provide fresh air, but do not allow strong drafts to chill the plants. Cover the frames at night at this season.

Saturday, April 24.

Late flowering perennials should be transplanted during spring. The hardy chrysanthemum should be transplanted by using the young growths about nine inches apart, and kept low by pinching back the new growths. The bee balm, hardy aster, coral bell, and alkanet or Anchusa should be planted in spring. Rapidly spreading perennials should be kept in bounds to keep them from encroaching on other kinds or they will soon cover a considerable area and dominate the border. Peonies should be planted in fall. Plant a few herbs. Many of them are useful for seasoning, and they are interesting in a garden.

Girls Seek Advice of Writing Expert on Gaining Popularity

By Muriel Stafford.

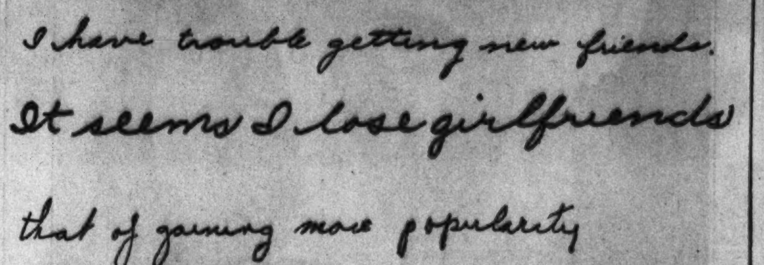
[Copyright: 1937: By Muriel Stafford.]

"I have trouble in making new friends and at times have trouble in getting along with the friends I have," writes a 16 year old.

This is not an unusual problem, but the answer is so different according to the personality that you'd better study your handwriting chart carefully to decide the reason in your particular case.

Don't think that only your faults may be the reason for a lack of popularity. Almost any quality marked may make you unpopular if you carry it to an extreme.

Here are some handwritings picked from my files in which the various writers were worried about popularity and in each case the answer would be distinctly different.



I have trouble getting new friends.

It seems I lose girlfriends that of gaining more popularity

The first writer makes very low capitals. She underestimates herself, therefore her friends probably do, too. This is emphasized by the locked a's and o's that indicate reserve and the very forward slant of her letters showing sensitiveness.

None of these qualities is an actual fault, but the handwriting shows that they are making her moody and somewhat depressed. It's old stuff, I know, but a smile still brings more friends than a depressed, unhappy expression. If every careless remark is apt to make you miserable you aren't going to be popular regardless of all the sincere, fun loving characteristics in your writing.

The second person writes heavily. The m shows the third loop highest and she connects words throughout her letter as in "girl friends." All of these indications reveal a tendency to dominate by stubbornness. You don't like to be continually dominated by a companion and neither do this young lady's friends. Probably they protest at first, but she has a placid self-assurance and protests do no good. Then gradually they begin to drift away. "Stubborn" and "very dominating" are the qualities on her chart that she should watch.

The third girl writes: "I am writing you with a purpose in mind, that of gaining more popularity."

Notice how narrow her letters are, especially the letters m and n. They are squeezed up into sharp points. This is one of the self-conscious writers who is inclined to be critical. She really is unselfish, according to her letter f, but probably she never is given credit for it because it is so hard for her to relax and be herself with others that few persons actually know her. Her letter is quite depressed, too. She ends on a desperate note, asking "What can I do?"

These writers of sharp pointed letters are inclined to take things much too seriously, especially when the letters are as narrow as this. She especially wants to gain the lost friendship of one boy, but from her handwriting I'd say she was scaring him away with her depressed outlook on life and her intense nature. Take it easy, honey, and things will be pleasanter.

Incidentally, I'd be interested to have you tell me what kind of articles on handwriting you enjoy most. Do you enjoy articles about different types of letters such as t-bars and i-dots, or do you enjoy human interest problems such as this or writings of famous persons and movie stars?

New York Bill Created to Ban "Gin Marriages"

THE New York assembly has approved a bill to prevent what its sponsor, Miss Jane Todd, once called "cocktail marriages." She has persistently advocated legislation that would delay marriages for three days after the issuance of the licenses. "Gin weddings," she has said, "or hasty unions entered into for the sake of headlines should be curbed."

IN THE NIGHT

By Eleanor Jewett.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

I don't like to be sick
In the night, to be sick—
The clock in the night
Has a horrible tick.

And shadows go creeping
Of tigers and bears
Over the walls and
The tables and chairs

I'm afraid of the wind
In the night, and the rain;
And I think it will never
Be daytime again.

I lie in my bed when I'm sick
And my mother says: "Sleep,"
But I can't because of the clock
And the things that creep.

I wish when a child was sick
There could be some way
Of not being sick in the night—
Just sick in the day!

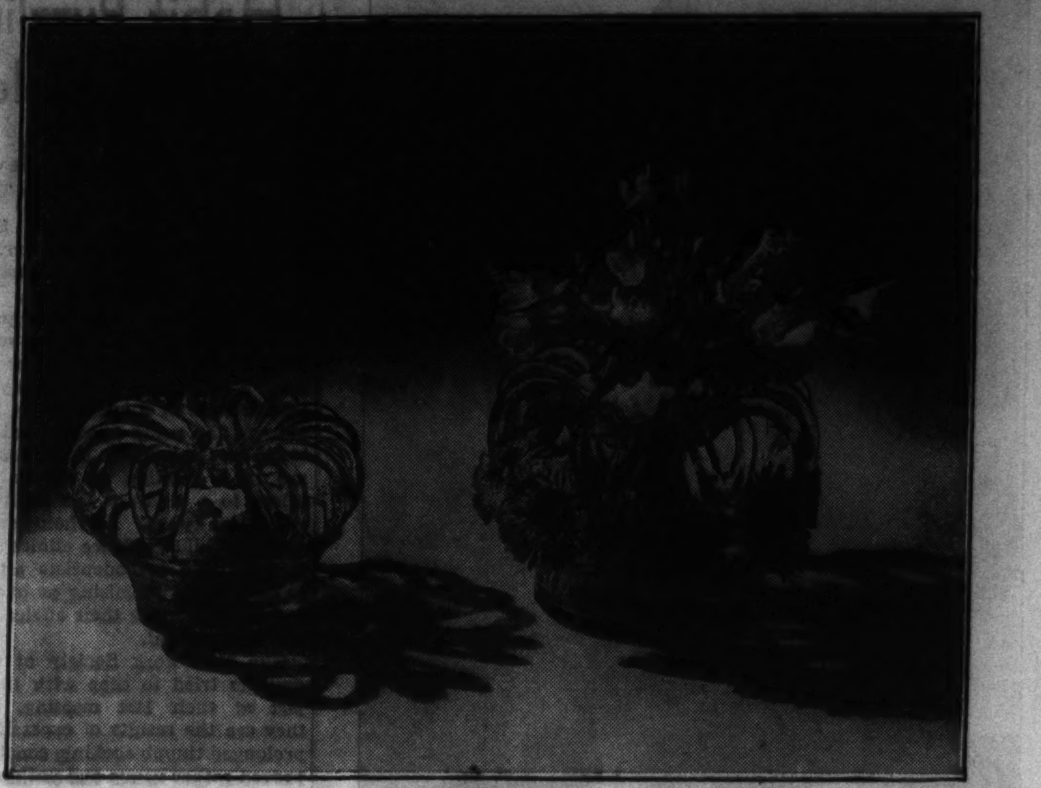
Table Decorating Is Now an Art



Beautiful little crowns made of crystal are among the newest and loveliest centerpieces for the dining table. Introduced by a New York firm, they are sold in several Chicago stores. These were photographed at the Merchandise Mart.

What do you know about china? The booklet, "Learn About China Before You Buy," by Claire Winslow, Tribune stylist in interior decoration, gives brief histories of the most important potters and their works. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Claire Winslow.

THE question of what sort of decorations to use for the center of the dining table seems to be a perennial problem. Now that artificial flowers have reached true artistic heights, and pottery vases and bowls are being made in so many forms and so cheaply, the answers are easier to discover than they were a few years ago.

It is not always necessary to have fresh or artificial blooms, either, for many charming arrangements are possible with the exquisite, delicately colored clusters of glass grapes and silver fruits available for trifling amounts of money at the department and gift stores. With an array of these and a simple mirror plaque any number of lovely centerpieces can be worked out.

One we saw recently and liked a lot combined white grapes in large bunches with pale pink ones, and a cluster of three silver plums, a little like peaches, was added. All were laid on the mirror in a graceful curved line. In the curve, as a contrasting color accent, was placed a brilliant, peacock blue Chinese pottery goose with its wings partly outspread.

THE beautiful crystal pendant drop vases of our grandmothers' day are back again with the revival of hurricane glass shades and other Victorian art objects. They make distinguished table decorations and should be filled with delicate flowers such as freesias, roses, narcissi, and sprays of mimosa.

The coming coronation is influencing tableware as well as women's fashions and drapery fabrics. Flower holders of crystal made in the form of crowns are extremely smart and may be bought in several sizes. Those shown in the second picture today are filled with freesias, white asters, and sweet peas.

INSTEAD of one alone being used, as many as four are seen marching down the center of the table. Two large ones are in the middle and a smaller crown is used on either end.

All the centerpieces we have talked about so far are for the formal dining table. For the luncheon table or the informal supper table, where simple chinaware or pottery is used, these crystal containers would be out of place.

Instead, use bright copper jugs or bowls, or the popular cornucopia-shaped pottery vases, or pewter pitchers or bowls. Simple majolica ware, or the Italian Deruta ware, or Quimper, or our own gayly colored Pacific pottery, is charming for garden flowers or for artificial blooms of the brightly colored, simple variety.

Wooden chopping bowls filled with varnished gourds of many colors also make pretty centerpieces for the informal table. Sometimes the ideas that are the least expensive to realize turn out to be the cleverest.

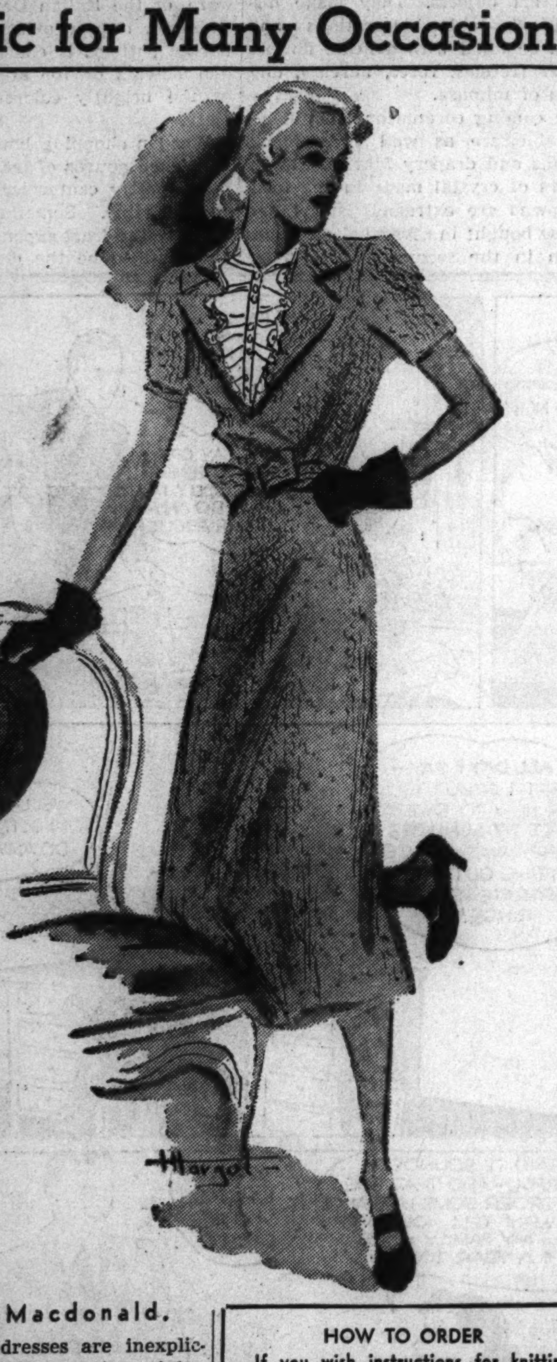
A Knitted Dress That Is Chic for Many Occasions



By Jean Macdonald.

ONE piece dresses are inexplicably smart for any time of day or for many occasions. The utter simplicity of this type of dress accounts for its popularity. Materials can add or detract, but the dress illustrated today is knitted in a grand new yarn which is ideal for a summer, hand knitted dress. It is a combination of wool and delustered synthetic fibre, twisted into a rough thread which gives a frosty, cool appearance when knitted. The great joy in working on this yarn is the ease and rapidity with which it may be knitted.

Any one who can knit will be able to make this dress with its straight skirt and plain blouse with short sleeves. The tailored lapels and collar add a final dash of sophistication to the outfit. A lingerie vestee or a tailored waistcoat determines the occasion for which the dress is worn.

Many people do not feel that they wish to invest money in a light weight yarn for summer, but this lovely new material is not expensive and is well worth the time spent in making an ensemble.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the one piece dress with tailored lapels and collar illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

It is necessary that the following measurements be included:

Bust ....

Waist ....

Hip ....

Mercolized Wax Gives You a NEW Complexion

THOUSANDS of women all over the world who were looking old because of the dull, faded appearance of their complexions have recaptured youth by making their skin smooth, soft and beautiful with Mercolized Wax.

Mercolized Wax acts on an entirely different beautifying principle. Mercolized Wax doesn't attempt to cajole a wornout complexion back to youth. Instead, Mercolized Wax gives you a NEW complexion. It sheds the dried-out cells of surface skin that conceal your true loveliness. The dead cells melt away so gently and in such fine particles that the process itself is invisible. Then the beautiful young underskin is revealed velvety-soft, smooth, clear and lovely.

Start using Mercolized Wax tonight. Just pat it on like cold cream. It will be the beginning of new youth and greater loveliness for your complexion. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin.

Thumb Sucking Habit Puzzling Child Problem

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"MIRRORS Used to Shame Child Thumb Sucker." So ran a headline in a morning paper not long ago.

All in all, I think parents get less help in regard to this thumb sucking habit than almost any other problem. I know that I personally have less to offer in a specific way in answer to the many appeals that come to me on the subject. And those who are in a position to devote themselves to a study of the habit don't get so far either. Psychologists who work in child guidance clinics, pediatricians, and orthodontists all have to do a lot of surmising as to causes and have to make their advice tentative and general.

The New York Society of Orthodontists tried to cope with the subject at their last meeting. Since they see the results of excessive and prolonged thumb sucking, conclusions proved rather vague and nothing new developed, with the exception of the mirror suggestion.

The use of mechanical devices, such as thumb guards and elbow controls, is sometimes recommended. These may be made at home by binding adhesive tape on the offending finger or by binding the elbow out straight with those little wooden palate depressers. Similar contrivances may be purchased for fingers or elbows. These measures will bear close scrutinizing, however. Some children are so irked by the restraint caused by these appliances that "the cure is worse than the disease" for them.

A fact which many pediatricians accept as a cause of finger sucking was cited at the meeting. It has to do with feeding. That is, a baby may be well nourished after a breast or bottle feeding, but he may not have gotten enough of the primitive satisfaction of sucking. So into his mouth pops a finger or a thumb. Some doctors [I am not referring to this group of orthodontists] not long ago shocked the modern mother by advising a return to the old fashioned pacifier. But then the pacifier habit later might have to be broken, and there we would be out of the frying pan and into the fire! In the case of bottle babies occasionally a remedy is found in controling the flow of milk by the size of the hole in the nipple.

TWO points can be made here, namely, that every mother make it her business to see [1] that the milk her baby is getting is adequate in nutrition for his growth needs, and [2] that he gets enough in quality to feel satisfied. If, in addition, she sees that he gets his milk at the right speed, the baby should be off to a good start.

The mirror idea, embodied in the headline we quoted, does not usually come into the picture. I imagine the point was to help the child to see himself in an unattractive occupation, after which he would stop himself—educate himself out of the habit.

From the psychological standpoint this method is open to discussion. It has two bad aspects. If the idea is to shame the child, it is unwise, because shame and humiliation are, in essence, disintegrating [in greater or less degree] to the personality and to the child's self-esteem. Also it is setting up in his mind a negative image of himself. It shows him doing something undesirable. It leads only to a stopping, not to a doing or to a building up of a positive act toward a positive goal.

SO where do we now find ourselves on this subject?

First, we can say that the loved, contented baby, well fed, happily occupied [if old enough] and not overly tired, is not apt to suck his fingers either during the day or when going to sleep.

Second, we can point out that the age of the baby or child governs in a measure our methods of cure.

Summing it up we might say that to prevent or cure this habit [1] the baby or child should be well nourished; [2] he should have a regular, wholesome routine; [3] he should have love, understanding, interest; [4] he should have the chance and the objects for vigorous manual and creative play.

Companionship of his own age as against a surfeit of attention from grownups may be "indicated."

With some children the habit may be discussed and a child's coöperation enlisted, in which case he agrees to some outside aid, like wearing mittens at night as a reminder or using a cardboard or other device slipped over the elbow.

"Giving the child something to hold in each hand and ignoring the thumbsucking often helps. Sitting beside him and holding his hand until he is asleep often serves to break the habit, but one needs to be careful that the habit of having his hand held does not become substituted for the other. Gradually as he forgets about sucking his thumb one can break away from holding his hand, at first only sitting by him, then gradually moving away entirely and leaving him to go to sleep alone." This quotation is from "Home Guidance for Young Children," by Grace Langdon, published by John Day company of New York, N. Y.

For the mothers of babies and run-about children we have a fully written leaflet on "How to Establish Good Sleeping Habits and Cure Bad Ones." It will be sent on receipt of a large, 3 cent stamped, self addressed envelope with your request.

Mrs. Bevans' column also appears in the Tribune on Monday and every other weekday.

TO WED IN SEPTEMBER

The engagement of Miss Mary Kile of 1220 North State parkway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Kile of Ivesdale, Ill., to Henry K. Brock, son of Mrs. Evelyn K. Brock of St. Paul, Minn., was announced at a dinner last night at the home of Miss Kile's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Allan E. Bulley, in Kenilworth. Miss Kile is a graduate of St. Mary's hall, Fairbault, Minn., and attended the University of Illinois. Mr. Brock attended the University of Minnesota. The wedding will take place in September.

Chenille Rugs Are Exceptional for Wear and Variety

CHENILLE floor coverings have enjoyed an aristocratic position since they were invented in England nearly 100 years ago. As rugs go they are costly, but they have corresponding wearing ability and a tight, long pile. Unlike most floor coverings, they can be woven any shape to order and any width to thirty feet, with any pattern and any number of colors desired. This adaptability is a result of the hard work involved.

Chenilles have kept pace with other floor coverings, however, and the newest have textured effects either of cut and uncut pile or of long or short pile. A few of these in plain colors may go into the store displays, but most will be special designs worked out by decorators in coöperation with large manufacturers. There are about 200 grades of chenille carpet, and the wool comes from thirty-five countries.

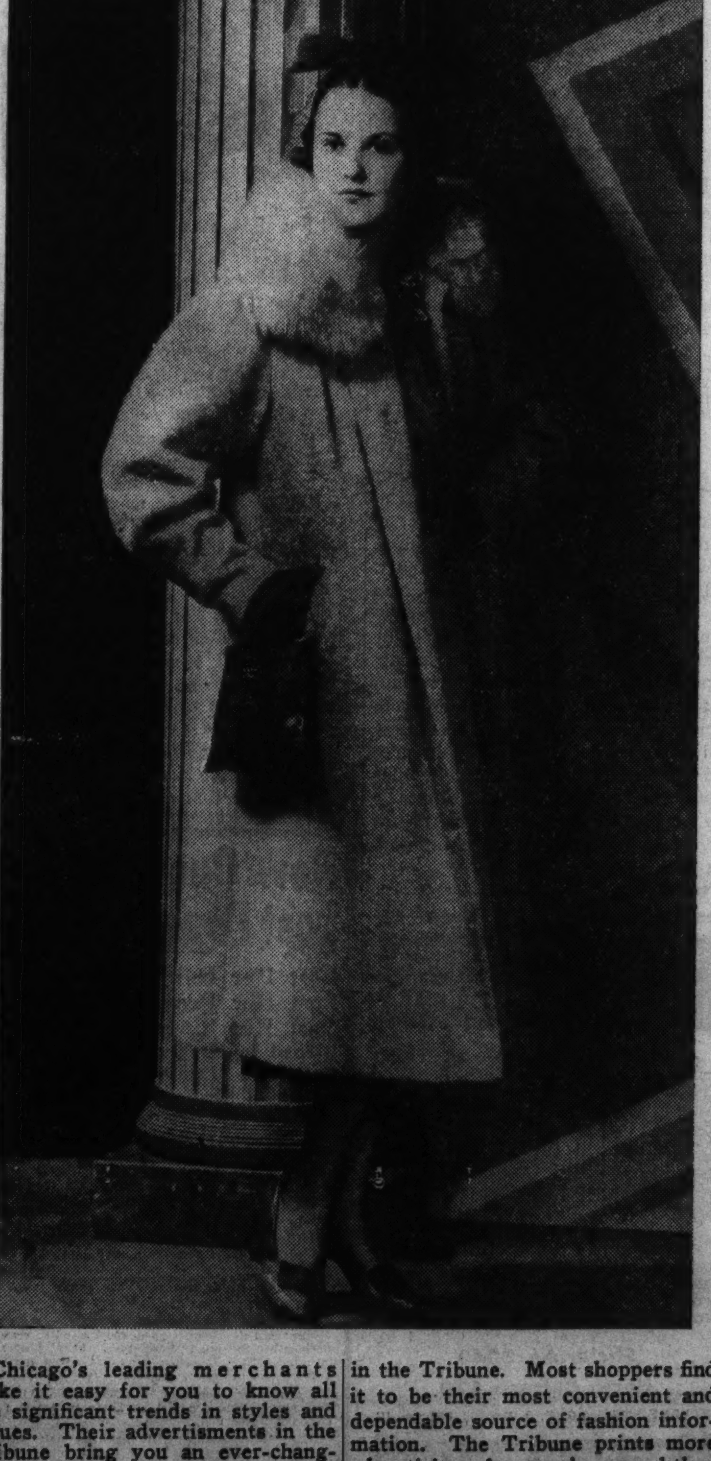
Clothes Closets of Recent Design Are Spectacular

MORE spectacular than last year's are the closets in contemporary home displays. One actually is christened "Balmoral" from the Scotch plaid chintz with which its shelves are trimmed.

Fabric covered boxes and bags are similarly ornamental, and there is a small dressing table with mirrors. So attractive is this big closet that it is no wonder the decorator unhinged its door and allowed it to be part of the hall.

Edging paper of the most brilliant sort now is almost always a requirement. Silver scallops ornament the shelves of this closet, and these are hand painted with white scrollwork in keeping with the nearby hall. Transparent boxes for hats, sweaters, etc., stand on the shelves in all of the new closets. In the more pretentious ones, the box handles are treated to sprays of artificial flowers or bows of ribbon. Towels of uniform design are laid out in other closets, neatly tied up with ribbon.

Style Parade



Chicago's leading merchants make it easy for you to know all the significant trends in styles and values. Their advertisments in the Tribune bring you an ever-changing parade of news which it will pay you to watch. Chicago's principal selling events are announced in the Tribune. Most shoppers find it to be their most convenient and dependable source of fashion information. The Tribune prints more advertising of women's apparel than the next three Chicago newspapers combined.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

IN many respects philately, or stamp collecting, stands head and shoulders above other hobbies, but unfortunately, in one other respect it stands alone. No other hobby is considered as a possible source of money, yet in stamp collecting it is safe to say that more than half of the addicts believe that they can eat their cake and have it—that they can have their fun and make it pay them a profit.

Persons who buy any and all kinds of stamps without much regard for condition or values will spend an equal amount or more playing billiards without a thought of ever recovering the cost of their entertainment, but if it becomes necessary to dispose of the stamp collection they will insist that they must get their cost out of the stamps and, if possible, interest at 6 per cent compounded semiannually.

This condition has developed on account of the very natural tendency to brag about the profits made and to minimize the losses they have taken. The publicity which stamp collecting receives is generally in terms of dollars and cents, and not in terms of the valuable training which may result from an intensive study of the stamps, or the recreation and mental relaxation which may be obtained with an album. This unbalanced publicity has led many inexperienced collectors to believe that a few sheets of current stamps laid aside now will enable them to retire before the O. A. B. reaches their number.

Collectors always should remember that there are all kinds of stamps from the very common to the very rare. The very common stamps of today are still the very common stamps of fifty years hence. There are thousands of stamps up to 80 years old which are listed in the catalog today at the minimum price of 2 cents. It is only due to the changing value of the dollar that they are priced that high.

These are the stamps used on domestic letters. Selling singly at 1 cent each or less, they make up the bulk of packets containing a thousand varieties for a dollar, and may be had wholesale as cheaply as at 10 cents a thousand. No amount of cajolery will enable one to sell a collection of these to a dealer and show a profit.

It must be remembered that stamp dealers buy at wholesale and sell at retail, and when a dealer buys a collection he must be able to make a profit after removing all damaged and incorrectly classified stamps. A great many stamps increase in value from year to year, but they are not the common ones found in variety packets.

It is almost an axiom in collecting that the stamps which are hard to obtain while they are current will be the valuable stamps of tomorrow. If some occult power could enable a collector to select a popular country, or better still, one which would gain in popularity, and which does not issue unnecessary stamps solely to sell to collectors, then the collector may lay aside all of the various issues of that country with the assurance that he has done everything possible to make a safe investment.

The Stamp Collector is pleased to announce that a new edition of volume I. of the United States Postage Stamps of the Twentieth Century is now ready for distribution. The first edition of this reference work, by Beverly S. King and Max G. Johl, was published in 1932 and sold out almost at once. Later volumes in the series have been published in sufficient quantities to care for the demands, and in order to care for requests from collectors it was determined early last year to make a new printing of the first volume. This has been entirely revised and rewritten by Max G. Johl, and the new matter, including scores of illustrations of varieties and diagrams of plate layouts, together with information discovered after the first volume was published, has added more than a hundred pages.

Volume I. of the United States reference books covers the stamps from 1901 to 1922, that is, from the Pan-American issue through and including the Pilgrim Tercentenary issue. Collectors of United States stamps cannot afford to be without this book. Published at $4, by H. L. Lindquist, New York, N. Y.

The International Poster Stamp album, which has just been published, will aid many collectors of these colorful bits of paper who have no definite method of arranging their poster stamps. These often form an interesting adjunct to a collection, and today almost every collector has a few pages devoted to this sideline.

Poster stamps have their advantages in that they do not range from 1 cent to $5, but are priced on an equal basis. Like most postage stamps, they are designed with a collector in mind, but they are utterly frank in this, for each poster stamp has a pictorial story to impress upon the collector.

The new album is in the form of a standard three ring binder with 96 printed and plain pages, all with terra cotta colored borders. Title pages contain a brief description of the type of poster stamps to be mounted. These include air mail and aviation labels, Christmas seals and charity stamps, flags and coats of arms, Philatelic exhibition labels, and political and propaganda stamps, as well as the host of stamps devoted to nature study, scenic beauty, famous people, etc.

This is the official album of the National Poster Stamp society and entitles the purchaser to a six months' membership in that society, which has its main office at 64 East Lake street, Chicago. The album is priced at $1.50, and is published by Kirby-Cogeshall-Steinau company of Milwaukee.

ARTHUR W. SEAR
CONSULTING RADIO ENGINEER
[illegible] FEDERAL STREET
CHICAGO, ILL.
April 12, 1937

The Fair
State, Adams and Dearborn Streets.
Chicago, Illinois

Gentlemen:

I am enclosing a detailed report of the inspection and test of your eleven tube, telephone dial type, La France receiver.

In summarizing the report, I can say that an inspection of the chassis and cabinet revealed excellent material and workmanship. The design and arrangement of component parts indicate careful and competent engineering, thoroughly in keeping with the best modern practice.

The telephone type dial, with its rugged mechanical design, together with the use of temperature compensation in the electrical circuit permits the convenient tuning in of preselected stations without the usual complication of automatic frequency control.

The sensitivity of the set is of the order of one microvolt, through all the frequency bands. This sensitivity means that the receiver will permit reception from any station whose signal strength is above that of extraneous noises and atmospheric static.

Selectivity curves, included in the report, show that discrimination against ten kilocycle adjacent carriers is forty or a ratio of one hundred to one.

The fidelity of the set is high. The acoustical treatment of the cabinet reinforces the low frequency response and effectively reduces the objectional peak at the mechanically resonant frequency of the speaker cone. This feature extends the useful audio range to below forty cycles per second, and imparts a "natural" quality to the reproduction of both speech and music.

Yours very truly
Arthur W. Sear

An Amazing Innovation—The Acousti-Stabilizer

Developed by one of the foremost acoustical engineers in the country, it efficiently utilizes all sound waves, and prevents cavity echo and other cabinet distortions. "Idiot's Delight" Brings Guild's Chicago Season to Fine Climax

By Charles Collins

WITH "Idiot's Delight" established at the Erlanger theater for a four weeks' engagement one may settle down to an appraisal of the American Theater Society's (or Theater Guild's) subscription season, which this play represents. The schedule of six productions has been fulfilled in a way that has left the Guild's loyal following in Chicago completely satisfied. The choice of plays has been happy; their themes and contents have been varied; their acting and staging has been superior. Altogether, the Guild and its allied managers have made an important contribution toward the reawakening of playgoing enthusiasm during the last nine months. The presence of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, the Guild's brightest stars and long-term leaders, in their current vehicle, crowns the program with a roaring hit.

The subscribers were given an early start with "Lady Precious Stream," a novelty of Chinese atmosphere which marked Morris Gest's return to theatrical activities. This modernized treatment of an ancient Chinese folk-drama, akin to "The Yellow Jacket" of blessed memory, came to the Harris theater on Sept. 28. It prospered for two weeks, and could have remained for a run but for rigid booking arrangements which compelled the troupe to depart on tour.

The second play, which crowded "Lady Precious Stream" out of the Harris, opening there on Oct. 12, was a dramatization of Jane Austen's Georgian novel, "Pride and Prejudice," which had been one of the major successes of the preceding season in New York. This production represented the sumptuous touch of Max Gordon as impresario; its costuming was high art in dress design, its acting was an admirable evocation of Georgian wit and manners in the demure Jane Austen style. "Pride and Prejudice" remained in Chicago for a number of weeks beyond its subscription period and was one of the most admired plays of the season.

On Oct. 26 the Guild placed wares of its own manufacture on view, taking a change of venue to the Erlanger. The play was S. N. Behrman's comedy of Critic Reviews Biennial Music Festival in Washington, D. C.

By Cecil M. Smith

EVERY alternate year when the cherry blossoms are at their pinkest the city of Washington is the scene of a musical display which rivals its famous horticultural exhibit in interest, if not in sheer bulk. For early in April of each odd-numbered year the library of congress, making use of an endowment fund given by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, presents a remarkable three day festival of chamber music.

The eighth of these concentrated sessions took place last week-end. Five concerts were given in the chamber music hall at the library of congress. This unusual auditorium is one of the few in the country which has been wisely planned for the single purpose of housing musical performances of intimate scale. It seats 511, but seems smaller when music is being played, for the acoustics are so vivid that the players sound as though they were right in your living room.

The walls and decoration of the room are severely and simply classical, so that a wandering eye does not take in impressions irrelevant to the music. The seats are of a kind rapidly becoming unknown in Chicago—they are comfortable for two hours at a stretch. The hall is air conditioned. So with all its creature comforts duly regarded the audience listens to music with virtually no distraction.

In this Utopian milieu Mr. Paul Hindemith, probably the leading composer of modern Germany, made his American bow last week. When Mr. Hindemith came out upon the stage to play his own sonata for unaccompanied viola the 511 invited guests rose to their feet and gave him warm welcome. For the next few minutes interest was seriously divided between the complicated rigors of the viola sonata and the unassuming simplicity of the rotund little man who composed it.

Mr. Hindemith's visit to Washington occasioned performances of several of his works. A new concerto for viola and orchestra, "Der Schwanendreher," stood out among these. Its first American performance was in Washington last Sun-

News and Gossip of Chicago's Floor Show Entertainments

Drake Hotel Offers Music by Whiteman

New French Revue Opens at Casino Parisien on April 27; Cabaret News.

PAUL WHITEMAN will give the second of his concerts in the gold coast room of the Drake hotel tonight at 7:30 p. m. Featured with the Whiteman band are Franie Trumbauer, Jack and Charlie Teagarden, Linda Lee, "Goldie" and Al Galladara. Friday nights will be "college nights" and Thursday evening "buffet supper" nights during the Whiteman engagement.

During his series of Sunday concerts, Whiteman will offer the following compositions: "All Points West," by Rodgers and Hart; "Tabloid," by Ferde Grofe; "Thank You, Mr. Bach!" by Van Phillips; "The Duke Insists," by Reginald Forsythe; "Scottish Suite," by Adolph Deutsch, with native Scotch bagpipers; "Waltzing Through the Ages"; "Rhapsody in Blue, by George Gershwin, and other modern symphonic compositions. In addition, there will be several vocal stars, including Robert Lawrence, baritone.

● Rehersals for the new revue which is to open at the Casino Parisien in the Morrison hotel on April 27 are in progress in New York. The next revue is expected to surpass "Paris-Montpartnasse," the current show, which is now in its sixth week. Lou Breese will remain over as conductor. . . . Maurie Sherman, one of the oldest active orchestra leaders in Chicago, now at the Casino Parisien, at one time had fifteen future orchestra leaders in his band.

● Henry King and his dance orchestra are heading the "Coronation Revue," which is presented twice nightly in the Palmer house Empire room. Mario and Floria, new ballroom dancers, and Russell Swann, magician, are prominent on the bill. Joaquin Garay, singer; the Abbott Dancers, and the Four Aristocrats complete the lineup. The Four Aristocrats supply the "relief" dance music.

● Four "name bands" will play for dancing at the Trianon and Aragon ballrooms today. At the north side Aragon, Freddy Martin will share honors with Phil Levant. The Trianon will co-star Kay Kyser and George Hamilton. Hamilton recently completed a long engagement in the Empire room.

● A "swing" concert will be held this afternoon, featuring Bob Crosby and his band, at the Congress casino, from 2 until 5 p. m. The proceeds will be used to aid Joe Sullivan, now convalescing in a California sanitarium.

Crosby's orchestra will play its finest arrangements, and there will be prominent guest artists.

● College Inn's new floor show, which opened last Friday, is headed by Red Nichols and his orchestra. The show contains Myrus, mind reader; Don Amato, a juggler-comedian; Coleman Clark, table tennis champion; Marion and Irma, acrobatic girls; Arlene Owens, Jack Wilcher and Russell Crowell, singers, and the Muriel Kretlow dancers.

● Eddie Varzos and his Continental orchestra will headline the new program of entertainment which opens in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel next Wednesday. The Duanos, a Latin-American dance team, will be prominent in the floor show presentations. Dean Murphy, impersonator of stage, radio and screen characters, will be master of ceremonies. Mildred Fitzpatrick, organist, will continue.

● Carl Rosini continues his sleight of hand performances in the Blue Fountain room of the La Salle hotel. The King's Jesters and Marjorie Whitney remain, offering songs and dance music.

● Dudley Crafts Watson's Wednesday afternoon travel talks at the Old Heidelberg inn will continue through April, May and the first two weeks of June. "Along the Canals of Holland" will be his topic next Wednesday. Franzl Schoenfeld, Viennese liedersinger, will be guest artist with Armand Buisseret and his string ensemble at the afternoon concert today.

● Jimmy Joy, the orchestra leader now playing in the spring revue in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel, comes from leading hotels of Los Angeles and other west coast cities. The floor show contains Ronald and Roberta, dance team; Helen Heath, featured singer; Li Ta-ming, Chinese prima donna, who has perfect command of the English language, and the Archer Sisters.

● Allan Cross and Henry Dunn, harmonizing comedy singers, are easily the stars of the current Chez Paree revue, judging by the response of the audiences. Opening with "Sing, Baby, Sing," they follow with a song of their own, "We're Two or Three Men on a Horse." Then they give their arrangement of "Broadway Merry-Go-Round" and a parody on social security called "Life Begins at Sixty-Five." Their encore, "Where Are the Stars of Yesterday?" starts with the Pagliacci lament by Dunn in a strong tenor, and continues with the "Ida" of Eddie Leonard, Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth's "Shine On, Harvest Moon," a Van and Schenck number, and a Bert Williams poker skit.

Others in the show are Wini Shaw with standard popular songs from the Broadway revues and movies; Minor and Root, dancing a tango, rhumba, and Ravel's "Bolero"; Jack Williams, tap dancer; Mariora, a young Hungarian juggler, and Thorne and White, tap dancing girls. The performers are introduced by Pierre André of the W-G-N radio programs. The six Paul Oscard production numbers by the ballet are "Bubbling Over," "For You," "I Love You Too Much," "Easy on the Eyes," "Excuse for Dancing," and "Jamming," all with singing by Norm Ruvell. Henry Busse's orchestra and Maurie Stein's swing band continue.

DRAMA STAR IN NEW PLAY

Gladys Cooper, famous English actress, returns to Chicago on April 26 in a play called "Close Quarters," which has had a great success in London. Philip Merivale is again her costar. These eminent players appeared in Chicago last fall in "Call It a Day."

Six Notable Plays Formed Good Program

dialog, touching on current sociological topics, called "End of Summer," with Ina Claire and Osgood Perkins as co-stars. This was the lightest and most conventional item on the list, but Miss Claire's incomparable skill as a comedienne and Mr. Perkins' gift for ironic urbanity gave it an air of distinction.

Gladys Cooper's debut in Chicago, as co-star with Philip Merivale in "Call It a Day," marked the fourth episode in the series. This comedy of upper middle class English character and manners, staged by the Guild in association with Lee Ephraim of London, was lodged at the Grand Opera house. Its mood was refreshing; its acting was adept. Miss Cooper and Mr. Merivale will return to Chicago on April 26 in a new play called "Close Quarters."

Then, as No. 5, came the alarums and excursions of Katharine Hepburn's debut on the Chicago stage in a new dramatization of Charlotte Brontë's classic novel, "Jane Eyre," written by the adaptor of "Pride and Prejudice," Helen Jerome. The verdict on the play, as a structure, as mixed, and the people who expect movie stars to be superwomen proclaimed that Miss Hepburn was not the greatest actress in the world. Nevertheless, she acquitted herself with credit; attendance was enormous, and the engagement was extended for two weeks beyond its allotted time.

Chicago saw this production before New York, which will have to wait until next season to pass its opinion. The Guild plans to have the play reconstructed before its Broadway opening, and Sidney Howard probably will be the reviser, although Miss Jerome is said to be offering strong objections to this decision.

"Idiot's Delight," as written by Robert E. Sherwood, is a bitter and ironic protest against war, directly pointed toward the possibilities for another Pan-European epidemic of killing. He has given to Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne, however, rôles which enable them to convert much of the horror of the play's background into comedy in their characteristic eccentric vein.

Revival of "Road"

EVERY corner of the United States will be visited next season by a touring company playing "You Can't Take It with You."

The New York company will not tour, and is expected to continue there throughout next season. The Chicago company will remain here until Thanksgiving, perhaps, and will then cover the large and small cities in the middle west.

On Labor day a Boston company will open at the Plymouth theater and will later visit the large cities in the east. A fourth company will open in Virginia, will tour through the south and go to the Pacific coast. A fifth company may be organized later.

Nothing like this has happened since "the road" was the liveliest and most interesting phase of "show business." Last season there were three companies of "Three Men on a Horse" on tour for a time, but to find a better record one would have to look back at least fifteen years.

Self Help Plan in College to Be Celebrated

Tribute Will Be Paid at Centennial Program of Blackburn School.

By the Rev. John Evans.

THE centennial of Blackburn Junior college, Carlinville, this spring will be marked with tributes for the self-help plan in the education of American youth. William G. Bierd, a Baltimore and Ohio railroad official, who is president of the Blackburn board, has announced plans for the centenary and described the Illinois institution's unique position among American junior colleges.

The celebration, Mr. Bierd said, will also honor the quarter century of leadership of William M. Hudson, president of Blackburn college. Under Mr. Hudson a plan was developed which requires each of the 280 boys and girls to devote two and a half hours daily to assigned manual tasks in the maintenance of the institution. This work includes cooking, clerical, firing boilers, milking cows, gardening, and other duties usually done by employés.

Blackburn college, founded by the Rev. Gideon Blackburn, Presbyterian pastor, possesses one of the four highly prized tax exempt charters in the state. It flourished first as a primary school and later as an academy, but it did not come to widespread attention until Mr. Hudson was called in 1912 to institute his plan to help needy students help themselves.

After establishing the self-help program Mr. Hudson and his faculty set up methods of student selection. Students are now hand picked from the upper one-third of their high school classes, and of these the college accepts applicants whose fitness has been determined by a careful survey of circumstances. "Dignity of work," simplicity, and self-dependence are constantly emphasized.

Students accepted may successfully complete a regular two year junior college course in a wide range of the liberal arts and sciences. Following graduation they are immediately acceptable to all other colleges and universities for the continued pursuit of academic studies.

Wherever practicable the student is attached as closely as possible to the manual or actual phase of his chosen subject. For example, in the study of agriculture he plants the seed and rides the tractor and plow on the college farm. Similarly for girls the subject of domestic science daily proceeds beyond the laboratory and into the college kitchen, where students alone prepare all food and serve themselves.

THE authorities of Wentworth military academy, Lexington, Mo., announce the appointment of Ray C. Ford, principal of the high school at St. Charles, Mo., as dean of the academy succeeding Maj. E. H. Griswell, who recently resigned. Mr. Ford was born in Vienna, Ill., graduated from the University of Illinois, and for seven years was principal of the high school at Troy, Ill. During the world war Mr. Ford was attached to the Intelligence department. He will assume office at the academy on July 1.

Out of the 2,960 students now attending the University of Notre Dame, 817—or more than one out of every four—are paying part of their way by means of campus jobs, according to a report made public by Frank W. Lloyd, university controler in charge of student employment. This is an increase from 385 university employed students in 1929, with enrollment approximately the same, and is the result of efforts to aid as many boys of merit as possible.

TEACHERS, alumni, and students of Calumet High school have endowed a scholarship at the University of Chicago in honor of Genevieve Melody, alumna of the university who was the first principal of the present Calumet High school and the first woman principal of a coeducational high school in Chicago. The scholarship of $300 is to be awarded annually to a student from Calumet recommended by the principal.

Miss Melody was, throughout her life, closely associated with the city of Chicago. Her grandfather, a pioneer, owned the farm which became the J. Ogden Armour estate, Melody farm. Born in Chicago on Sept. 18, 1872, Miss Melody was educated in the Douglas elementary and the South Division High schools. She was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1902, and took the Master's degree at Chicago. Miss Melody also was graduated from Kent college of law and was admitted to the bar.

High Cost Drama

"THE Eternal Road," the most expensive legitimate theatrical production New York ever saw, will end its engagement there on May 15. After more than three years in preparation, involving expenditures of about $500,000, this biblical spectacle staged by Max Reinhardt opened at the Manhattan Opera house on Jan. 7.

According to its producers, the show will go on a tour of the larger cities next season in reduced form. Its weekly operating expense early in the run was $29,000. Some 365 persons were employed.

Critic Decries Age as Handicap to Study of Music

Reveals Life's Enrichment as Pupil's Reward

Joys of Being Dilettante Suspected Even by Virtuoso, He Declares.

By Edward Barry.

IS 21 too old to begin the study of a musical instrument?

No; neither is 41, for that matter. The number of birthdays is not important so long as the lucky celebrant retains reasonably complete control of his fingers.

All the nonsense you hear about the futility of starting music study after the muscles have set, and about the absolute necessity of acquiring at least the foundation of a technique in early childhood, is based on muddled conceptions of the benefits to be gained from such study.

By far the most valuable of these benefits is the vast enrichment of life which intimate contact with a great art can bring. Immense mechanical dexterity is not necessary to a person who would thus enrich himself. It is almost an irrelevancy, hardly worth two minutes consideration on the part of any one of mature age contemplating the study of music.

It is true, of course, that a person of 21 can probably never subjugate his muscles sufficiently to acquire the finished technique which a public career as a performer demands. He has waited too long, and might just as well abandon hope of ever becoming a great virtuoso and finding himself the toast of glittering capitals. Yet, since the chances are at least 1,000 to 1 that these same glittering capitals will remain indifferent even to a performer who began his studies at 6, it is foolishness of the first order to allow any such fantastic arguments to enter into the matter at all.

Prospective Virtuoso Needs Childhood Study.

Here is the whole thing in a nutshell. A prospective virtuoso, especially a prospective piano virtuoso, must begin in early childhood to give at least a few minutes a day to the practice of his instrument. A person who wishes to become more closely acquainted with music for the joy and excitement of the art itself can begin his studies at any time. The younger the better, of course, but no age is too great at which the fingers are still fairly obedient to the will.

There are several cheerful aspects to this matter of adult music study. In the first place, it is so much easier to understand things at 21 than at 8. That whole business of the time scheme of music—its notes and rests of varying duration, its division into bars—is the subject of months of study for a young child. He cannot grasp the underlying idea of the system and is compelled, therefore, to learn its laws by rote. An adult of average quickness of mind will understand the general concept after an hour's concentration, and, with this invaluable advantage, be able to accomplish the memory end of the task in a fraction of the time consumed by his junior.

Likewise the key system of music, which it is futile to try to explain to a child. And the processes of determining the relation between printed notes and actual sound, and of grasping at least the ideas of the few fundamental technical devices of a particular instrument, offer no grave difficulties to the man or woman who through business experience or advanced scholastic studies has acquired the ability to concentrate.

All These Things Should Console Adult Neophyte.

All of this should console the adult neophyte for the awkwardness of his physical approach to keys or strings and for the indisputable fact that he is going to have a terrible time making undisciplined fingers behave properly. Yet the most important of his advantages has not even been mentioned.

This adult neophyte is about to be introduced to one of the most joyful experiences that life can offer, and to be introduced to it at an age when his every faculty is alive to its keenness.

That experience is the reproduction of music—the bringing to life in sound of what a moment before was nothing more than a dead pattern of notes, lines, and spaces. Music, you know, is unlike the other arts in that the original creator does only half the work. A partner is required if the beauty implicit in his ideas is finally to be realized. This partner is the performer and, inexpert though he may be, he is actually projecting beauty, sharing in the composer's ecstasy of creation.

First Years with Music Most Eventful Ones.

That man or woman is happy who has before him, instead of behind him, the peculiar and never to be exactly duplicated exultation of the first years of intimate experience with music. If he envies the virtuoso's technique, let him remember that the virtuoso went through these first revelatory experiences early in life and that they were not so great, therefore, as his are to be.

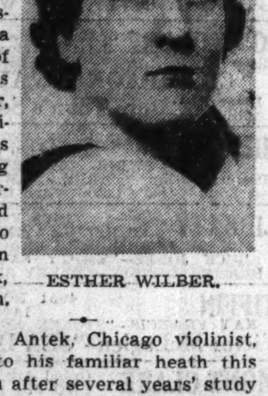
Let him understand, too, that the dilettante's rôle is a happy one, and that many a professional grows wistful when he finds that even music, on long and too continuous acquaintance, can lose something of its miraculous, other-worldly radiance and begin to fade, if ever so slowly, into the light of common day. Our virtuoso of a paragraph ago might admit under cross-examination that in nostalgic moments he sometimes offers to trade all his dexterity for ten brief minutes of the sort of delight he knew when his young, pudgy fingers first tackled the Two Part Inventions.

SAN CARLO SOPRANO

This Is Leola Turner, Chicago singer who will have the roles of Marguerite ("Faust"), Nedda ("Pagliacci"), and Musetta ("La Boheme") during the San Carlo Opera company's spring engagement here. The troupe moves into the Auditorium theater tomorrow night and remains through next Sunday.

Current Music News

Esther Wilber, lyric soprano from southern Michigan, appears in début recital at Kimball hall today. Her program lists arias by Verdi and Mascagni, a group of Brahms lieder, and various songs ranging from Pergolesi and Piccini to Vaughn Antek, DeLeath.



ESTHER WILBER.

Samuel Antek, Chicago violinist, returns to his familiar heath this afternoon after several years' study in New York with Louis Persinger and Albert Spalding. At the Studebaker theater he is to play the Chausson "Poeme," just five days after Mr. Spalding's performance of it with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Before and after the "Poeme" he will devote his attention to the Bach Chaconne and works by Kreisler, Paganini-Wilhelmj, Bloch, Dinicu-Heifetz, Milhaud, and Hubay. His pianist is Leon Benditzky.

Brahms' "A German Requiem" is to constitute the major part of this afternoon's concert by the De Paul university chorus and orchestra, conducted by Dean Arthur C. Becker. Margaret Lester, soprano, and Luke Gask, baritone, are the soloists.

Remo Bolognini, violinist; Ennio Bolognini, cellist, and Doriss Wittich, pianist, will appear in joint recital at the Woman's club theater tomorrow evening. They are to be heard in trios by Arensky and Schütt, and in solo groups.

The three rôles in Debussy's short opera, "L'Enfant Prodigue," will be sung by Elva Gamble, Earl Tanner, and Reinhold Schmidt, when the work is performed by the Chicago Artists' association in Curtiss hall Tuesday evening.

Baillot's "Air Varié" on a theme by Handel, for two violins and cello, will receive its first Chicago performance in the sixth and last chamber concert by the Joseffer string quartet at 825 Fine Arts building tonight.

Critic Reviews Music Festival at Washington

Hears Hindemith, Noted German Composer, in His American Debut.

day, with a chamber orchestra conducted by Carlos Chavez, and with Mr. Hindemith as viola soloist. The composer introduced the work to New York last week, and is to play it this Wednesday at the Arts club here, with a chamber orchestra directed by Hans Lange. "Der Schwanendreher" is built upon four old German folk tunes. Each movement derives its shape and character from the quality of a folk tune theme. One melody is given to the viola accompanied by the harp alone; another becomes the subject of a merry fugato; still another is the basis of several eloquent variations. "Der Schwanendreher" is a beautiful work and should find its way into the permanent orchestral répertoire.

The Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge foundation offers an annual prize and the incentive of promised performances to gifted modern composers of chamber works. The prize for 1936 was awarded to a string quartet by Jerzy Fitelberg, a Pole now living in Paris. This proved to be a less inspiriting work, however, than the first string quartet of Roger Sessions of New York, who did not win a prize.

A dark horse in the part of the festival devoted to contemporary music was Carlos Chávez, the Mexican composer and conductor who led the New York Philharmonic orchestra for two weeks last January. As a composer he showed in his brand new Concerto for Four Horns much the same exquisite melodic feeling which distinguished the "Sinfonia Antigona" [conducted here in January by Jose Uturbi]. As a conductor he is well toward the top, competent in baton technique and gifted with uncommon musical insight. Ravinia and Orchestra hall sponsors, please take notice.

Many of the festival's 511 invitees secretly relished the older music sprinkled through the five concerts more heartily than most of the novelties of Hindemith and the others. A notable concert of baroque music brought forward undeservedly forgotten pieces from the 17th century. It also demonstrated that Bach's Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue sounds clearer and purer on the harpsichord than on the piano—at least when it is played by Mme. Alice Ehlers, the finest harpsichordist Germany has produced in our generation.

The library of congress festival is a feather in the cap of our national capital. For three days out of every 770 New York cannot claim to be the musical center of the land. Perhaps Chicago can devise some equally effective way of becoming the seat of some unique musical undertaking.

Fortune Gallo's redoubtable San Carlo Opera company opens a week's spring engagement at the Auditorium theater tomorrow evening with a triple bill consisting of Leoni's "L'Oracolo," the Johann Strauss ballet, "Viennese Life," and Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci." Hizi Koyke, Rolf Gerard, and Mario Valle are to sing in "L'Oracolo." The cast for "Pagliacci" includes Leola Turner, Aroldo Lindi, and Mostyn Thomas.

Carlo Peroni will conduct all performances. The bills for the rest of the week follow:

Tuesday, "Rigoletto," with Lucille Meusel, Demetrio Onofrei, and Valle; Wednesday, "Aïda," with Bianca Saroya, Dreda Aves, Lindi, Thomas, and Harold Kravitt; Thursday, "La Bohème," with Saroya, Turner, Onofrei, Valle, Stefan Kozakevitch, and Kravitt; Friday, "La Gioconda," with Leonora Corona [Chicago debut], Onofrei, and Valle; Saturday afternoon, "Madame Butterfly," with Koyke, Angelau, Gerard, and Valle; Saturday evening, "Faust," with Turner, Onofrei, Valle, and Kravitt; next Sunday evening [closing performance], "Il Trovatore," with Corona, Aves, Lindi, Thomas, and Kravitt.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Paul Hindemith, distinguished musical visitor from Germany, will be guest of the Arts club at a reception and concert on Wednesday evening. The musical program, devoted to Mr. Hindemith's works, includes the first Chicago hearing of "Der Schwanendreher."

PAUL HINDEMITH.

This work, a concerto on old folk tunes for viola and chamber orchestra, will be played by the composer and a group of symphony members under the direction of Hans Lange. Mr. Hindemith has further expressed his intention to give the world première of a new sonata for solo viola at this time.

Mr. Lange's regular activities with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall include four concerts this week—a young people's concert Wednesday afternoon, the Thursday-Friday subscription concerts, and the final Saturday evening popular concert of the season. Albert Spalding, famous Chicago born violinist, is to be soloist on Thursday and Friday in the Dohnanyi concerto. On the same program will be introduced an Introduction and Passacaglia by T. Tertius Noble, organist and choirmaster of St. Thomas church on New York's Fifth avenue. The standard works are Weber's Overture to "Der Freischütz" and Mozart's D major symphony [Köchel 385]. On Saturday, Dvorak's "New World" symphony and the Boccherini flute concerto with Mr. Ernest Liegl playing the solo part will be mainstays of the popular program.

"The Children's Crusade," by Gabriel Pierné, is the final item in the year's schedule of the Apollo club. This gracious gem of pre war French music, first performed in 1905, will be sung in Orchestra hall Tuesday evening, under the direction of Edgar Nelson. The Apollo club is to be assisted by the Glee clubs of New Trier High school, who have been rehersed by Mrs. Marian Cotton. The Chicago Symphony orchestra will participate, along with Esther Hart and Betty Pietsch, sopranos; William Miller, tenor; and Theodore Harrison, bass-baritone.

The Illinois Symphony orchestra, at the Great Northern theater, today is to provide a second opportunity to hear the excellent Concerto Grosso of Robert S. Whitney, first conducted by Frederick Stock a few seasons ago. Albert Goldberg is again guest conductor. He has dug out of the archives Schubert's forgotten third symphony in D major and will give this early work its first Chicago performance. Olga Dane, California trained contralto, is to sing Verdi's "O Donna Fatale," from "Don Carlos" and, for the first time in Chicago, "The Purple Hour," by Augusta Holmès, one of the members of the César Franck circle. The program will conclude with the local première of Fernandez Arbos' scintillant transcription of the Albeniz "Triana."

Emily Boettcher, Evanston pianist, is next Sunday's soloist. Izler Solomon will return to the conductor's desk.

Beethoven's Eighth Now in New Pressing

Is Spirited Rendition by Serge Koussevitzky and Boston Symphony.

LEADING the list of recent Victor releases is a recording of the Eighth Beethoven symphony by Serge Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony orchestra. The interpretation is spirited, the tempi high, yet the grateful little work does not lose its general character of mellowness and restraint. The string tone of the Boston orchestra is famous. Here are numerous opportunities to study and enjoy the miraculous beauty of its woodwinds. The first such opportunity comes when these admirably played instruments sing the eloquent contrasting phrase of the opening theme.

The name of Fritz Kreisler dominates another Victor album. The Kreisler string quartet, led by the redoubtable first violin of Fritz Kreisler, records the Kreisler A minor quartet. This is attractive music, with a quiet luster about it. The melodic and harmonic schemes are interesting without being alarmingly modern. In this work Kreisler is content to be Kreisler, but on the eighth side [the quartet takes seven] the group records the same composer's Scherzo a la Dittersdorf. This serves as a brief reminder of the great violinist's incorrigible habit of writing in the style of earlier musicians, some of them fictitious. Dittersdorf, however, is not fictitious. He was a contemporary of Haydn, Mozart, and the early Beethoven.

Of interest to antique instrument enthusiasts is Wanda Landowska's playing of the Bach Italian concerto on the harpsichord. Her sense of classical style and her immense technical equipment produce on this instrument what is probably authentic Bach. However, our ear has been partially spoiled by continuous hearing of the Bach harpsichord works on the modern piano, and we are likely to find the elder instrument a little austere in comparison to the rich glow of the younger. This observation, however, applies in this case principally to the concerto's middle movement. On the fourth record face of this two-disc set are three short preludes and a fugue of Bach.

Two excerpts from "Die Meistersinger,' "Dance of the Apprentices," and "Entrance of the Mastersingers" are available now in a recording by the Philharmonic orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting. Into a small compass the musicians compress several of the characteristics of this greatest comic opera in the literature. There are moods of whimsy, moments of tremendous majesty, an impression of everyday, diatonic honesty.

Attention should be called also to another recent Victor release—the A major Sonata of Faure, beautifully played by Jascha Heifetz, violinist, and Emanuel Bay, pianist.

Big Bad Man of Movies Is Art Collector

'Little Caesar' Says He Wants to Reform and Portray 'Good' Roles.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Special.]—Eddie Robinson is another of those screen bad men who lets you down badly when you meet him and find he's not that way at all. "I've paid the price for the popularity I gained as 'Little Cæsar'," says Eddie. "It's hard to escape doing rôles of that sort since my first success in films was in one, but I'm grateful enough for them . . . another rôle and I can buy another painting for my collection. Perhaps soon I will be given the sort of rôle I'd like to do, some historic character such as those presented to the public through the excellent biographical films that are so popular now. Meanwhile, I play bad boys and buy oil paintings with the money."

Robinson is justly proud of his collection of modern painters. It represents a sizable fortune. In fact, Robinson's art purchases rank in importance with any privately owned collection on the entire coast. France has requested Robinson to loan her some of his paintings, notably a Cezanne and a Gauguin, for the forthcoming exposition there, but the request probably will not be granted, as Robinson fears the turbulent conditions in Europe might result in their loss. Several of them will be loaned by him to the Metropolitan museum in New York for a show this summer.

Actor Has Many Famous Paintings in Collection.

For the benefit of art lovers the following are some of the outstanding paintings owned by Robinson: A portrait by Corot called "L'Italienne," or "Woman in Yellow Sleeve"; "The Black Clock," by Cezanne; Renoir's "After the Bath" and "Girl with Red Ribbon"; "Wagon Deuxieme Classe," by Daumier; "La Femme de Theatre," by Berthe Morisot, greatest of the women impressionists; "Fleurs de Tahiti," by Gauguin, and a pastel, "Ballet Dancers in Repose," by Degas.

"Every creative branch of art is discovering its market in Hollywood," says Robinson. "Talents of all kinds; the crafts, especially, are finding it profitable in the film capital. Hollywood may very well create a culture, or rather an appreciation of it, in this part of the world.

"When I first came here, as many other dyed in the wool New Yorkers, I missed the theaters and art galleries of the east and the libraries there. I find that there are a growing appreciation and interest in art in the film capital. People are eager for it, and are buying pictures and bringing them out here to their homes.

"It would be a wonderful thing if universities would plan courses for adults to take after they have had a few years of living in the business world. Then they would know what they were interested in, would have learned to weigh values, and a wonderful impetus toward real learning would be started.

Robinson Likes England's People and Its Countryside.

Robinson recently returned from six months in England, where he made a film, "Thunder in the City," the story of an American ballyhoo sort of person who takes his sketchy business methods to England and measures his wits against the established methods of conservative Britons.

"England is the one place in Europe where you do not see uniforms on every hand. The only ones you see there are those about the palace, those of the lifeguards, and the ones connected with the picturesque pageantry of the court. The conservative, even temper of the people is delightful, and the countryside I found colorful and beautiful. I like the idea of an actor being able to make pictures in different countries. It gives him a broader outlook."

The home of the Robinsons shows pride of possession. A handsome Tudor residence set in appropriate gardens and lawns, the house boasts a Tudor chimney resembling a double Norman tower with hand-wrought iron braces. A gable on the house is edged with a huge hand carved strip of weathered oak.

Gardens at the back are more informal than those at the front. Here young Manny [real name Edward G. Jr.], aged 4, is an earnest worker with spade and shovel, miniature size.

Robinson and his little son take turns being chief and captain, working with the gardener. The day papa is chief he gives orders which are obeyed. The day Manny is chief he gives orders and papa gravely carries them out. The day of our call there was a bit of an argument as to whose day it was to be chief, but the calendar settled it to everybody's satisfaction.

Manny is a courteous host. He inquired as to our preference in refreshments and, as we were leaving, we were given a spray of wildflowers he had carefully gathered in the field near by. He really had planned to keep them for his bedroom table, but some coaxing on the part of papa and the nurse persuaded him that parting with a few was the better part of valor where a lady reporter was concerned. One gathers that Papa Robinson takes a good deal of time with his son and is doing a good deal of thinking about his rearing.

New Lee Tracy Picture Just 'So So,' Says Movie Critic

By Mae Tinee.

"CRIMINAL LAWYER."
Produced by RKO-Radio.
Directed by Christy Cabanne.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST.

Brandon	Lee Tracy
Madge Carter	Margot Grahame
Larkin	Eduardo Ciannelli
Bandini	Erik Rhodes
Molly Walker	Betty Lawford
William Walker	Frank M. Thomas
Brandon's Assistant	Wilfred Lucas
District Attorney Hopkins	William Stack

GOOD Morning!

Again Eduardo Ciannelli, the terrorizing killer of "Winterset," steps forth to throw fear into the souls of a group of story characters.

This time the snake-visaged Italian matches wits with smiling, shrewd, silky tongued Lee Tracy.

Mr. Tracy [Brandon], when the picture opens, is a valued henchman of Ciannelli [Larkin].

The latter is a gambler and racketeer and Brandon is the mouthpiece who keeps him and his unsavory horde of law breakers out of jail. But one day Brandon is made district attorney. Whereupon, all the latent good in the bad little boy surges to the surface, and he leaps over to the other side of the fence.

"When I was with you—I was for you," he tells Larkin. "Now, I'm lined up against you—and that means I'm fighting you to the last ditch."

By fair means, then foul ones, Larkin attempts to get under Brandon's hide. His supreme coup fails—and he goes to the chair. But, e'en though he has forced Larkin to admit in court that he once had been a jury briber and low as an asp's tummy, the light-haired spell binder is happy. For, at last his conscience is clear and the woman he loves clings to his arm.

Mr. Tracy goes about orating like mad—which isn't so good. His eternally flowing, facetious blah sounds pretty forced and gets pretty tiresome. All of which I blame on writing and direction, feeling certain that this excellent actor probably grew quite as weary of himself while the picture was in the making, as his audience does of him.

Mr. Ciannelli is the height of the depth of evil as Crook Larkin. Margot Grahame and Betty Lawford are clever and pretty as two blondes who contend for the Brandon affections. Erik Rhodes is amusing and facile as a temperamental foreign crooner.

All in all, "Criminal Lawyer" isn't bad. Neither, however, is it very good.

See you tomorrow.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Mae Tinée: The writer, having seen the picture "The Lost Horizon," desires to make a complaint against the lack of foresight on the part of the motion picture producers in not granting that the public has a little bit of intelligence.

It is not clear to me just what is the purpose on the part of Maria, which is portrayed by Margo, saying that she has been a resident of the village for only two years, whereas, it is later shown by her aging that she really has been a resident since 1888. It seems that the entire crux of the story hinges upon this particular statement, since it is because of that statement that Ronald Colman, playing the part of Conway, decides that the entire creation and existence of the village is a fake, and for that reason decides to leave. In fact, it seems that if this particular portion were taken out there would be no story at all.

It therefore appears that, in order to make a picture, Hollywood sometimes will resort to jumbling together a group of scenes, no matter how incoherent, and add a little scenery to make what they term a spectacle.

Very truly yours,
JOSEPH COHN.

Editor's note: Maria HAD been there since 1888. She SAID she'd only been there two years because she wanted George Conway to believe her young and to take her away. In other words, the lady lied, and lied, and lied.

"Now don't push," Teacher Claire Tremblay cautions the quintuplets as she prepares to unlatch the porch gate. Left to right: Yvonne, Annette, Marie, Emilie, and Cecile. Pictures of the Dionnes are being printed daily in The Tribune. Follow the five little girls through the day's work and play.

Annette (left, foreground) and Marie (right) "jumped the gun" in the girls' race to the playground. They went running down the path while Yvonne, Cecile, and Emilie (in background) called for them to come back and start over again.

Marie and Annette decided to give the others a chance, but the latter, in front, seemed to be the only one who took the race seriously. Her sisters halted for a last word from the teacher. Left to right: Annette, Cecile, Yvonne, Emilie, and Marie.

At the end of the play period the girls lined up in the snow, not at all anxious for a race back to the schoolroom and all deadly serious about the business at hand. Left to right: Cecile, Marie, Annette, Emilie, and Yvonne.

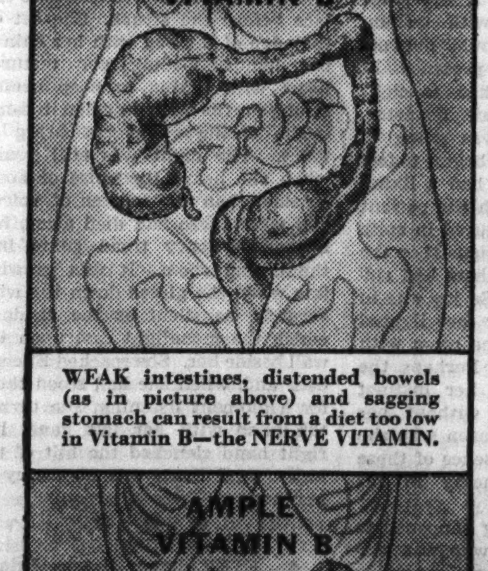
Health Is Undermined By Vitamin Shortage

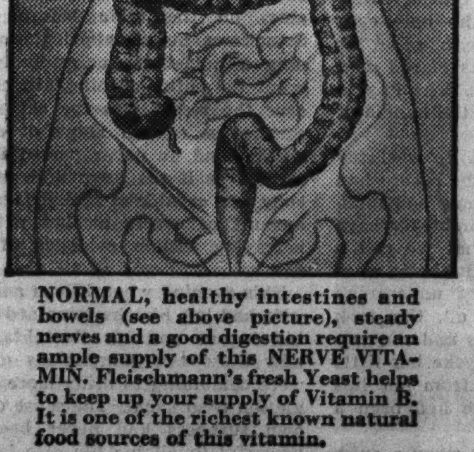
Many People Don't Know Whether They Are Getting All the Vitamins They Need in Their Regular Meals—Until Bad Health Shows It. But—by Adding ONE FOOD to Your Diet EACH DAY, You Can Assure Yourself an EXTRA SUPPLY of These 4 Vitamins

DEFICIENT IN VITAMIN A

IF YOU CATCH COLD EASILY and your general resistance is low, you may be poorly supplied with Vitamin A. A lack of this vitamin can weaken linings of nose and throat, making you more susceptible to colds. Recent tests indicate a large percentage of people in this country do not get enough Vitamin A. Let Fleischmann's fresh Yeast give you an added daily supply of this necessary vitamin.



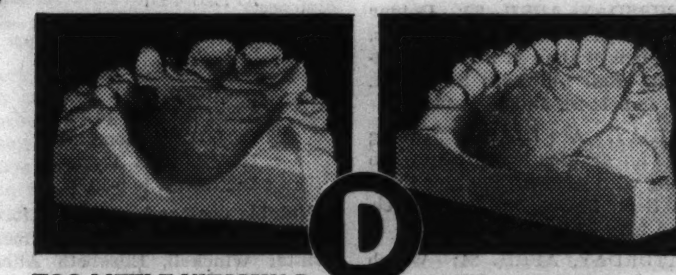
WEAK intestines, distended bowels (as in picture above) and sagging stomach can result from a diet too low in Vitamin B—the NERVE VITAMIN.



NORMAL, healthy intestines and bowels (see above picture), steady nerves and a good digestion require an ample supply of this NERVE VITAMIN. Fleischmann's fresh Yeast helps to keep up your supply of Vitamin B. It is one of the richest known natural food sources of this vitamin.

TOO LITTLE VITAMIN G MEANS POOR GROWTH

Underweight, thin, sickly children are often found to be poorly supplied with Vitamin G—the important GROWTH VITAMIN. To aid proper development of the body tissues, rapidly growing boys and girls need a generous supply of this essential vitamin. Fleischmann's Yeast is rich in Vitamin G. Children from 5 to 12 years can be given 1 to 2 cakes each day.



TOO LITTLE VITAMIN D

SOFT, poorly formed teeth (see plaster cast above) can follow too little Vitamin D—the important BONE VITAMIN.

AMPLE VITAMIN D

STRONG, attractive teeth (see above picture) require plenty of Vitamin D. Fleischmann's Yeast is rich in Vitamin D.

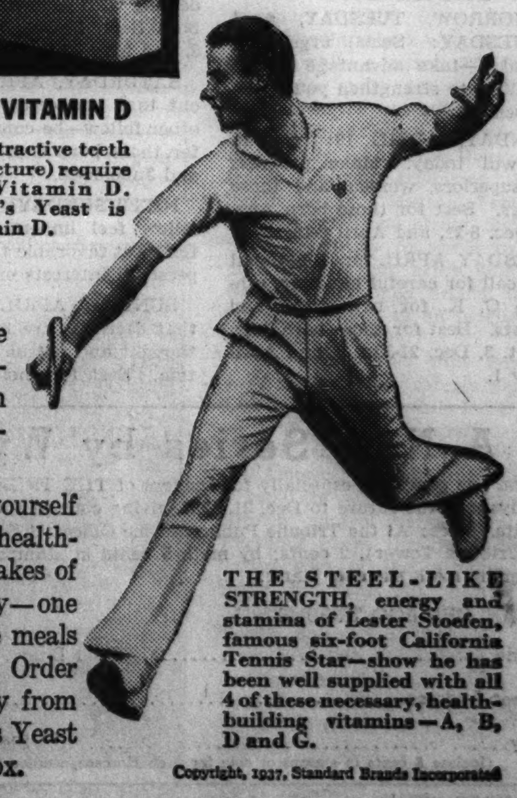
NO ONE can keep strong and healthy without a good daily supply of vitamins A, B, D and G. FLEISCHMANN'S fresh YEAST is rich in these 4 vitamins.

Nutrition experts say that the average daily meals of many people may fail to provide enough of these vitamins to keep health up to par.

The addition of this one food to your regular diet assures you of a special EXTRA supply of these 4 essential vitamins combined.

Fleischmann's Yeast is the only natural food that provides you with such a rich supply of all 4 of these vitamins at once.

Start today to keep yourself better supplied with these health-building vitamins. Eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily—one cake about ½ hour before meals—plain, or in a little water. Order two or three days' supply from your grocer. Fleischmann's Yeast keeps perfectly in the icebox.



THE STEEL-LIKE STRENGTH, energy and stamina of Lester Stoefen, famous six-foot California Tennis Star—show he has been well supplied with all 4 of these necessary, health-building vitamins—A, B, D and G.

The Tree of Death

By

Frederick R. Bechdolt

Death Hovers Very Near Eileen Lee, but Passes Her By to Strike Swiftly in an Unexpected Direction

THE STORY TO DATE

● Traveling by buckboard to a ranch in Two Rivers, N. M., John Lee and his daughter Eileen are rescued by Clay Stratton from his stampeding cattle. At Two Rivers, John Lee buys cattle from Sam Brink to stock his new ranch. That night, under the Tree of Death, Brink orders Sundance, a cattle rustler, to steal Lee's cattle back while he detains Lee in town. After the raid Sundance rides off with the longhorns, leaving Eileen alone with one of their cowboys dead and another wounded. Eileen manages to get the wounded man into the buckboard to drive him to town. Huge Ma Swazy, crude but warm-hearted, owns the town hotel. Birdlegs, her henpecked husband, represents justice in the town, appointed by Sam Brink. Clay meets Eileen on her way and drives to town with her. He leaves her and the wounded man in Ma Swazy's care and rescues John Lee from death at the hand of an outlaw, Bitter Creek. Clay kills the outlaw. Eileen and her father drive to Brink's ranch. Attracted by Eileen, Brink promises her father a new herd of cattle and has his Mexican wife invite Eileen to stay with them a while. Brink orders Sundance to steal cattle from Clay and sell them to Lee—then murder him, leaving Clay open to blame. Jealous of Eileen, Brink's wife agrees to let a Mexican outlaw kidnap the girl. Brink's wife tells the story to Ma Swazy, who races to Lee's ranch for aid. There she meets Clay, who has come in search of his cattle. Clay rescues Eileen. Returing home, Eileen learns her father has been murdered. Ma Swazy takes Eileen to the hotel. Birdlegs tells her Clay was the murderer. Sleeping off a drunk under the Tree of Death, Birdlegs awakes and hears Sam Brink plotting with Sundance. They plan to trick Clay into an ambush to be killed by Sundance. Birdlegs confides in Ma Swazy. She sets out to warn Clay..

INSTALMENT XII.

BRINK rose to receive his guest, and the bow which he gave her reminded her of the home which she had left, where men sometimes took the trouble to show a woman deference.

"I called at the hotel yesterday," he said, "but Mrs. Swazy would not let me see you." His lie erased the one reluctance which Eileen had felt about this call. For ever since her mind had been able to dwell upon such minor matters she had been wondering why no word of sympathy had come from the cattleman and his wife. Now he was going on smoothly: "We've worried about you a great deal. I want you to understand that anything that can be done I'll be glad to do."

"It was," she told him, "to ask your help that I came—help and advice." The lids drooped low over his eyes so that she did not see the flash which came into them.

"What is it that you want?" he asked.

"To go home," she cried. "To leave this country as soon as I can."

"She's sick of the hotel," he was thinking, and he saw his way open ahead of him now. He said, "We will not like to see you go."

"I could have stayed if my father had not been killed. The little money that the ranch would bring would be enough to take me. That's what I came to ask you. There must be some way to sell the place. There'll be a loss, of course——"

"I can do this for you, but it will take time." Her face changed color at his words. Brink was watching Eileen under his lowered lids, and he saw the bitterness of her disappointment.

"You understand," he went on slowly, "there are certain matters which must be attended to first. There's the punishment of the man who murdered your father, for one thing."

"You think, then——" He raised his hand to check her.

"I know," he said. "This morning I was talking with the two cowboys whom your father hired. They saw the shooting. It was that Texas man, Stratton."

"They told me so at the hotel." She barely breathed the words. He nodded. "Then I must stay!" Her voice was lifeless.

"Not here." His manner was decisive now. "You've been in that hotel too long. Yesterday when I came to see you I was in hopes of bringing you out to the ranch, but"—he made a brief gesture with both hands and there was a bare hint of venom in his voice as he went on—"Mrs. Swazy didn't care to let me see you. Now that you're able to speak for yourself, I'm in a better position to help. You shall do your waiting where it is quiet and there'll be no one to bother you."

Eileen was thinking of the long adobe house and the cool, dim rooms where the servants slipped about without a sound.

"I ought to thank you properly," she was beginning, but Brink cut her short.

"Please don't." He was looking at his watch. "I'm overdue at the ranch. You can get ready now."

"I'll be back in a few minutes," she told him.

It so happened that Birdlegs had gone over to the blacksmith shop when she arrived at the hotel, so he knew nothing of her departure, and the only ones to whom she said good-by were Maria Ramirez and Wes. By the time the little landlord had returned to his duties Brink's two-horse buckboard was well on its way toward the foothills.

• • •

IT WAS early in the afternoon when they arrived at the long ranchhouse. Mrs. Brink was standing in the doorway of the little cubicle where she had taken up her residence since her banishment to the Mexican quarters. She saw the dust which the buckboard raised a long way off, and she watched the cloud as it drew nearer until it parted and revealed the vehicle with the two upon the driver's seat.

She stood in the doorway for some time gazing at these two, and when she turned at last and went into the shadowed room little flecks of red were dancing in the black depths of her eyes. There was an old table in the corner opposite the door; she went straight to it and she opened its rickety drawer. She found what she was looking for. It was one of those skinning knives which the buffalo hunters had used in the years when the great herds roamed the valley, and the blade had been whetted to razor sharpness. She picked it up and hid it in her bosom.

Mrs. Brink sat down beside the little table. After the fashion of the married women of her race, she was dressed all in black. She sat with her head bowed, her folded hands between her knees, without the slightest movement; she was like a large shadow in the dimness of the room.

She was not thinking of other things which would have set most women's minds to racing at this time. For thought was a habit which she never had acquired. Her mind was not numbed. It was simply passive. Ever since the morning when her husband had ordered her to leave the house and live among the servants she had been expecting the arrival of Eileen. Now it had come. And she had reacted to it unconsciously, very much as an animal would have done, exactly like one of her savage forbears.

Brink had thrown her aside, and today he had brought this girl to take her place. She heard the servants running about to do her successor service. And she felt the hardness of the knife against her breast. By and by the time would come for her to act. Further than that her mind did not go.

The minutes passed; she was unconscious of their slipping by. She heard a heavy footfall beyond the threshold. She knew that step, but she had not expected it. She raised her eyes. Her husband was standing in the doorway.

He stood with his feet wide apart and his head thrust a little forward; his under lip was pushed out beyond the other. Because of the dimness of the room and the black dress which she was wearing he did not discover her for some moments. And when he did he drew back just a little, as if there was something about her utter stillness which startled him. Then he said:

"O, there you are."

She remained silent, watching his face; her eyes were unwinking like the eyes of a stalking animal. And when he spoke again uneasiness was still upon him, it made his voice a little shriller than usual.

"I want you at the house."

She rose and her head remained bowed, she did not say a word. He turned away and she followed at his heels. The wife of Antonio Ramirez, who had come to her doorway at the first sound of the buckboard's arrival and remained there ever since, with a portion of her dark eyed brood hanging about her skirts, clenched her plump brown hands as she watched them crossing the bare courtyard.

"If you were my man," she was thinking, "I would do somethings to you!"

Brink waited until they were past the corrals before he addressed his wife again. Then he called her to his side.

"I have brought Miss Lee here." He had regained his composure now, but there was something in her silence which irritated him and, while he was talking, he was wishing that the time were here when he could get rid of her. "She will be our guest—for a long while. So you will stay at the house again. It is what you people call the duenna. You understand?" She answered then.

"Si." One word and that was all.

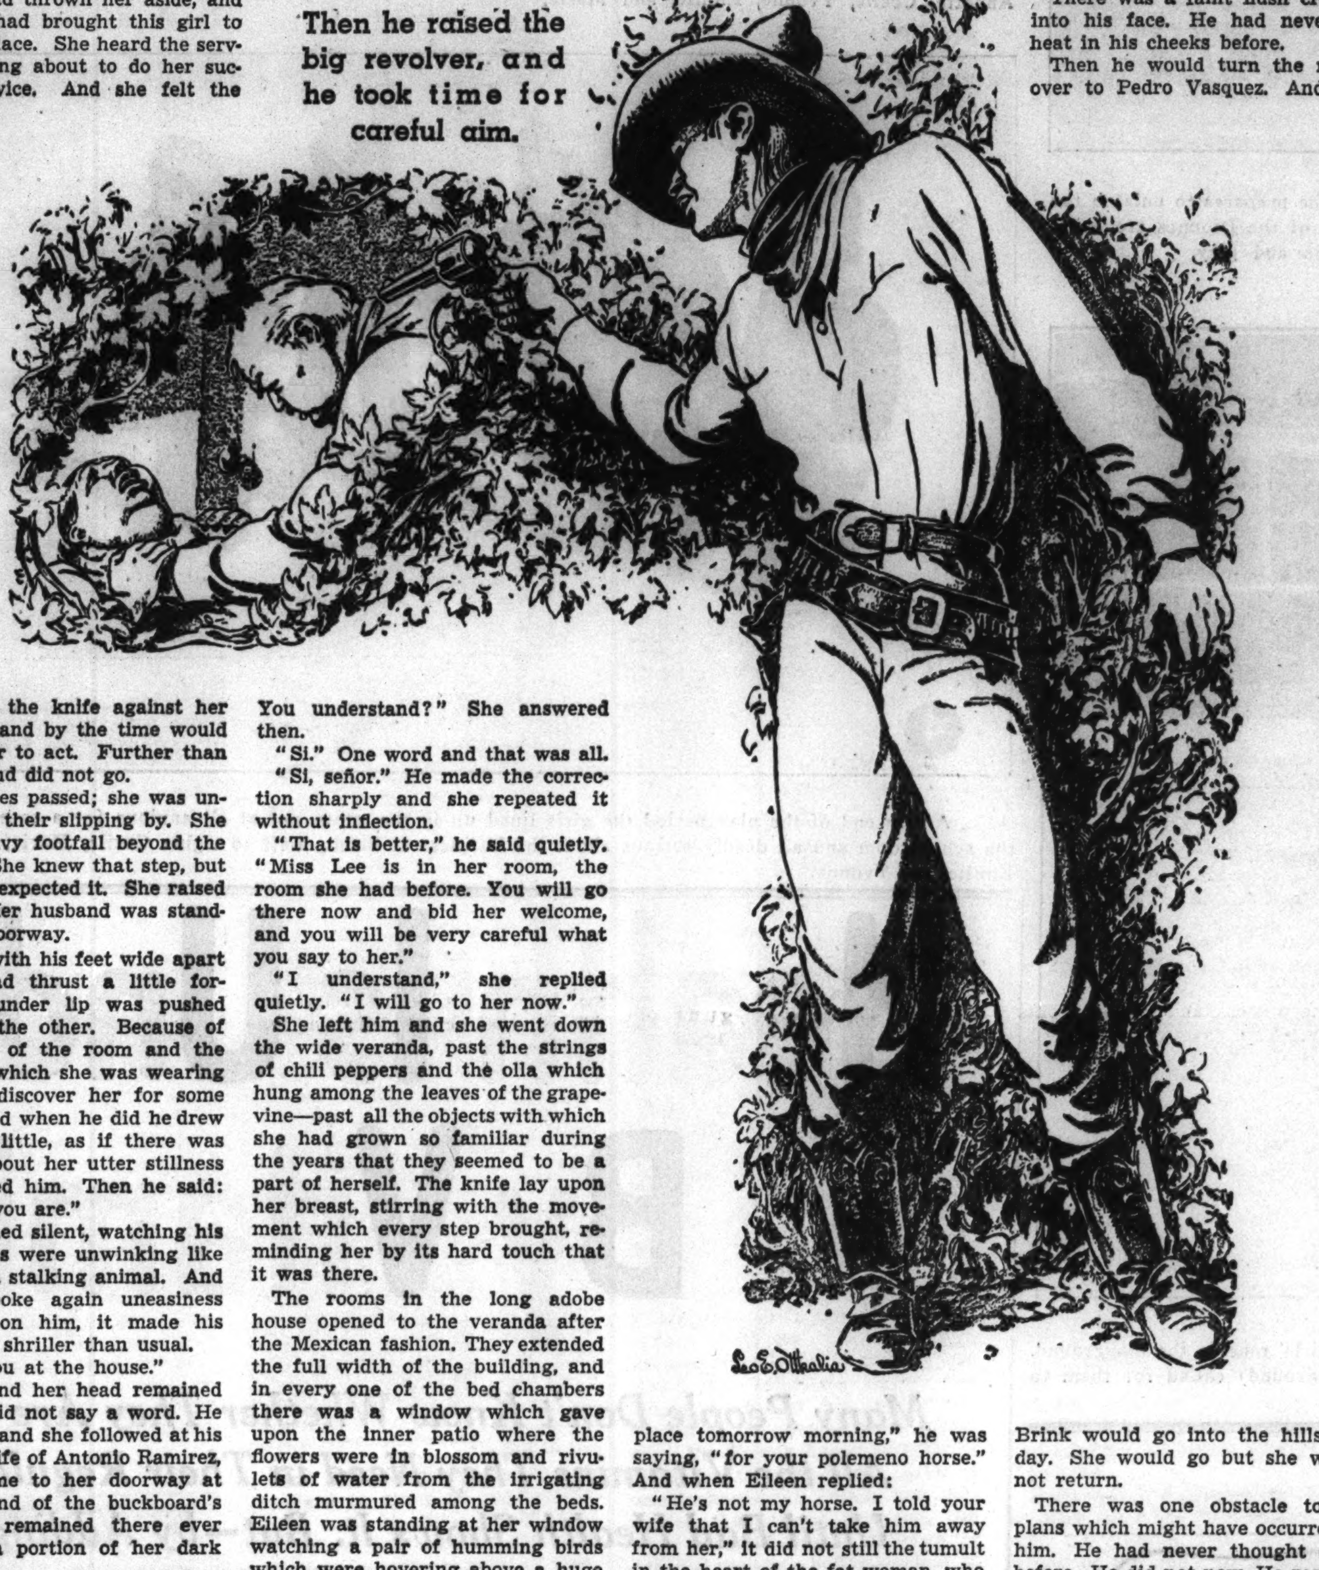
"Si, señor." He made the correction sharply and she repeated it without inflection.

"That is better," he said quietly. "Miss Lee is in her room, the room she had before. You will go there now and bid her welcome, and you will be very careful what you say to her."

"I understand," she replied quietly. "I will go to her now."

She left him and she went down the wide veranda, past the strings of chili peppers and the olla which hung among the leaves of the grapevine—past all the objects with which she had grown so familiar during the years that they seemed to be a part of herself. The knife lay upon her breast, stirring with the movement which every step brought, reminding her by its hard touch that it was there.

The rooms in the long adobe house opened to the veranda after the Mexican fashion. They extended the full width of the building, and in every one of the bed chambers there was a window which gave upon the inner patio where the flowers were in blossom and rivulets of water from the irrigating ditch murmured among the beds. Eileen was standing at her window watching a pair of humming birds which were hovering above a huge clump of honeysuckle where Mrs. Brink knocked. She called for her to enter and she turned to see the señora standing upon the threshold, a huge figure, all in black, regarding her in silence, with one plump hand thrust within the bosom of her dress.



Then he raised the big revolver, and he took time for careful aim.

EILEEN cried out. For when she had come here the silence had impressed her strangely; there was an air about the place which had left her with an uneasiness which she could not understand. And the presence of Brink did not help her to fight it off. When he had departed, telling her that he was going to seek his wife, she had begun to feel a little easier, for she had a liking for the fat woman with the patient brown face; it had endured in spite of the brief period of distrust on the day when the two of them had ridden up into the hills. So joy was in her voice now and her face lighted up; she came across the room with both hands extended. Perhaps the fear of Brink, which her instinct had brought to her without her knowing it, was the reason why she failed to sense the presence of those little red lights dancing in his wife's eyes.

Then a curious thing happened to the luckless creature who was confronting the girl. The passions which had been surging within her until their tumult was like physical pain, subsided as she heard that cry. And as she looked into the blue eyes which had lighted with relief at sight of her, the flecks of red died away in her own eyes. The fingers which were clutching the handle of the knife relaxed.

"E'es nice yo' come. Yo' weel stay a long tam, yes?" If the señora had been a sophisticated lady and intelligent she would undoubtedly have been experiencing what we call a conflict of emotions. But being what she was, she was not undergoing any such struggle at all. She took Eileen's hands in hers and she was not lying when she spoke her little piece, the words fell from her lips as naturally as if she had been a child.

But when she went away a quarter of an hour later and saw her husband sitting in the rustic chair behind the grapevines looking at the big cottonwood tree which the vaqueros had given a bad name, it was just as natural that the ugly passions which had fled for the time being should return. The afternoon wore on; she slipped about the house in soft footed silence; once she had a glimpse of Eileen standing before a honeysuckle vine in the patio and Brink hovering behind her. The evening came and they sat down to dinner in the thick walled dining room, where old mahogany furniture gleamed in the candlelight. The señora had withdrawn inside her shell of silence; she listened to her husband talking to their guest.

"I am sending a vaquero to your place tomorrow morning," he was saying, "for your polemeno horse." And when Eileen replied:

"He's not my horse. I told your wife that I can't take him away from her," it did not still the tumult in the heart of the fat woman, who heard her. If she had less of the savage in her the knife which was bruising her breast would have been meant for the man who was torturing her. As it was she sat there, saying nothing, and some time after the meal was over she slipped to Eileen's room and took the key from the door. Then she went to her own room.

It would be easier to do the thing in the dark. Then the girl would be asleep and would not talk to her. She would not have to look into her face before she struck. She sat on the edge of the bed with her chin in her hands, feeding her tortured heart with hatred to keep herself strong for the moment when it came.

The darkness did not bring silence. The night was still young when she heard the noise of hoofs outside, then the mutter of voices, and after these had died away, her husband's heavy tread going into the dining room. It was growing late when she glided down the wide veranda, as silent as the shadows which the moonlight cast upon the wall beside her. She reached Eileen's door and, when she had stood there for a moment listening, she turned the knob with her left hand, her right hand clenched the hilt of the knife. And there was no mercy in her now.

AFTER dinner it was Brink's invariable habit to sit alone with a decanter of old French brandy and a small liquor glass on the table before him. Sometimes he remained there for only a half hour, occasionally he spent the entire evening. In either case the result was the same; he reached a certain stage of exhilaration and he never passed it. It seemed as if the huge hulk of his body was capable of soaking up any amount of excess alcohol without betraying visible evidence of the fact.

This evening when Eileen and his wife had left him he remained with his cognac and his thoughts, but now these two companions of his were combining to bring more stimulation than usual. The sense of his own sureness had never been so powerful in all his life. He let his mind rove ahead into the future.

What to do next? The answer to that question had come this afternoon when he was walking across the bare court of the vaqueros' quarters with his fat wife a pace or two behind him. He was impatient with himself for having waited as long as he had before disposing of her. However, he reflected, it was just as well that he had done so after all. For without her he could not have persuaded Eileen to stay here.

His blood was running hot tonight. He poured another glass and, instead of sipping it as was his custom, he swallowed the liquor at a single gulp. Now that the girl was here there was no heed to lose more time. Take her to the county seat and get a court order whereby he would have the handling of her father's estate and then——

There was a faint flush creeping into his face. He had never felt heat in his cheeks before.

Then he would turn the matter over to Pedro Vasquez. And Mrs. Brink would go into the hills one day. She would go but she would not return.

There was one obstacle to his plans which might have occurred to him. He had never thought of it before. He did not now. He reached for the brandy; he drank again and he let his mind dwell on the possession which he longed for, as many another of his sort has done, taking the conquest all for granted.

It had been dark for some time outside. The rattle of hoofs sounded very loud before the house. Brink arose from his chair.

There was something in the voice of Vasquez as he answered his employer's shrill hail that slowed the fat man's pulses. Brink laid his hand on the panting horse and after he took it away it was coated thickly with lathered sweat. The Mexican reeled from weariness when he dropped from the saddle.

"It is the massacre." He was speaking the border Spanish.

"So?" Brink felt his pulses leap once more, for the meaning of these tidings had failed to come to him. "It was complete!"

"Señor," the foreman gasped, "you do not understand. It is the men of Sundance who are killed."

Brink swayed a little. He laid his hand on the flank of the horse again, to steady himself.

"What do you say?" he demanded thickly.

And when Vasquez had repeated the words, Brink remained silent; he listened to the story that followed, and he asked one question after it was done.

"Sundance?"

"I saw three ride away. And he was one of them."

Brink started to say something, but checked himself. He shook his head and he walked into the house without another word. When he was in the dining room he sank into his chair and poured himself another glass of brandy; he gulped it down.

"And Sundance rode away!" He was looking out through the open door as he whispered it, and he fancied that he could hear the leaves of the big cottonwood answering him from the darkness. He swallowed another glassful of the liquor.

His mind seemed to be working more slowly than usual. He thrust his head forward; the movement was like that which a bull makes when it is facing an antagonist beside the herd where the two of them have come to have their battle out.

There were many things to think upon and, he had a feeling, there might be small time in which to do the thinking.

Stratton knew how matters stood. And Mrs. Swazy knew. And Sundance would be riding this way. He wished that he could forget the outlaw for a moment. Every time he strove to center his thoughts on some course of action the picture of the lean young face with the three buck teeth kept coming up before him. He took more brandy to help him shake off the vision.

Only one thing to do. For the present this was no place for him. There was money enough in the bank at Santa Fe to take him as far as he pleased, to last him as long as he chose to remain. But he must ride away tonight.

Tonight! Within the hour!

And then his thoughts returned to Eileen. He sat with his chin cupped in his hand and, with the resurging of his hot desire, his mind seemed to have grown clearer. He rose from his chair and he went out into the night and while he was walking across the bare ground to the quarters of the vaqueros he stumbled twice. But he did not notice this; he was too intent on striving to think of the story which he was going to tell the girl later.

Pedro Vasquez was starting to pull off his clothes when Brink appeared in the doorway of his little house.

"Catch those two buckskins you broke to harness last spring," Brink told him, "and hook them up to the buckboard."

He followed the foreman to the corral and watched him while he carried out the order; and when the team was ready he got into the seat and drove them over to the hitching rack before the house. He left them there and hurried into his room, where he packed a few articles of clothing into a cowhide valise. During all this time he was thinking of what he would tell Eileen. When he had thrown the grip into the back of the buckboard he had the story ready.

On his way to her bedchamber he stopped in the dining room and he reached for the liquor glass, but his hand was unsteady and the glass fell to the floor; it shivered into fragments. He picked up the decanter and he drank from it.

"A messenger from the county seat. The sherif wants her to be on hand tomorrow. We've got to start at once in order to make it. And if she gets nasty when she learns where we're going——" He sucked in his breath sharply.

He was out on the veranda now, and he realized that he was staggering. The knowledge of his condition brought a surge of recklessness upon him.

The moonlight was streaming over the bare ground, it showed the tree of death standing out black against the sky. It cast deep shadows of the grapevine upon the floor of the veranda. He heard some one moving out there beyond the hitching rack. And then he caught sight of a darker shadow than the others before the door which he was seeking.

He was within arm's length of the shadow when it moved and his breath hissed between his teeth as he saw his wife's face upturned toward him.

The blood was pounding in his temples and his head was reeling. He reached forth and he seized her throat in his two hands. His fingers were sinking in. It was the last sensation he had, the feeling of the soft flesh yielding beneath his fingers.

• • •

THERE were three of them: Sundance and Ben Chilson were riding side by side; the other who followed a few yards in the rear was a young horse thief from the Panhandle; he was known by the name of Whitey, and he was wishing that he were back on the breaks of the Canadian. When they reached the place where the pair of ruts branched off into the hills leading to the Old Horse ranch they drew rein.

"Yo' two wait here," Sundance bade them. "I won't be gone long."

A few minutes later he dismounted under the big cottonwood, which Brink's vaqueros called the tree of death. The patch of blackness beneath its spreading branches was as an island in the lake of moonlight. Across the limpid interval lay the strip of shade cast by the ranchhouse, a sharply defined shore, beyond which the only visible objects were the two lighted windows of the dining room.

Sundance stood beside his horse listening. No sound came from the house. He whistled twice and, while he waited for an answer, one of the team at the hitching rack pawed the earth impatiently. He remembered that he had heard the rattle of wheels when he was riding over from the Horse Ranch road. This would explain its cause, but not its purpose; he frowned, wondering what that might be.

His hand was on the butt of his revolver and he was crouching ever so slightly as he crossed the space of moonlight. Although the long ride had left his limbs stiff he was moving as lightly as a cat. He reached the strip of blackness before the house and, when it had swallowed him, he paused beside the buckboard. He stepped between the wheels and searched the space behind the seat; his hands encountered Brink's valise.

"So that's it!" he whispered. And then he became conscious of a sound on the veranda.

He had his six shooter in his hand when he slipped away from the vehicle. The foliage of the grapevine hung between him and the porch, a thick curtain shutting him from the sight of any one behind it.

The sound was growing more distinct now. It was not very loud, but there was something about it which made the short hairs on the back of Sundance's neck rise with a queer pricking sensation. It puzzled him, that sound, recalling a vague unpleasant memory which would not take form until he was within two or three yards of the place from which it came. Then the picture in the back of his mind became clear; two men fighting with their bare hands upon a barroom floor, fighting to kill.

• • •

HIS lips parted, showing his buck teeth; it was the ugly grin that one sees in an angered dog. He reached a spot where the stems of the grapevine were parted, leaving a narrow opening, through which he looked.

For a bare instant he stood there rigid. Then he raised the big revolver and he took time for careful aim, for this was one shot which must go true. The noise of the forty-five shattered the silence of the night, where a rider was coming up the road from Two Rivers, nearly a half mile away.

Sundance heard the hammering of approaching hoofs as he was swinging into his saddle under the tree of death, but he did not wait to learn who this other was. When he reached the wagon track, which led away into the hills, Chilson was waiting alone.

"What's come of Whitey?" the outlaw asked.

"Done cleared out," Chilson laughed shortly. "He 'lowed he's had all he wants of this butterfly life."

"We're better off without him." Sundance fell silent then. They were riding up the first bare slope where little tufts of dwarf sage were shining like burnished silver in the moonlight, with inky shadows lying beside them, when he spoke again.

"I killed Brink."

"I heard the shot." There was no surprise in Chilson's voice.

"I always knew I'd kill him some day, but it was funny how this play came up." Sundance swore under his breath. "He was a smart man, Brink was, too smart. Ever since I first knew him I had a feelin' that he was ready to play both ends against the middle. But he was a heap worse than I figured."

"I bet I know what happened," Chilson growled. "Vasquez beat us in and Brink was making ready to clear out when yo' came there."

"Which yo' are right," Sundance went on quietly. "But there is more than that. Here I am on the wolf an' I took time to stop off so he'd be sure an' get the news. An' the first thing I run onto is his buckboard with his valise in the back. I wanted to make sure where he was going—who he was going to see on this here pasear. I wanted to have a little talk, just to find out how things was standing. So I went looking for him. And when I found him——"

He broke off to swear again at greater length.

"He was choking his wife. I've seen greasers do that—shut off their wind when they was raising too much rumpus. But this wasn't any family quarrel. He was—choking her to death. I wish I'd killed him a long while ago, the first time I thought of it."

They rode on in silence and they had gone some miles before the outlaw remembered the sound of hoofs which he had heard when he was getting into the saddle under the tree of death.

"Wonder who it could of been?" Chilson said, and they speculated as to the answer of his question as the horses climbed the steepening grade among the tall enfolding ridges whose pale flanks glimmered in the moonlight between the clumps of oak.

(To be concluded.)

TWELFTH INSTALMENT

By LIDDELL HART

FOILED in his half-hearted aim, General Ludendorff henceforth became obsessed with the idea of redeeming his lost opportunity and of striking a final and decisive blow at the British in Flanders. But, having now drawn the French reserves thither as well as to the Somme, he saw that he must first draw them back again to their front. With this idea he decided to attempt a diversion on the French front.

With good judgment the German command chose a sector so strong naturally that it was weakly held—the Chemin des Dames ridge north of the Aisne. It was further calculated that, this being the sector nearest Paris, the French reserves would be drawn there more easily.

In preparing this offensive against the Chemin des Dames the German technique reached its highest level. To conceal the assembly of the forces most elaborate precautions were taken. Every artillery wheel had wood-wool wired onto its tire; every axle was wired with a lether covering; every horse's hoofs were muffled in rags; every chain, ring, shield, or ladder was wrapped in straw. The attacking divisions were brought up by nightly stages, hiding in woods by day.

Nature provided a double reward for this care. For the difficult problem of bridging unnoticed the River Ailette, which ran through no man's land, was eased by the croaking of frogs which swarmed in that valley. To this noise screen was added the greater help of a thick ground mist on the morning of the assault.

At 1 a. m. on May 27 the bombardment opened on a thirty-mile front between Reims and Soissons. A total of 3,700 guns were employed, working on a system devised by Bruchmüller that was aimed to produce the maximum confusion in the defense. At 3:40 a. m. the barrage moved on—it consisted of "a hurricane of gas shells in front followed by a sheet of shrapnel paving the way for the infantry advance." A wave of fourteen German divisions struck five Allied divisions—or rather the dazed survivors. These were swiftly overwhelmed. The defenders had five more divisions in reserve, but the bulk of these were rashly pushed forward and engulfed in the advancing flood, which swept on to seize the unguarded bridges of the Aisne. By nightfall it had reached a second barrier river, the Vesle—a penetration twelve miles deep.

This startling success had been much aided by the Allied command. Haig had once again expected that the enemy's next blow would be aimed to capture the Arras bastion. Foch was inclined to agree that the British might again be the target, but was more concerned with his own offensive schemes, which had already been forestalled once. How little he anticipated the Chemin des Dames stroke is shown by the fact that to this very sector were sent—for a rest—five battle-worn British divisions in exchange for the French divisions sent to Flanders. It is remarkable, however, that the American intelligence, studying the question in detachment from preconceived views, arrived by deductive reasoning at the conclusion that the next German offensive would be against the Chemin des Dames sector between May 25 and 30. This reasoning eventually made an impression on the French intelligence, but, as at Verdun two years before, the operations branch disagreed.

Two days before the blow fell the British came to suspect it, but to their warning the French general headquarters replied early on the 26th that "there is no indication that the enemy has made preparations which would enable him to attack the Chemin des Dames position tomorrow."

Gen. Hunter Liggett. He played the chief part at St. Mihiel.

Almost simultaneously two Germans were taken prisoner and under cross-examination disclosed the whole plan. General Duchêne, the local French army commander, held a conference to discuss what measures could be taken to meet it. Nothing adequate could be done in the time; the alternative was to fall back immediately behind the Aisne. But the generals could not bring themselves to abandon such hallowed ground. They decided to stay—and lost their troops as well as the ground. Apart from the dead and wounded, 50,000 prisoners were taken.

If this sacrifice imperiled France, it ultimately became the Germans' undoing. Once again Ludendorff was first surprised and then ensnared by the unforeseen measure of his own success. Intending only a diversion, he had limited the objective to the high ground south of the Vesle. On reaching that line on the 28th the Germans halted. The situation was too tempting, and Ludendorff decided to push on. During the pause the wine cellars of Champagne fought for France.

The German soldiers, like their chief, were unable to resist temptation. At Fismes and elsewhere there were "drunken soldiers lying all over the road." Progress became slow despite the slightness of the opposition.

On the 30th the German center reached the Marne, fifteen miles beyond the Vesle, but the wings were bent back. And the French had forestalled an attempt to extend the frontage west of Soissons—by a timely step back. Moreover, the delay had gained time for Pétain to rush reserves to the scene—sixteen divisions were sent in the first twenty-four hours. The first few were thrown in as they arrived and thrown back by the German tide. But on June 1 Pétain issued orders that further reserves should dig in before the tide reached them and thus form a vast semicircular dam to check and confine its slackening flow. Ludendorff had also taken a new decision of fateful consequence. He postponed his intended blow in Flanders and concentrated his efforts on developing his success against the French. With this aim he sought to expand the flanks of the new breach and also mounted in haste an attack to break down the vast "buttress" which separated the Marne breach from the Somme breach.

The first intention was frustrated by the strength of Pétain's new dam; its failure was signalized by the appearance of Americans in the battle line and by the counterattack which their 2d division delivered at Château Thierry on the Marne. The second intention was foiled when the German attack against the Noyon-Montdidier sector on June 9 was quickly brought to a standstill. The haste of preparation had forfeited concealment, so that the French were ready to meet it.

The German offensive, for all its air of success, had achieved for the Allies what their own offensives of 1915, 1916, and 1917 had failed to bring in sight. For three years the French and British military chiefs had talked confidently of the early exhaustion of the German army under the "attrition" of their attacks. Yet the annual intake of German recruits had much exceeded the permanent loss that was inflicted, which amounted during these three years to about one and a half million men. Although during his Passchendaele offensive Haig had reported that the end of the German resources was in sight, in March, 1918, the Germans' strength on the western and eastern fronts amounted to more than 4,600,000. The number of their divisions had now reached its peak—235. This was nearly 20 per cent more than the number of German divisions when the Franco-British offensive of 1917 opened. Moreover, the average field strength of battalions was more than 800 men.

When the German offensive came to an end, however, the average strength of battalions had fallen to 600 odd. Worse still, the annual intake had been used up in filling up the ranks to this level, and divisions were now being broken up. From now on the strength would fall continuously with ever-growing momentum.

The effect was much worse because stomachs were empty. The Allied blockade had now tightened to a strangle hold. Food and all other necessities were dwindling. The rations issued to the German troops were insufficient both in quantity and quality to keep them in a healthy state. Sickness became rampant, and many of the men in the ranks, if not sick enough to be taken to hospital, were not fit enough to fight.

While the German strength was waning, that of the Allies was waxing. The American forces were now pouring into France in numbers that much exceeded even the great losses of the British and French in resisting the German offensive.

That reinforcement had been slower to arrive than the hard-pressed Allied nations had expected. For the delay there were several causes beyond the original lack of preparation. The United States government had lost little time in deciding to create an army of millions and within three weeks of entering the war had adopted conscription. But according to Pershing, the commander of the expeditionary force, "it was, with some exceptions, practically six months before training of our army was under way." He blames the delay on the building of cantonments to house the newly raised troops. But in the opinion of Gen. Peyton March, who became chief of staf of the United States army in 1918, there was a further needless delay in using these troops after their arrival in France. For this he blames Pershing's conventional outlook, saying that "the practical effect of the Pershing policy was that large bodies of American troops . . . who had had from four to six months' training, often more, in camp in America . . . found the keen edge of their enthusiasm dulled by having to go over and over again drills and training which they had already undergone in America."

Clemenceau, French premier, failed to move Gen. Pershing.

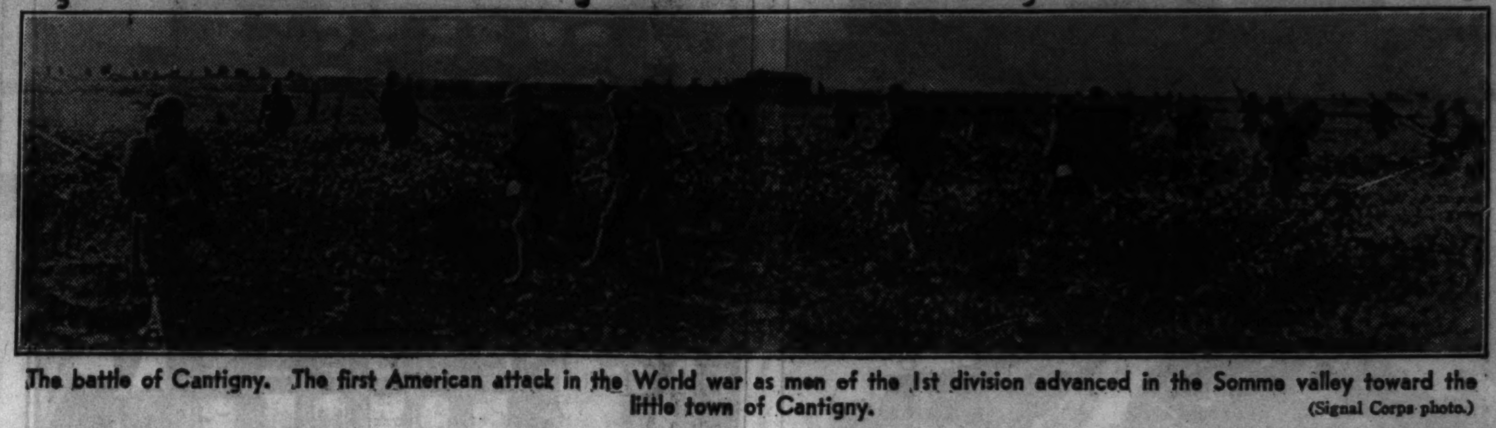
The main plank of Pershing's policy was his determination to build up an all-American army independent of the Allies. For its equipment he could not be independent; he stated himself that even "up to the end of the war no guns of American manufacture" of the main types used were fired in battle. Mortars were almost entirely obtained from the British and tanks mainly from the French. But in the control of those forces he was determined to allow no partnership. There can be little doubt that his policy was justified in principle from a national point of view, and that where action was not urgent it was also in accord with practical wisdom. In his stand for national sentiment he was but following the example of the French and British commanders; the only question is whether he carried it further in a time of crisis, to the point where he imperiled the Allied cause as a whole.

The desire of the Allies, which became more insistent as the strain grew heavier, was that American infantry and machine gun units should be sent as soon as they were ready, without waiting until complete divisions could be organized and dispatched. Pershing feared that if he yielded on this point the Allies would be reluctant to release them when his own higher organization was ready.

When the storm broke over the Allied front on March 21 there were 300,000 American troops in France, forming eight double-sized divisions. Of these two were in the line, holding quiet sectors. On March 28, during the crisis on the Somme, Pershing relaxed so far as to declare that the American troops were at Foch's disposal for use whenever required. It was an inspiring gesture—although in actual fact he did no more than he had already arranged with Pétain. This was to relieve two more French divisions by one American. Two months passed before more than four American divisions were used to help in holding the line. On May 25, coincidentally with the third German offensive, the 1st division struck the first American blow in a local attack at Cantigny, near Montdidier.

During those two months the imminent danger of collapse spurred the French and British governments to ceaseless efforts toward hastening the intervention of the American forces. On April 25 Foch bluntly told Pershing that "the American army may arrive to find the British pushed into the sea and the French driven back behind the Loire, while it tries in vain to organize on lost battlefields over the graves of Allied soldiers."

At an emergency conference at Abbéville early in May, Lloyd George, echoed by Clemenceau and Orlando, said to him "Can't you see that the war will be lost unless we get this support?" But Pershing was unmoved. They continued to press the point—"whereupon I struck the table with my fist and said with the greatest possible emphasis, 'Gentlemen, I have thought this program over very deliberately and will not be coerced.'" The war was not lost and Pershing was thus proved correct. But disaster was averted by a margin so narrow that the Allied armies had to pay heavy excess costs in order to prove him correct.



The battle of Cantigny. The first American attack in the World war as men of the 1st division advanced in the Somme valley toward the little town of Cantigny. (Signal Corps photo.)

There can be little question, however, that after the Germans had spent their strength in these three great offensives the entry of America's forces was a major factor in enabling the depleted Franco-British forces to take advantage of the Germans' exhaustion.

The problem of quickening the flow of the American troops to France was eased when Lloyd George at Abbéville promised to scrape together additional British shipping. Pershing agreed that preference might be given, although only for two months, to infantry and machine gunners so far as they were carried in British ships—thus leaving him free to use American shipping for the transport of artillery and technical troops to complete his divisional organization. From this point of view he had achieved a bargain wholly advantageous to his plan of building a self-contained American army. The rate of arrivals now increased to 300,000 troops a month—a number equal to the total loss of the British in meeting the March and April attacks. By mid-July there were twenty-one complete American divisions in France.

Ludendorff had thrown his weight so heavily, if belatedly, into the push toward Paris that more than a month passed before he was able to gather reserves for a further effort. Unable to see that the tide had turned and unwilling to admit the deterioration of his troops, he still imagined himself delivering the oft-delayed final blow against the British. But his information showed "the enemy in Flanders still so strong that the German army could not attack there yet." So he postponed this blow once more until he had tried yet another diversion—this time by an attack on either side of Reims, to break down the eastern buttress of the Marne salient.

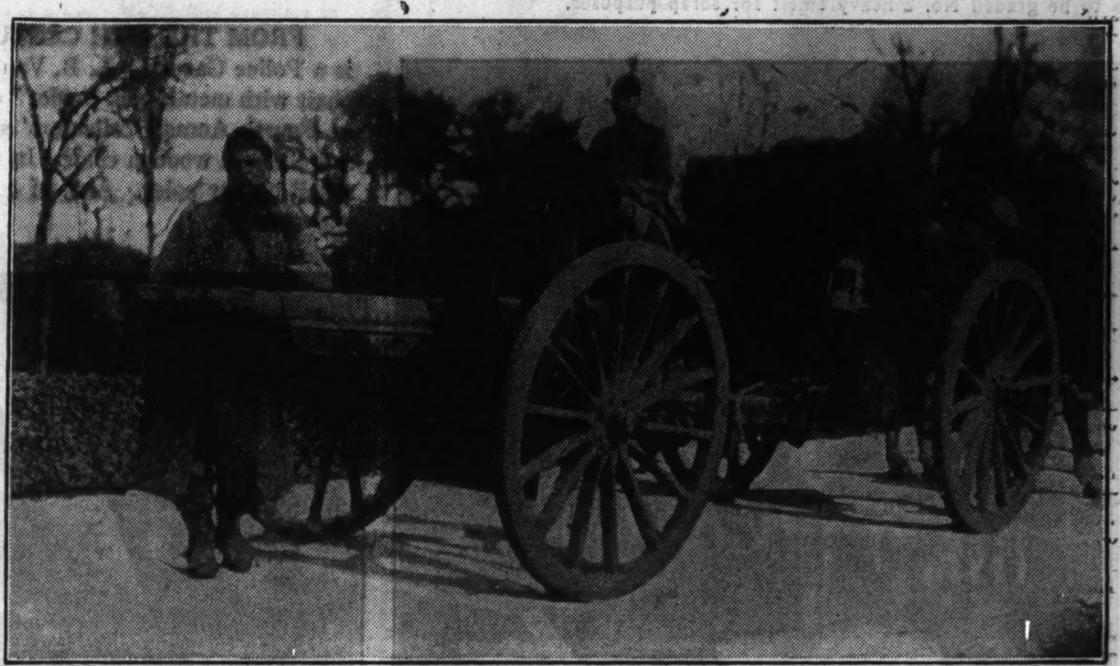
But this time the sector was not a weak one, and there was no surprise. Prisoners taken by the French from July 5 onward disclosed the intention, which was amply confirmed by air photographs of the preparations. Moreover, the French had a surprise in store for the attackers. After a week's argument Pétain had persuaded the gallant Gouraud, the army commander east of Reims, to adopt a recoiling buffer method of defense—absorbing the initial impetus of the attack by a lightly held forward position and awaiting the spent attackers on a strong position in rear. When the German offensive was launched on July 15 its sting was drawn. The French artillery caught the attackers before they left their trenches; the French machine guns took further toll of them as they pressed through the forward position; the French artillery pulverized them in the open when they ran against the main position, beyond the cover of their own artillery. The attack east of Reims proved a costly failure.

West of Reims, along the Marne, the attack had more success, but it petered out on the 16th after threatening to undercut the Reims buttress.

The menace had at least partially upset the plans then maturing for a French offensive. Ever since his appointment to supreme charge Foch, characteristically, had been devising projects for taking the offensive himself, only to be thwarted each time. He had now assembled an army under Mangin on the west side of the Marne salient for a stroke against the Soissons "hinge." He had intended to launch this before the German attack. But Pétain preferred to let the enemy strike first and then strike back at them when tired and entangled. He gained his way but was partially balked of his purpose. Owing to the failure of his subordinates west of Reims to adopt his elastic defense method, he had to use most of his reserves to repair the consequences of their folly. He therefore decided to postpone Mangin's attack for the moment. But Foch, full of offensive ardor, overruled him and released the stroke on the 18th.

The French on this occasion tried the "Cambrai key." Without any artillery preparation, several hundred small tanks suddenly emerged from the woods. A thick early morning mist cloaked the advance, and they quickly broke through the German line. The infantry followed. But after a bound of four miles on the first day the attack came to a standstill short of the jugular vein of the salient.

Nine American divisions took part in this push, but for all their keenness they lacked the experience and the technique necessary to overcome the German resistance. The French, by contrast, suffered from too much experience. Thus the Germans slipped out of the bag with a loss of 25,000 prisoners and established themselves on a straight and much shortened line along the Vesle. The danger had led Ludendorff to postpone his Flanders stroke, intended for the 20th, but he now felt able to order preparations to go forward. That dream was soon dissipated.



The first American gun to be fired by American troops in action against the Germans as it was moved to its position in the front lines. (Official U. S. photo.)

For on Aug. 8 the "Cambrai key" was used again, with even more striking effects. This time the nerve of the German troops broke. The repercussion shook the supreme command.

Foch, who had prophesied victory so often when the facts did not justify the illusion, had as yet no vision of the end. In a letter to Clemenceau he declared: "The decisive year of the conflict will be 1919." But having gained the initiative, he had no intention of letting it slip. On July 20 he had told Haig: "It is essential to grip onto the enemy and to attack him everywhere that one can do so advantageously." And in a memorandum on the 24th he drew the conclusion: "The Allied armies have reached the turning point of the road. . . . The moment has come to abandon the general defensive attitude forced upon us recently by numerical inferiority and to pass to the offensive."

Gen. Peyton March, chief of staf of the U. S. forces.

To keep up the pressure on the enemy while the Allied reserves were accumulating Foch arranged with Haig, Pétain, and Pershing for a series of local offensives aimed to free the lateral railway communications. He had suggested for the British an attack in Flanders, but accepted Haig's preference for one to disengage Amiens.

Here preparations were already being made by Rawlinson, now commanding the Fourth army again. They were to prove that the British had at last learned the art as well as the necessity of surprise. The plan was a compound of many deceptive devices—thirteen divisions, more than 2,000 guns, and 456 tanks were smuggled into the area.

Fortune now, as on July 18, lent the cloak of fog to the Allies. It was thickened by smoke shell. Under cover of it the tanks overran the enemy's flimsy defenses. The attacking infantry, who here had odds of more than seven to one in their favor, overwhelmed the nerve-stricken defenders. The day's objective, six to eight miles distant, was easily gained.

Next day little was done, and thereafter the attack came to a standstill, partly through being checked by the old battlefields, partly because the Germans were quicker in moving reserves to close the breach than the British in deepening it. The attack, being purely frontal, pushed the enemy back on their reinforcements and thus helped to consolidate their resistance.

Nevertheless the first shock had made a deep impression. After hearing Ludendorff's confession the kaiser said: "I see that we must strike a balance. We are at the end of our reserves. The war must be ended." In Ludendorff's ultimate verdict: "Aug. 8 was the black day of the German army in the history of the war. . . . It put the decline of our fighting power beyond all doubt." Hot on the heels of defeat he declared that peace negotiations ought to be opened before the situation became worse—but once again was too slow to realize how fast the tide was ebbing.

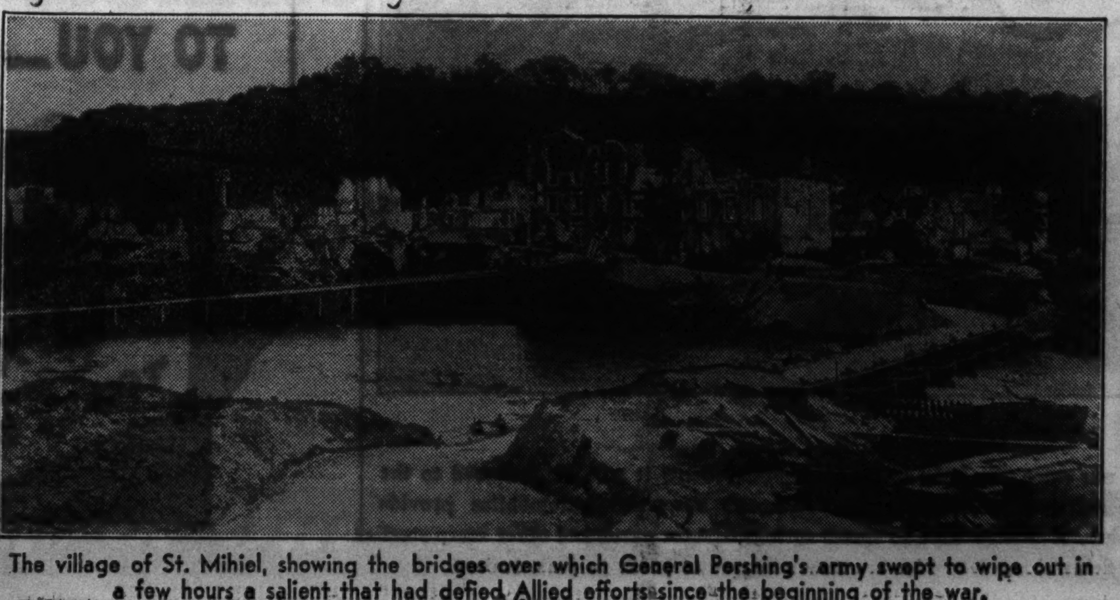
Foch also was slow to realize that his opportunity had passed. He urged Haig to push hard—but Haig now showed an awareness of the folly of hammering at hardening resistance. From his objection to continuing pressure a new method developed a truer economy of force. Foch had already arranged that the offensive should be extended to neighboring sectors, and Haig now contended that this indirect leverage was the better way to loosen the resistance. Foch gave way. On Aug. 10 the French Third army had struck on the south flank; on the 17th the Tenth army, still further south; on the 21st the British Third army attacked to the north of the Fourth; on the 26th the First army, beyond it, chimed in the strategic tattoo. This widely menacing series of advances induced Ludendorff to sanction a general withdrawal to the old Hindenburg line, as far south as Soissons—thus abandoning almost all the ground he had gained at a ruinous cost. By early September the withdrawal was complete.

On Sept. 12 the last of Foch's original series of local offensives was completed when Pershing erased the St. Mihiel salient on the far side of Verdun. This stroke did not come as a surprise to the Germans, who had been meditating a withdrawal. But they hesitated too long over their decision, and although they began it in the night before the attack was launched, they were overtaken and badly hustled by the swiftness of the American onrush, losing 15,000 prisoners before they reached the shelter of the Mihiel line across the base of the salient. It was an exhilarating result for the first performance of an independent American army, but to many Americans it would leave the sore feeling of a missed opportunity.

For Pershing's original intention had been to exploit the expected opening success by pushing on past Metz toward the Germans' main lateral railway, which there ran only twenty miles behind the Michel line. This would have endangered the whole German position on the western front—if it could have been achieved. General Liggett, who played the chief part in the St. Mihiel stroke and was an unusual realist, declared later that the possibility existed "only on the supposition that our army was a well oiled, fully coördinated machine, which it was not as yet." But Pershing would remain sure that he had foregone a great opportunity—and would feel it the more because he had for once yielded to others' wishes. Foch had originally agreed to the bigger design. But on Aug. 27 he received a letter from Haig which helped to change his mind. Haig had come to feel that the ending of the war in 1918 was both a possibility and a necessity. The unmistakable evidence of the enemy's decline gave him such slight encouragement as he needed to risk an assault on the Hindenburg line, the strongest artificial defenses on the whole western front. To reduce the risk he urged Foch to switch the main American attack from a divergent to a convergent direction.

Foch was the more receptive to the idea because, stimulated by repeated success, he was already growing impatient with the new method of alternating attacks, each quickly broken off, which he had come to adopt. He was filled with the vision of a decisive victory by a simultaneous general offensive in which the British and American pincers should close on and cut off the main German armies. So he proposed to Pershing that the St. Mihiel attack should be limited to a mere excision of this salient and that the main American attack should then be delivered in a north-westerly instead of a northerly direction. He further proposed that, to reduce the difficulties, Pershing's army should attack west of the Argonne, while a mixed French and American army under a French commander should attack over the more difficult ground between the Argonne forest and the Meuse. This led to a violent argument. Pershing declared: "Marshal Foch, you may insist all you please, but I decline absolutely to agree to your plan. While our army will fight wherever you may decide, it will not fight except as an independent American army."

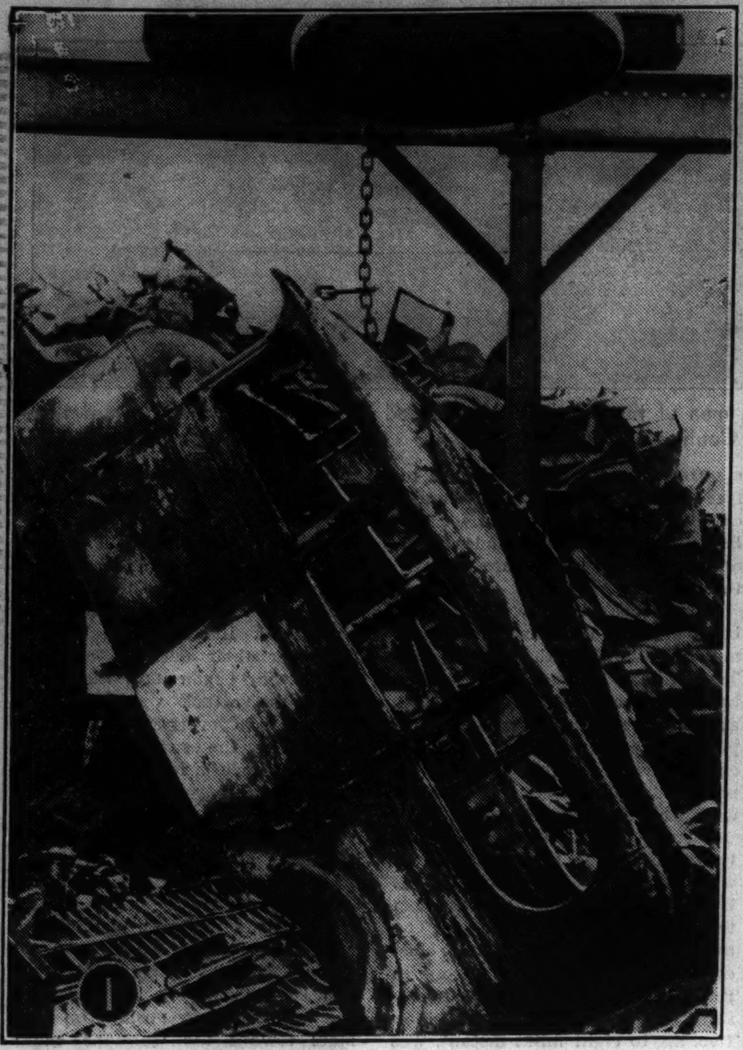
The upshot was that Pershing gave up his own strategic plan for a share in Foch's, while Foch yielded to Pershing's declaration of independence. It was decided that the American forces would fight as a separate whole, free from any French control or advice. And Pershing chose the more difficult sector east of the Argonne. He made his task still harder and America's cost greater by rejecting Foch's suggestion that he might give up the St. Mihiel attack. The consequence was that he had not time to switch divisions from one battlefield to the other and had to use raw divisions.



The village of St. Mihiel, showing the bridges over which General Pershing's army swept to wipe out in a few hours a salient that had defied Allied efforts since the beginning of the war.

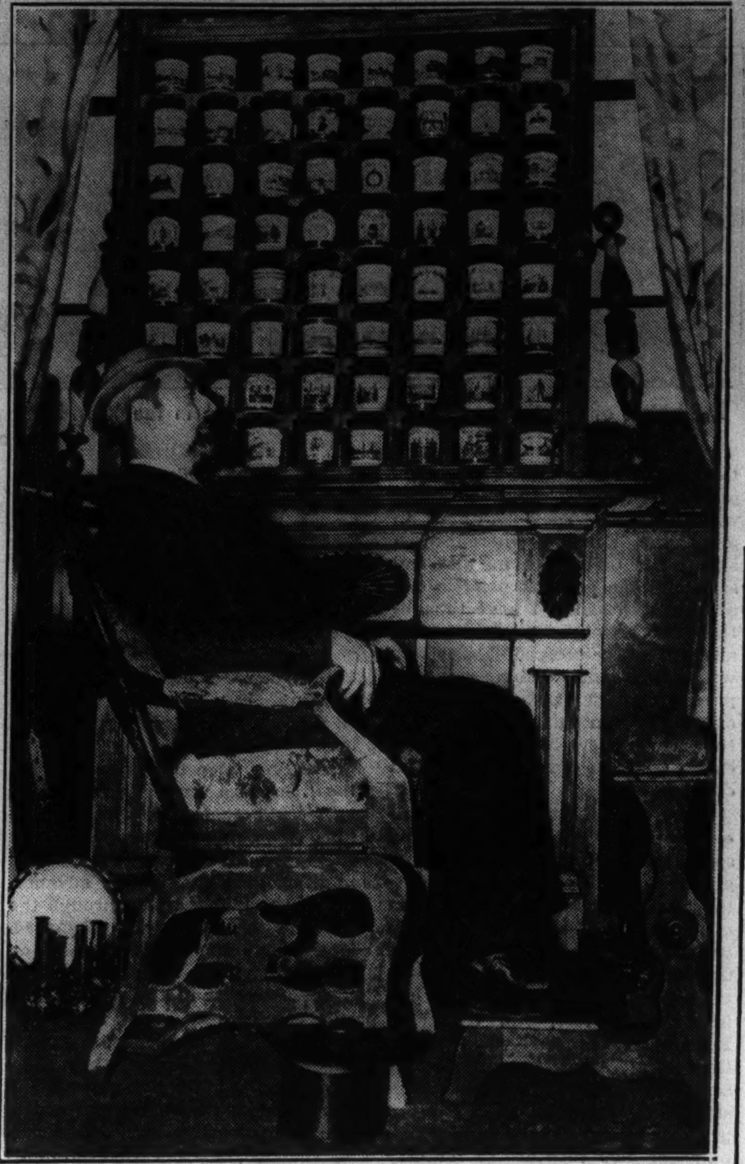
NEXT WEEK—Conclusion, the end of the great war.

Here's What Happens to Broken Down and Discarded Autos—Exhibition Held in New York by Collectors



[Acme Photo.]

A huge magnet lifts this battered and worn out auto body into position for a grinding machine that has been installed at a junk yard. The metal is to be graded No. 2 heavy smelt for scrap purposes.



FROM THE 19TH CENTURY—All that is missing here is a Police Gazette. L. B. Van Dusen poses in an old barber chair with metal "silk topper" cuspidor and old shaving mugs at Fourth Annual Collectors' show in New York. Note the upholstered wooden chair. In the windows may be seen two small barber poles. And, of course, there's a banjo for that old quartet.

PLAYLAND OF OTHER DAYS—Elizabeth Etter of Sigourney, Ia., visits the show and becomes absorbed in dolls dating from 1700 to 1870.

A COLLECTOR'S PARADISE—General view of one of the booths at the New York show, which attracted thousands of exhibitors and visitors.

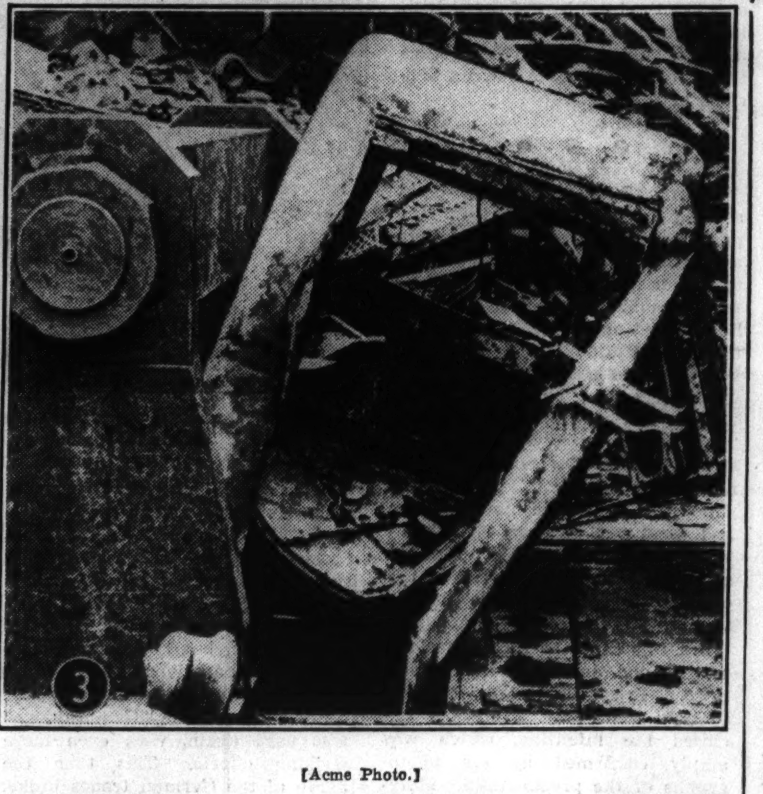
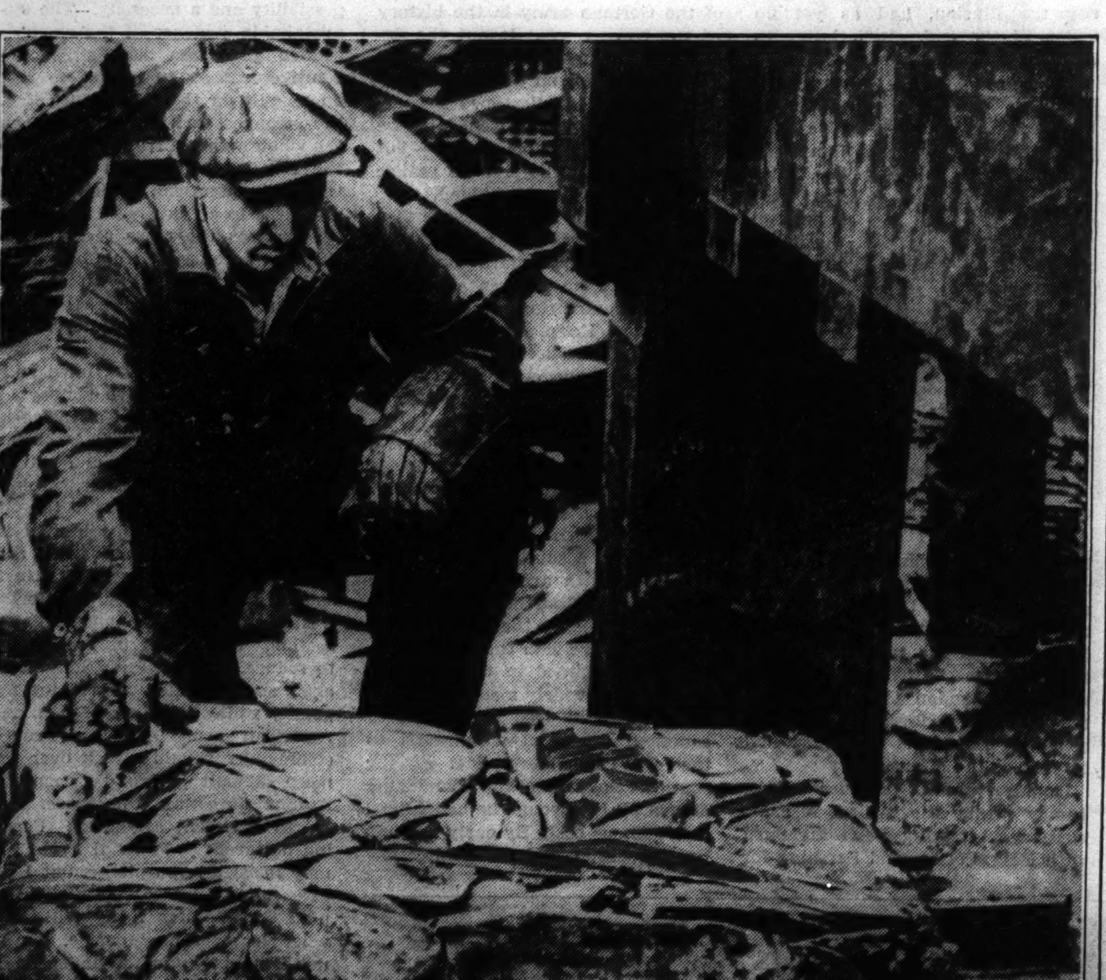
The machine is known as "Big Benny." This is the control which operates the crusher. "Big Benny" reduces the cars to a solid mass. If steel thus salvaged weren't treated in this manner 90 per cent of the melted metal would be consumed by heat and flames.



[Acme Photo.]

A sedan in the process of passing through the car smasher. After broken glass and other materials are removed the jaws compress and a battering ram moves forward to add the final blow under terrific pressure.



[Acme Photo.]

This compact bale of metal was once the body of an automobile. Now it will be delivered to the smelting furnaces, where it will be salvaged and used again. Although discarded automobiles provide most of the metal for the big crusher, it is also used to smash springs, tractor parts, and other scrap steel. Automobiles that once were left in fields along roadsides are now a source of profit to junk dealers.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER SOCIETY

APRIL 18, 1937

Miss Marguerite Duchoissois (above) wears a casual shirt with a gay tweed skirt when she attends classes at the Loring school. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse C. Duchoissois.

Following the fashion for bright flowers printed on black is Miss Rosemary Hiatt, daughter of the Judson D. Hiatts. She is a member of the Hinsdale Infant Welfare society.

TRIBUNE PHOTOS

Mrs. Frank S. Kelly (below) is a member of the Newberry Center league, which contributes to the support of Newberry center, a settlement house at Newberry and Maxwell streets.

Mrs. Harold Davis is a member of the committee that was in charge of the Coronation ball held last night at the Palmer house by the Oak Park and River Forest Juniors and Junior Auxiliary of the Infant Welfare society.

Evanstonians Enlist Aid Here for Music Fete

By Cousin Eve.

I THINK that Chicago has a way of getting dull. The park system is grand, and so are our museums and our stockyards, but a city is no greater or more sparkling than its people.

What we really need is a Lorenzo de Medici. And, not having him, it is up to most of us to get behind things and help keep the old town alive.

A banker friend of mine, who is also a philosopher, is forever saying that society is expensive and that nothing blasts it so much as hard times. But Chicago rode the depression well.

All this is apropos of the Evanston Musical festival opening again May 11 after five years of coma. Quite a few of my loveliest, most chic friends listened to the blandishments of Northwestern's trustees and agreed to form a Chicago ticket selling committee.

Of this Mrs. Walter Kirk is chairman. Recent history says that Mrs. Kirk's record as an executive is unsurpassed. All of the tickets for the Passavant hospital benefits are always sold. These affairs have sparkle. Vice chairmen of the committee are Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Loyal Davis, Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Theodore Robinson, and Mrs. Silas Strawn.

Others in the group: Mrs. Arthur Cable, Mrs. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Walter Wolf, Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. Jason Whitney, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, and, of the younger set: Mrs. Frank Sims, Mrs. Paul Rowan, Mrs. Robert Gardner, Mrs. Daggett Harvey, Mrs. Glendon Gerlach, Mrs. Ralph Chatillon, Janet Fairbank, and Nancy Avery.

MME. KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD is coming out for an all-Wagner program. Also Richard Crooks, Gladys Swarthout, and the fascinating Mme. Olga Samoroff, who is the wife of Stokowski. She is a noted music commentator. Marshall Field and many other New York men attend her weekly classes for the appreciation of music. She will discuss the Bach B minor Mass at 4 in the afternoon on May 12.

Also needing support this year for the Illinois Children's Home and Aid benefit on April 30 is Mrs. Barrett Wendell, chairman. This society has not "benefited" in four years and has the reputation, furthermore, of being marvelously well run. Mrs. Wendell expects to raise $45,000 in the one perfect day at the Lake Shore Athletic club. How she will do it is her secret. Outside of having the colored prize fighter, Joe Louis, and an exciting cabaret dinner and floor show at $100 a table, arranged by Ernest Byfield, swimming matches and contract tournaments are the main allurements.

Also needing us is the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The young men out at Ravinia last summer on Durand Smith's committee for the five weeks of summer evening symphony made a huge success. They were able to return every dollar of the guarantee. Their main idea was to have guest conductors, and it worked out well. Every seat in Orchestra hall should be sold for the symphony concerts next year.

Tuesday concerts ended last week, with very few of the regular subscribers present, but a fine audience heard Albert Spalding's violin. And there was a superb performance by a native born Chicago artist, educated partly in Florence, where his family lives! The Spalding villa is one of the show places of Florence.

The enormous applause that greeted Mr. Spalding was not all for his music, but partly for his attractive personality. Sleek black hair, broad shoulders, figure and walk of an athlete; smartly cut clothes and, best of all, well bred detachment of manner. His was sublime modesty in a famous soloist; also charmingly courteous to Conductor Lange and all the musicians.

THE diplomatic chessboard is beginning to be interesting. Washington believes that William Bullitt will soon return from Paris and become undersecretary of state. And that Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies, both ineffably friendly and charming and backed by colossal wealth, are to have the Paris post. They have tasted the sweets of life in Moscow, and there is nothing that France loves better than an affluent ambassador. Stewart MacDonald, a Washington widower of ample fortune and the elder brother of Mrs. C. Norton Goodwin of Lake Forest, is, they say, slated for Denmark. But he continues to build a remarkably beautiful house at Palm Beach. The appointment of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman as minister to Norway takes away one of Washington's most stunning figures. Tall, slim, tanned, and silver gray, she is a cross-country rider and a brilliant society woman. Born in New York, her maiden name was Daisy Jaffray, of an old mercantile family.

NOT for anything would I have missed Hubert Herring's "Wanted—An American Department of State." There was bitterness! This sharpshooter spoke at the Foreign Relations council last Saturday and nobody, except Cordell Hull, secretary of state, escaped with all his feathers intact.

Amusing was the hurried exit of a former American envoy who vanished in the midst of it. Later at Frieda Foltz's cocktail party he was asked if he were afraid of being called "a stuffed shirt." But he said no. He merely had hopped out to collect a $20 bill as a bank director. Mr. Herring called William J. Carr, who shuffles up the career men, "an animated success story." His decision is final on jobs; he plays a few favorites and the policy of "a good but absent-minded neighbor."

Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state for Latin America, had his picture painted, too—how he went to Cuba as ambassador and picked a president for the Cubans that they didn't want, and apparently they didn't want Mr. Welles, either, so he left.

After describing Francis Sayre, Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law, as the holy spirit among realists, a schoolmaster like Wilson "who both scolds and instructs," Mr. Herring hopped upon protocol, a quaint department "to arrange place cards on the White House table."

Thomas Jefferson thought that guests should sit where they pleased and allowed them to range themselves with Jeffersonian simplicity. But protocol began when a Mrs. Merry, wife of the minister, came over from England and nobody wanted to sit beside her. There was such a rush for other seats that protocol had to be established. Mrs. Merry was responsible for protocol and Dolly Gann finished it, said Mr. Herring. This started such an interesting train of thought as to why no one wished to have Mrs. Merry for a neighbor that I almost didn't hear what the speaker was saying about the highly erudite head of the far eastern department, Col. Stanley Hornbeck. Maybe he damned him with faint praise, as in the case of James Dunn, husband of Mary Armour, head of the eastern Europe department.

• • •

BUT Mr. Herring's irony reached its apogee when he described the three ways of becoming an American ambassador or minister. First, to come to the assistance of the lucky presidential candidate by picking him before nomination.

Second—A less secure method, as a career man climbing arduously up through the diplomatic service. Chances are slim unless his wife owns a daily paper or his brother-in-law carries the state.

Third—Obvious qualification is the poorest way of all to rise in American diplomacy, and here the speaker paid his respects to Joseph Grew in Japan, to Nelson Johnson in China, and to Bullitt in Moscow. For this post Mr. Bullitt had "gorgeous enthusiasm," but the Russians never trusted Bullitt nor told him anything. So he was promoted to Paris by way of discipline.

I asked Mlle. de Courviron, daughter of Marquis de Courviron, only aristocrats in the La Salle mission, if Mr. Bullitt was a popular ambassador in Paris. She replied that he spoke good French. This most attractive girl's mother was Princess Agnes de Polignac.

Lastly, that guileless and charming bachelor, Jefferson Caffery, ambassador to Cuba, "brilliant and doing a good job," nearly escaped the speaker's lash. But one phrase dashed iced water over Caffery, who is really delightful and who will be our next ambassador to Brazil. Mr. Herring, however, did not spill this bean. I do. Mr. Caffery spent last week in Chicago.

Money plays its part in embassies, a large part. Friends of mine, a man and his wife, were invited to spend a week at a Latin-American embassy this spring and they went. The ambassador was poor but brilliant, and the huge palace owned by our government could not be kept up on his salary, $7,500. There was but one servant and he was cook, butler, valet, chauffeur, upstairs maid, and whatnot. The American envoy was rattling around in the huge palace like a pea in a pod.

The visitors had with them a maid and a valet, so they were not so badly off dining at restaurants, etc. But the American ambassador was not popular, and frequent attempts to kill him had ended with a squad of soldiers at the gates. With drawn bayonets they searched all comers, and the elegant New Yorkers took this very hard. Neither did they enjoy the echoing emptiness of the great, lonely palace and the atmosphere of hostility that met their sorties into the city.

When finally they left for Washington the ambassador went with them, and for good.

THE American Friends of China came out of a long hibernating period last week with a tea at the Casino. The guest of honor and lecturer was Lady Dorothea Hosie, one of the most enthusiastic women who ever appeared before a Chicago audience. She was ruddy and smiling and hearty and had been born in China, I believe, and married there. Of late she has lived in Oxford, and only recently she made a wide giro in China, even up into Tibet. Judging from her optimistic conversation one would suppose that everything was all hunky-dory in China, and perhaps it is. I have been out of the country six months and probably everything is changed by now.

Lady Dorothea brought us news of the baby giant panda, which she had the pleasure of meeting in Tibet. Mrs. Harkness, its owner, who found the babe in a hollow tree, had pounced upon Lady Dorothea, who gave a nice description of the little beast. And was Lady Dorothea amazed to know that baby panda had traveled as fast as she, and is now boarding at our Brookfield zoo! Seems that China would allow the exportation of giant pandas only in connection with educational matters. So Herbert Bradley, like a knight of old, offered food and lodging to the panda, and heavy life insurance.

Mrs. William B. Hale introduced the charming speaker. Such a vision of navy-blue-faced-with-white loveliness was Eunice! Taken all in all, the natural beauties are the ones we really admire; lovely, limpid eyes with home grown eyelashes, delicate features, the sparkle of vitality and wit. The tea table that day was another masterpiece of Mrs. Ford Carter. A broad expanse of pale yellow-green satin; au centre, a white Chinese fruit tree with white trunk and spreading branches in a square white bowl. A heavenly tree whose fruit blossoms were scented white hyacinths! Standing at the far side, eight tall white candles in square white containers. Much raving over this Chinese effect, original and simple.

Another English woman of distinction is coming soon, Elizabeth Keith, whose Chinese color prints are the rage, even in China. With her sister Jessica she is en route to Washington to arrange a spring showing of her works under the patronage of the British embassy.

The Misses Keith have lived for years in both Japan and China, and Elizabeth Keith's paintings of Great Noh drama actors have vogue in Japan as well. How romantic to wander round this beautiful world painting its marvels and making a reputation for one's self as an artist of artists!

AGAIN was the Fountain room of the Casino filled with a charming audience last week. Mrs. William B. Greenlee and Mrs. Howell Erminger were hostesses for an open meeting of the Colonial Dames, and Chicago's chief spellbinder, Horace Bridges, addressed it. His topic was the title of Sinclair Lewis' book, "It Can't Happen Here," and was a brilliantly woven warning against dictatorships. The Colonial Dames of America are a body of well born, well educated, well bred patriots, and political discussions are not in their line. Dr. Bridges produced historical proof that dictators become tyrants over night.

This was the second of Dr. Bridges lectures to be widely spread this season. The first, on the "crisis" in Great Britain, and issued in pamphlet form, was a most illuminating document on the power which the British prime minister and cabinet wield over the throne. Mrs. Greenlee presided with grace at this open meeting of the Dames, and after Dr. Bridges' talk invited the audience to tea. Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. John P. Wilson faced each other across the tea table. The former had lately returned with her husband from three weeks in Italy, where a marvelous spring was holding forth, and the ancient university town of Siena captivated their hearts.

Al Fresco Meals Now Favored at Pasadena Hotel

PASADENA, CAL. Those who know the charm of Hotel Huntington's "picture bridge" when it is dripping with wistaria, can easily visualize the scene on successive Saturdays when the springtime al fresco luncheons are served around the turquoise swimming pool.

Last Saturday tables were filled with jolly parties, matrons in their light summer sports suits, young girls in beach clothes ready for a swim as Jack Pfeiffer's dance orchestra added a romantic touch. There were exhibitions and contests, too, in swimming and diving by Olympic stars, including Johnny Riley.

Among the Chicagoans noted as luncheon hosts, were Mrs. W. M. Collins, Mrs. E. T. Newberry, Mr. and Mrs. George Marcy.

Flower Show in Pasadena a Great Success

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. Carmelita Gardens, which are to Pasadena what Lincoln Park is to Chicago, have presented a gay welcome to visitors who entered the city this week-end through its western "gateway," the gracefully curved span of the Colorado street bridge.

The Gardens, at Orange Grove avenue and Colorado street, once the property of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Carr, for whom they are named, have been the scene of the annual spring show of the Pasadena Flower Show association, of which Dr. Philip Schuyler Doane, former Chicagoan, is president.

Mrs. Doane [Helen Pullman Stewart], together with Mrs. Noel Arnold, has charge of the commissary which serves coffee and sandwiches under the trees, and their two daughters, Mrs. Miles Hubbard [Dolly Doane] and Miss Phyllis Doane, are helping, Phyllis, the able recording secretary for the association, acting also as cashier.

One of the largest and most important committees, that which dispenses information of every variety to those who attend the three day show [April 16, 17 and 18], is headed by Mrs. Frank Harold Sellers [Mary A. Morley], who for many years resided at 1210 Astor street, Chicago. Mrs. Sellers is a member of the executive committee and a prominent member of the Diggers club, made up of Pasadena society women who actually "dig" in their own gardens. Behind Mrs. Sellers' immaculately groomed colonial house on South Pasadena avenue is an old fashioned garden from which she has selected her choicest pansies, pinks and johnny-jump-ups to exhibit in a pink luster bowl, suitable to the popular early American type of home which is rapidly "moving in" on Pasadena and southern California. The flower arrangements, in charge of Mrs. Charles Paxton, have been placed inside the stately old residence on the grounds of Carmelita.

Whether or not it has been inspired by the approaching coronation has not been determined, but the flower show was a distinctly English theme with a well-head, a kissing gate, a Stratford floral clock, dovecote, a pastoral scene and other typical features to be reached by a winding English lane.

Other important attractions are the $25,000 exhibit of orchids and the iris competition for amateurs, for which the American Iris society offers a medal for the first time in the history of the local flower shows.

Carmelita Gardens in themselves boast of 96 varieties of rare trees and shrubs, gifts to the Carrs from friends who frequented the tourist hostelry they maintained for many years. The specimens have come from all over the world, making the estate of real botanical value.

It's "rose time" at the Archibald B. Youngs and they have set the date of their annual garden reception for next Sunday, April 25. Cocktails are to be served from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Young [Editha Hardy of Evanston and the daughter of Francis A. Hardy of Chicago], have a home and garden typically Spanish, corners of it suggesting the famed Generalife gardens of Spain.

At this season, primrose and iris vie with the roses for supremacy, but it's the roses for which the Youngs are famous, and they will be in a riot of bloom all month long.

Assisting Mrs. Young will be three former Chicago matrons, Mrs. Archibald Church, Mrs. Robert Campbell and Mrs. Victor von Borosini, as well as a number of others.

Chicago also knows well the hostess' brothers and their wives, the Francis H. Hardys of Winnetka and the E. K. Hardys of Barrington.

English Cinemas Are to Revive Variety Shows

LONDON

Within the next few months thirty cinemas in England will revert to stage acts. Most of them have been showing film productions continuously for ten years, but now they are going to show variety.

Ten or fifteen years ago the variety theaters all changed to talkies and, for a while, it looked as if variety were dead. Harry Joseph, director of E. and J. Theaters, Ltd., seems ready to gamble $5,000,000 that the English public, especially in the provinces, would rather see second rate actors in real life than first rate actors on the screen. He says that the public for these theaters is assured and the new stars have been trained by the British Broadcasting company.

Notables Gather at a Smart, New Paris Restaurant

PARIS

A group that attracted much attention gathered recently for luncheon at the Relais Plaza, the new restaurant run in connection with the Hotel Plaza-Athénée in the Avenue Montaigne. It will be remembered that this hotel formerly was much frequented by Americans. After closing about three years ago, it was reopened last year, and its new restaurant, which is not far from one of the principal entrances to the exposition in the Place de l'Alma, is having quite a vogue.

The duke and duchess of Kent, on their way back to London from a visit to the duke of Windsor, made an impressive looking couple. The duke was handsome and fit, and his wife, the former Princess Marina, had her beauty set off by a becoming tailored sports costume and one of those small snug hats on the back of her head, the calotte. In the party was her mother, the Grand Duchess Helen of Russia, Princess Nicholas of Greece, Princess Eugenia of Greece, who often was mentioned as a matrimonial possibility for the duke of Windsor when he still was prince of Wales; Princess Helen of Rumania, former wife of King Carol, and daughter of the late King Constantine and, as such, first cousin to Marina, daughter of Constantine's brother, Prince Nicholas, and the Grand Duke Dmitri, whose separation from his former American wife, Audrey Emery, Princess Illynski, now is final.

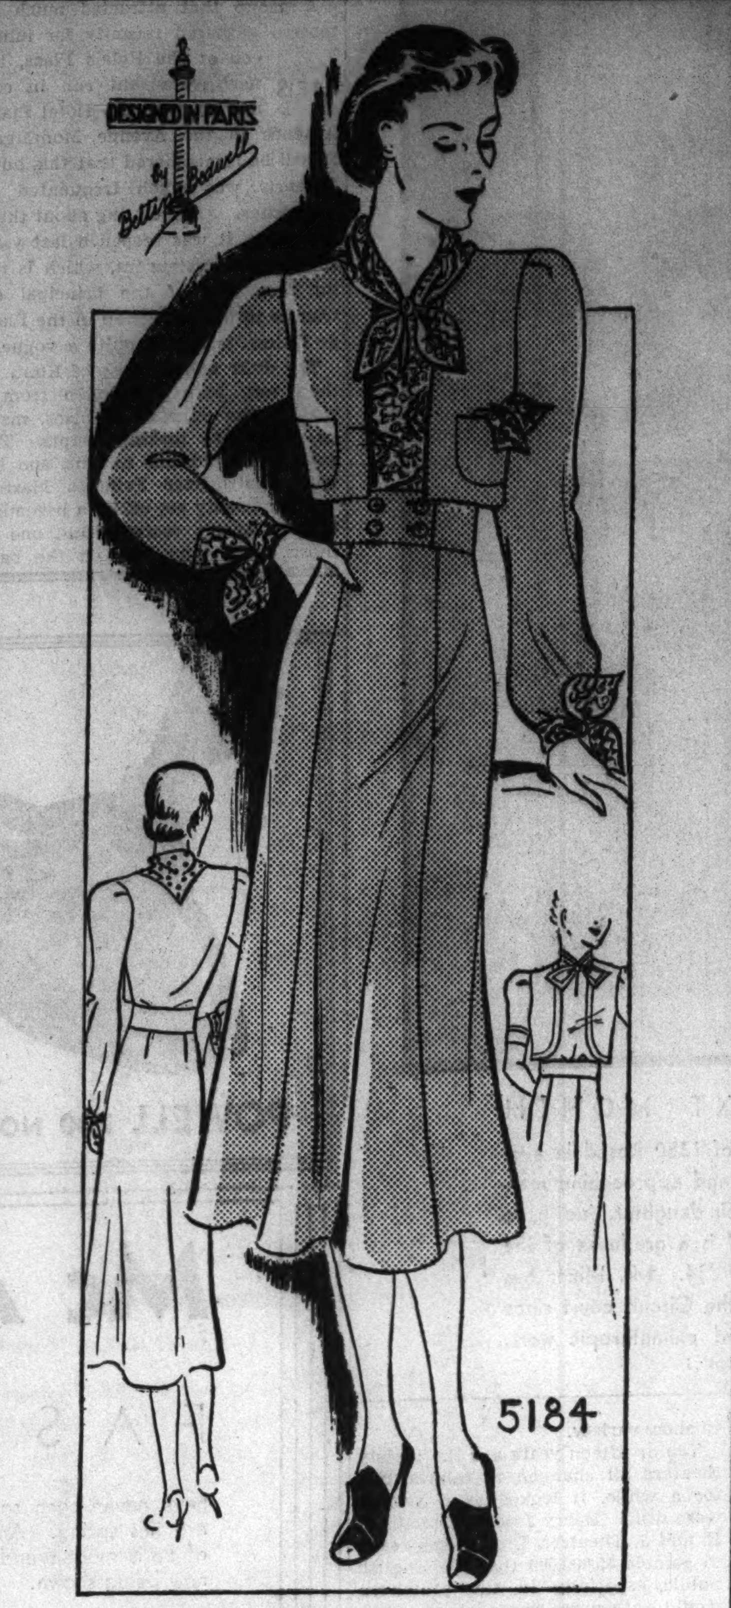
Paris Pattern Is Something New in the Bolero Realm



No. 5184—The Paris pattern for this bolero dress is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This Paris pattern, No. 5184, is for a dress which may be worn as a suit or as a dress. The bolero front, above a wide, double buttoned girdle gives the impression of a jacket with a vest, which is new and chic in Paris. At the back the girdle is set into the body of the dress. Under the bolero is a blouse front of printed silk with a soft collar that resembles a kerchief scarf, and the bishop sleeves have printed cuffs that also simulate handkerchiefs.

The dress originally was made in Paris of soft gray wool jersey, with green and white printed silk. It may be made of any lightweight wool or silk material that you choose, and in almost any color. It would be charming in dark blue with a gay, multicolored, printed blouse front and cuffs. Note the handkerchief of the printed material that is tucked into the left breast pocket that makes an additional note of decoration. You can make this handkerchief of the printed material yourself. It is just a square with edges hemmed.

The skirt of this dress is comfortably flared and has a graceful front panel.

'Excursion' Is Success-Bound Comedy Cruise

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The town is cheering a new comedy called "Excursion," which came in last week and perceptibly brightened a dull list of early April plays. A happy comedy, this one, with a fantastic idea that skirts realities and stimulates the imagination. I think you will be hearing a good deal of it in the next several months, and it is quite sure to make the screen eventually. Victor Wolfson, who has done some writing for the radical groups, wrote it, and Noel Coward's manager, John C. Wilson, is the producer.

You may recall Sutton Vane's drama of "Outward Bound" which took such a hold on one section of the playgoing public a dozen years ago. "Excursion" suggests "Outward Bound," but only because it also is concerned with a boatload of people headed for a new land and a new life. The "Outward Bound" boat, you remember, was a ferry on the River Styx, and all its passengers were dead folk wondering about the life they were sailing into and dreading their meeting with the Chief Inspector.

Nothing dead about the passenger list of the S. S. Happiness in "Excursion." It represents a lively cross-section of Manhattan come down on a Sunday morning to make the last trip of the season with Capt. Obadiah Rich, who is being retired after thirty years' service in the Coney Island excursion trade. His boat, too, is to be taken out of service.

The captain is saddened by the thought of quitting. Saddened, too, as he thinks he never has been able to give his passengers a real excursion. They always have started off happily enough with him, but they always have come back low-spirited and depressed by the thought of going back into the Monday morning grind. Capt. Obadiah would like to take them on an excursion that would be all anticipation and joy, to some land where there would be no worry about jobs, and no hunger or suffering or strife.

Obadiah's brother Jonathan, a deep sea sailor from Maine, has come to make the last trip with Obadiah, and it is he who suggests that they take the Happiness and head for the open sea. Jonathan knows an island off Trinidad that is a perfect Eden. Why not go there and start a new world? The idea fascinates Obadiah and he orders the Happiness headed out past Sandy Hook.

Then he puts the suggestion up to the passengers. All those who want to go ashore can get off at Norfolk, where he will put in for fuelin' and provisionin'. The others can join the great adventure.

A few of the passengers are rebellious, but the more they think of it the better they like the idea. Soon the majority, including the son and daughter of the owner of the ship, are on the captain's side and the voyage is started. All night they sail around, blanketed by a fog, dreaming dreams of what they will do with their island of Eden. And then a coast guard boat overhauls them and heads them back for New York. Their excursion is over.

It is comedy for the imaginative and the sentimental, but it is pointed with touches of realism and a rough social philosophy that make a pretty general appeal. Whitford Kane has the part of his career as the godly and adventurous Obadiah. I shouldn't be surprised if he were playing it for the next three or four years. J. Hammond Dailey is the Jonathan, and a fine group of character actors fill in neatly.

The Barrymores do have a time of it keeping out of the spotlight. Here is John in again with the production of a comedy farce called "Hitch Your Wagon" which, certain wise persons insist on believing, is no more than a thinly disguised retelling of the newspaper stories that followed the actor when he came east and went sailing with Elaine Barrie some months back.

A playwright named Bernard Schoenfeld, who studied at both Yale and Harvard, wrote the play. The night it was first tried in Washington, the Barrymore attorney, becoming excited in Hollywood, sent this wire to the manager of the Belasco theater:

> "From report it appears 'Hitch Your Wagon' burlesques my client Barrymore, as well as Elaine Barrie. I hereby warn you that I will hold you strictly responsible, if this play is produced, on behalf of my client. [Signed] Henry C. Huntington."

Nothing came of the warning, from which we may reasonably assume the attorney decided his client had not been libeled . . . at least no more than usual. As a matter of fact, "Hitch Your Wagon," if it is accepted as a farce based on the Barrymore-Barrie episode, compliments both parties of the first page parts. Rex Duncan, the hero, is quite a chivalrous and gentlemanly individual. An English cinema star, they call him; a lad who has sold pictures of his beautiful legs to the screen until he is sick to death of the sight of them and the morons who buy them.

We meet him as he is approaching a cure for a slight attack of alcoholic poisoning in the Knickerbocker sanitarium in New York. He is about at the end of his nerve resources. He is cracking under the strain of trying to bribe orderlies to slip him a fresh supply of liquor when a young admirer named Camille Schwartz sneaks past the guards and brings him a bowl of noodle soup. Camille is a fresh young blonde, daughter of a furrier, 17 by her mother's count, but 24 by the record. She has long admired Mr. Duncan as an actor, not as a picture star. This gives the boy a lift. He hopes to be an actor again one day.

Duncan escapes the sanitarium and, having Camille's card, goes to live with the Schwartzes in West End avenue. He sleeps with Papa Schwartz on the living room davenport, which is not quite as he had planned it. When he would change the arrangement he finds himself unwittingly engaged to Camille. She is wearing his sapphire as an engagement ring, much to the delight of Mama Schwartz, who has always been stage struck and is really responsible, not only for Camille, but for the noodle soup as well.

Rex, slightly befuddled with gin and delusions of grandeur, agrees to read a scene from "Antony and Cleopatra" with Camille at an actors' benefit. Being sobered the night of the appearance, he hears Camille as she really reads and flees from the scene. They catch him, but he manages to escape again by turning Camille over to a football player. His manager is reengaging the same room in the sanitarium for Rex as the final curtain falls.

I do not believe Barrymore could make out a case against the producers of "Hitch Your Wagon," which is not likely to linger long. Nor, on the other hand, do I think the producers would have a case against Barrymore for having jeopardized their property by intimating that he is its inspiration.

George Curzon, who came from England to play "Parnell," is the Rex and Dennie Moore, who was the kitchen girl in "Pursuit of Happiness," is the Camille. Two competent performances. The others are incidental.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, June 30, 1888.

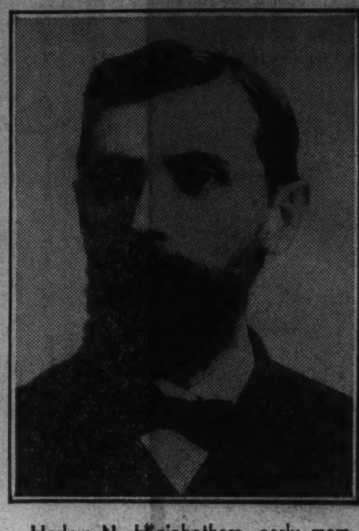
DEAR JULIA: While Will is attending a committee meeting of the Union League club, I am seated in the ladies' parlor. Martha junior has been here with us for luncheon, but has now gone her way for some necessary shopping. Not having to shop myself, I'm glad to sit here and read and write.

A distinctive feature of the Union League club is the presence of ladies within its portals. Will tells me that a good many members . . . poor old grumpy bachelors, I daresay . . . opposed allowing the fair sex to have meals here, but these objectors were overruled. It has been a profitable thing, since we help the commissary department make money. Many ladies use the club frequently. It's the only place downtown, where we can sit about in privacy after lunching. It is pleasant to relax and read magazines and papers spread invitingly on tables.

The side entrance is reserved for us. As we enter, we are taken in charge by a maid. There is a nice restroom, where we may use soap, towels, cologne, courtplaster, hairpins, and hatpins. Meals are served in the ladies' ordinary. Or, if you have a private party, you may engage a private room. You can pay for your meal or have it charged to your husband's account. I take pride in never charging my meals to Will.

Managed very well indeed, Will thinks, is the club, by a man named Glennie, who was with the Chicago club for many years. Mr. Glennie came in a few minutes ago and seeing me sitting here, asked if I would like to see the suite where the beautiful first lady, Mrs. Cleveland, was entertained for a few minutes when she visited Chicago with the President. She was faint, on her way from the railway station, and Mayor Roche, in whose carriage she was driving, took her to the Union League club, which was nearby. A cup of tea soon restored her.

The suite in which she spent an hour is now occupied by Mr. Otto Meysenburg, bachelor. Knowing him to be a collector, I was quite curious to see his sitting room. Walls done in delicate steel blue, with a moulding tinted terra cotta; odd bits of furniture and oriental objects of art, a plush cover on the piano, embroidered with gold, in the design of a serpent . . . these made the room distinctive. The serpent . . . "more subtle than any beast of the field" . . . as the book of Genesis puts it . . . seems to be a favorite symbol with this young bachelor. Not a pleasing one to me, but every man to his taste.



Harlow N. Higinbotham, early member of Union League club.

As I've been sitting here, I've seen many prominent men arrive and leave the club. Mr. Uri Balcom has just departed. He lives in a beautiful house at 21st street and Michigan avenue, with a deer park in the rear and a rose garden and mushroom beds where the last mentioned delicacy is raised for his table.

And now, arriving in his fine carriage is Charles T. Yerkes, street car magnate, stepping to the curb with the lithe grace of a cat. His garb is a cutaway suit. Will says he always is immaculately dressed, and that his neckties are splendiferous. I hardly think the Union League club has assimilated him. Will says he bows formally to the men as he passes, but never stops to greet them. Sometimes he confers with Mayor Roche, but he is preoccupied with his own affairs. A strange man.

One of the club's best loved members is Mr. H. N. Higinbotham, credit man in the Marshall Field firm. Genial and charitable, his purse is always open to those who seek help. An indulgent father, he has built a pretty little clubhouse and lawn tennis court at 29th street and Indiana avenue, where the young people of that choice neighborhood, Prairie avenue, play the new game. It seems to me rather rough sport for young ladies, but I suppose I'm old fashioned. Mr. Higinbotham has two sons and two daughters.

Dear Mr. Elbridge Keith has just entered the club . . . for the meeting Will is attending, I suppose. He is president of the Metropolitan National bank and has been on the school board.

The president of the Union League club is Franklin Head, admired for his wit and literary taste.

But here comes Will, and I must get my impedimenta . . . parasol, fan, gloves, and a light wrap which the maid has been keeping for me. Michael is due now with the victoria, and we want to take a short drive in Lincoln park.

Much love,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Tennis—always called "lawn tennis" in the early days—was just making its way into America at the time of which Martha writes. In its modern form it was first played in England in 1874 and was introduced into the United States a year later by R. D. and F. R. Sears, brothers, at Nahant, Mass. At first it was played on closely cropped grass lawns, from which comes the original form of the name. Many old Chicagoans will remember the little building at 29th street and Indiana avenue, and the court where "lawn tennis" was played.

British Society of Dowsers Uses a Divining Ro

By Ann Whittingham.

Members of the British Society Dowsers now are using the divinin rod as a means of dia

LONDON nosing disease.

The angled twig of o dinary hazel or willow has given wa to whalebone and the art of findin water and metals has been au mented to the finding the locus of disease and the cure for it.

Col. A. H. Bell, president of the s ciety, explained the method. Wit the patient lying on a table th dowser passes the angled whalebon over the entire body at a distance o a few inches. At the spot where th divining rod gives a downward jer there is the ailment, whether yo know it or not. The X-ray photo graph frequently verifies the resu of the divining rod.

According to Col. Bell, English su geons and doctors chose their med cines by the same method. The doc tor chooses several bottles of pos sible cures. Over them he passes th rod and when the characteristic jer comes there is the cure.

Science may scorn this art, the us of which had its beginnings in im memorable antiquity, but Col. Bel explains it as an idiosyncrasy o motor-automatism possessed by dows ers much the same as the homing in stinct of certain birds and animal It is a power beneath the level o any consciousness, and the best dows ers generally are more or less illiter ate men of exceptionally delicate pe ceptions.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Loop Zonta Club to Have 'Fund' Party

A "FUN FOR FUND" party that will run continuously from noon until midnight Saturday at the Auditorium hotel is to provide members of the Chicago Loop Zonta club with a gay climax to the year's activities. This is the service fund party held annually to raise money for the assistance of business women in financial straits.

From high noon on there will be a continuous succession of events—luncheon, cards, tea, dinner, a musical, a fashion revue, and dancing, with a continuous keno game until midnight and numerous door prizes.

Miss Hazel B. Nay.
[Koehne Photo.]

A more serious note in the proceedings will be the booths at which Zonta members, who represent some 75 vocations, will display their work. Health foods, insurance policies, money lending, patents, styling, education, and publicity will be among the subjects of the exhibits. Miss Edith Cook, treasurer of the club, is general chairman of the party. Miss Hazel B. Nay is president of the club.

At the regular Zonta luncheon on Tuesday at the Auditorium hotel Martha Holmes, a member, will speak on home economics.

For the second year a Women's Pageant of Progress is to be held May 29 to June 6 at Navy pier. Instead of dividing the proceeds among all participating charitable organizations as was done last year the pageant is to be conducted for the benefit of the Chicago Milk Fund association, which recently was organized to provide milk for undernourished children.

Mrs. Burnett D. Warner, who is president of the association, again is directing the women's pageant, together with Mrs. Carey Culbertson and Mrs. George Hanly Nippert, who also managed the show last year. Mrs. Warner is a former president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Culbertson is past president of the Woman's University club, and Mrs. Nippert is retiring radio chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

A tour of THE TRIBUNE's plant and a visit to W-G-N's broadcasting studio are planned for the women's division of the Electric association on Tuesday evening. Following dinner at 6 o'clock at the Vassar House restaurant, 540 North Michigan avenue, the group will visit the plant and then hear the Northerners program. The trip is limited to the first 100 who make reservations.

The annual Shakespeare festival at the Chicago Woman's club occurs next Friday morning, with an adaptation of "Twelfth Night" as the principal feature of the program. The play will be presented in 10 scenes, under C. Henry Nathan's direction, with most of the subplots and counterplots of the original eliminated, and with the cast limited to the five principal characters. Mrs. Edward C. Higgins is vice president of the players' group that will enact the play.

At luncheon afterward Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton, Mrs. Ozora S. Davis, Mrs. Payson S. Wild, Mrs. Orion K. Thomson, Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, and Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, will speak in appreciation of Shakespeare. Mrs. Wilbur F. Blackford is chairman of the art and literature department, which is sponsoring the festival.

Mrs. Carl I. Henrikson.

Tribute will be paid to the late Harriet Monroe at a memorial dinner and program to be given by the Friends of Literature, in collaboration with the Chicago Foundation for Literature, at 6:30 o'clock Friday in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. A number of the poets whose work appeared in Poetry, the magazine founded by Miss Monroe, will appear on the program, together with other writers. Mrs. Carl I. Henrikson, 141 North Lockwood avenue, is receiving reservations for the dinner.

A benefit buffet supper will be held this evening under the auspices of Omicron Alumnæ chapter of Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority at the sorority house on Northwestern university's Evanston campus. Alumnæ of the University of Wisconsin and the University of Illinois chapters are being invited to the supper, proceeds of which will go toward the national project scholarship fund. Miss Evllyn Silverstine is general chairman.

The Hoosier Salon Patrons' association is sponsoring an exhibition of prints by artist members and of oil paintings and water colors by William A. First anglers have reported varying success from their early efforts. The season opened last Thursday. The Virginia game commission recently stocked the Jackson river with 2,200 rainbow trout ranging from six to thirteen inches. Then 7,800 brook trout from four to nine inches were distributed in local brooks. The trout season closes June 15.

The Coronation Season Finds Peeress Busy

By May Birkhead.

LONDON One of the American peeresses who will figure a great deal in the coronation festivities and ceremonies is Lady Granard. She will be remembered as the former Beatrice Mills, daughter of the late Ogden Mills and sister of Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury under Hoover. Her aunt was Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, whose husband was American ambassador at the Court of St. James's for several years.

London always has its outstanding hostesses. Those who can be called great are said to number about half a dozen, and Lady Granard has her place in the front rank. She knows how to entertain and she has the resources of all kinds. At Forbes house in Mayfair, not far from Buckingham palace and from the American embassy, her dinner guests eat off superb old silver plate and her statuesque butlers wear knee breeches that are particularly impressive. And the food served in this décor is memorable.

Halkin street, where Forbes house is situated, is one of the few London mansions that still have courtyards. Lady Granard has remarkable jewels, a handsome presence, a winning smile, and the ultimate secret of hospitality—thoughtfulness for others.

THE earl of Granard has quite as many ornamental positions as he has names. Early in March King George VI. appointed as his majesty's controler at Ascot the Rt. Hon. Bernard Arthur William Patrick Hastings, earl of Granard, K. P., G. C. V. O. Edward VII. made him lord in waiting, also master of the horse, and in 1910 he served as special ambassador to announce the accession of George V., visiting the courts of Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Spain, and Portugal. Born in 1874 and having played his part in the Boer war and in the world war, he won the Victoria Cross, given only for valor in battle, and he also holds a high French decoration in the Legion of Honor. Descended from the Forbes family, who held a lofty place under the kings of Scotland in the 15th century, this breed settled in County Longford, Ireland, where Castle Forbes has been their seat in Erin for over three centuries.

The earl of Granard's interest in horses seems to date from his marriage in 1909 to Beatrice Mills. But with the Mills fortune and interest in racing the name of Granard soon was one to conjure with on the turf, both in England and France. Lady Granard took over her father's fine stables in France, and she and the earl formed a partnership with Lord Derby, which they still maintain, for racing in France. In 1928 Cri de Guerre, owned and trained by the Mills-Granard-Derby set, won the Grand Prix de Paris.

Not long before his death Ogden Mills turned over to his daughter the handsome residence in Paris at 73 Rue de Varenne, which he had previously put, during the war, at the disposal of Gen. Pershing for his Paris headquarters. The L and M forming the monogram on the façade recall that this building once was the home of Napoleon's marshal, Lannes, duc de Montebello. Ogden Mills was for years a member of the smart Jocky club of Paris. Princess Mary liked the Granard house in Paris so much that Lady Granard lent it to her for part of her honeymoon.

• • •

MRS. CAVENDISH BENTINCK, born Livingston of New York, a twin sister of the late Mrs. Ogden Mills and aunt of Lady Granard, is mother of Mrs. Walter Burns, who is a cousin of J. Pierpont Morgan.

The striking resemblance between Lady Granard and Mrs. Burns, who are cousins, is explained by the fact that their mothers were twins.

The earl of Granard's younger brother, Col. Donald Forbes, occupies the Château de Pomphily Pleurtuit in the department of Ille-et-Vilaine, Brittany.

The third duke of Portland, who held important posts under George III. and who, through his marriage to the daughter of the fourth duke of Devonshire, brought the name of Cavendish-Bentinck into the family, had many children. A grandson, George Augustus Frederick Cavendish-Bentinck, married in 1850 a Miss Leslie. Their son, William George, married in 1880 Elizabeth Livingston of New York, Lady Granard's aunt. The son of William George's brother, Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, attached to the British embassy in Paris, married about a dozen years ago Clothilde Quigley of Dallas, Tex.

SHE'S TO BE AN USHER

Miss Beatrice Bamford will be an usher at an entertainment to be given by the Tower Town Friends of the Chicago Junior school on Friday evening, April 23, at the Drake hotel. Bob Becker of The Tribune will talk on "Let's Find Adventure," and will show motion pictures. Mrs. Allen Scott Boyer will preside at the affair of which Mrs. Alfred K. Harnstrom is chairman.

Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Meyer of Hyde Park left this week for her home after a visit in Westwood Hills with two of her daughters, Dorothy and Virginia, who are students at Mount St. Mary's college. She was accompanied here by her son, Ben Jr., and her other daughters, Mary Louise and Alice, whom they picked up in Tucson, Ariz., where they attend the Villa Carondelet school.

Mrs. William G. Johnson of Chicago is a guest of Miss Bessie Wilson of Pasadena. Mrs. Edward Gardner of Chicago has been entertained at Montebello, Cal., by Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Gardner.

A wedding here of interest to Chicagoans is that of Miss Jessica Spencer Smith, daughter of the Harold Adelbert Smiths of Altadena, to Robert Barrington Krost, son of Mrs. Robert Krost and the late Dr. Krost. Both families formerly resided in Chicago. The couple was married at a lovely home ceremony and the guests included Mr. and Mrs. Owen T. Hill of Chicago, who have been visiting the Gordon G. Hairs of Hollywood. Mrs. Hair also is a former Chicagoan.

English Prepare for Stupendous Charity Season

LONDON London is preparing for one of the largest charity seasons it ever has known. There are scheduled forty important dances, and at each of them there will be at least a thousand persons. This is in addition to cinema "first nights" given over to charity. Each event requires several "at homes" by the organizers, and these in themselves have developed into major affairs.

By constant generosity to deserving causes and indefatigable energy Mrs. Warren Pearl has made for herself a position in London society, which finds its pleasure in these affairs. Mrs. Pearl is the American wife of the doctor of the American consulate, the man who gives the medical O. K. to English immigrants to America.

Mrs. Warren Pearl's house in Eaton square seldom is her own, because she loans it for so many meetings. The most recent one was for the preliminary organization of the ball for the Nose and Throat hospital. She served what was called the "best coffee in London," and then managed to raise many thousand dollars for her charity.

JUST SAY "CHARGE IT, PLEASE"

Should Title of 'Housewife' Be Glorified?

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

DO women resent being classified as housewives?

If so, what title would better glorify their vocation?

The foregoing questions are inspired by a recent contribution from William C. Lengel, well known editor and novelist, who believes that housewives should object to the term "housewives," in favor of a more glorified title.

What, we asked Mr. Lengel, had he to suggest as a title for the career which he deems the most important one on earth?

"Well," responded the man who now is serving as story editor of a movie corporation in the motion picture business, if you are doing big work you're a producer or an associate producer. Or, if you're not an associate producer you are an executive or an assistant executive. It would seem to me that associate producers might be the least title to offer those women who are running the biggest business in the world.

• • •

"THE business of homemaking," Mr. Lengel continued, "is greater than the steel corporation, the automobile industry and the motion picture business combined.

"These women handle their important business with more efficiency, less fuss and with more economy than any business that is directed by any man sitting at a big mahogany desk in a well appointed office!"

All that men would need to be convinced of the magnitude of the housewives' job, Mr. Lengel says, would be a general sitdown strike by housewives.

"There would be no meals cooked. No houses cleaned. No beds made. No children made ready for school!

"And yet we call them only housewives!

"If they were doing only a part of this important job in an office, on their desk would be brass signs, such as Mrs. John Jones, manager; Mrs. Sam Smith, vice president; or Mrs. John Johnson, economist."

Hear Mr. Lengel express himself on the subject of the older housewife generation and believe that his sincerity can't be doubted. He tells of his own mother managing for a large family on a limited income so that not one of the youngsters ever realized that they were not as well off as any of the other children of the town. They were well clothed, well fed, well dressed.

"How did those women do it?" he queries. He tells of Theodore Dreiser's unstinted praise of his mother with a large brood to provide for, the management done with the same success that characterized Mr. Lengel's mother's performance. And, we add, that characterized many, many other mothers of that generation.

• • •

WHICH led to the question of how the financial wizardry alone was accomplished. Whereupon it was volunteered that mothers formerly did not have to have a half dozen pairs of silk stockings for themselves a month. Nor three or four hats a season. One pair of day shoes and one pair of dress shoes comprised a well stocked shoe wardrobe, whereas today the ensemble idea has to be enacted, shoes for each costume and a number of costumes. Permanent waves and their upkeep did not figure in the old expenditures, nor all the other beauty upkeep expenses as currently known.

All of which merely presents one aspect which might be presented in comparing today's difficulty in managing a one and two family household, even, over the large family unit of earlier days.

"But it still is a big job. The big job," Mr. Lengel upholds. "With women handling the important business with great efficiency, less fuss and more economy than man directed business, a more glorified title than 'housewife' is deserved."

Mr. Lengel's tribute pertains to the woman with no servant to help her, who manages alone a colossal amount of work, who shows great financial genius in the handling of a limited income, and who maintains a fine home standard. He has no respect for the parasite type of wife. The bridge fiend wife inspires a particular horror in his mind, but she is not to be associated with the wife who plays bridge. There is a difference, you understand.

Considering housewives as a group, Mr. Lengel concedes that the parasite type is a minor factor. She appears, necessarily, in the better off class, in which parasitism can afford to be indulged. A parasite is a woman one gathers from Mr. Lengel, who knows nothing about household management. She can't cook nor manage servants. She is quarrelsome and nagging. She resents motherhood. She is meanly suspicious and eternally jealous. She seems to live in constant fear that the material comforts of her life will escape her. She's a self-indulgent household tyrant who has her husband thoroughly intimidated. It isn't for the likes of her that a more dignified name for housewives is being urged. There still remains an enormous body of conscientious, fruitful, wonderful women whose homes and their management reflect a quality so close to genius as to earn rightfully the admiration of every thinking man.

And a title more in keeping with their rôles than mere "housewife."

Every day there is presented in the feature columns of the Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

England Has 49 More Millionaires Than During 1936

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON April means more to England's business man than the sound of the first cuckoo and his small son's jokes. It means the beginning of the income year.

The report of the inland revenue commission tells us there are forty-nine more millionaires in Great Britain than there were last year. One must remember that it takes five times as much money to make a millionaire in this country as it does in America, and there were, in all, 824 millionaires, or people with an income of at least $150,000 a year. This is in a population of 43,000,000 people and a country approximately the size of New England.

There are 8,150,000 people in these islands who look on the beginning of April with troubled eye. For that is the number charged with an income tax, one man out of every five, as you walk down the street. Of these more than half become exempt through allowances for children and dependents, but any little change in the chancellor's budget, a "three penny on the income tax," and they pay up in an amount that astonishes the American observer, whose allowances are greater and whose taxable limit is higher.

In death duties the government collected over £88,000,000, or about $500,000,000.

Even Furniture Highways Lead to Coronation

How to furnish a home attractively at low cost is the subject of the helpful booklet, "Furnishing Your Home on a Modest Budget," by Edith Weigle, Tribune furniture stylist. Every bride-to-be, every housewife, should read this booklet. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Edith Weigle.

THE coronation, which is having such a strong influence on women's fashions and on drapery and upholstery colors, is also being felt in the furniture world. One famous Grand Rapids manufacturer is bringing out a new dining room and bedroom ensemble, inspired by the coming royal event, and is using for decorative motifs the three court plumes carved in solid wood.

The style of this furniture is 18th century English, a period in high favor with the present trend toward elegance and more ornate beauty. The wood is mahogany.

The bedroom suite is named after little Princess Elizabeth and is unusually attractive. In the center of the headboard of the bed, at the top of the panel, are the three royal plumes, beautifully carved. Below them is a horizontal band of inlaid wood. This band is also found at the bottom edge of the footboard panel.

• • •

OVER the vanity and the bureau are charming mirrors topped by the three carved plumes. The fronts of the drawers are of Cuban mahogany, the swirl of the natural grain producing a lovely effect.

The vanity is made a little like a knee-hole desk, with three drawers on either side and a long curved drawer in the center. It has its own oval shaped upholstered bench, the legs of which are fluted and tapering.

The dining room ensemble, called Coronation, is dignified and aristocratic in line. It is distinguished in effect, but avoids overornateness. The chairs, which are in the Sheraton style, exhibit the plumes in small panels in the center of the back rail at the top. They ornament the cornice of the china cabinet as well.

• • •

THE long sideboard is extremely handsome with its gracefully curved center section and its narrow lines of fine inlay. The table is of the double pedestal extension type.

This furniture is now available in Chicago stores and is well worth careful inspection. It has been given an excellent mellow, old world finish.

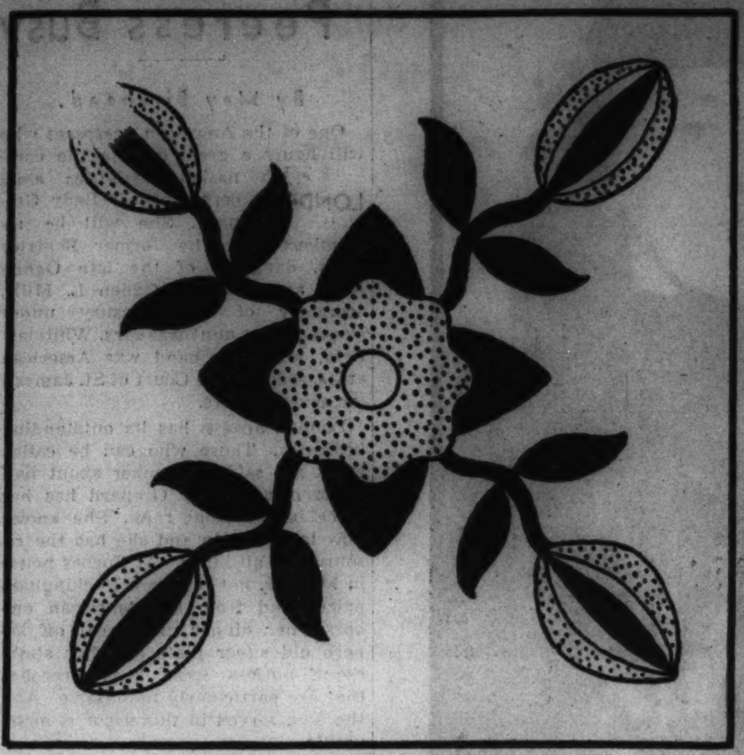
In a dining room furnished with this coronation suite it would be appropriate to carry out the color scheme in tones of coronation blue and gold with touches of deep crimson. The draperies should be of lustrous brocade or satin in gold or blue. The rug could be deep crimson, and the chair seats might be covered in a figured blue and gold or in a crimson and gold tapestry or brocatelle.

I will be glad to help readers plan their own dining room color schemes if they will enclose a 3 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for suggestions.

Modern Housewives Are Pampered, Says Woman

MRS. SOPHIA PIKE, who recently observed her 95th birthday anniversary in East Rochester, N. H., says the modern woman thinks she cannot live unless she has an automobile, an electric stove, and a permanent wave. Mrs. Pike wonders how many brides of today would take a wedding trip on horseback as she did.

"Pomegranate" Block Is One of Colonial Quilts



POMEGRANATE.

By Nancy Cabot.

IT is not as old as the most antique quilt blocks, but "Pomegranate" ranks among the early colonial blocks. The fruit was brought to the United States from Asia and grown in the southern states. It was in this section of the country that applique quilt blocks of pomegranates first were seen. It is not a difficult pattern to applique if the quilt maker is not in a rush to have it completed almost immediately. The many patches of the block must be set together perfectly. When it is finished, the block measures 17½ inches square and is set together with 15 plain blocks in an alternate arrangement. A one and a half inch border surrounds the blocks and, with the application of a half inch bias binding, produces a finished coverlet measuring 9½ by 108 inches.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Petite Princess One of Loveliest Coronation Debs

LONDON Coronation debutantes include the lively and petite Princess Tatiana Wiasemsky, only child of Prince Serge Wiasemsky and Princess Wiasemsky, who formerly was Miss Rosalie Selfridge, daughter of H. Gordon Selfridge of Chicago.

Princess Tatiana is just 17, but she has mastered conversation in seven languages and is a child star in amateur tennis tournaments. Her best friend is Lady Iris Mountbatten, daughter of the marchioness of Carisbrooke and granddaughter of Princess Beatrice.

Mr. Selfridge and Prince and Princess Wiasemsky have published the date of her debut ball as June 24 and it will be at Claridge's, although the big house in Carlton House terrace should be large enough for most balls. One can accordingly expect something even better than the usual sumptuous Selfridge entertaining on this occasion.

When the bells peal out all over England for the crowning of George VI. Bow bells will join the chorus, and it is to the credit of Mr. Selfridge that their peal will not be missed. He paid for having them recast as part of the general renovation of St. Mary-le-Bow, Cheapside, which recently was completed.

Another Anglo-American debutante is Miss Moyra Scott, niece of Lady Violet Astor. Lady Violet Astor is giving a dance for her at 18 Carlton House terrace shortly before Miss Scott will be presented at court.

English Compute Coronation Costs of Tourist Trade

LONDON After considering the number of pounds the government takes away from its citizens with no celebration, it does not seem to be much that the people of England are going to take away from visitors for the coronation.

Statisticians of the coronation committee have figured that the average length of time a visitor will remain in England is three weeks. Some will, of course, stay less and some considerably more, but with that as an average, they estimate each visitor will spend about $500. Transportation agencies estimate the number of visitors at 160,000, and that means nearly $100,000,000 will be dropped into the pockets of the islands this spring.

Most of it will go into accommodation, but entertainment will come next and car hire comes third on the list. Air line operators, shipping companies, and railways are expecting to pocket $32,000,000.

Continental visitors are expected to spend about $32,000,000; dominions and colonies probably will spend another $17,500,000, and the Americans alone will spend another $11,000,000.

Many people are complaining that they are robbed of Westminster abbey services for nearly six months, and the gateway to St. James's church, Piccadilly, has been removed to make room for more standing, and Kensington Gardens is to be turned into a military encampment for a period of several days, to mention only a few of the criticized points.

A consistent campaign is being carried on to eliminate the profiteer, but unfortunately he is not accountable to anything but his own conscience. England wants more than anything to treat her colonials and dominions in such a way that their friendliness will be even stronger than heretofore, and every point at which there is likely to be friction is being scrutinized.

DETOUR

By Frederic Babcock.

THOUGH the coronation itself will occupy only a part of one day in May, the pageantry accompanying it will fill the whole month. London's festival season will open with court receptions at Buckingham palace the first week in May and will continue with state banquets, processions, and royal tournaments into June, when the king celebrates his birthday.

● A rival attraction for the tourist from America is to be Paris' International exposition, scheduled to open May 1, with 49 nations taking part. A huge parade will be held in the streets of Paris on the opening day, when thousands march in a demonstration depicting France at work.

● Pageantry, with all the pomp and circumstance which Europe can bestow upon it, will be the highlight of the Maytime attractions over there. England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Italy, Germany, Russia, Holland, Denmark, Poland, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, and Austria will welcome summer with spectacular affairs, some religious, some commercial, some national holidays. Among the events listed by the Institute of Foreign Travel are:

May 1. Maypole dances in England; Stradivari celebrations start at Cremona, Italy, for five months to honor the great violin maker; parade and labor demonstration in Red Square, Moscow, U. S. S. R.; May festival opens at Syracuse, Sicily; Silesian fair opens at Katowice, Poland, for the month.

May 2. Kermis with local costumes at Assen, Holland, for five days; 16th century Calcio game at Florence, Italy; international fair at Poznan, Poland, for one week.

May 3. Military parades for Constitution day in Poland.

May 6. Folk dance festival opens at Bath, England, for three days; Ascension day procession and blessing of the waves by the clergy at Etretat, France; Festival of the Cricket with procession at Florence, Italy; music and country dance fete at Newton-Stewart, Scotland.

May 7. Kermis with local costumes at Maastricht, Holland, for nine days; Festival of St. Nicholas, the saint who became the Santa Claus of the western world, at Bari, Italy.

May 8. Furry dance, with people dancing through the streets of Helston, England, all day long; "Nation at Work" exhibition at Dusseldorf, Germany, till Oct. 8.

May 11. Midnight sun visible in northern Scandinavia till July 31.

May 12. Coronation procession in London, England; Pilsudski anniversary celebrations in Poland.

May 15. King Christian's Government jubilee in Denmark; 12th century fete of the Ceri in Gubbio, Italy.

May 16. Whit Sunday observances throughout Europe; military show at Biarritz, France; Pardons, with costumes, at Quimperle, Plouescat, and Montcontour, France; "Der Meistertrunk," historic folk play, at Rothenburg, Germany, for two days; Mount Brandon pilgrimage at Cloghane, Ireland; Festival of the Dove at Orvieto, Italy.

May 17. Folk dance at Bampton, England; pilgrimage to the Divino Amore, Rome, with vehicles racing there for seven and a half miles on the Via Ardeatina; Independence day celebrations throughout Norway.

May 18. Match of the crossbowmen at Gubbio, Italy; Saint Willibrod's Dancing festival at Echternach, Luxembourg.

May 19. Palio race at Asti, Italy.

May 20. Pardon of horses at St. Eloi, France; spring fair at Arnheim, Holland.

May 22. Swedish fair at Gothenburg for one week.

May 23. Procession of the Golden Chariot at Mons, Belgium; Grand Pardon of St. Anne D'Auray, Brittany, France; kermis with costumes at Roermond, Holland, for four days.

May 27. Royal naval, military, and air force tournament in London till June 12; Corpus Christi festivals and processions at Warsaw, Cracow, and other cities of Poland.

May 29. Mozart festival till June 6 at Heidelberg, Germany; Golden Sword tournament at Campione d'Italia, Italy, for two days; Scottish pipe band contest at Alloa, Scotland.

TYPIFYING LATIN AMERICAN PULCHRITUDE

Austria Building Many Highways for Its Visitors

VIENNA.—(AP)—To please tourists, soldiers, and the unemployed, Austria is planning its biggest road building program.

About one-eighth of an internal loan, $4,200,000, will be used for parts of three highways of international importance.

They will extend from the Swiss border through Vienna to the Hungarian frontier; from Germany to Carinthia, the southernmost Austrian province ,and from Hungary to Carinthia.

The sections now planned aggregate 174 miles, will furnish 3,300,000 work hours, and will bring to 2,060 miles the Austrian roadways that, officials say, "foreign tourists are accustomed to."

Austria's most famous road, the new Grossglocknerstrasse—which is considered an extraordinary feat because of its altitude—is already paying dividends. Nearly 150,000 persons toured it last summer.

Kindly tell me something about Ceylon.—D. J.

Ceylon is a country of surprises to the traveler who imagines that poverty and uncivilized conditions will greet him when he debarks there. He finds railways, comfortable cars, good hotels, and tarred roads. His sightseeing program is likely to carry him through rice fields of delicate green, stretches of palms, flowering tea gardens, rubber plantations, and miles of forests populated by chattering monkeys and crimson, yellow and blue birds. Carried in a jinricksha, the visitor sees modern shops, native craftsmen and a commercial district rivaling those of America.

When and where is the 75th anniversary of the German Saengerbund to be observed?—C. R. L.

From July 28 to Aug. 1 at Breslau.

Can you quote me Theodore Roosevelt's exact words regarding the Grand Canyon of th Colorado?—W. B. A.

"The Grand canyon fills me with awe. It is beyond comparison—beyond description; absolutely unparalleled throughout the wide world. . . . Let this great wonder of nature remain as it is now. Do nothing to mar its grandeur, sublimity and loveliness. You cannot improve on it. But what you can do is to keep it for your children, your children's children, and all who come after you, as the one great sight which every American should see."

Woman's Traffic Club Plans Dinner Dance for May 1

THE Woman's Traffic Club of Chicago is to hold its fourth annual dinner-dance May 1 at the Medinah club. The occasion will be formal.

Woman's Place Is in Home; Male Emu's, on Eggs

By Mason Warner.

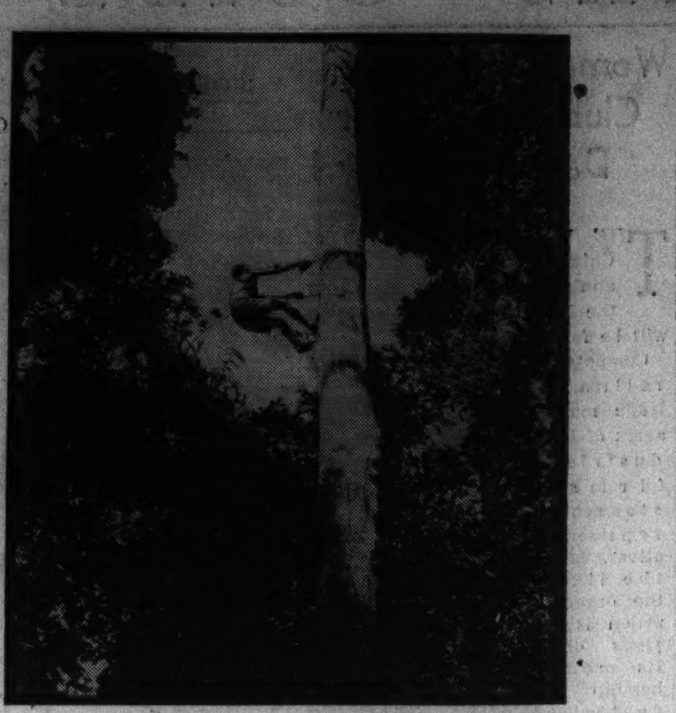
DENILIQUIN, N. S. W., Australia.—"Australia is on the sheep's back," is an expression heard on all sides. It is literally true. Wheat and gold contribute much to the wealth of the nation; nevertheless, the degree of prosperity enjoyed by the people depends upon the price of wool. A cent a pound up or down affects the welfare of all.

Exports of wool are valued from $200,000,000 to $250,000,000 annually, or more than $30 per capita for the 6,500,000 population. Australia has 115,000,000 sheep and produces more wool than the United States and Russia combined. England and Japan buy most of the fleece, but France, Germany, and Belgium are important customers.

"Station" is the Australian word for what we call a ranch in the United States. As a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Schallick of Deniliquin I had an opportunity to observe the life and work on a "back country" sheep station. Mr. Schallick is manager of the famous Wanganella stud, on which was bred a Merino ram that sold for $25,000, a record price.

It's a Workers' Paradise.

Much has been said and written about the loneliness of station life in Australia, but I could not see how any of the wailings and protests could be caused by life at Wanganella. This station impresses the visitor as a business institution rather than a pastoral enterprise. The modern home of the manager, the comfortable houses for his chief aids, the business offices with up-to-date accounting and filing systems, the shearing sheds, the wool compressers—everything—blended into a composite that reflected adequate equipment, efficient management, capable workers—and easy living.



WALKING UP A TREE

This Australian aborigine goes skyward with the greatest of ease. All he needs to aid him is a vine pulled from the tangled jungle of North Queensland. With each step he jerks the vine up a foot or so. In descending, the process is reversed.

A bounding kangaroo photographed from a pursuing car traveling at the rate of 40 miles an hour.

This Busybody Is a Great Bluffer.

The sheep dog is a great help in handling the flocks. Some say he does all the work on the station. He is a busy little body, darting in and out and around while moving a flock of sheep in the direction they should go. He is a great bluffer. He gets results merely by barking and threatening. It is a tragedy when a dog bites a sheep, for, once having tasted blood, a dog's doom is sealed and he is shot.

The land at Wanganella is as level as the ocean in a calm. The circling horizon looks as far away as the moon. There are roads, but they do not seem necessary, for the terrain is so level and smooth that an automobile can be driven anywhere over the downs [Australian for prairie lands]. Of course, common use has established highways between towns.

There are 25,000 acres that "carry" 9,000 sheep at Wanganella. A motor drive of ten or twelve miles from one paddock to one on the other side of the station provides entertainment and thrills. We came upon a mob of nine kangaroos. We gave chase in our car for five miles. They gave an exhibition of long and high hopping that grew more exciting as we increased our speed. Starting with leaps covering eight feet each, they were soon covering twelve to fourteen feet with every bound.

A Symphony in Motion.

A "big Joey" [old man kangaroo] was leading and set the pace. The others, in single file, were placed in line according to size, each a bit larger than the one following. They hopped in unison, with tails straight out behind when in the air. They went up and came down together. In the rear was a mother with a young "Joey" in her pouch, and the fast going became difficult, but she made no effort to throw the youngster out. Mr. Schallick slowed down the car as the kanagaroos hopped away. "She was getting tired," was his excuse for abandoning the chase.

There are only a few kangaroos around the Wanganella district and they are not hunted and killed. "There are not enough of them to do any damage to the pasture. The sheep won't miss the little they eat," was my host's explanation.

The next day we encountered a mob of emus. [By the way, "mob" is a much used collective noun in Australia. One does not say "a flock of sheep," "a herd of cows," "a pack of wolves." It is simply a "mob" of this, that, or the other.]

There were seven of the big birds, each one almost as tall as a man. We drove toward them. They are given to curiosity so keen it is often their undoing. They watched our approach with interest until we were within fifty feet. Then they started to run. As we chased them, the speedometer showed 20 miles an hour, then 30, finally 38 miles an hour, and we were not gaining. We quit. The birds ran fifty yards farther, and then stopped and resumed their pecking unconcernedly at the short grass. The emu is said to be the fastest running creature in the world.

The oddest thing about the bird is the fact that the male hatches the eggs. He sits on the nest, brooding, for about eight weeks. He even takes care of the young chicks, and is a fierce and jealous guardian until they are able to look out for themselves. Opponents of women suffrage may point to the emu as a terrible example of how far the female of a species will go.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

URBS IN HORTO.

Benton Harbor, Mich., April 10.—To the Travel Editor: Some weeks ago C. B. suggested writing of beautiful and interesting cities—"America First." So I begin with:

1. St. Augustine, America's oldest city—four centuries—with its crumbling city gates, slave market, Fountain of Youth, and Villa Zorayda, a facsimile of the famous Alhambra of Granada, Spain.

2. Tucson, with its many points of interest, the old missions, wonderful climate, cattle ranches, rodeos, cacti, and La Fiesta de los Valquero [Fiesta of the Cowboys].

3. Savannah, Ga., another old and beautiful city, lying off the sea coast and named after a tribe of Indians; teeming with the charm, chivalry, and gallantry of the old south.

4. Picturesque New Orleans, with japonica lined avenues, moss festooned live-oaks, the old world atmosphere in the Vieux Carre; Napoleon house, built for an emperor's exile; Absinthe house and Pirates' alleys, et cetera, et cetera.

5. San Antonio, combining the charm and tradition of three races; the intermingling of the old and the new; the Alamo, Cathedral San Francisco, Mexican quarter, and Fort Sam Houston—all of historic value.

6. Palm Springs, Cal., a desert city of one street; quite alluring and most unusual, where smart America rides, swims and suntans.

7. Albuquerque, in the heart of the romantic southwest, with legendary lore of old missions, padres, and Indian trading posts.

8. Vancouver, made up of innumerable beauty spots; Indian villages, Stanley park, with its giant trees, totem poles, and monuments; the Chinese, Japanese, and Hindoo quarters lending a touch of the oriental.

9. Denver, situated in the heart of the Rockies and surrounded by wild, ragged, jagged mountain peaks, rising higher and higher; nearby the Cave of the Winds, the Garden of the Gods, Pike's peak—magnificent!

10. Chicago, chock full of historic interest and beauty, both as a city and a resort; the Art institute, museums, libraries, theaters, skyscrapers, 20th century hotels, grand opera, the largest department store in the world, and the Merchandise mart, housing 17,000 employés; miles and miles of wide, sandy beaches along the shore of Lake Michigan; yachts, sailboats, speed boat regattas, and various water sports.

At some future time I hope you will allow me to list ten of the northern and eastern cities that appeal to me.

Beatrice Crawford.

ANY SUGGESTIONS?

Chicago, April 12.—To the Travel Editor: My husband and I contemplate a trip to Yellowstone National park this spring. We would appreciate comments and suggestions from any of the readers of your columns with regard to places of interest along the way. We shall drive.

Mrs. Hubert L. Beck.

FOR THE SHUT-INS' SCRAPBOOK.

Chicago, April 13.—To the Travel Editor: May I add my request to the many others for the series of travel letters suggested by Harriette S. Stevens? I would be deeply grateful to be able to include them in our travel scrapbooks for shut-ins.

Mrs. J. A. Schaeffner,
Secretary, Travel-Light Club for Shut-ins.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

A PREVIEW run of the new Super Chief from Chicago to Santa Fe is to leave Monday morning, May 3, with a number of newspaper and magazine men aboard. The idea is to acquaint the writers with some of the things now being accomplished in train design. President S. T. Bledsoe of the Santa Fe railway and President Edward G. Budd of the Budd Manufacturing company relate that the new Super Chief is the first streamliner to be built solely for first class, extra fare, de luxe travel. It is of stainless steel and Diesel drawn. Indian art of the southwest has been applied to its interior decoration.

Beginning tomorrow and continuing for the rest of the week the recreation spots of Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, and Canada will make their annual appeal for the vacation patronage of Chicagoans. The occasion is the thirteenth national outdoor life exposition. This time the show is to be held at the Sherman hotel. The resort men will bring with them a whole menagerie, including beavers, mink, deer, cub bears, fox, porcupines, pheasants, quail, and mallards.

H. Alvin Sharpe, young New Orleans artist, boarded a Chicago and Southern Air Lines plane in his home city last Tuesday and completed a Mississippi valley landscape in the course of his flight to Chicago. On the return trip, leaving here the same afternoon, he painted a sunset from the air, with the Mississippi in the foreground. The idea was to demonstrate the comfort and dependability of that form of travel.

With the coronation less than four weeks away, six menu cards of unusual character have been placed in use on the dining cars of the Grand Trun-Canadian National railways. Each card has a color print and a story of an event or incident connected with the crowning of a British king. One of these tells of the "Stone of Scone" or "Stone of Destiny," which, tradition says, groans when a true sovereign sits upon it, but is grimly silent for a usurper.

Europe as a tourist center will be emphasized in the exhibit the American Express company will have at the fourth annual business exposition of the Rotary club of Chicago. The show will be held April 27 to 30 at the Sherman hotel. Europe's prominence in the exhibit will be due to the fact that Rotary International is to hold its convention at Nice, France, June 5 to 11.

The speed, comfort, and dependability of vacation travel by air were told about at a luncheon of the Traffic Club of Chicago at the Palmer house Thursday. Officials of six major air lines set forth that vacationists are able to spend most of their time at their destinations, instead of in going and returning, and that the supercharged engines used nowadays lift the planes above the clouds, where travel is smooth. As for accidents, the speakers pointed out that these happen everywhere, regardless of whether a person stays at home or takes to any one of the various forms of transportation.

Dispatches from Paris last week related that the innkeepers there had reached an agreement to keep their rates well within the means of the average American tourist for the duration of the international exposition. The schedules range from $2.73 for a room without bath in a modest hostelry to $8.64 for a room with bath in a de luxe hotel. Members of the syndicate have pledged themselves to a strict observance of a pact designed to prevent exploitation of visitors there this summer. Since France went off the gold standard its prices, in terms of the dollar, have been materially reduced.

Bridge Yields Profit.

SYDNEY.—[U.P.]—Sydney's famous 50 million dollar bridge is at last a paying concern. Last year 36,000,000 people passed over it, or an equivalent of six trips for every person in Australia.

Many Brilliant Art Exhibits Now Current

By Eleanor Jewett.

IT almost seems as though there were no end this year to the really fine exhibitions to which Chicago galleries are playing host. The last stunning show to open is that of recent paintings by Louis Kronberg in the Carson, Pirie, Scott gallery. Mr. Kronberg has an international reputation as a sound and brilliant painter. In his early years he was greatly interested in the theater and followed the boards enthusiastically, painting many celebrities. Richard Fuller, Loie Fuller, and Lydia Lopakowa are among the noted persons he has portrayed.

Mr. Kronberg's love for the theater gradually shifted to the ballet, and for many years he has been busy painting those gifted dancers whose grace and skill are the reward of years of tedious and difficult training. Probably it never will be possible to mention Kronberg's liking of the ballet without thinking simultaneously of Degas, the great French painter whose ballet girl studies are famous the world over. Except that both men paint the subject magnificently there is no resemblance in the finished canvas. If anything, Mr. Kronberg is proving himself the greater friend of the ballet, for he gives his models a natural air that transforms them from dancers into girls whom any one might understand and with whom one might sympathize. Particularly does Mr. Kronberg play this gentle motif with his little friend, Titania.

Titania might be 14, or she might be 19. At all events she is a solid, serious, intelligent child diligently studying the endless steps to perfection which the ballet demands. Mr. Kronberg has painted her several times while engaged in various activities. Here she is resting, here dressing, here busy with a lesson, and here with her mother. That her mother and her teacher are one is suggested by the likeness of the figures playing these parts. Then Mr. Kronberg shifts us from the gymnasium where the bar exercise is being repeatedly accomplished, to the stage where the training breaks into the professional step. We see the dancer taking her bow. We see her in her flowerlike sheath of costume—floating skirt, tight bodice—and we are made to realize that one craftsman is doing homage to another.

Besides the many fascinating studies of dancers Mr. Kronberg presents us with several decorative portraits, gorgeous in color, and with one of the loveliest nudes we have seen for some time. The painting is called "Repose" and is utterly charming. The delicate lines of the graceful figure melt into the colorful couch on which it is seated and yet never lose their own significance. Mr. Kronberg has painted an unforgettable picture.

THE Municipal Art league purchase prize in the recent Chicago artists and vicinity exhibition at the Art institute was awarded to Mrs. Harriet Krawiec for a still life arrangement.

In the current American paintings and sculpture exhibition at the Corcoran galleries in Washington, D. C., Charles Sneed Williams is represented with two brilliant portraits, and Rudolph Ingerle with a landscape. Mr. Williams is known in the United States and England as one of the important contemporary portrait painters. His reputation has been built up through successive years of successful engagement in portraiture. Many noted English men and women have sat for him, and many well known Americans.

Carl Paulson of Chicago is announced as the winner of a $1,000 prize in a recent contest. He is a member of the evening classes of the Frederic Mizen Academy of Art, Chicago. There were more than 500 entries in the competition.

The American Artists' congress [which is too much concerned with politics of the Red persuasion to have great value as art for art's sake] is showing work by members in the America Fore building, 844 Rush street, to April 30. This is that kind of a show.

Paintings of the Barbizon school may be seen in the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue, to May 1. There are many interesting and beautiful paintings in the show. Diaz, Daubigny, Dupré, Corot, and Rousseau make a goodly company.

The Anderson galleries, 530 South Michigan avenue, have a well balanced exhibit of old masters. The fine "Halt at the Inn" by Isaac Ostade is worth 10 minutes of any one's time. There are, besides, a portrait of Martin Luther by Lucas Cranach, the elder; a portrait of Mrs. Hill by Hogarth, two beautiful old flower companion pictures by Verelst, and brilliant examples of Bonington, Lawrence, and Allan Ramsay. Three of the intriguing still life paintings by Pushman [whose exhibit drew literally hundreds of persons a day during its three week stay in the gallery] are in another room where they are still fascinating a delighted public.

In the Marshall Field gallery are to be found four interesting paintings of the dunes by Arno Bretsnyder.

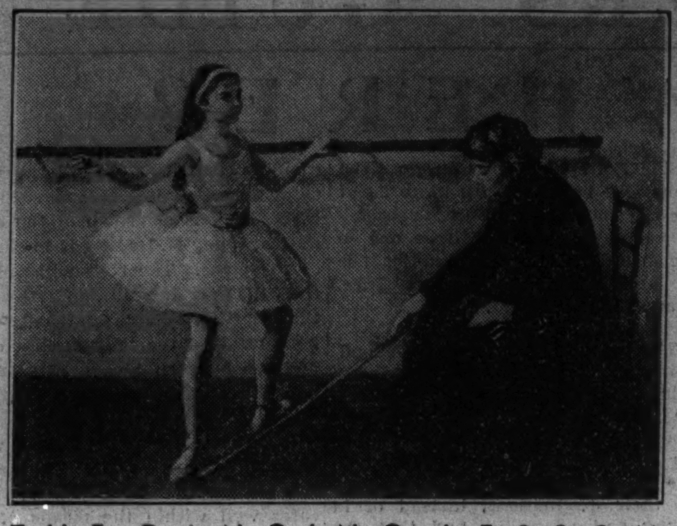
THE Chicago Society of Etchers is continuing its superlatively fine exhibit of prints in the Roullier gallery, Fine Arts building, to the first of May. This is one of the most popular exhibitions in town. Among the etchings is an exquisite "Dunes Silhouette" by Ernest A. Melchert, a little gem. And do not miss "The First Crossing" by R. H. Palenske, and the "November" by Mildred Brooks.

Elizabeth Orton Jones, who is noted for her charming, decorative, and imaginative color etchings of children [this Christmas she had an exquisite group of new prints on exhibit in the O'Brien gallery. Some of these became so popular they were sold almost immediately], has just proved herself an artist in another medium. She has written and illustrated a book for children. It is "Ragman of Paris and His Ragamuffins" [Oxford University Press]. The story is charming, with many humorous touches. Nearly every one will enjoy the doings of M. and Mme. Helas who, to be different, eat their meals from opposite ends of the menu. That is, Mme. Helas continues to go from soup to dessert, but her husband, more daring, starts with dessert and finishes with soup. It is most amusing.

The illustrations have all the original charm of Miss Jones' etchings. You will fall in love at once with the ragamuffins and the horse and the cat with a green whisker. The book is profusely illustrated in color. It should charm all children between the ages of 4 and 10, and their mothers and their grandmothers.

The Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, is showing, during April, an exhibit of oils and water colors by William A. Eyden and a group of prints by artist members, among them Ralph Fletcher Seymour, L. O. Griffith, Frederick Polley, and Charles Dahlgreen.



THE DANCING LESSON

Old Windmill Is Still Operated in Busy London

LONDON

Within three miles of the Bank of England there is a windmill in working order. Last autumn it ground wheat, although its great sails were not used. A gas engine had been installed. Still, there it stands near Brixton Hill and has stood since the United States had its last fracas with Mother England in 1812.

Then there still is "that queer chimney" on the southern side of the Thames which dominates the scene of demolition and rebuilding around Waterloo bridge. It isn't just a queer chimney. It is a shot tower, the last of its kind, but still going strong. The lead shot for the guns that were fired at the battle of Waterloo were made there in just the same way that they are made today. Molten lead is dropped from a great height into water. Science has devised no better way of making perfect spheres, and by the Shot Tower all know their direction around that part of London.

Within five miles of Charing Cross, in College road, Dulwich, is a toll gate which has been there since 1811, and it costs three pence to take a motor through the gate today. The list of toll charges is comprehensive and official, beginning with "For every horse, mule, or donkey not drawing . . . 2 pence," and finishing with "For sheep, lambs, and hogs per score . . . 2½ pence, and nothing less than a half penny."

And so, don't be afraid you won't see "Old London" when you come this summer.

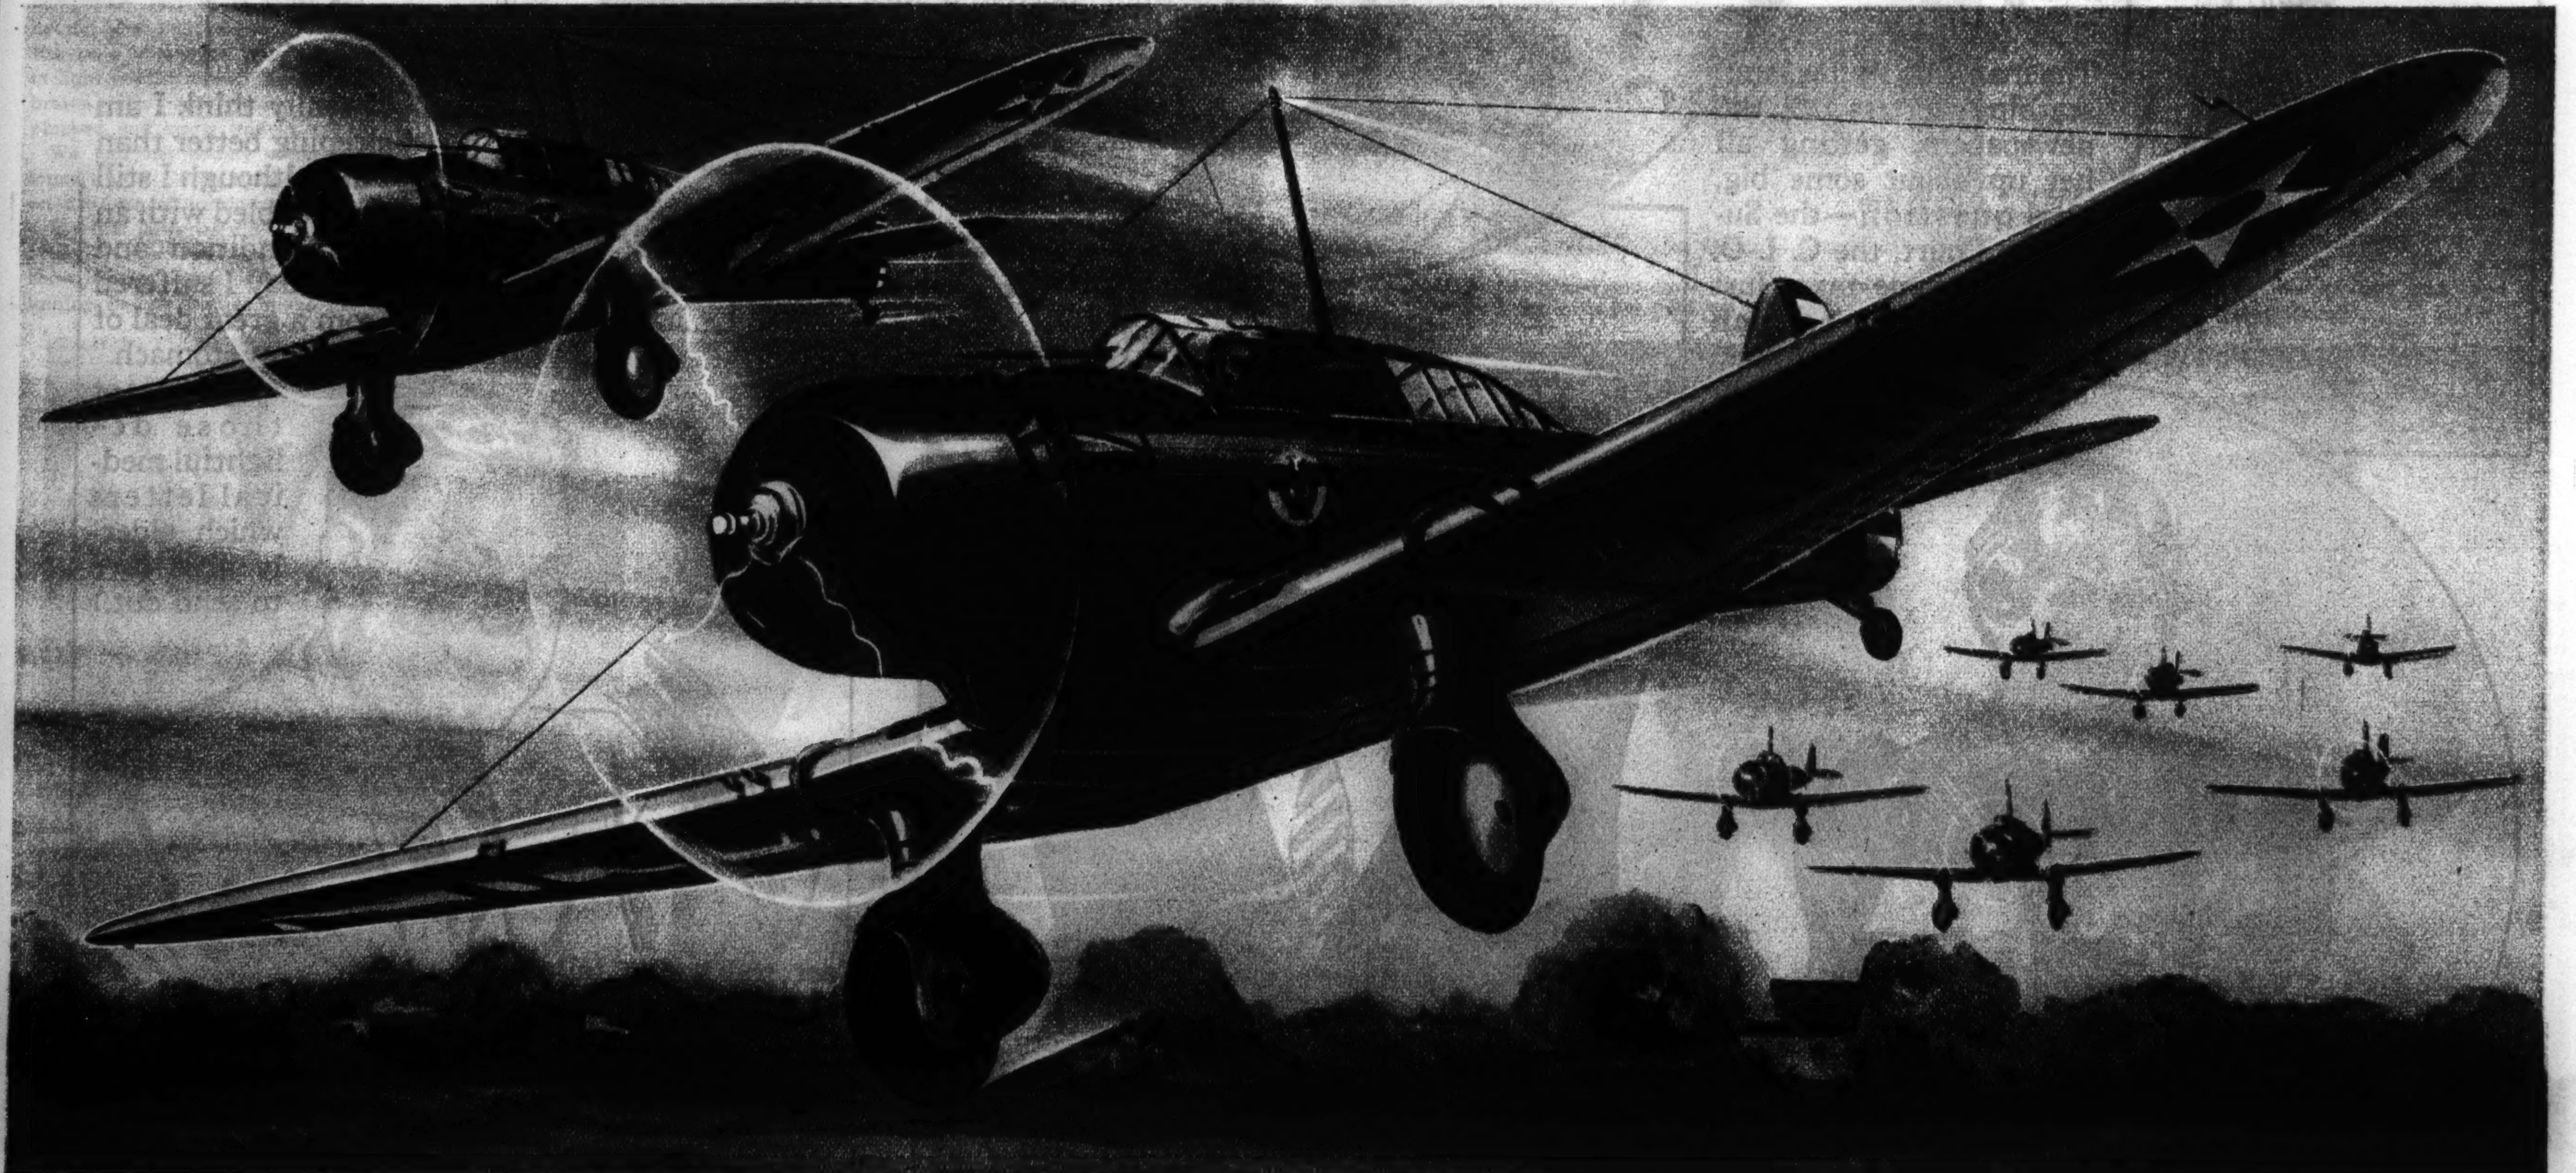
Combat airplanes—wicked, swift, deadly. These are the lean, knife-clean engines of war—the latest type pursuit planes built for the army air corps. The two machines in the foreground in the picture above are Seversky P-35 single-seaters. As depicted here they are part of the fighter escort accompanying the heavy Martin bombers flying on a war mission 500 feet below. It is the duty of pilots flying pursuit airplanes to protect their own observation, attack, transport, and bombardment squadrons and to intercept and shoot down hostile aircraft. Crack pilots of the air corps aspire to be members of the single-seat fighter squadrons, for here airmen find themselves pitted alone against enemy pilots. Individual skill and marksmanship are counted higher in the pursuit squadrons than in any other branch of the flying army. Only one of the type P-35 fighters as yet has been delivered to the air corps, but 77 of them, with spares for 13 more, now are being turned out in the Seversky plant at Farmingdale, Long Island, N. Y. These machines are probably the fastest fighting airplanes in the world and among the most deadly aircraft of their type ever constructed. The army's entire order of the fighters will be placed in service during 1937 with the pilots of the First pursuit group, Selfridge field, Michigan, which now is one of the important bases of the general headquarters air force. The First pursuit group had the most glorious record of any air force squadron of the American army in the World war, and the decision to place these marvelous new fighters with the group is considered a signal honor to the pilots who have maintained the traditions of the past. The Seversky fighters have a top speed said to be in the neighborhood of 350 miles an hour, and land, with the aid of efficient flaps, at 70 miles an hour. Their range is said to be 1,500 miles at the best cruising throttle setting.



Predatory war birds: A low-flying attack squadron with Northrop A-17 airplanes. These military machines have been specially designed to attack troops, transport trains, strong points, artillery emplacements, and similar concentrated targets on the ground. Their technique is to fly as low as possible, raking their objective with machine gun fire, bombs, and gas as they swoop over it at 250 miles an hour. They arrive so suddenly and depart so swiftly after striking that there can be no reprisal. The planes each carry pilot and gunner.

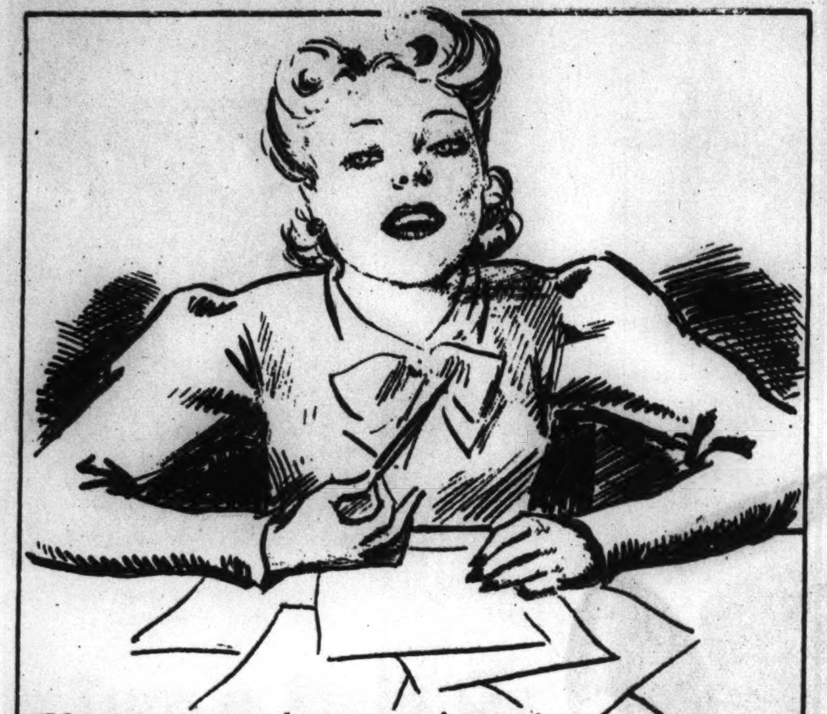
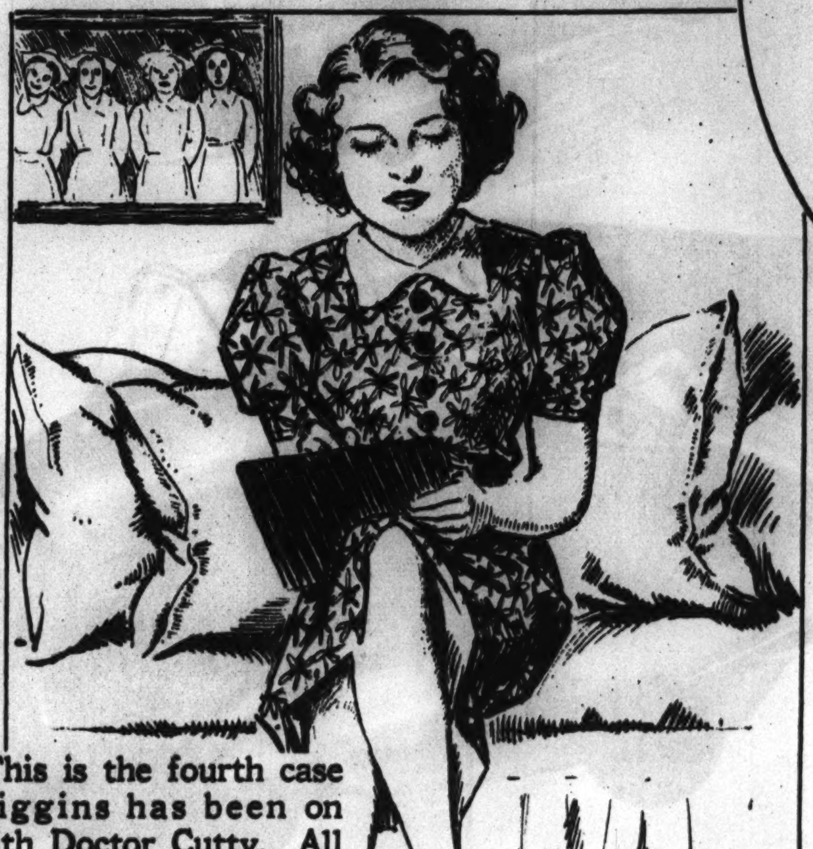
THE LETTER WRITERS

By W. E. Hill

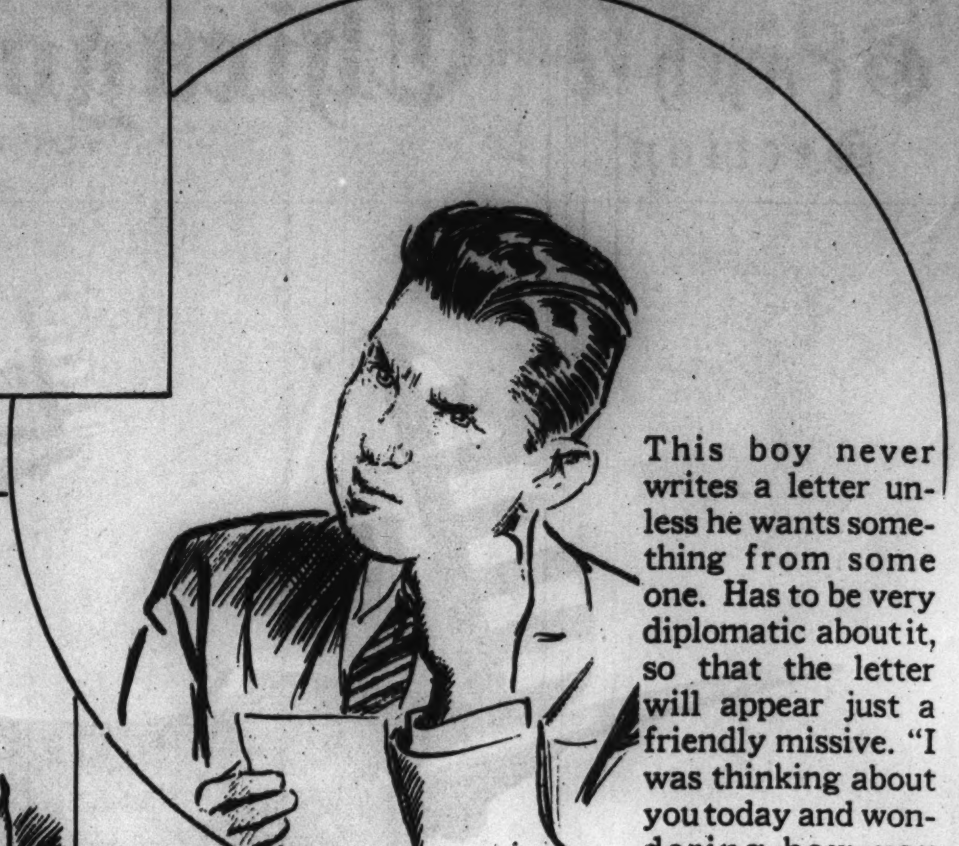
Copyright, 1937, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.



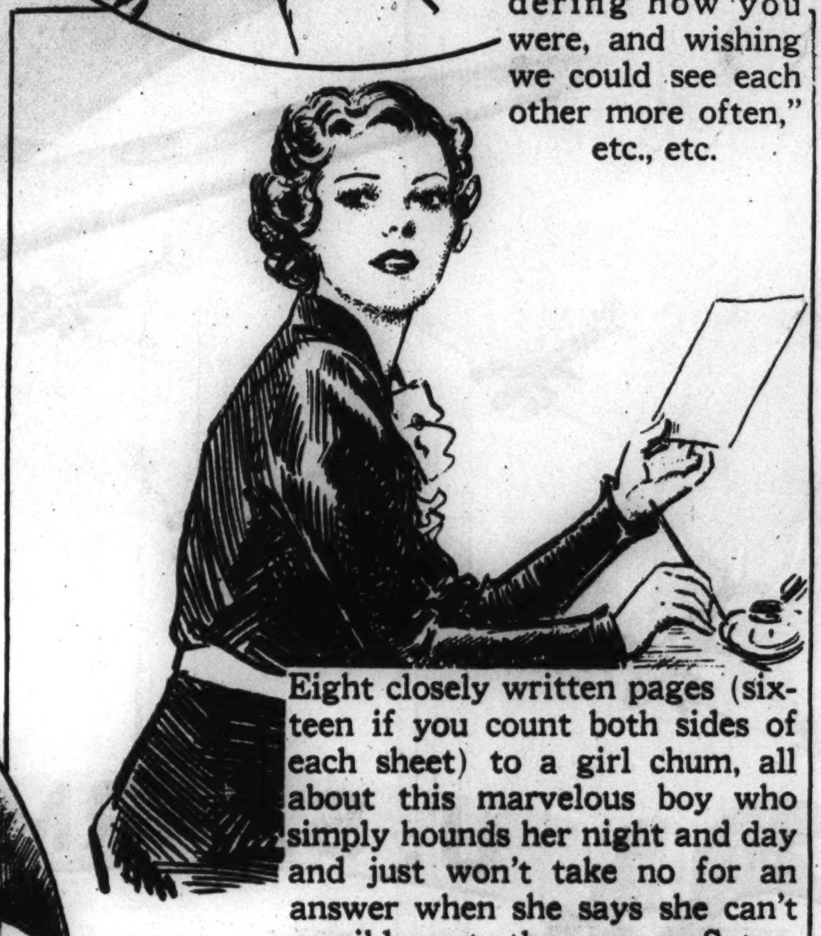
"Mother, come here a minute. Are there two 'r's' in 'sorry'? I can't think of a thing to say!" Doris has a terrible time with her correspondence. Calls in the entire family to help her out.



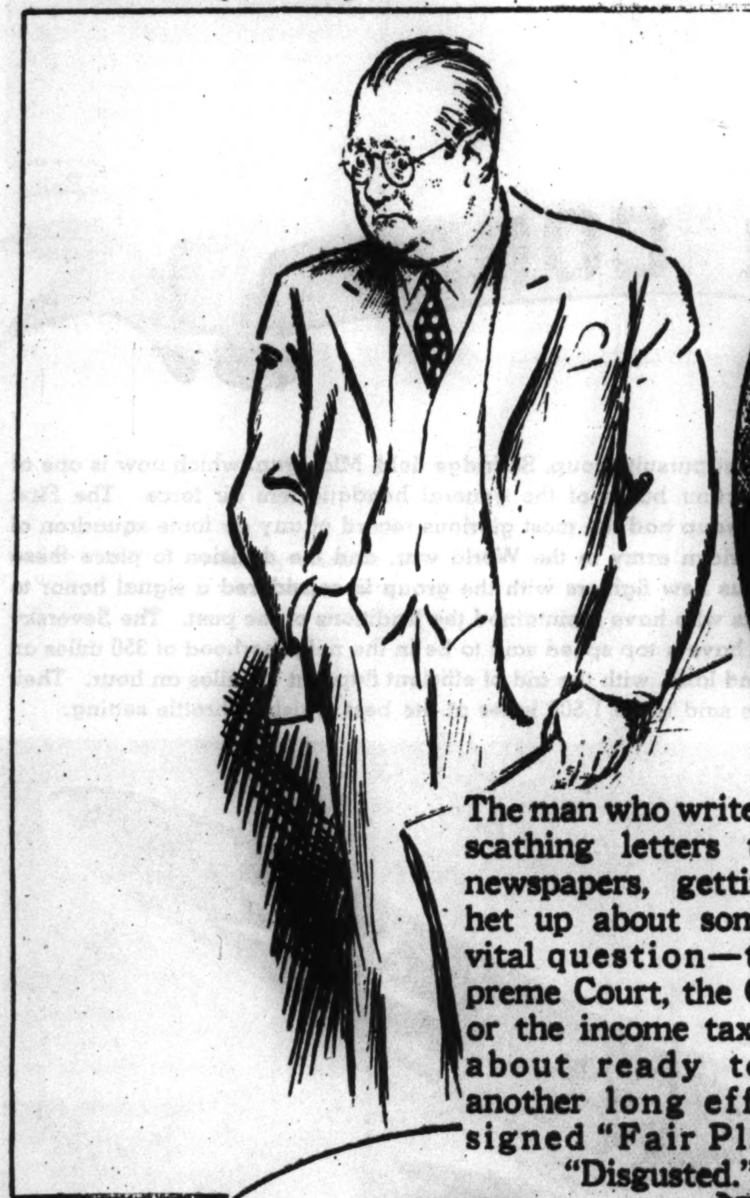
"This is the fourth case Higgins has been on with Doctor Cutty. All the nurses are positive he's in love with her." (Showing trained nurse off duty, writing long, newsy letter to a girl friend.)



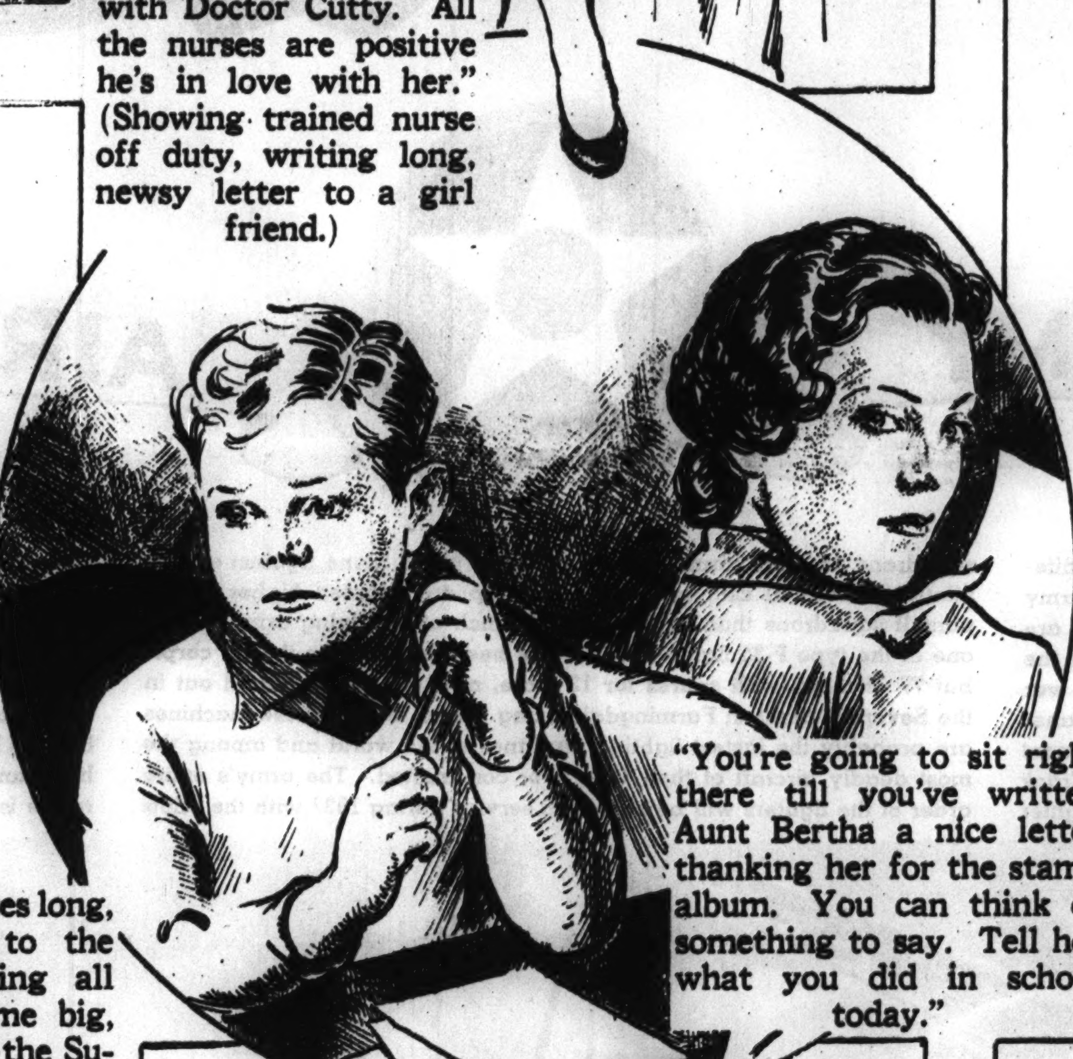
This boy never writes a letter unless he wants something from some one. Has to be very diplomatic about it, so that the letter will appear just a friendly missive. "I was thinking about you today and wondering how you were, and wishing we could see each other more often," etc., etc.



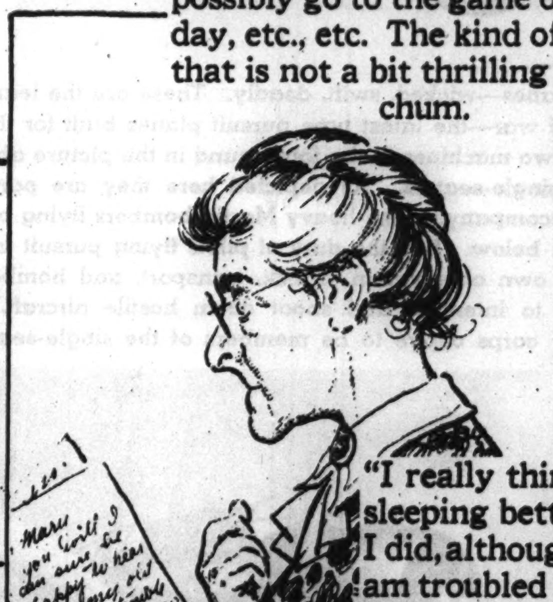
Eight closely written pages (sixteen if you count both sides of each sheet) to a girl chum, all about this marvelous boy who simply hounds her night and day and just won't take no for an answer when she says she can't possibly go to the game on Saturday, etc., etc. The kind of a letter that is not a bit thrilling to a girl chum.



The man who writes long, scathing letters to the newspapers, getting all het up about some big, vital question—the Supreme Court, the C. I. O. or the income tax. Just about ready to pen another long effusion signed "Fair Play" or "Disgusted."

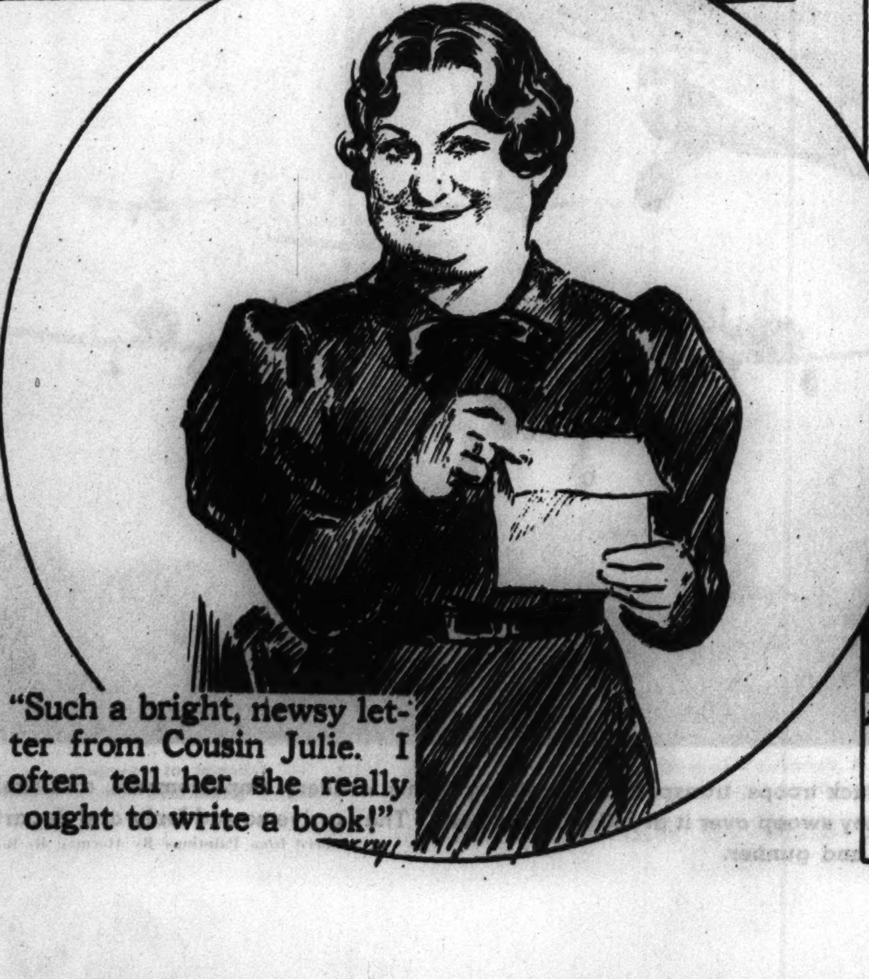


"You're going to sit right there till you've written Aunt Bertha a nice letter thanking her for the stamp album. You can think of something to say. Tell her what you did in school today."

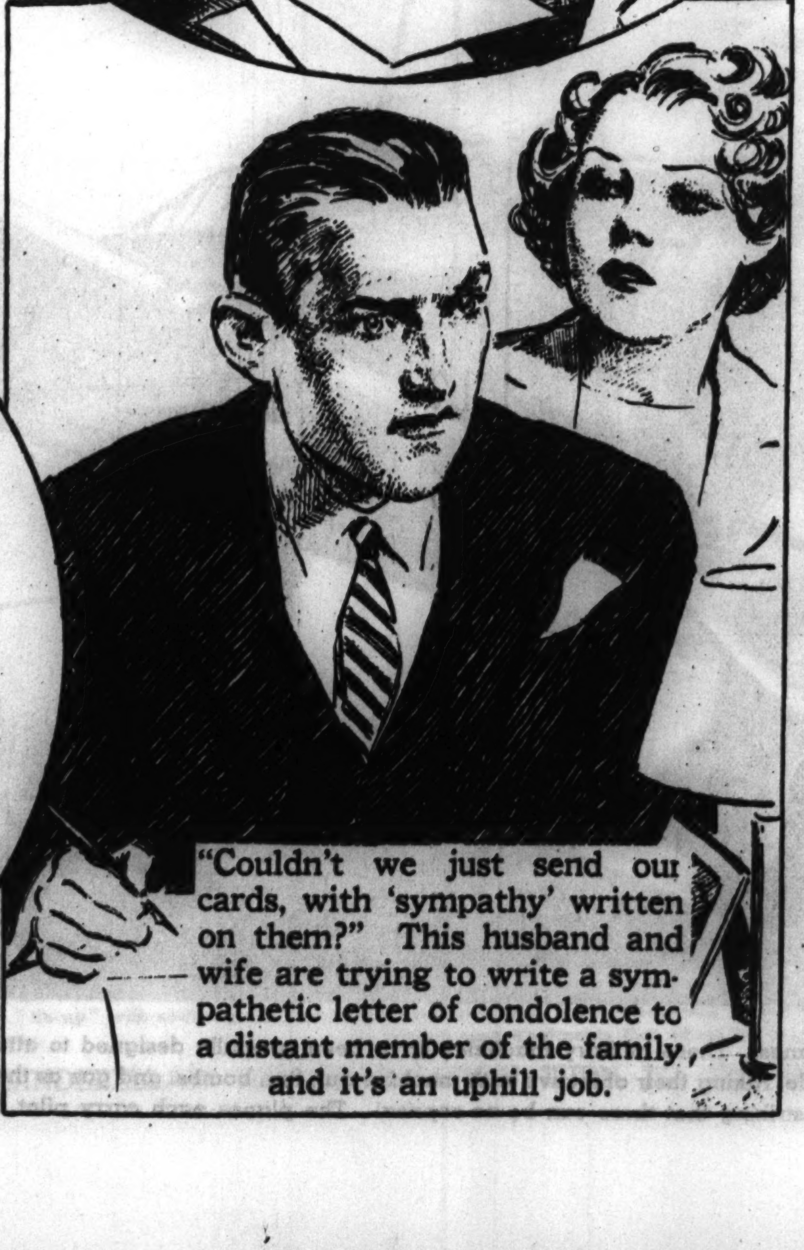


Mary you will I am sure be happy to hear that my old kidney trouble has been so much better of late and

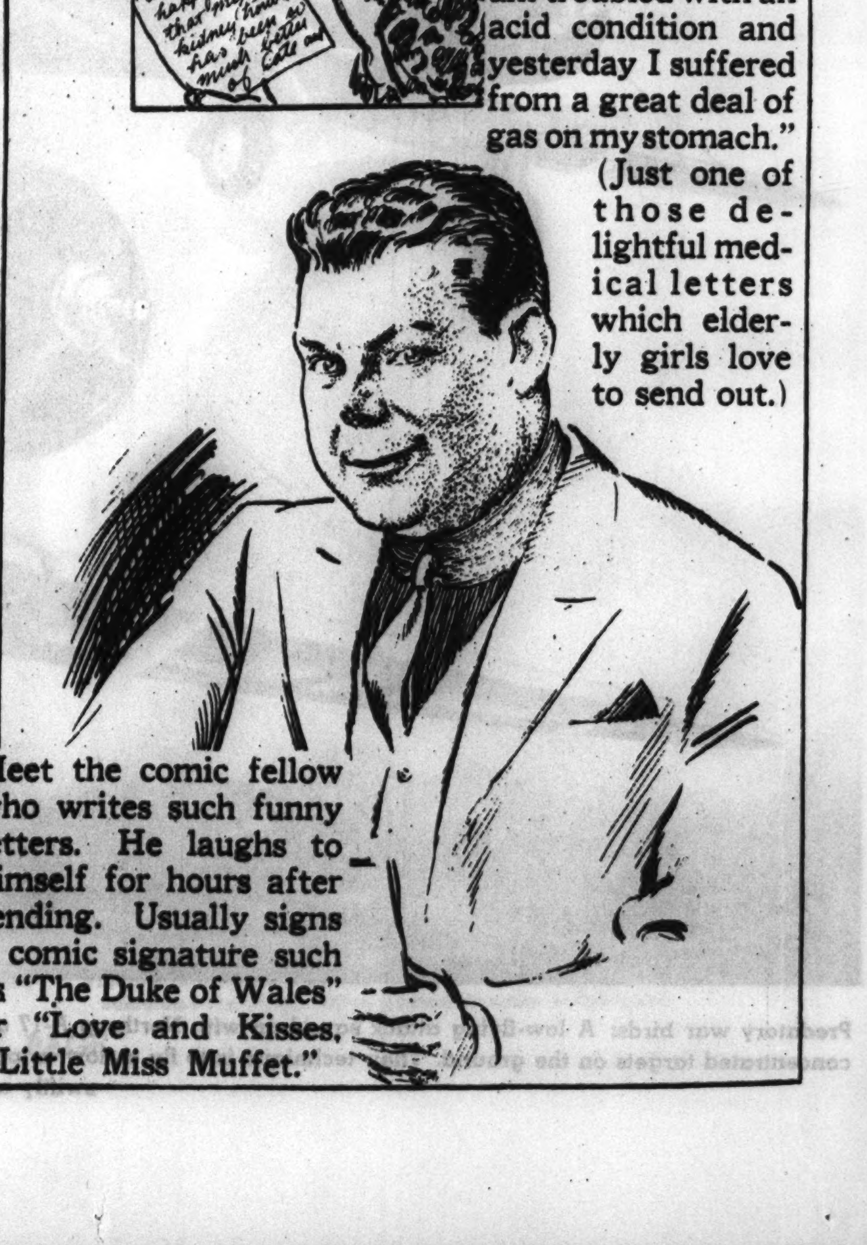
"I really think I am sleeping better than I did, although I still am troubled with an acid condition and yesterday I suffered from a great deal of gas on my stomach." (Just one of those delightful medical letters which elderly girls love to send out.)



"Such a bright, newsy letter from Cousin Julie. I often tell her she really ought to write a book!"



"Couldn't we just send our cards, with 'sympathy' written on them?" This husband and wife are trying to write a sympathetic letter of condolence to a distant member of the family, and it's an uphill job.



Meet the comic fellow who writes such funny letters. He laughs to himself for hours after sending. Usually signs a comic signature such as "The Duke of Wales" or "Love and Kisses, Little Miss Muffet."

Miss Cinderella Goes to the Beauty Market

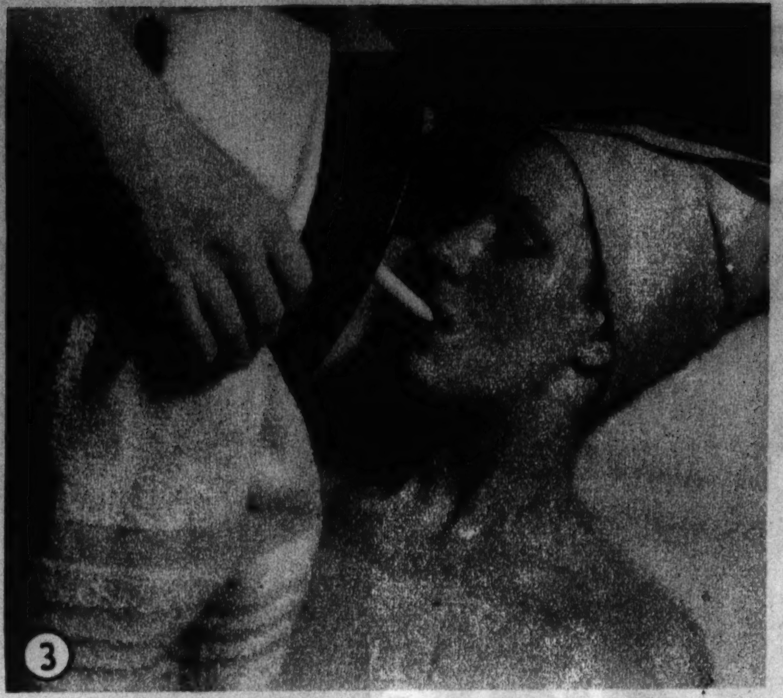
A course of skin treatments was in order. First step was a cream cleansing.



Next comes a vaporizing treatment, with head and shoulders placed under a steamer. The sterilized tube facilitates easy breathing during the process.

After the vaporizing there is further cleansing with soap and a complexion brush.

Experts Turn a Plain Girl Into a Charmer

By ELEANOR NANGLE

YOU all know the sort of woman who doesn't stand out in a crowd. You may know, in your heart of hearts, that that's just about your batting average. You're "nice looking," maybe even pretty. Maybe, to your unenlightened eyes, you're homely.

Tish tosh to all that! No woman need be homely, nor merely "nice looking." Go beauty shopping. You may not end up a Garbo, but you'll climb out of the mediocre class. We know, because we've seen it done. We even had something to do with the achievement. We've seen, just recently, how simple it is to make a drab little Cinderella pretty much of a belle.

Our Cinderella was only 18 years old. Just another youngster, neither well dressed, well groomed nor endowed with striking beauty. Beneath her undistinguished clothes there was, although you'd never have suspected it, a pretty elegant little figure.

Her complexion was dreadful—a hangover from acne in her youth. Her hair was a muddy red shade, completely lacking in luster and health. Her hairdress was wrong. Her pale blue eyes were framed in light reddish brown lashes; her brows, also light, were badly plucked and badly trained.

We took her beauty score and found it low. So we started her off on a course of transformation.

The first thing we did with little Miss V when we undertook to show her the simple secrets of attaining beauty was to make her posture conscious, to stand with her tummy tucked under, her ches lifted and her shoulders on a perfect line with her ears. When she drew herself up to the full height of her 5 feet 5 inches, easily and naturally, she had a Hollywood figure. It was all as simple as that.

• • •

Then, that complexion. Blackheads, plenty of them, and a scattering of eruptions. Pores that yawned. What to do?

This: There is a new facial treatment abroad in the land that is based on the old Swedish principle of immaculate cleanliness by vaporizing. The important thing with Miss V's skin was to get it thoroughly cleansed; after that toning and refinement would follow.

We popped her into a Chicago beauty salon for a series of these treatments. First there was a cleansing with cream. Then, for just a few moments, face and neck were vaporized at a temperature that never goes above 118 degrees. Grime rolled out!

It is the most perfect form of skin cleansing and, in the right hands ideal as a corrective treatment for dingy skin such as Miss V's. And you may doubt it, but the pores were reduced after the course of treatment.

The skin that had been blackhead infested and coarse is now luminous, with no trace of the eruptions that had formerly blossomed so unpleasantly.

After this basic improvement of complexion we turned our efforts to dramatization. First, the eyes. Right into the hands of an "eye expert" went Miss V, to have those depressingly pale lashes skillfully groomed and darkened and those straggly, imperfectly plucked and trained brows shaped to the line which would make her eyes appear larger and better set. The line of the brow, according to this expert, must follow the line of the lips.

No other beautifying step made such a striking transformation in our Cinderella. The glorification of her blue eyes gave her face expression and individuality which at one fell swoop took it out of the mediocre class. She was, immediately, a girl at whom you'd look twice.

A hair specialist gave Miss V the benefit of some expert assistance, too. Brushings were the foundation of the hair treatments Strong, skilled hands wielded the brush at a local salon. Oointments and lotions that would defeat the dandruff and restore scalp health were used both at the salon and at home.

• • •

In less than three weeks the muddy red hair glistened with life. Under the polishing the natural color was revealed as a shade of beauty—a rich brown highlighted with auburn tones. There, if you like, was hidden hair beauty that the beauty salon restored and revealed.

From these corrective steps we went on to good grooming. Until we felt that the obvious wrongs had been righted we gave no thought to permanents, to coiffures, to makeup charts.

When we felt that the field was at last in good shape we went to work with a will. A hair stylist was called in. With an artist's eye he considered our Cinderella. He liked the rather angular planes of her face. Thought them, which she had always considered such a structural drawback, decidedly interesting. He chose not to conceal them, but to play them up.

• • •

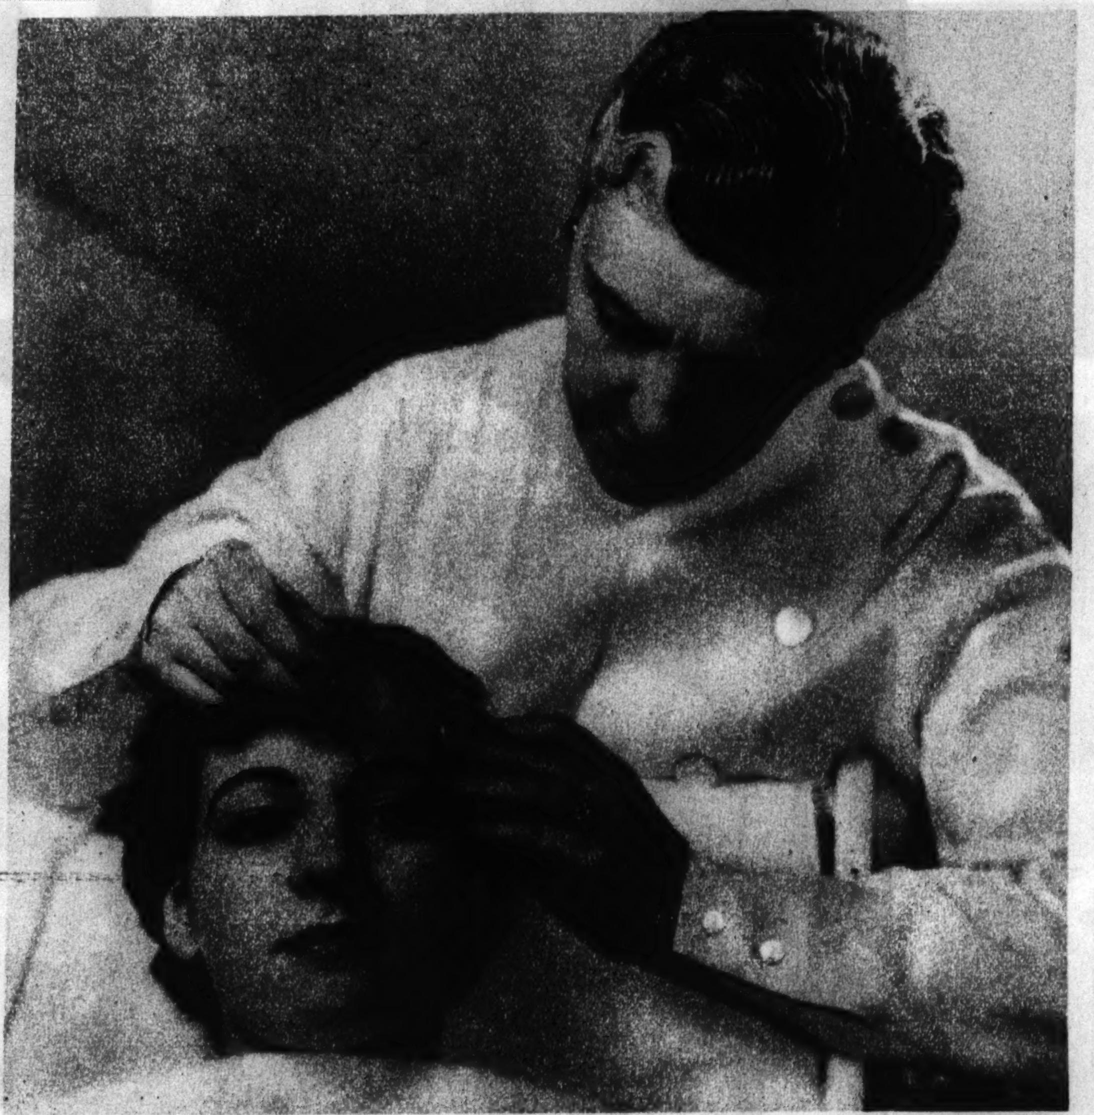
The long, slender neck was flaunted to the world, with the hair brought smartly up to the natural hairline in back. The center part gave way to a smooth coil that broke the severity of the smooth crown. It was a raving, tearing beauty of a hair style, perfect for Miss V's new found youthful beauty and personality.

There was a permanent, of course, which her hair took beautifully, since the hair itself had been brought to perfect health. A soft one, with undulations that were wide and smooth.

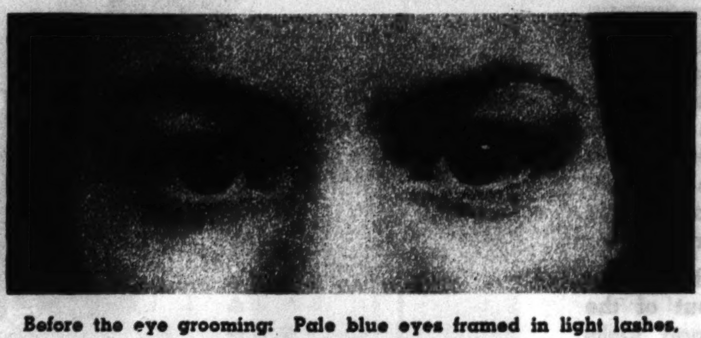
Then there was makeup. The beautiful brow line and the darkened lashes gave the illusion of size and depth her eyes really did not possess. A bit of blue shadow intensified their color. The rouge and lipstick finally chosen were in a clear, not too deep red. Powder was a shade that blended exactly with the cameo whiteness of the skin, which the vaporizing treatments had revealed.

We have a new Cinderella now—clear skinned, bright eyed—a youthful, interesting face framed in beautiful hair. Her silhouette is a joy, her hands well kept. She has found style, her own style, which stamps her with individuality and takes her completely out of the nondescript class.

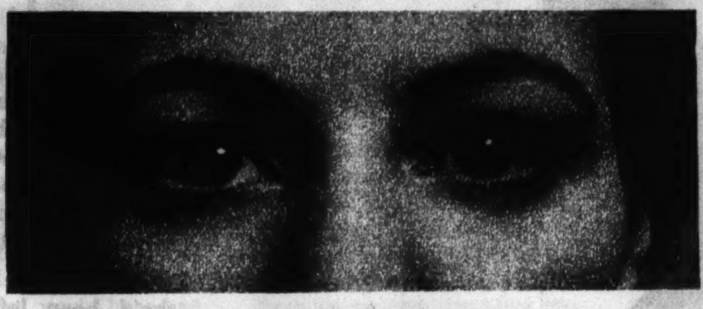
But the moral of all this is that you can do likewise. Don't be wistful about not being beautiful. DO SOMETHING about it Time, a little money—and painstaking care, can make you a beauty, at least in the modern sense of that word. You can find yourself, dramatize yourself and head the beauty parade.



After improving her complexion Cinderella had her eyes glorified by an expert, who groomed her brows to a line that made the eyes look larger. Brows and lashes were skilfully darkened, which made an immediate difference in our heroine's face, giving it expression and individuality.

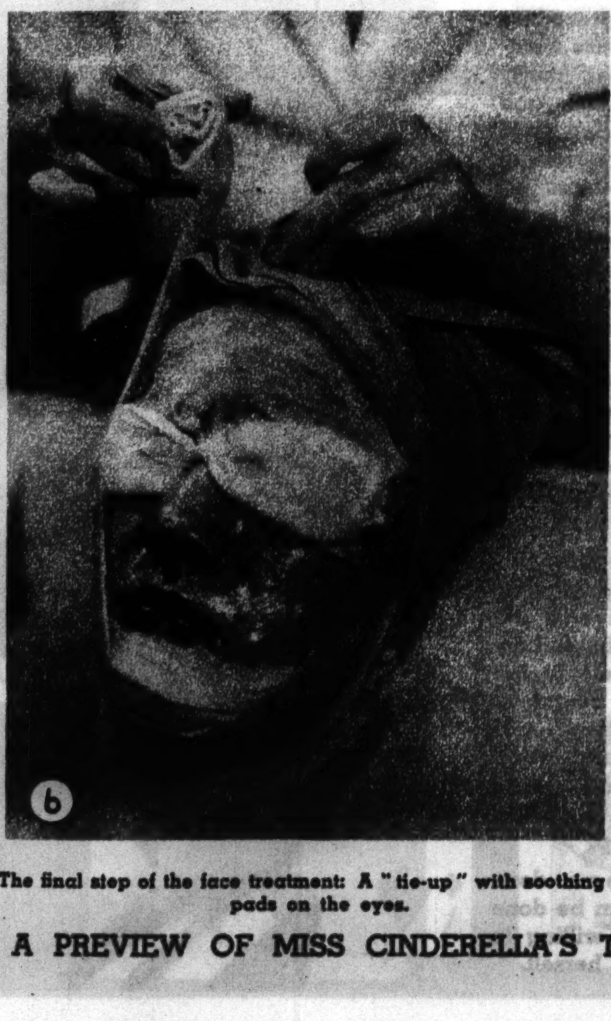


Before the eye grooming: Pale blue eyes framed in light lashes, surmounted by badly plucked brows.

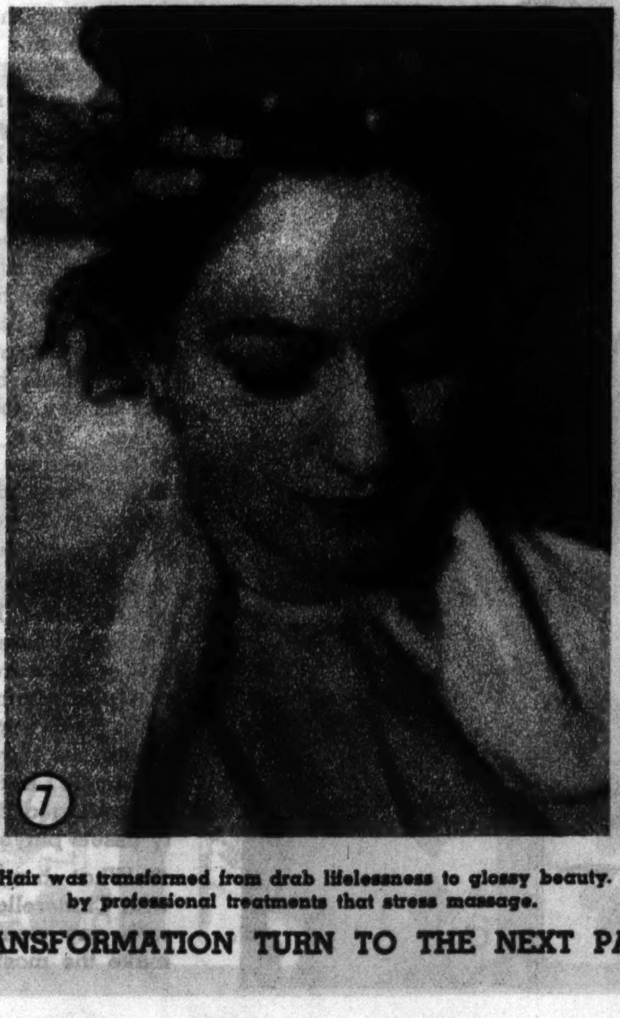


After the expert had reshaped and darkened the brows and lashes her eyes were not too dark, but dramatic.

After cleansing came massage to improve the contour and to work in a rich, nourishing cream.



The final step of the face treatment: A "tie-up" with soothing pads on the eyes.



Hair was transformed from drab lifelessness to glossy beauty, by professional treatments that stress massage.

Vigorous brushing by an expert polishes the hair strands and stimulates the scalp. Three treatments make a difference.

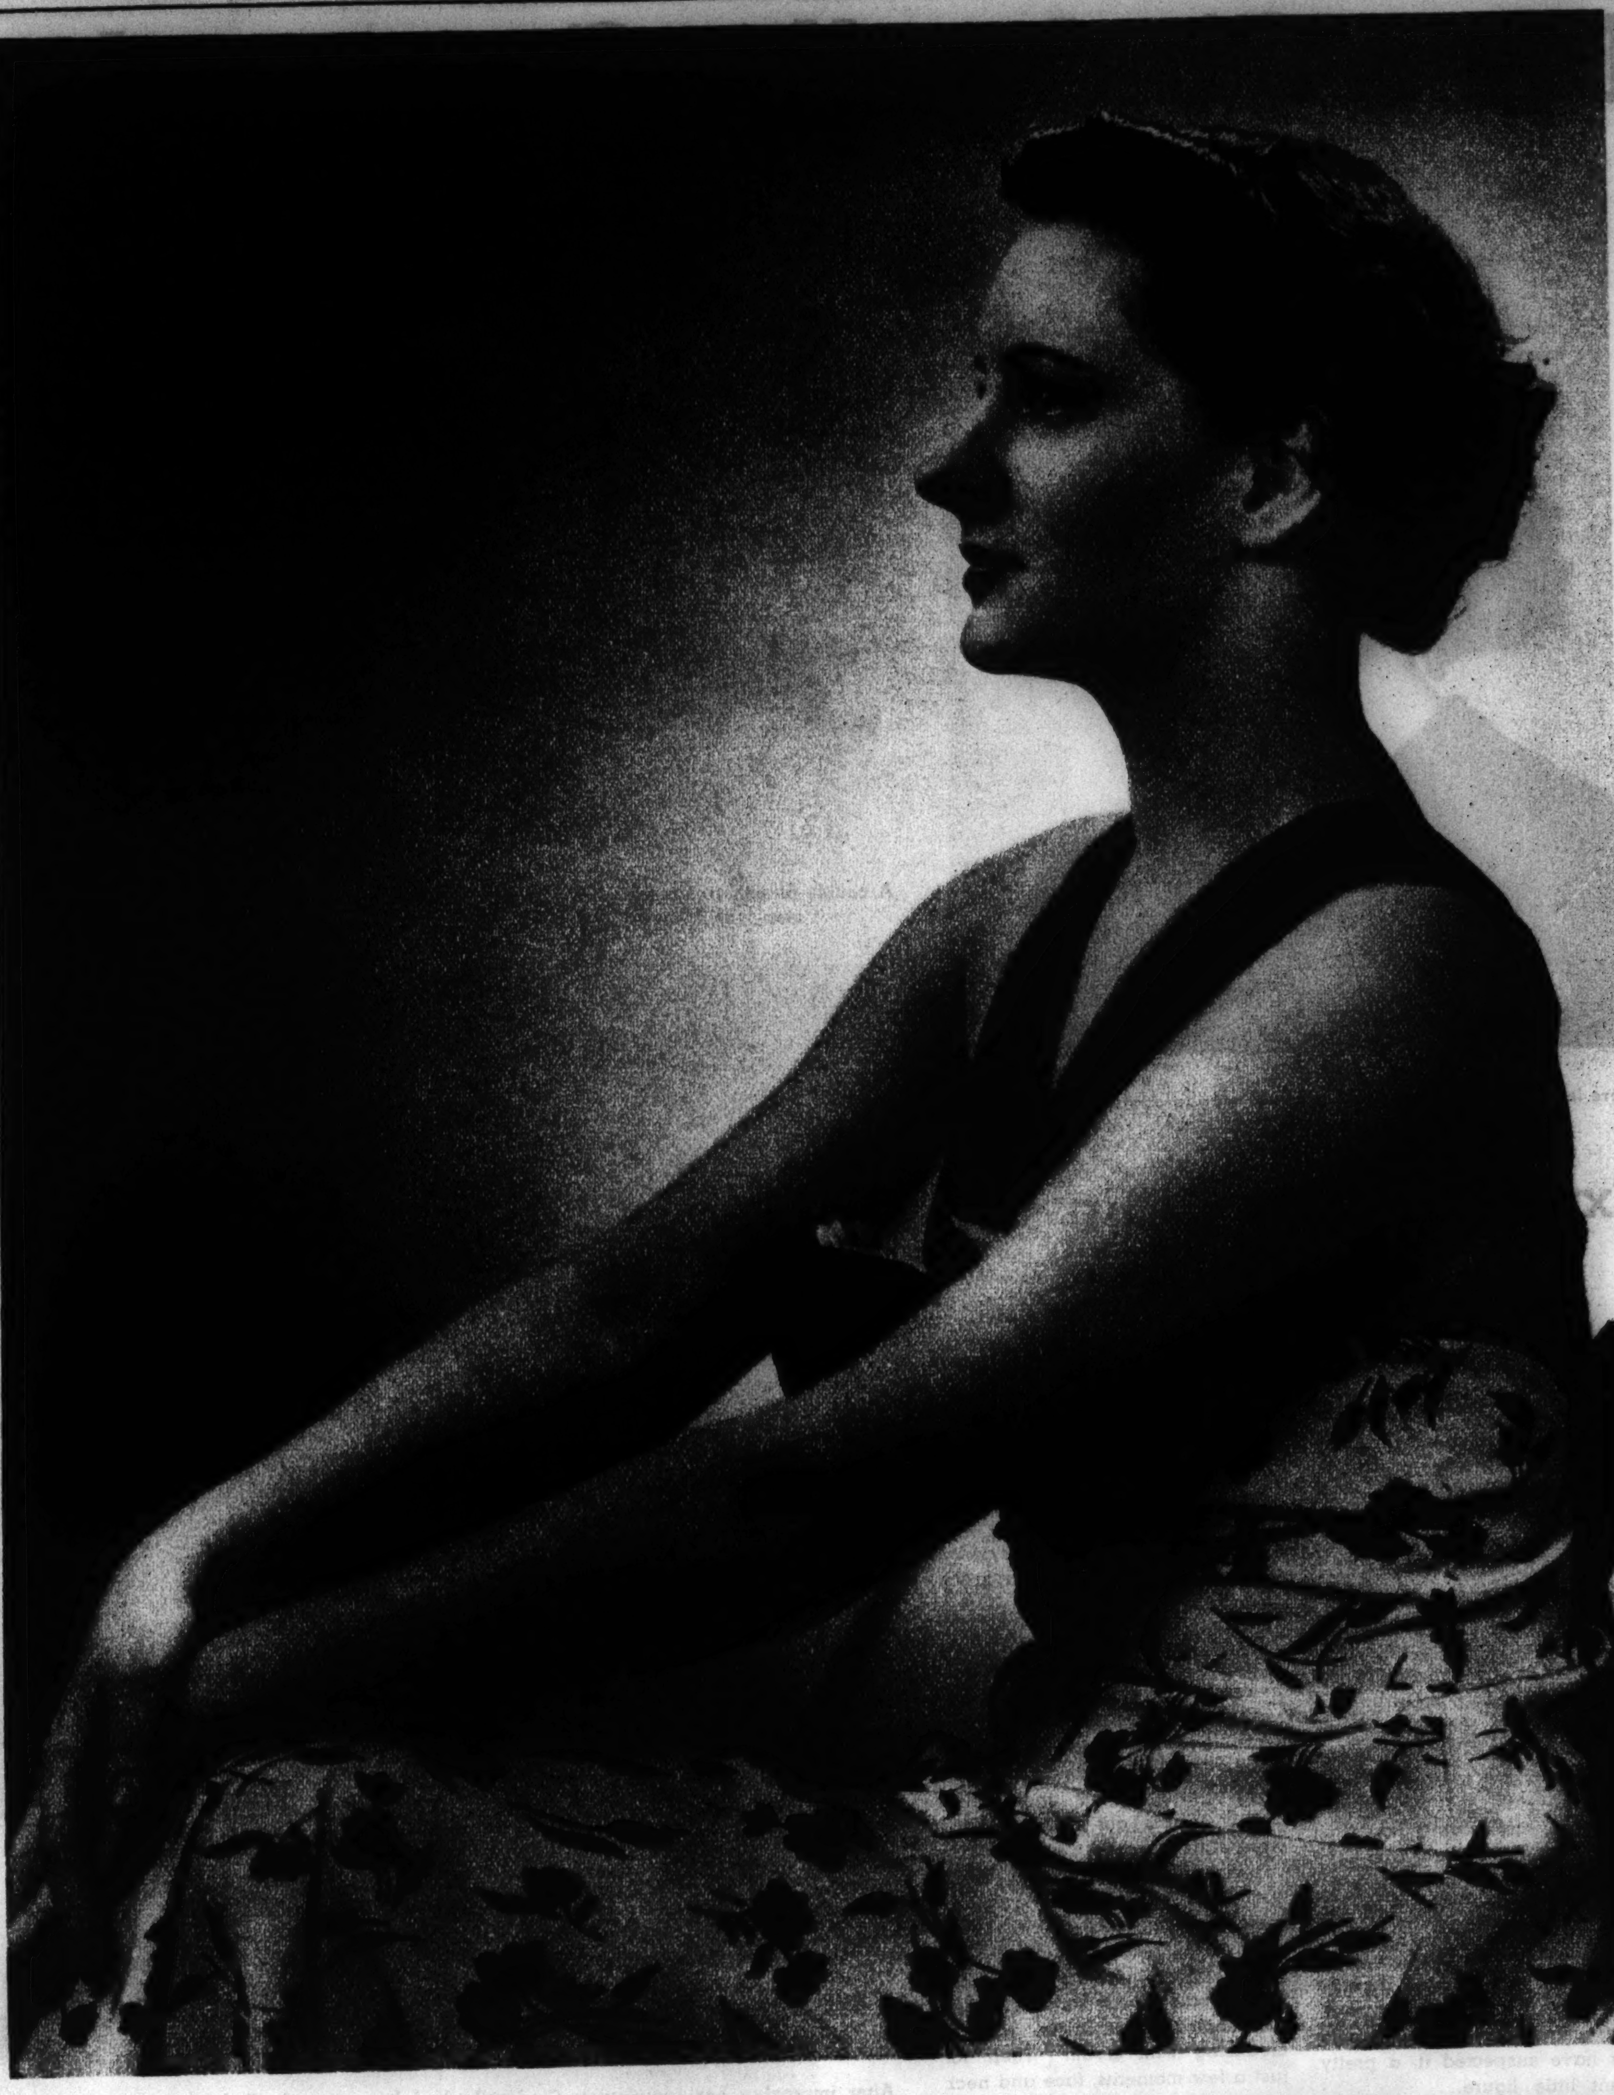
Introducing the New Cinderella



THE PICTURES on this page record the striking charm and smart grooming of our one-time plain Cinderella. She's a belle now. Her heretofore hidden beauty has been brought into full bloom by simple corrective treatment.

● Cinderella had thought she'd been left out of the picture when good looks were distributed. As described on the preceding page, a course of face treatments restored her dingy complexion to radiance and a finer texture. Her once dull, colorless hair, brought to luster and liveliness by professional care, now is arranged in a becoming and individual coiffure created especially for her by a Chicago artist. She has a new and better eyebrow line, and her pale blue eyes are set off by longer, darker lashes. Her clothes look better, because she has been taught the fashion and beauty truths of good carriage.

● Before The Tribune's beauty editor took Cinderella in hand hers was the tragedy of complete mediocrity of appearance. In the carefully planned course of her "transformation" all faults not structural were corrected, her bad points camouflaged, and her beauty assets played up.

● What has been done with Cinderella can be done with any woman willing to make the most of herself.

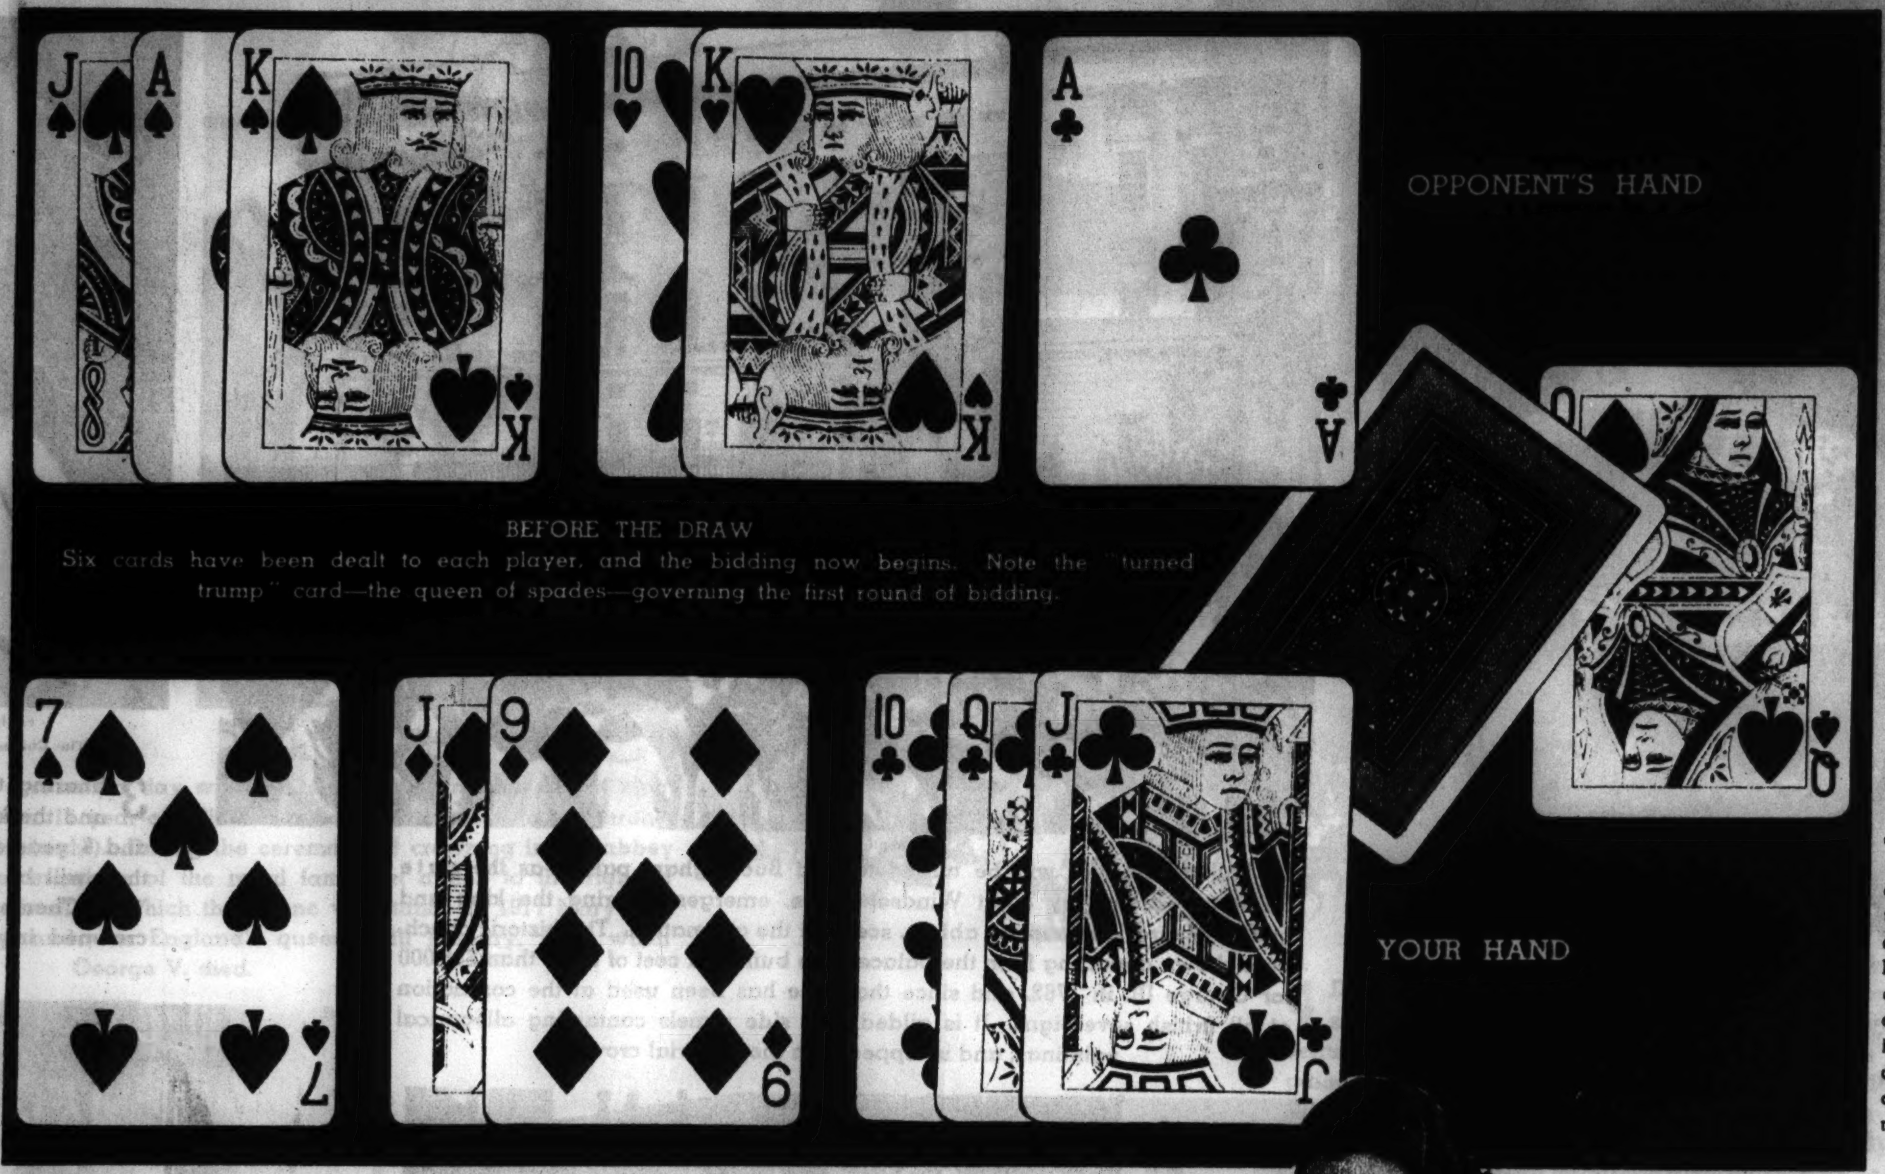
Culbertson Tells You How to Play Jo-Jotte



BEFORE THE DRAW
Six cards have been dealt to each player, and the bidding now begins. Note the "turned trump" card—the queen of spades—governing the first round of bidding.

Try a Hand Against Expert

By ELY CULBERTSON

BEFORE trying to play a hand of the fascinating game of jo-jotte with me, you, of course, must have a knowledge of the rules. So look at columns six and seven, pick up some ideas as to the basic principles of the game, study the plan of scoring at the bottom of the aforesaid columns, and then let's go.

We take a pack of thirty-two cards, cut, and I deal, having cut the higher card. Our first six cards are:

	ME	YOU
♠	J A K	7
♥	10 K	——
♦	——	J 9
♣	A	10 Q J

The thirteenth card (turned up as a tentative trump) is the queen of spades You'd have liked diamonds, which if trumps would make your jack worth 20 points and your nine worth 15 points. But you are much too weak at spades, so you say, "Pass." I say, "I'll play spades," because I can count on winning the spade jack (20 points), the spade ace (10 points), probably the spade king (5 points), either the ten or king of hearts (say only 5 points), and the ace of clubs (10 points).

I deal three more cards to each of us and turn up the bottom card —the ace of hearts. When we assort our cards this is what we see:

	ME	YOU
♠	J A 10 K	9 8 7
♥	10 K	J
♦	——	J 9
♣	A K 7	10 Q J

Now it's time to meld, so you say, "Twenty." You have the ♣ Q J 10 and the ♠ 9 8 7. I have no meld at all, so I have to say, "Good." You were wondering whether or not to exchange the ♠ 7 for the ♠ Q (which was turned up, you remember). But now you don't want to, because you are sure of counting 20 for the ♠ 9 8 7, whereas the ♠ 9 Q 8 would not count as a meld. You show your three spades and your three clubs and score 40 points above the line.

Now you lead. You are not too anxious to lead clubs, because you might not make the ten. So you lead the jack of diamonds. I MUST trump, so I play the ace of spades. (My ace, ten, and king are equals, and I try to deceive you.) Since the ace of hearts is the "information card," I know my hearts are high, so I lead the ten. You play the jack and I then lead the king.

At this point you become greedy, and instead of making sure of the ♠ 9 (worth 15 points) you trump with the ♠ 7—hoping to make the nine later on. Now you lead the ♦ 9, trying to exhaust my trumps. I trump with the ♠ 10.

But now you're out of luck. I know that you have left ♠ 9 8 and ♣ 10 Q J—because you showed them when you melded. I have a sure end play to win your nine.

I lead the ♣ K. You win with your ten and return the ♣ J. I take my ace and exit with the ♣ 7, which you must win with the ♣ Q. Now you have to lead away from your ♠ 9 8 and my ♠ J K win.

We count up:

My tricks	Pts.	Your tricks	Pts
♦ J, ♠ A	10	♥ K, ♠ 7	5
♥ 10, ♥ J	10	♣ K, ♣ 10	15
♦ 9, ♠ 10	10	♣ 7, ♣ Q	5
♣ J, ♣ A	10
♠ K, ♠ 8	5
♠ J, ♠ 9	35
Last trick	10
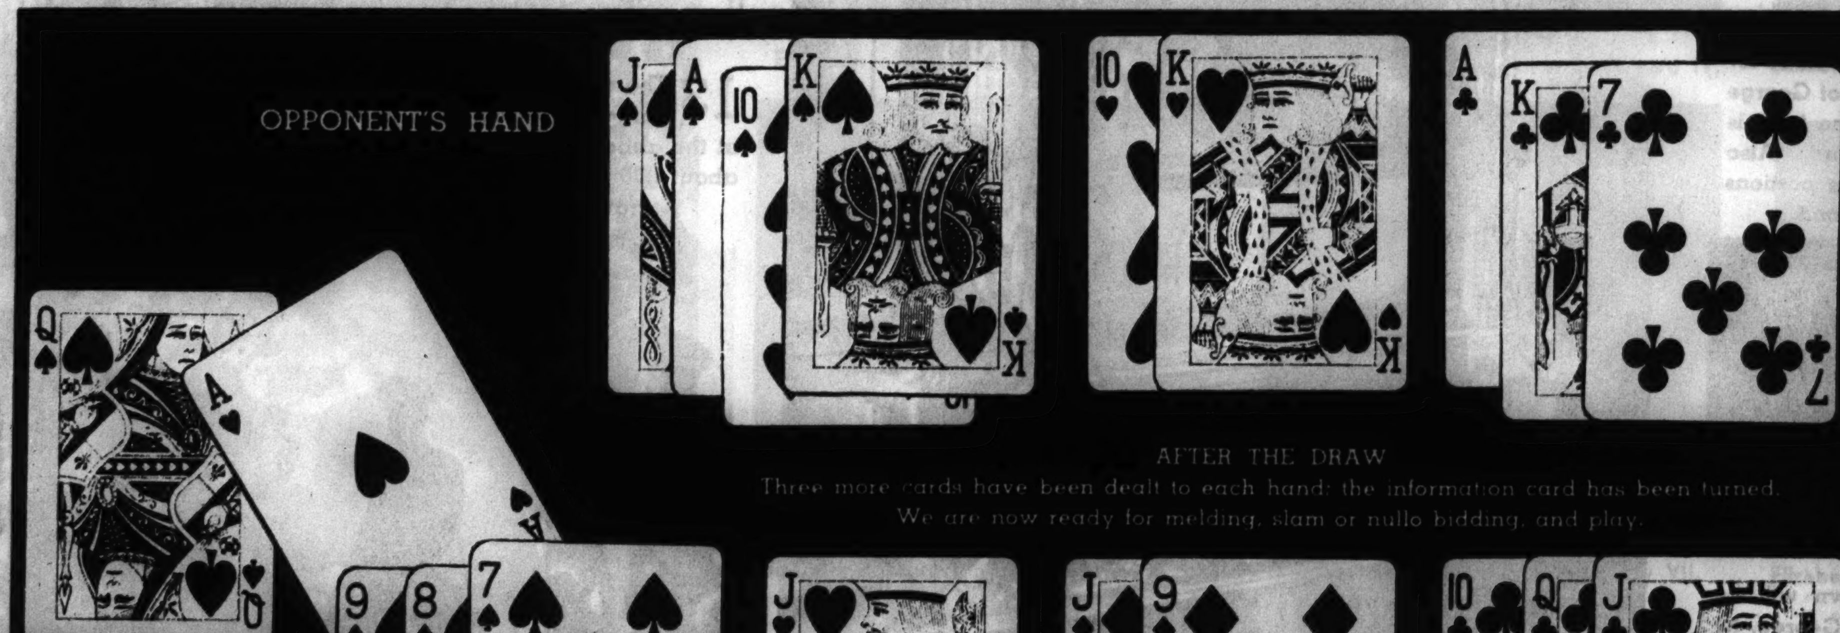
	90		25

Even with your meld of 40 points I win the hand But just think of what could have happened!

Had you taken the ♠ 9 when you had a chance you would have scored 15 points more and I 15 points less. You would have had 40 in cards plus your 40 meld, a total of 80, to my 75, which would have won the hand for you. As it was I score my 90 below the line for a game and you get only 25 above the line (in addition to your meld). But had you played carefully you could have scored your 40 and my 75, a total of 115, below the line, for a game!

Nevertheless, you don't feel discouraged, because you've learned a lesson, and, after all, you're only a beginner, whereas I am an expert. Better luck next time!



AFTER THE DRAW
Three more cards have been dealt to each hand; the information card has been turned. We are now ready for melding, slam or nullo bidding, and play.

Discovers the Perfect Card Game for Two

THE world has waited for the perfect card game for two. Here it is—jo-jotte. It actually is 200 years old, but to all purposes it is a brand new game, for Ely Culbertson, the internationally famous bridge authority, has taken it apart and put it together, laboring for two years to revise and modify it to suit the American temperament. As altered by Mr. Culbertson's ingenuity the rules of jo-jotte are as follows:

THE DEAL: Using a deck of thirty-two cards (A K Q J 10 9 8 7 in each suit), six cards are dealt to each player The next (thirteenth) card is turned face up.

THE BIDDING: First the nondealer may accept the turned suit as trump, or pass; if he passes, then the dealer may accept the turned trump or pass. If both pass, the nondealer may then name any other trump suit (or no trump), or pass. If he passes again, the dealer has the same choices. A trump suit once named may be overcalled by a no trump contract but not by another suit. The player who finally names the trump, or no trump, is the declarer, and his opponent is the defender. The defender may double declarer's contract, and if he does declarer may redouble.

POINTERS ON BIDDING: To name a trump suit, have at least forty points in scoring cards (aces, tens, or the jack or nine of trumps) in your hand. Try to pick a trump suit in which you have the jack or nine or both, for these cards are valuable (see scoring table) as trumps and worthless if not trumps. To bid no trump, have at least two aces and one ten in three suits.

THE DRAW AND FURTHER BIDDING: When the trump suit (or no trump) has been selected and doubled or passed, the dealer deals three more cards to each player and turns the bottom card of the deck face up. The defender must then (a) announce his intention to play a nullo contract (which means that he now becomes declarer at no trump and must try NOT to win tricks); or (b) declare his honor meld, if any, against declarer's contract; or (c) pass. If defender has doubled he may not bid nullo. Declarer must then (a) bid a slam; or (b) pass, in either case declaring his honor meld, if any. A slam bid will void any nullo contract, the original declarer returning to his original trump suit. Honor melds are first declared by their point value; the winning meld (see table below) must be shown to the opponent. If the hand is played at the turned trump the player who holds the seven of trumps may exchange it for the turned trump card

THE PLAY: The defender leads first; he may lead any card The nonleader must follow suit if able; if he cannot follow suit he must trump if able A trump lead must be won if possible. After the first trick the winner of a trick leads to the next trick. In the trump suit, if any, the cards rank J 9 A 10 K Q 8 7. In any other suit and no trump the cards rank A 10 K Q J 9 8 7. A nullo contract is always played without a trump suit.

POINTERS ON PLAY: Lead your longest suit, especially if headed by the ace (or if your long suit is trumps it should be headed by the jack, which is the highest trump). Keep leading a suit which your opponent must trump, to reduce his supply of trumps.

THE SCORING: Any winning honor meld is scored to the holder's credit in his honor column (above the line). Each player adds his trick score and honor score (including bonuses, if any). If declarer has the higher total he scores his trick score toward game (below the line), while the defender scores his trick score above the line. If the defender has the higher total he adds declarer's trick score to his own and scores the total below the line, but the declarer keeps whatever points he has scored for honor melds. On any doubled contract the player with the higher total receives the combined trick scores, at twice their regular value, below the line. A game ends when a player scores eighty points or more below the line. A rubber ends when one player has won two games. When declarer and defender have the same total, or when a nullo contract is played, the combined trick score is counted but is held aside and awarded to the player who has the higher total score on the next hand.

How to Score

TRICK SCORE COUNT. On doubled contracts these values are doubled; on redoubled contracts, quadrupled.)

Jack of trumps	20
Nine of trumps	15
Any ace	10
Any ten	10
Any king	5
Any queen	5
Winning the last trick (except at nullos)	10
Jo-jotte*	20

RUBBER BONUS. (To the first player who wins two games of 80 points each) 300

SLAM BONUSES. (For winning every trick.)

If bid	500
If not bid	100

(If a player bids a slam and loses a trick he has lost the hand, even though his actual total score is greater than his adversary's. In this case the defender scores the combined trick score, but above the line—not toward game.)

HONOR MELDS. (Only the player with the higher ranking meld in each class may score it. He may score more than one combination in that class.)

Class A:

Four of a kind 100

(At trump contracts, trumps rank J 9 A 10 K Q; rank of other suits and no trump, A 10 K Q J.)

Class B:

(Sequences; rank A K Q J 10 9 8 7.)

Run of five or more	50
Run of four	40
Run of three	20

(If two sequences are of equal length and headed by equivalent high cards, the trump sequence, if any, wins.)

NULLOS. (A bid not to win a trick.)

Bonus if successful	200
Penalty if unsuccessful:
For first trick won	200
For any other trick won	100

*Jo-jotte is the king-queen of the trump suit, if any. It is scored as part of the trick score, but only if announced as follows: The holder must play the king before he plays the queen (since they are equal, this cannot interfere with his correct play). On playing the king he announces, "Jo." Later, when he plays the queen, he announces, "Jotte." Without these announcements jo-jotte does not count. It does not matter who wins the tricks on which these cards are played.

● In successive articles in the Daily and Sunday Tribune Mr. Culbertson will continue to discuss the rules and finer points of jo-jotte. These will be in connection with his articles on bridge.

How Britain Will Crow

1 Grandest spectacle of imperial splendor offered by the post-war world, the coronation of King George VI. and his consort, Queen Elizabeth, will be celebrated at London on May 12 with ritualistic pomp prescribed by tradition centuries old. The 41 year old king was proclaimed December 12 of last year, following the abdication of his elder brother, Edward VIII. His consort, the former Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, is a descendant of Robert II. of Scotland, first king of the house of Stuart.

9 Upon George's head, when he ascends the throne, will be placed the crown of England, St. Edward's crown, made for the coronation of Charles II. and used at every subsequent crowning. Rosettes of precious stones surrounded by diamonds adorn the circlet of gold.

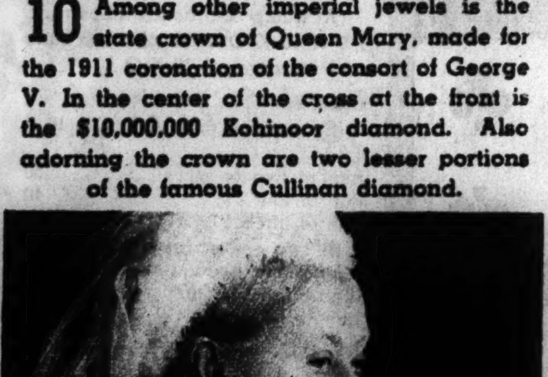
10 Among other imperial jewels is the state crown of Queen Mary, made for the 1911 coronation of the consort of George V. In the center of the cross at the front is the $10,000,000 Kohinoor diamond. Also adorning the crown are two lesser portions of the famous Cullinan diamond.



11 Though St. Edward's crown will be used for the coronation of George, he will emerge from the abbey wearing another—the imperial state crown, made in 1838 for Queen Victoria (above). This, considered the world's most valuable and beautiful crown, is adorned by the historic Black Prince's ruby, valued at $550,000; the great Stuart sapphire; a 309 carat lesser Cullinan diamond; Queen Elizabeth's pearl eardrops; a sapphire from the coronation ring of Edward the Confessor, and lesser gems.

12 For the climax of the glittering rites, in which the archbishop of Canterbury places the crown upon the head of the king, George VI. will occupy the ancient coronation chair. In this chair have been crowned all British kings and queens since Edward II., except Mary I. and Mary II. Beneath the seat is the Stone of Scone, "Stone of Destiny," coronation stone of ancient Scottish kings, which was carried away from the abbey of Scone by Edward I. The solid oak framework is covered with initials and names carved by petty vandals throughout centuries.

2 Millions of eyes will be turned toward Buckingham palace as the state coach, drawn by eight Windsor greys, emerges, bearing the king and queen toward Westminster abbey, scene of the coronation. The historic coach, here shown departing from the palace, was built at a cost of more than $35,000 for George III. in 1762, and since that time has been used at the coronation of all British sovereigns. It is gilded, has side panels containing allegorical paintings, and is topped with the imperial crown.

5 Setting of the stage for the drama of coronation in historic Westminster abbey began months ago with construction of ramps, platforms, and seats for royal principals and royal and noble spectators. Since William the Conqueror, every English sovereign has been crowned in the abbey; there eighteen kings are buried. There also the coronation chair is preserved, along with traditional items of kingly regalia.

14 When a dog trots down a street in front of a royal coach, it's news. That happened in one of the state processions of George V. With such human interest incidents, as well as with the more pretentious aspects of the coronation, cables will hum, the air will be filled, and the columns of the press will be black on May 12.

7 As his father, George V., was crowned a quarter of a century ago, so will George VI. be, to the minutest details of ritual. Upon the head of the late king the crown is being placed by the archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England. By ancient usage it is the right of the archbishop to preside over the entire coronation ceremony, anointing and crowning the king, presenting him to the people, administering the oath, and delivering the regal regalia. The fee for his services, a purple velvet chair traditionally reserved for him in the abbey.

8 In two and a half hours of ritual, recently shortened by the archbishop of Canterbury, will George and Elizabeth become king and queen. Crowning of George V. required three hours; in other days, the ceremony continued for two or three days. This old drawing depicts the coronation banquet of George III. and the ceremony of the challenge, a ceremonial feature which disappeared after George IV. From Westminster abbey the king and his court proceeded to Westminster hall for the banquet. While it was in progress, the king's champion appeared mounted, in armor, and challenged to combat any who denied the sovereign's right to rule.

Her brothers were the young princes murdered in the Tower. ● The husband of Elizabeth of Bohemia, Frederick, was driven from the Bohemian throne at the beginning of the Thirty Years' war; he and his family thenceforth lived in poverty in Holland.

Clouds of smoke pouring from the stacks of a plant near Chicago. Smudges like this produce one of the problems of life in the great cities of the world.

Curb Smoke by Sound Waves

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

THERE is no better sign of approaching good times than the appearance of complaints about the smoke nuisance in cities. This is about the only good thing that can be said about smoke. The cloud of industrial haze that hangs over large cities robs us of both health and money. It shuts off part of the sunlight and the breathing of smoke particles certainly does the lungs no good. It causes fog and deposits dirt on everything exposed to it.

Smoke is nothing more than myriads of small solid particles suspended in the air. These particles are denser than air, yet they settle only with extreme slowness because of two facts. A falling body soon reaches a speed at which its weight is balanced by the air resistance opposing its motion. This resistance is roughly proportional to the amount of surface exposed, and the smaller the body, the greater the ratio of surface to weight and the slower its rate of fall through air. Smoke particles usually are so small that their rates of fall hardly are perceptibe. In addition the particles' motion through the air causes them to pick up electrical charges, and the mutual repulsion of these charges prevents the particles from coalescing into larger particles which would fall more quickly.

It is a surprising fact that these smoke particles are much harder to remove from air than are the far smaller molecules of a gaseous impurity. Air can be freed from foreign gases by bubbling it through the right kind of absorbing liquid or by passing it through a loosely packed mass of a porous solid absorbent. These methods frequently fail with smokes.

The reason for this difference lies in the fact that the small, light gas molecules are in a state of constant motion, and travel at incredible speeds which quickly bring them into contact with the absorbing material. On the other hand the far heavier smoke particles drift very slowly through the rest of the gas, and only a few of them have time to reach the absorbent. Theoretically this fault could be remedied by using a proportionally greater amount of absorbent, but the pressure necessary to force the air through this is too great for practical purposes.

• • •

The first practical method for the removal of smoke particles from air or flue gases was invented about thirty years ago by an American chemist, Dr. Frederick G. Cottrell. The smoke was passed through a metal cylinder (Figure 1) inside of which was suspended a wire, or a framework of wires. The cylinder was then charged negatively and the wire positively to a potential difference of tens of thousands of volts.

The small surface of the wire results in a highly concentrated electric field around it. This intense field ionizes the air, causing some of the molecules to become positively charged. The charged molecules then are attracted toward the negative plate. On their way many of them transfer their positive charges, by collision, to smoke particles which are then drawn to the cylinder, where they discharge their electricity. As a result the smoke particles are removed from the air and deposited as a dusty coating on the walls of the cylinder.

In spite of the tremendous voltage required, the current passing through a Cottrell precipitator is so small that comparatively little electrical energy is consumed. Nevertheless it is neither simple nor cheap to install and operate. Consequently it is used only in a few large scale operations in which the suspended matter of the smoke is particularly poisonous or valuable. It is hardly likely that it will ever be extensively used to settle coal smoke.

• • •

Recenty another American scientist, H. W. St. Clair, has developed a promising method of precipitating smoke particles by means of sound waves. The basic principle is an old one, quite familiar to first year students of physics. In a glass tube closed at both ends is fixed a metal disc and rod (Figure 2). Between the disc and the end of the tube is laid a thin, even layer of a fine light powder such as cork dust. When a dry rag is drawn along the rod, the latter vibrates and gives off sound of a certain wave length. At the same time the powder gathers itself in individual heaps exactly a half wave length apart.

Here is the reason. When a wave motion is reflected back upon itself, there occur, at fixed distances from the reflector, a number of regions where the incident and the reflected waves are always canceling each other out (Figure 3). At such points the wave is actually nonexistent. Now, when sound travels through air, the gas molecules vibrate back and forth in the direction of the sound wave's motion

In the case of a reflected sound wave the molecules in these regions of complete interference are free from this type of motion. As a result the powder is blown into these quiet zones by the motion of the air elsewhere.

The layer of powder can be replaced by a column of smoke without altering the effect. The smoke is passed through a vertical cylinder closed at both ends. Sound waves are produced by a steel rod fixed in one end, which is set to vibrating by means of an electromagnet and an alternating current. As the sound wave is reflected back and forth through the cylinder, the smoke particles are compressed into layers where they coalesce into larger grains and settle out. The pitch of the sound must be carefully adjusted to the size and shape of the cylinder. Some frequency between 5,000 and 20,000 (too highly pitched for a piano, but still audible) is generally used.

The method is less efficient than electrical precipitation, but appears to be cheaper and simpler to install. There is no readily apparent reason why it could not be applied to every industrial smoke stack in the country. However, more testing is necessary before its actual commercial value can be established.

Here's Helpful Advice as to That Young Puppy

IF a dog owner just getting acquainted with his new dog will remember that canine creatures have practically all of the emotions possessed by a human being it will help both the owner and the pup to get off on the right start in their partnership.

Your dog experiences fear, shame, joy, anger, affection, impulsiveness, and other emotions. The puppy just brought into the home has to be treated with this fact in mind.

For example, an extremely loud noise in the house several hours after your new pup has arrived may scare him so much that he will be shy for a long time. It's difficult enough for a pup to be taken from a kennel where he has lots of canine pals, taken a long distance by automobile, and then turned loose in a strange place among strange people, without having a lot of loud noises to scare him out of his growth.

If one could draw up a brief list of tips to owners on what to expect from a pup and how to start educating him, the list would include things like this:

1. You can't expect your eight or ten week old dog to have any judgment. A pup of that age is just a baby. He has a baby's mind and a baby's reactions. Of course he is going to step on flower beds, because he doesn't know any better.

2. Don't maul or frighten the new puppy as soon as you bring him into the house. Help him overcome his natural timidity because of new surroundings. Let him investigate things. I'll never forget what happened to a ten-week-old pup that was introduced to my home. While I was trying to get him accustomed to things the kitchen door slammed about seven feet from where the pup and I were "talking things over." That noise all but paralyzed him for a few minutes. And why shouldn't he be frightened? The unexpected noise of a door slamming usually makes any of us jump.

3. Don't expect an eight-week-old pup to come into your home and sleep the first few nights without getting lonesome and possibly frightened. It is unreasonable to expect him to pass the first or second night away from his family without feeling their loss and realizing that he is very much alone in the dark. Above all, don't whip the puppy for whining or crying. That won't do any good. A friend was telling me (with a smile) the other day that he and his wife simply couldn't stand the whining of the new pup the first night the little fellow was installed in their home so they brought the little pet in his box into the bedroom. A couple of pats on the puppy's head, a few reassuring words, and all was well The pup went to sleep immediately. He was near somebody and he wasn't scared. After continuing this practice until the pup was at home around the house it was moved to another part of the house where it was to sleep regularly.

4. Give the dog something to chew on. Naturally it wants to chew on things. In the first place, a dog has no hands, so he makes his mouth and teeth take the place of hands. Secondly, puppies have the desire to chew things because they are growing teeth. During the first weeks you have your pup the training must teach him that he can have things of his own to chew on, but that there are many other things absolutely taboo. A solid beef bone, a rubber bone, or other things can be provided. If he picks up a slipper, call him, say "No, no, no" in a firm voice as you take it from him, and then hand him something that is not taboo for the chewing exercises. Here again it is well to remember that a pup has little judgment.

5. It's a good idea for the new pup to learn quickly that he has a bed where he is supposed to sleep every night instead of being permitted to sleep wherever he pleases. When I was concerned with the education of a ten-week-old terrier a short time ago I put him into a box at night. He could not get out of it to run around and make a nuisance of himself. Just as soon as anyone was up and around in the morning the puppy was taken outside for a romp as one of his lessons in housebreaking.

DOG NOTES

A dog owner who has a pet suffering from a skin ailment should not attempt a lot of home doctoring unless he can make an accurate diagnosis of the ailment. Skin troubles are not easy to treat. Moreover, most of us who own dogs are not qualified to tell the difference between some form of eczema and the start of a more serious skin ailment. Another thing; there are some skin ailments that, once they get started, are difficult to check I have always found it more worth-while to rely on the advice of a qualified veterinarian than fuss around with various kinds of ointments which may or may not be the correct combinations for the dog's trouble.

Don't let anybody tell you that a dog which is frothing at the mouth is a "mad dog." That's an old delusion which causes the death of many an animal every year when the poor dog hasn't a rabies germ in its system.

This frothing at the mouth, as most persons describe it may be caused by several ailments or troubles. For example, two men walked into a veterinarian's office the other day, each holding on to a rope tied to the collar of a poor dog that obviously was suffering. The men were scared, because they thought the dog had rabies. The pup was frothing at the mouth, and one side of its mouth had been chafed until it was red.

The vet needed to take but one look to tell that the dog did not have rabies. He opened the dog's mouth and extracted a small fragment of a bone imbedded in the dog's teeth! This bone naturally had caused the saliva to flow freely, and the dog kept pawing at its mouth to get relief.

A dog suffering from a fit caused by a digestive disturbance may froth at the mouth. And it's a safe bet that you will hear the cry "Mad dog, mad dog" from someone when the pup is the object of attention.

A New Art Is Born in Tribune Color Studio

Real Drama in Camera Magic

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

HOW would you like to be sitting under the palm tree beside the girl on the beach who appears on the front page of today's picture section?

If you were there, and human, you would be entranced—you couldn't help it. But the kick you'd get would not come from the beauties of nature, human or otherwise. No, you wouldn't see any nature there at all. Instead you would find yourself surrounded by so many gadgets of artifice and marvels of simulation that you would think you were in a dream.

The girl, you would discover to be so coated with skin salve and artful make-up that you couldn't see a square inch of real girl anywhere. The tree would be revealed as a few bits of palm cleverly attached to a hollow stick stuck into a jardiniere. The beach would turn out to be only a thin sprinkling of sand, while the blue background of sea and sky would be nothing but two painted pieces of wall board.

• • •

These are the methods of practical art in a modern color photographic studio such as the spacious high-ceilinged room on the twentieth floor of Tribune Tower where this photograph recently was taken and processed.

To walk into this Tribune studio you would think you were entering a modern art museum. On the walls of soft grayish-blue hang exquisite color photographs of beautiful girls and steel mill scenes and platters of grapes. The windows, twenty feet high, are arched at the top and descend between graceful folds of rich red drapery. Through them you can snatch an aviator's view of the lake shore spreading out hundreds of feet below. The vaulted ceiling is of cobalt blue, from which dangle large light globes modeled after the planet Saturn.

All about the brownish floor of cork-rubber composition stand the various large cameras, high voltage lamps, and gayly colored stage settings.

In the rear, inconspicuously placed, are a dressing room and three darkrooms—one for film developing, one for making black and white prints, and a larger one for the complicated work of producing natural color prints.

The director and chief photographer of this dazzling realm in the Tribune Tower is one Edward Johnson, a stocky, middle-aged man of understanding face and experienced eye. With the assistance of Photographer Harry Hull and Carbro Printers Alfred Gras and William Mayoh, he weekly turns out color pictures for newspaper reproduction that were considered impossible two or three years ago. This is effected by a combination of improved camera construction and printing technique on the one hand and a pioneer's ingenuity in solving a multitude of widely different problems peculiar to a brand new art on the other.

The decisive step ahead in camera construction is exemplified in the almost magical single-exposure natural-color camera invented by Bermphol of Germany and built specially for The Chicago Tribune last year. The unique feature of this camera is that it takes three perfectly co-ordinated pictures at one snap of the shutter and through a single set of lenses, one picture being made with only red light, one with blue, and one with greenish yellow.

• • •

Formerly these three necessary pictures (without which a natural color photograph cannot be printed) had to be snapped one after the other with the same camera, the film plates and color filters being shifted between each shot, while the subject being photographed was kept rigidly in position. Naturally the fifteen seconds or so required to complete this triple-shift maneuver made it impossible to photograph anything but still life. Spontaneous facial expressions, wind-blown hair, and stepping feet were out of the question.

But now dancing girls, bubbling champagne, and rising cigaret smoke are all easy to catch in natural color through Bermphol's genius. It is all done with mirrors. Inside the new camera are two transparent reflectors, tilted at different angles, which have the property of reflecting part of the light which strikes them while allowing the rest to pass through them. Thus the light which enters the camera is simultaneously directed to three different film plates, each of which is covered by a different color filter and each of which records the image produced by light of its own appointed color.

The steps necessary to produce a color print from these three exposed plates are only another phase of photographic magic as practised in the Tribune color studio. The details of this process and the chemical content of the liquids used are a deep darkroom secret that even printers Gras and Mayoh scarcely dare whisper to each other while locked in their inner sanctum, so fearful are they of letting some rival studio hijack the knowledge which they have gone to such lengths to obtain.

However, the process can be briefly outlined as involving the following steps: (1) development of the three film plates into negatives; (2) making black and white bromide prints from these negatives; (3) applying sheets of specially prepared pigment tissue, one red, one blue, one yellow, to the corresponding bromide prints till each sheet of pigment has absorbed the image from its print; (4) transferring the three single-colored images from the pigment sheets to three pieces of celluloid; (5) transferring the three images from the celluloid to a single sheet of paper, one on top of another so that they exactly "register" or fit each other, the blue being on the bottom and the yellow on top, and (6) making the finished print by transferring the layers of pigment images to another sheet of paper in reverse order with the blue layer, the one that gives the image its sharpest definition, on top.

Glamor and Beauty in Pictures

Enough for the making of a carbro print, as these natural color prints are called. We have covered the production end of the studio function. Now what about the artistic side of color photography: the conception, creation, and composition of the subject that the camera is to take?

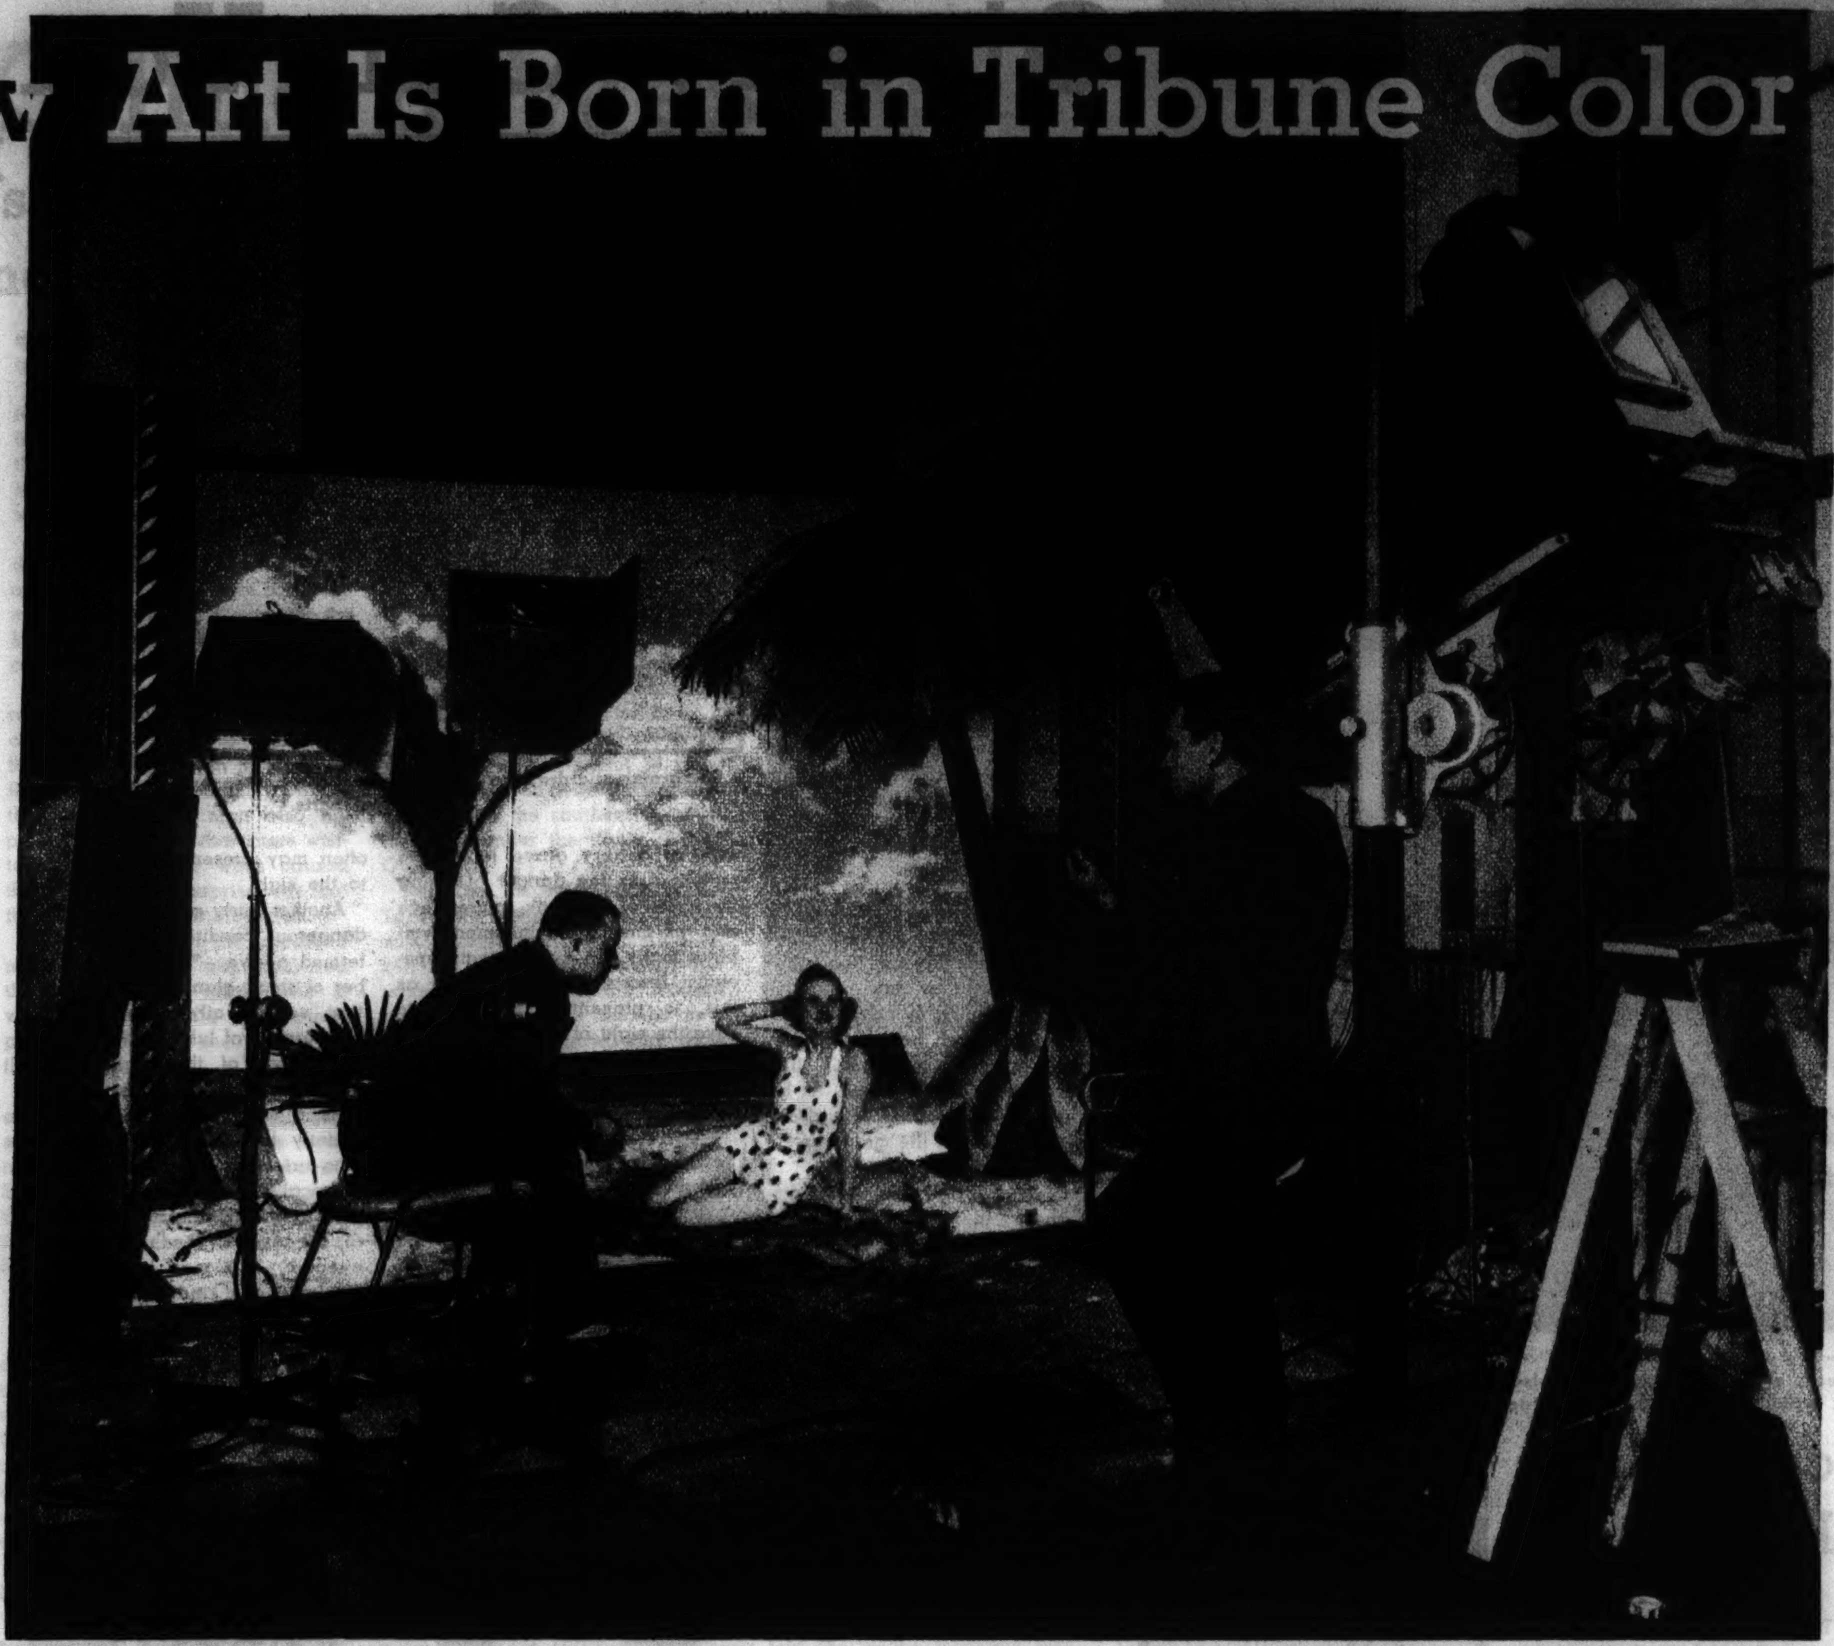
First comes the request for a picture. It may be an assignment to illustrate a story for The Sunday Tribune (as is the case with the pictures in this section and on the front page of the picture section), or it may be a call for a shot of a platter of roast turkey for advertising purposes.

Generally the photographers themselves are left free to choose the exact composition in form and color that will best make the picture asked for. Mr. Johnson or Hull will simply arrange the subject in the position or attitude that strikes his fancy, composing it by trying out various combinations of "props" and illusion devices until he has what he is after.

As for the models, who are a vital part of most studio pictures, Johnson and Hull have a book which lists and describes models of all types—girls, men, children, old ladies, fat people, thin people, babies, the dignified, the cute—giving a photograph of each. This book often gives a clew to the right model for a given purpose.

In this connection comes the important problem of makeup, which has to be handled artfully to fulfill the individual requirements of each case. The ingredients of the base skin salves used are among the studio's famous secrets. But it can be told that they completely cover the skin, matching it so closely that the individual's complexion colors come out absolutely true to life in the finished print. The salves are necessary because the slight nuances of hue and reflected light on real skin are perceptibly exaggerated by the color camera and therefore must be controled.

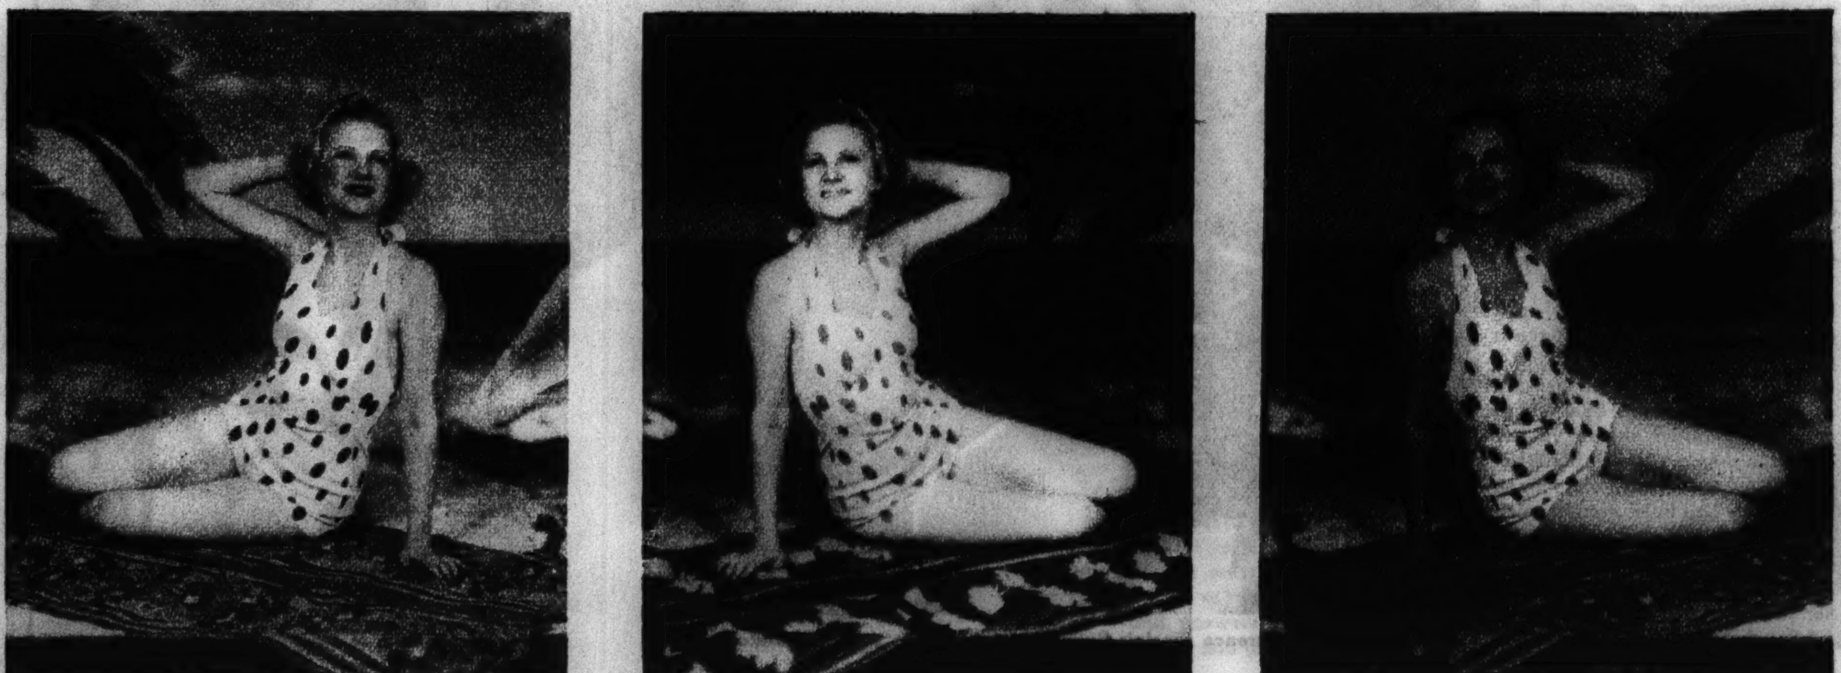
The final big poser that the photographers must cope with is the psychological factor in getting their models to take on the required facial expressions with convincing spontaneity. This often has to be done by cajolery, sometimes (especially in the case of temperamental movie actresses) by music. Anyhow, in one way or another, it is always done.



This is how the color photograph on the front page of today's picture section was actually taken, but even in this candid shot the artificiality of the girl's color, of the beach, and the palm trees is not apparent.

Here is the model with half of her face covered with a thick coating of makeup salve. This base is always applied before she faces the color camera.

This is the darkroom for color printing, in which the temperature and humidity are regulated with great precision to insure the best results.



These three bromide prints are what the final color print was made from. The one at the left (taken through a greenish filter) determines the red pigment, the middle one (red filtered) determines the blue, and the one on the right (blue filtered) determines the yellow. Two of the pictures are here in reverse, owing to the fact that they were reflected from the two mirrors in the camera.

O! Say Can You See?

The Importance of Sight to Mankind

THE celebrated French poet, Guillaume de S. du Bartas, more than 350 years ago in one of his many inspired moments wrote of the eyes that were the windows of the soul. His idea, no doubt, was that the very soul of an individual could be observed and explored by gazing into that individual's eyes. A neat employment of poetry was this—but still it contained a thought based more or less on truth.

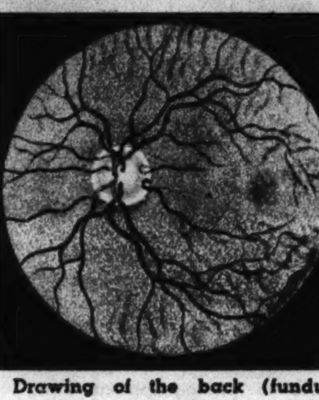
More accurate, perhaps, would it be to say that the eyes are the windows through which the soul observes the world. In other words, the eyes are the link between the brain, where thoughts are generated, and everything else that lies within the range of vision.

And how important the eyes actually are no one needs be told. We who are blessed with good vision have grown so accustomed to the benefits of sight that we think little of it. That is, until we get a cinder in one of our eyes or we have to hunt up an oculist or an optometrist to correct the change in vision that 40 years are so apt to bring. To fully appreciate the value of vision one must be without it. Only the totally blind person really knows what sight means, and he knows it in the negative and tragic way—he pays far too great a price for understanding. He and the others in his dire plight number approximately 100,000 in the United States alone. Thousands of others in the country have impaired vision. Three million school children—one-eighth of our entire school population—are handicapped by defective eyesight. And no one knows exactly how many million of the country's total population wear glasses for the correction of vision.

• • •

So vital is sight to mankind that physicians place great emphasis on the study and the treatment of the eyes, that numerous medical men specialize within this field, that there have been established far and wide hospitals and clinics for treatment of the eyes, and that there have been various societies organized, the sole aim of which is to preserve human sight. Among these last named are the National Society of the Prevention of Blindness, the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, and a number of others. In addition, there are groups that specialize in the handling and teaching of those already blind and whose usefulness depends upon their ability to make their way in a world that is darker than the darkest night.

The human eye, a diagrammatic section of which is shown in one of the accompanying illustrations, is one of nature's finest instruments, and one of the most delicate ones. Normally it is used from the moment of birth until the hour of death, except when its owner is sleeping. It is not so keen as similar organs in certain other forms of life, particularly in high flying birds, but it performs, when in normal condition, adequately for all of man's purposes.



Drawing of the back (fundus oculi) of a normal eye as seen through the aid of the ophthalmoscope.

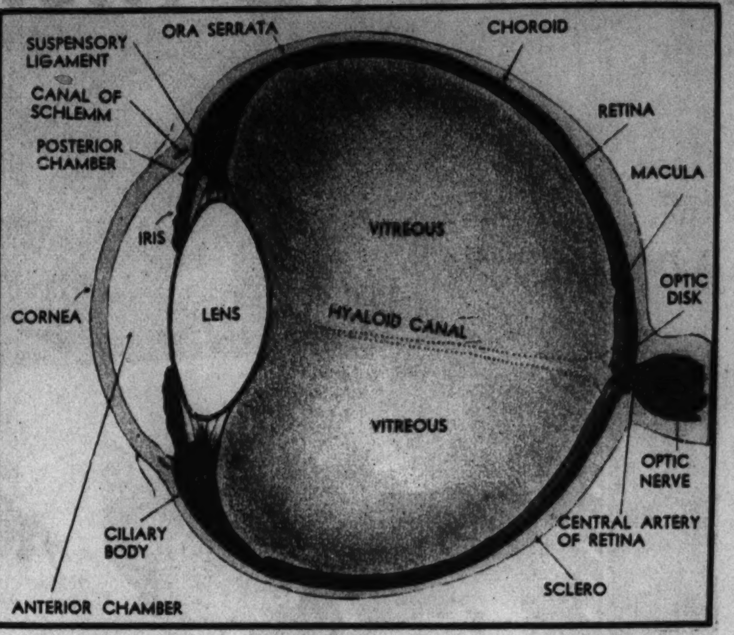
So complicated is the mechanism of vision that it is with difficulty understood by any but those with a thorough knowledge of the construction of the eye. Chief factors involved in seeing, however, are the optic nerve and the center in the brain for vision; the retina, which is the part of the eye that conveys images through the optic nerve; the lens, which is the focussing tissue; the muscles, which control the lens; the iris, which forms the outline of the pupil, regulates its size, and controls the amount of light entering the eye, and the fluids which are necessary to the correct working of the mechanism.

Eyes Subject to Defects and Ills

The eyes are subject to many ailments and conditions that may affect vision. Therefore it is highly important that they be examined from time to time for symptoms so that proper treatment or correction may be applied in time. In a great majority of instances adults know at once if there is something wrong with their eyes, but in the case of children it is often true that they do not realize that their vision is defective. Among school children, for example, there are three visual defects that are quite common. They are, in their order of frequency, farsightedness, astigmatism, and nearsightedness. Generally it is the parent or the teacher rather than the child himself who discovers the defect in the child's sight.

• • •

Among adults over the age of forty farsightedness is very common. The eyes may function properly to about that age, then the individual begins to have trouble reading, although he sees objects clearly at a distance. This, like other optical defects, should not be confused with diseases of the eye. Optical defects in the main can be corrected.



Diagrammatic drawing of a section of the human eye, showing its principal parts.

Defects of vision and visual disturbances in themselves, in a great proportion of cases, can be corrected, but diseases of the eyes and injuries constitute a grave danger. No organ of the body is so susceptible to injury as the eye. A particle of dust or a cinder may set up infection which, if not treated immediately, may imperil the sight. Any foreign body lodging in the eye can cause extreme discomfort, as every one knows, and bring on inflammation that possibly may lead to blindness. Knowing these dangers, industrial concerns all over the country employ every safeguard to prevent eye injuries among their workmen. For that reason men who are employed in jobs where there is danger from flying bits of metal or from acids, or the like, must wear goggles. A piece of steel lodged in the eye requires a delicate operation for removal, and strong acid splashed into the eye is quite likely to destroy sight. Gratifying indeed have been the results of programs instituted by big industrial organizations to reduce the number of eye injuries among employes.

In connection with any penetrating injury of the eye is the dangerous inflammation of the other eye, which is termed sympathetic opthalmia. This sympathetic inflammation occurs about two weeks or more after the original injury to the other eye. In the case of a very grave injury the patient runs the danger of losing the sight of both the injured eye and the one that is inflamed sympathetically. A competent specialist resorts, in a case such as this, to preventive measures to save the sight of the eye that was not injured.

The form of eye infection most frequently encountered is known as conjunctivitis. This is an inflammation of the conjunctiva, the covering which lines the eyelids and runs onto the eyeball. This type of infection is caused by micro-organisms. Another infection set up by germs is known as pink eye. Germ born infections are transmitted by the hands, soiled towels, or otherwise.

• • •

Trachoma is a contagious disease of the eye, caused by germs and characterized by hard papillary elevations or granular excrescences of the inner surface of the eyelids. The disease requires constant treatment, and often may present a grave threat to the sight.

Another fairly common and often dangerous condition of the eye is termed a stye. There are a number of small glands in the eyelids that secrete oily substances for the purpose of lubricating the eye. When one of these glands becomes infected and fills with pus it is a stye. This condition frequently is found among subjects who are in a run-down condition physically.

An extremely serious infection of the eye is the ulcer on the eyeball. This may be the result of almost any kind of an infection, but the worst forms are due to the germ that causes pneumonia and the germ that causes gonorrhea. In both of the last named forms there is swift destruction of tissue and always the danger of blindness. The eyes of new born babies are treated with a solution of silver nitrate to prevent infection by the germ that causes gonorrhea.

Industry Acts to Prevent Blindness

The other common venereal disease, syphilis, often affects the eyes in the form of inflammation of the cornea. Germs that infect the eyes may come from the outside or from the inside of the body. When they originate from within, as in the case of syphilis, the physician, of course, not only treats the eyes themselves but attacks the seat of the trouble in the other parts of the system.

A sight-saving class, where children with seriously defective vision receive a normal education with a minimum of eye strain.

Persons with tuberculosis, teeth infections, infections of the tonsils or the sinuses, high blood pressure, kidney ailments, or diabetes may as the result have symptoms in the eyes directly related to the other ailments. Treating the original disease as a rule brings improvement in the eye conditions.

Any condition or disease which affects the surface of the eye may also attack the iris, the colored circle surrounding the pupil. An infection such as this may prove serious, since there often is a tendency for adhesions to form between the edge of the iris and the lens, which finally may cause a deformity of the pupil and a defect of vision.

• • •

When the lens of the eye becomes clouded the condition is termed a cataract. The lens, not being supplied with blood vessels or nerves, receives its nourishment from the fluids of the eye. The lens is encased in a capsule which acts as a filter to keep out undesirable material. Should this capsule break, the lens is flooded with the eye fluids. It then becomes clouded and the patient has what is known as traumatic cataract. In elderly persons the lens capsule gradually becomes less efficient and the lens, as a result, becomes clouded from the outside toward the center. This condition is termed senile cataract. Surgery is the only resort in cases of pronounced senile cataract.

There are numerous other diseases and conditions that present serious dangers to the eyes and threats of blindness. Of all these, one that is responsible for a large proportion of blindness is glaucoma, the cause of which is unknown. The vision of the patient suffering from glaucoma gradually narrows, and if the disease is allowed to go untreated blindness is certain to result.

He's Photographed Garbo 4,000 Times

By MAE TINEE

THERE'S one nice thing about Greta Garbo—she always gives you something to talk about.

Now the news breaks that she's a one man woman—and that the man in the case is a photographer. The name? Clarence Sinclair Bull.

Mr. Bull is one of the movie colony's ablest lens masters. While other cameramen trailed Miss Garbo for years without succeeding in recording even a fleeting image, it is a matter of record that Mr. Bull has taken her picture more than 4,000 times.

How did Clarence Bull get such an "in"? It all dates back to a time some years ago when a photographer named Bull was kind to and understanding of a bewildered little foreign actress named Greta Garbo. Listen—Mr. Bull speaking:

"Before a foreign actress is cast in a picture, her official duty upon arriving at the studio is to have a portrait sitting.

"I will never forget her first day in the portrait gallery. She was so nervous; so afraid she might say or do the wrong thing! I don't believe she uttered more than three words. She had little, if any knowledge about posing for photographs and she was in terror that the American public would laugh at her first portraits."

Clarence Sinclair Bull's favorite camera study of Greta Garbo.

Garbo in 1925. This picture by the noted photographer, Arnold Genthe, drew Hollywood's attention to Garbo's talents.

Clarence Sinclair Bull, favorite cameraman of the Swedish screen star.

"But I talked quietly to her, posed her quietly, gave her all her pictures to look at before anybody else saw them. Gradually she grew to have confidence in me—and when Greta has confidence in anybody the rest is easy: . . .

"Today she is one of the most satisfactory stars to photograph. She is one woman who can be taken at every angle and still look interesting and beautiful."

Former Geisha Girl's Crime Makes Thrilling News for Empire

By KIMPEI SHEBA

Tokio, Japan.

A LOVE crime so weird that it would have intrigued the minds of the ablest of western psychiatrists had they known of it.

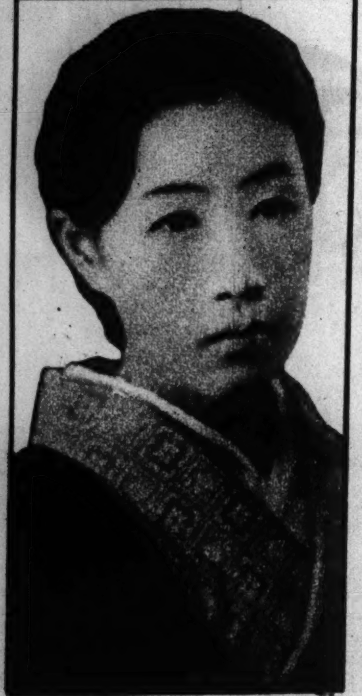
A murder born of passion, of jealousy, or possibly of twisted sexual impulses."

And committed by a woman—in a land where women are supposed not to possess initiative.

It might have happened in Paris or Vienna, or even New York, and it would have been just another killing. But here in Tokio it was the most sensational murder in Japanese history.

"I determined that if I could not have him no other woman should."

This was the reason given by a 30-year-old former geisha girl for murdering the man she loved.



Osada Abe, the former Tokio geisha girl who perpetrated Japan's most sensational murder.

Early on the morning of May 18, 1936, a woman with a puzzling smile walked down the narrow stairway of the Masaki machiai, or waiting house, in Tokio. Waiting houses, of which there are hundreds in all large Japanese cities, are convenient rendezvous for lovers. They are small two-storied houses of several rooms where a man may bring a geisha girl or any other woman and spend a night without any questions being asked.

• • •

On the late spring morning in question the woman, who was attractive according to Japanese standards, descended the stairway and informed the waitress that she was leaving the rendezvous. She said her lover, with whom she had spent the night, still was asleep.

"Please do not disturb him until about 3 o'clock this afternoon," she instructed the maid.

So it was not until late that afternoon that the waitress opened the sliding door to awaken the sleeping man. She called once, twice, and then a third time. As there was no response, she walked to the bedding on the matted floor and looked closer.

The man seemed too motionless for an ordinary sleeper, and his face was pale. The girl touched the man's face and shrieked. The man was dead, strangled by a woman's silken sash.

When the police arrived the first thing they wanted to know, after ascertaining that the man had been murdered in his sleep, was who the killer might be and what was his or her motive.

On examining the body and room closely the police found the characters "Sada and Kichi, just the two of us" written in blood on the sheet of the bedding. On the thigh of the dead man also the police found these characters written in blood. But what caused them the greatest surprise was that the man's body was mutilated.

It was plain that the murdered man's given name was Kichi and that he had an affair with a woman named Sada. Indications pointed, in fact, to the woman as the murderess.

All machiai keep registers which are filled in by guests, but nobody ever sets down his or her right name and address in these books. So outside of the names Kichi and Sada there was no inkling as to the identity of the dead man and his killer.

• • •

The best clew so far was the description of the woman with the mysterious smile and her dress, which was furnished by the mistress of the machiai and the waitresses. The kimono worn by the woman sought by the police had a black background with spangled white crosses.

The metropolitan police headquarters in Tokio sent instructions to all stations to watch for a woman about 30 years of age, dressed in a black kimono with spangled white crosses, and whose first name was Sada. All outgoing trains from Tokio were searched, all inns and hotels visited, all pawnshops and second-hand stores investigated.

Pawnshops and second-hand stores are required by law to submit a written report of all transactions and to describe the articles left or purchased and those sold. Very frequently important clews are obtained from these sources.

It did not take the newspapers long to get hold of the murder mystery. In Japan political assassinations and killings by burglars are not unusual, but murders for love or jealousy are extremely rare. The newspapers naturally featured the "Love Tryst Murder" and "Strangled by His Lover While He Slept" angles. To say that the public was interested in the sensational story is putting it mildly. The Osada case, as it became known throughout the country, crowded all other news from the main pages of the newspapers.

The first clew to the identity of Sada, or Osada, as she was more commonly called, was obtained at a second-hand store in Kanda, Tokio, which is in the university section of the capital. Second-hand stores and pawnshops prosper in this locality.

Perhaps anticipating the thoughts of her trackers, Sada went to one of these shops and turned in her heavy garment. She paid a few yen in addition and obtained a spring outfit. She told the shopkeeper that it was too warm to wear a dark kimono. This was on the day of the murder and the shopkeeper knew nothing, naturally, of the sensational killing. He agreed with his customer that it was growing warmer and sold her a light-hued kimono. The woman's old garments were later identified by the mistress of the machiai.

Two days after the murder in the machiai a woman about 30 years of age registered at the Shinagawa-kan inn, on the southern outskirts of Tokio, under the name of Nao Owada.

Detective Inspector Ando of the Takanawa police station, under whose jurisdiction the Shinagawa-kan inn is, on going through the report of his subordinate, thought it might be wise to see the new visitor at the Shinagawa-kan. Had he not thought so Osada might have escaped.

The smiling murderess in custody of police investigators. "I am the person you are looking for," Osada told the police inspector who arrested her.

Calling at the inn, Ando inquired regarding the habits of the new guest. He was told that she retired immediately to her room and complained of an infected eye. She had a massage and after that ordered a bottle of light sweet wine. She asked that all newspapers of that day be brought to her.

• • •

The inspector decided to see the woman. He sent his card up and was told to enter her room.

Inspector Ando asked pointblank:

"Are you not using an assumed name?"

The woman looked up and smiled. "Yes," she said. "What about it?"

The police inspector's air of nonchalance disappeared. He remembered the description of Osada sent in by headquarters.

"Who are you?" Ando demanded.

Without hesitating the woman replied: "I am the person you are looking for. I am Sada Abe."

Following her arrest Osada made a full confession. A letter addressed to the man she murdered was found on her person. It read:

"You are mine. I love you more than anything. You have now become mine forever. I shall soon follow you. With love, Osada."

The woman's confession follows:

"My lover was Kichizo Ishida, 42, the proprietor of a restaurant in Nakano, a suburb of Tokio. I was employed as a waitress by him and we soon fell in love. What a wonderful creature he was!

"We went often to the Masaki waiting house. The more I came to know Ishida the deeper became my love for him. Finally I could not bear the thought of sharing him with any other woman. About 1 a. m. on May 17 I began to brood about Ishida's inability to marry me. He had a wife, you know, and children, too. I determined that if I could not have him no other woman should. I decided to strangle him. I took my heavy silk sash and wound it around his neck. I pulled the ends of the sash tightly. Ishida struggled and fought for breath. The sight of his agony made me lose courage and I loosened the sash.

"I told him I loved him so much I wanted to die with him. I asked him whether he was angry or hurt. He said no. He seemed, however, to be suffering, so I nursed him until daylight. At dawn I went out and bought a bottle of sleeping tablets. I went back to the waiting house, and after a while Kichi took the tablets, all thirty of them.

"'When I fall fast asleep he said, 'strangle me. Don't be afraid. I won't feel it, for I'll be unconscious.

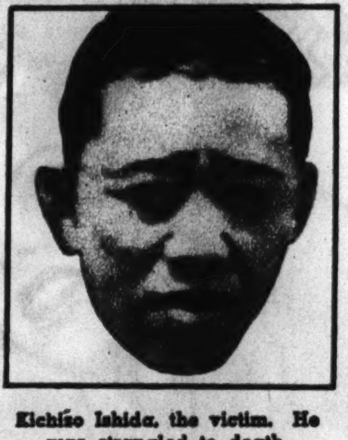
"When Ishida fell into a stupor I did as I was told. When I was satisfied that he was dead I procured a kitchen knife and mutilated his body. With his blood I wrote on the sheet and on his right thigh, Sada and Kichi, just we two. I sat beside the body for a while and then left."

Leaving the tea house, Osada said she went to the Tanakaya second-hand kimono store in Kanda. This was not, however, to throw her pursuers off her trail, she said. She had intended, she said, to give herself up as soon as she learned that Ishida's funeral had been held.

After purchasing a spring outfit of clothes Osada called on Goro Omiya, principal of the Chukyo Commercial college of Nagoya, one of the important institutions of learning in the country. Omiya, it developed, had at one time kept Osada as his mistress.

Thrilling details for Tokio newspaper readers! A police inspector giving out the story to reporters.

In Japan all persons charged with crimes wear basketlike hats over their heads and faces when being led into court. The woman whose features are thus concealed is Osada Abe, slayer of her sweetheart.



Kichizo Ishida, the victim. He was strangled to death.

When this information was broadcast it created another sensation. Educators throughout the land were furious. Omiya was asked to hand in his resignation. This he did, and, further to atone for his misdeed, he had his head shaved and entered the famous Buddhist monastery on Mount Minobu to become a monk.

Although the police of Japan are noted for their ability to bring crimes to a speedy solution, this is not the case with the courts. Justice moves very slowly. Years generally are taken to examine and try the principals in important crimes.

In the case of Osada, months dragged on as the court conducted the preliminary examination. It was not until Nov. 25, 1936, that the case came up for hearing in the Tokio District court.

During all this time, however, there was no lagging in public interest in the case. Osada was the topic of conversation everywhere.

• • •

On the day of the trial of Osada, or rather on the night before, persons desiring to obtain seats in the courtroom commenced to stand in line. By dawn there were more persons than could possibly be admitted. Many, including not a few girls and women, spent the entire night sleeping on the sidewalk.

Chief Judge Hosoya of the Tokio District court presided.

Part of the verbatim questions and answers exchanged between Osada and the presiding judge follow:

Q.—You became a geisha girl at 18. Did you take up the profession of your own inclination? A.—I was not particularly fond of being a geisha. My father said he had brought me up to be one and that I should do so.

Q.—Did your father insist that you become a geisha? A.—I was more than my father could handle. I did things very much as I pleased.

Q.—You were sent by your father to become a maidservant because you were too unruly, were you not? You stole 90 yen (about $25) from your employer and you were arrested, were you not? A.—Yes.

Q.—Later you went to Kobe and became a woman of loose character? A.—Yes.

Q.—Later you went to Osaka. What did you do there? A.—I was a concubine.

Q.—In those days you changed your master three times, did you not? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why? A.—Why not? (Osada smiled.)

Q.—You cannot answer that in public, I suppose. A.—When I became friendly with another man my master would desert me. This happened three times.

Q.—I see. But you became a cafe waitress later? A.—Yes, but I quit soon.

Q.—What is your idea of chastity? A.—I think it is important.

Q.—What sort of man do you like? A.—How should I explain? A man who is thoroughly kind to a woman.

Q.—Have you ever met a man with whom you felt like committing double love suicide? A.—Nobody except Ishida (whom she killed).

As Osada's talk became descriptive of her love life and her talk threatened to touch on certain scenes, the judge ordered the proceedings to be held in camera. So at this stage the public was excluded.

Sada Abe was defended by Defense Attorney Takeuchi. This venerable lawyer was severely berated by Osada when, to make a good case for her, he claimed that she was a victim of strange sexual impulses.

"What you you think you're doing?" the woman snapped. "Things are bad enough as they are without having my own defense throw mud at me."

The defense attorney tried to calm Osada and explained that what he brought up was a technical point.

"That doesn't interest me. I'm prepared to take what's coming to me," Osada snarled.

The defense insisted on discussing sadism at length. This was something about which the courts of Japan had heard vaguely but had never encountered. It made an impression.

After the prosecutors and the defense rested, Chief Judge Hosoya pronounced judgment.

• • •

He said that while Osada was guilty of a heinous crime, society was partly to blame. Moreover, the woman proved to the satisfaction of the court that she intended to take her life had she not been apprehended and thus commit double love suicide with Ishida. She was, moreover, suffering from great mental strain. Under the circumstances he wished to make her sentence as light as possible, but in view of the adverse effect this might have on the public, inasmuch as the case had attracted nation-wide attention, he had decided to sentence Osada to six years' imprisonment.

No objection was raised to this judgment. The public regarded it as fair.

So ended, so far as the law was concerned, the case of Sada Abe. But the public refuses to forget the case. Newspapers and magazines continue to feature articles on the murder and trial, and the woman still remains the topic of conversation wherever people gather.

Always New, Always Old

(Tribune natural color photograph posed by Abbott dancers.)

● More than 3,300 years separate these modern ballet dancers from the Egyptian scene depicted in the background. For more than 33 centuries art in its various forms, including the classic dance, has been moving upward from this quaint painting by a nameless brush wielder in the tomb of a long-dead king. Art, whether in the form of painting, sculpture, or the dance, never is stationary. There always is a new goal for which the artist may strive. But the painter of today still borrows ideas from the ancients of Egypt. And the dancer of today still imitates the graceful movements and gestures of the raven-haired beauty who charmed a Pharaoh. Art, therefore, is something always new, yet something always old—older even than the pictures that adorn the tombs of Luxor, on the site of ancient Thebes, in the valley of the Nile.

Strike War and Spanish War

WHEN EMBATTLED FARMERS CAME TO GRIPS WITH 500 SITDOWN STRIKERS in the Hershey, Pa., plant of the Hershey Chocolate corporation, fifty persons were injured; the strikers were beaten, captured, and run through a gantlet of missils. JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE at the Hershey chocolate plant, farmers and nonstriking allies massed with blackjacks and makeshift clubs. Then they smashed doors to get at the sitdowners. "Now there's a girl who KNOWS HER WAY AROUND"

"THAT girl has something."

"And plenty of it. I've seen prettier girls and known smarter ones, but Janet will manage nicely with what she has."

• • •

The girl who knows her way around men — what is her secret?

It's the happy art of pleasing, of taking care always to consider masculine likes and dislikes.

She knows that one of the things men admire most in a girl is a fresh, sweet daintiness of person. And that they dislike nothing more than the odor of underarm perspiration on her clothing and person.

And so she runs no risk of this danger. For she knows how easy it is to avoid — with Mum!

Takes only half a minute. Just half a minute is all you need to use Mum. Then you're safe for the whole day!

Harmless to clothing. You can use Mum any time, even after you're dressed. For it's harmless to clothing.

Soothing to skin. It's soothing to the skin, too—so soothing you can use it right after shaving your underarms.

Doesn't prevent natural perspiration. Mum doesn't prevent natural perspiration. But it does prevent every trace of perspiration odor. And how important that is! Remember — nothing so quickly kills a man's interest in a girl as disagreeable perspiration odor. Don't risk it — use Mum regularly. Bristol-Myers Co., 630 Fifth Ave., New York.

ON SANITARY NAPKINS. Use Mum for this and you'll never have to worry about this cause of unpleasantness.

Duchesses will wear four rows; marchionesses, three and a half; countesses, three; viscountesses, two and a half; baronesses, two. Most expensive, the duchess', at least $2,000; least expensive, the baroness', a mere $1,175, without the coronet.

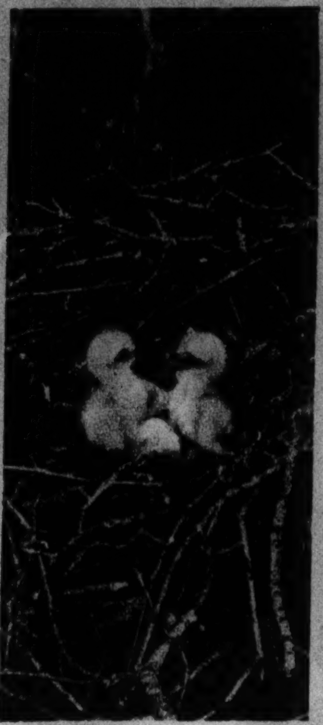
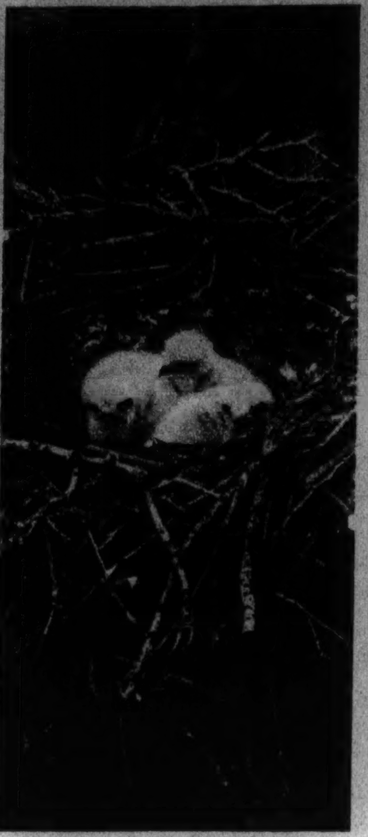
From Tribune Readers: An Adventure in Pictures

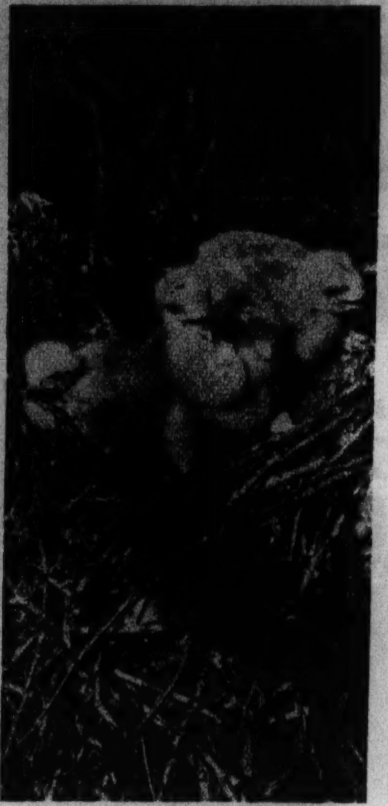
1 In the top of an oak 65 feet from the ground, near De Pere, Wis., a pair of western red-tailed hawks built this nest. Indefatigably, Guy S. Peckham climbed to the eyrie once a week, trained his camera from the same point, and made this remarkable record of the hatching of the eggs and the growth of the young.



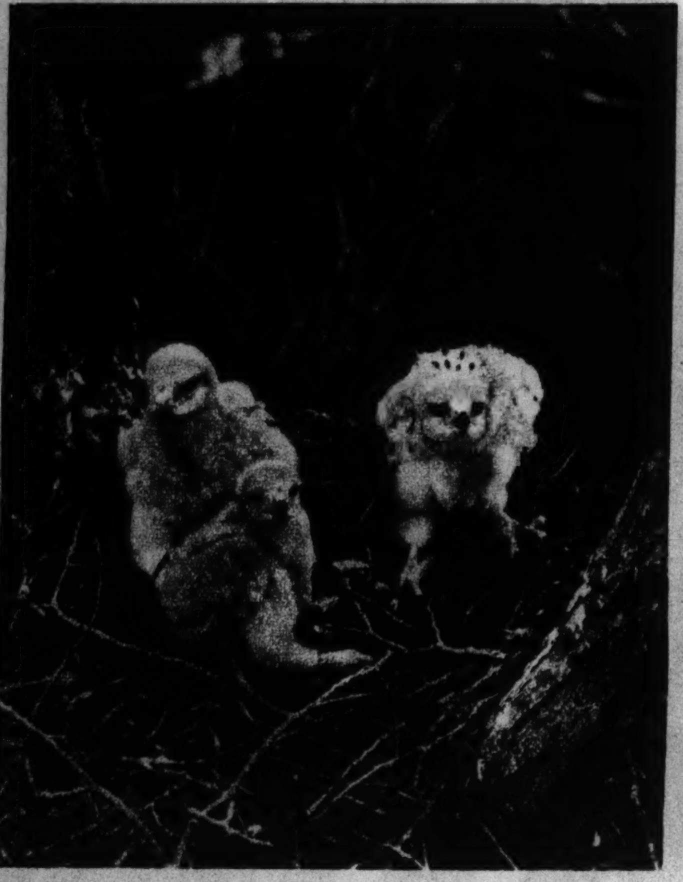
2 By chance, Mr. Peckham's second visit to the nest found the fledglings just out of the egg. The small fellow in the center, indeed, is not yet dry; he evidently was the weakling whose inferiority appears in subsequent pictures.



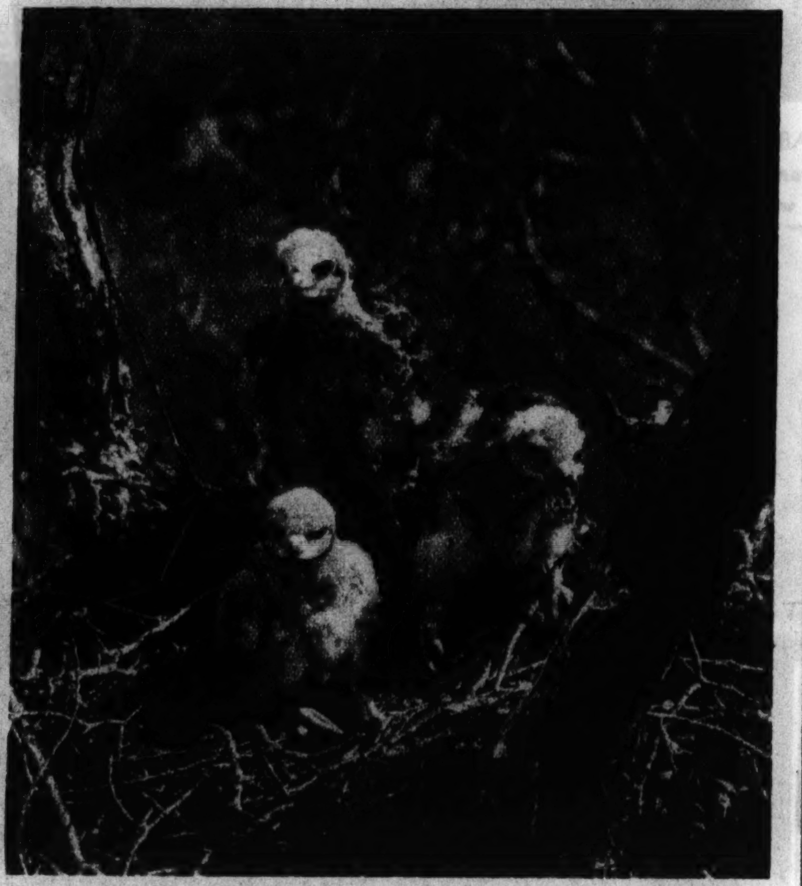
3 On visit No. 3, Photographer Peckham interrupted the baby hawks in the midst of dining on a striped gopher brought to the nest by a parent.



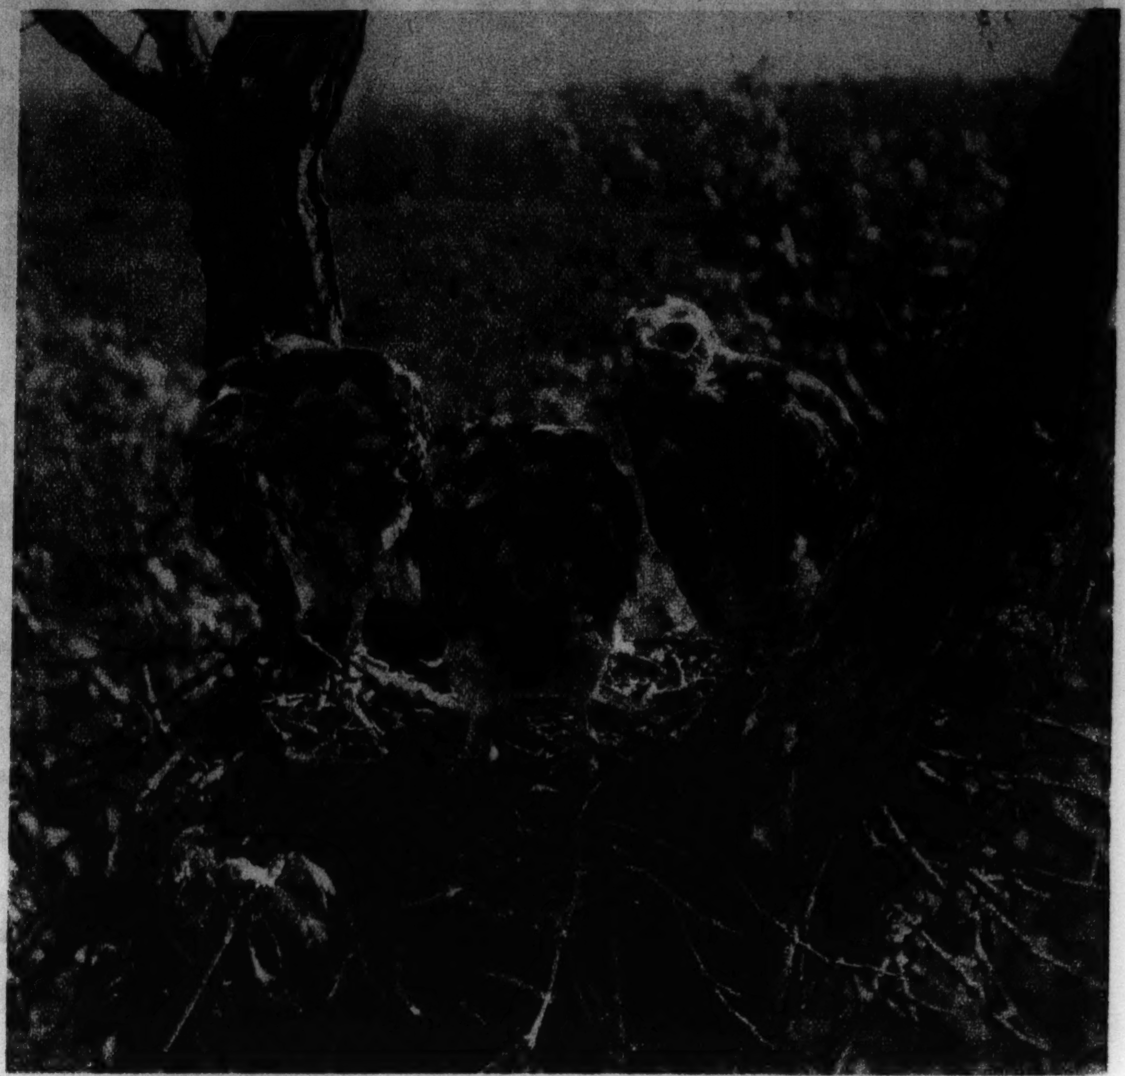
4 Whereas Mr. Peckham portrayed the fledglings as downy, chick-like creatures in picture No. 3, on this visit he found them taking on the fierce and strident characteristics of their kind.



5 Babies no longer, the red-blooded trio stares curiously at an aerial row. The quarrel is between the photographer and the parent hawks, which swooped upon and screamed at the intruder every time he appeared.



6 Sitting up and taking an interest in the world about them, on the photographer's sixth visit, the young hawks are not much longer to be kept in the nest. Even the scrawny fellow will be ready to take wing when the time comes.



Photos from Guy S. Peckham, De Pere, Wis.

7 Photographer Peckham trains his camera on the hawk trio for the eighth and last time (one picture preceding this is omitted). The three hawk youngsters are now forty-three days old and able to fly. A week later young and old had left the vicinity.

SMASHING THROUGH FOUR MILES OF 20 INCH ICE, the car ferry Chief Wawatam opens a lane for ore carriers into the harbor of Escanaba, Mich. In the wake of the car ferry follow the coast guard cutter Escanaba, which had tried unsuccessfully for three days to break the ice, and the four ore carriers, which for days had been waiting to enter the harbor and take on cargoes for which steel mills are clamoring.

WHO SAID 15¢ WINDOW SHADES LOOK CHEAP?

"CLOPAYS LOOK STUNNING and YOU Get 10 Shades for the Price of ONE!"

"I PROVED to myself that 15c Clopay fibre shades are as smart looking as $1.50 shades. So I know paying big prices for window shades is foolish. Now I buy ten long-wearing Clopays for what I formerly paid for one cloth shade." No wonder millions are buying Clopay shades. *New Lintone effect (as illustrated) and charming chintz patterns. Do not crack or pinhole. And only 15c instead of $1.50. See them in leading 5c and 10c and neighborhood stores. For FREE color samples, write to CLOPAY CORP., 1298 Dayton St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

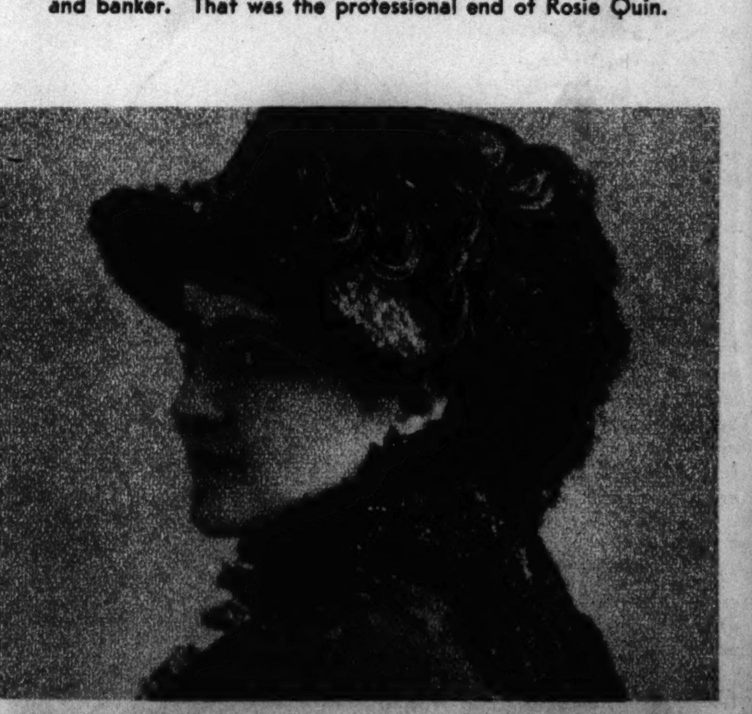
They Would Have Been Roto Pictures In Their Day

LOTTA FAUST is a fond memory to many Chicagoans; they can see her still—in the mind's eye, Horatio—as a slender, dark-haired girl with an indefinable witchery, singing "Sammy" at some smirking citizen in a stagebox. The show was "The Wizard of Oz," the year 1902. In 1908 she was leading woman in "The Girl Behind the Counter," with Lew Fields, and danced a startling number with a long-legged, freakish looking chap by the name of Vernon Castle, then only a chorus man. Lotta died before she was 30; her funeral evoked Broadway hysteria which only a movie star's obsequies could arouse today.

JULIA SANDERSON might be called Miss Indestructible, for her career as a singing girl began in 1903 and is by no means ended. Last year she was heard in radio programs, caroling her ditty of twenty years ago, "I'm Certainly Going to Tell Them How Wonderful You Are;" in 1935 she went on tour as an actress in "The Old Maid." Her thirty odd years of musical shows included Winsome Winnie," 1903; "Fantana," 1904; "The Arcadians," 1910; "The Girl from Utah," 1914; "Sybil," 1916; "No, No, Nanette," 1925. She was one of Charles Frohman's lyric stars, and her management of an ankle-length skirt in dances was a form of fine art.

MABELLE GILMAN had ten years of fame in light operas and musical comedies from 1896 to 1906, and then she became Mrs. William E. Corey. He was the millionaire president of the steel trust, and the marriage caused a great excitement, particularly because Mr. Corey had to divorce his first wife in order to claim the actress' hand. Miss Gilman appeared first in "The Geisha," then in "The Circus Girl," "The Runaway Girl," "The Casino Girl," "The Mocking Bird," "The Hall of Fame," and "Dolly Varden." Steel Magnate Corey is said to have bought up all the photographs of Miss Gilman which showed her legs, but apparently he forgot to bid on this one.

ROSIE QUIN was a little bubble of joy that floated quaintly in the theatrical air for a few years in the second decade of this century and then vanished. She has left a memory of a chubby, laughing girl in infantile costume, toddling on the runway over the audience in revues from the New York Winter Garden, and archly singing a ditty called "Pretty Baby." She appeared in a number of these revues, called "Passing Shows," and also in a frolic called "Hello, Alexander." In 1920 she was secretly married to Louis Burgess, son of a millionaire Omaha manufacturer and banker. That was the professional end of Rosie Quin.



ADELINA PATTI, the most famous soprano of the post-Jenny Lind generation, was the most famous operatic soprano of all time. Many persons still living can vouch for the purity and agility of Patti's singing, for her long career extended into the twentieth century. She took part in the dedication of the Auditorium theater, Chicago, on Dec. 9, 1889, and on the following evening sang the role of Juliet in the first operatic production (Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet") that the historic theater ever housed. Patti died in Wales in 1919.
